1. The first step in the process of identifying a problem is to define the problem clearly. This involves identifying the symptoms and the underlying causes of the problem.

2. Once the problem has been defined, the next step is to gather information about the problem. This involves conducting research and consulting with experts in the field.

3. After gathering information, the next step is to analyze the information and identify the most likely causes of the problem. This involves using logical reasoning and critical thinking skills.

4. Once the causes of the problem have been identified, the next step is to develop a plan of action to address the problem. This involves setting goals and determining the steps that need to be taken.

5. The final step in the process is to implement the plan of action and monitor the results. This involves taking action on the plan and evaluating the progress made towards solving the problem.

INTRODUCTION

People turn to scripture for lots of reasons—for encouragement and challenge, for guidance and reflection, for study and prayer. For whatever reason you are opening the Bible today, undoubtedly you want not only to read the words of scripture but also to understand them. You've made a good beginning by choosing the Common English Bible, since it's one of the most readable translations available in the English language. Even so, while reading the Bible we sometimes stumble over events we're not sure about and customs that seem strange to us. Sometimes we need some help understanding the story line of a narrative or grasping an image introduced by a prophet. To address questions like these, we've asked experts on each book of the Bible to provide reliable help for reading that book.

Consider a story from the book of Acts. In chapter 8 we read about an encounter between a Christ-follower named Philip and an Ethiopian man who was on his way home after a visit to Jerusalem. Along the way, the Ethiopian was reading from the book of Isaiah. When Philip saw this, he asked, "Do you really understand what you are reading?" The Ethiopian responded, "Without someone to guide me, how could I?" (Acts 8:30-31). Many of us have had this kind of experience. We understand the words on the page well enough, but we need something more—some context, some background, a little guidance.

We've prepared The CEB Study Bible to provide ordinary Bible readers and reading groups with guidance for learning and understanding. We've worked to explain such things as the culture of these writers and books, historical background, the way biblical books relate to each other, difficult translation issues, and more. We've provided the kind of information that helps to make sense of texts but that isn't actually mentioned by the text itself—the kind of information often assumed by the writers and early readers of the biblical texts. How do we understand a text within the larger book in which we find it? What background knowledge sheds light on a text? What are some of the important theological issues raised by these texts? Our study notes, cross references, maps, concordance, and introductory essays won't do all of the work of interpreting a text. We think that the study helps in a Bible shouldn't replace the biblical text but should help to open it up to our understanding as we seek to hear these texts speak today.

People turn to scripture for many reasons. Most of us come to the Bible because of its centrality to our faith. We trust God to use The CEB Study Bible as a tool to strengthen the faith of God's people.

PREFACE TO THE COMMON ENGLISH BIBLE

The King James Version of the Bible was published in 1611. For two centuries the KJV competed for readership with the Geneva Bible. However, by the nineteenth century in America, the KJV would be described as the “common English Bible,” because it was the most widely used translation of Christian scripture. Numerous translations have appeared since that time. However, it has proved difficult to combine concern for accuracy and accessibility in one translation that the typical reader or worshipper would be able to understand. Therefore, readers in the twenty-first century, four hundred years after the creation of the KJV, need and deserve a new translation that is suitable for personal devotion, for communal worship, and for classroom study.

The Common English Bible (CEB), completed in 2011, is a fresh translation of the Bible. Some editions include the books of the Apocrypha that are used in Anglican, Orthodox, and Catholic congregations. The translation is sponsored by the Common English Bible Committee, which is an alliance of denominational publishers, including Presbyterian (USA), Episcopalian, United Methodist, Disciples of Christ, and United Church of Christ representatives.

One hundred twenty biblical scholars from twenty-two faith traditions worked as translators for the CEB. In addition, members of seventy-seven reading groups from congregations throughout North America reviewed and responded to early drafts of the translation. As a result, more than five hundred individuals were integrally involved in the preparation of the CEB. These individuals represent the sorts of diversity that permit this new translation to speak to people of various religious convictions and different social locations.

The translators, reviewers, and editors represent the following faith communities: African Methodist Episcopal Church, American Baptist, Anglican, Baptist, Baptist General Conference, Church of the Nazarene, Disciples of Christ, Episcopal Church, Evangelical Free Church, Evangelical Lutheran Church, Free Methodist, Mennonite, Moravian, National Baptist, Presbyterian (USA), Progressive National Baptist, Quaker, Reformed Church in America, Reform Judaism, Roman Catholic Church, Seventh-day Adventist, United Churches of Christ, and United Methodist. The CEB is truly a Bible created by churches and for the Church.

Accuracy and clarity. The CEB translators balance rigorous accuracy in the rendition of ancient texts with an equally passionate commitment to clarity of expression in the target language. Translators create sentences and choose vocabulary that will be readily understood when the biblical text is read aloud. Two examples illustrate this concern for accuracy and clarity.

First, ben 'adam (Hebrew) and huios tou anthrōpou (Greek) are best translated as “human being” (rather than “son of man”) except in cases of direct address, where CEB renders “human one” (instead of “son of man” or “mortal”; e.g., Ezek 2:1). When ho huios tou anthrōpou is used as a title for Jesus, the CEB refers to Jesus as “the Human One.” People who have grown accustomed to hearing Jesus refer to himself in the Gospels as “the Son of Man” may find this jarring. Why “Human One”? Jesus’ primary language would have been Aramaic, so he would have used the Aramaic phrase bar enosha. This phrase has the sense of “a human” or “a human such as I.” This phrase was taken over into Greek in a phrase that might be translated woodenly as “son of humanity.” However, Greek usage often refers to “a son of x” in the sense of “one who has the character of x.” For example, Luke 10:6 refers in Greek to “a son of peace,” a phrase that has the sense of “one who shares in peace.” In the Greek of Acts 13:10 Paul calls a sorcerer “a son of the devil.” This is not a reference to the sorcerer’s actual ancestry, but it serves to identify his character. He is devilish—or more simply in English “a devil.” Human or human one represents accurately the Aramaic and Greek idioms and reflects common English usage. Finally, many references to Jesus as “the Human One” refer back to Daniel 7:13, where Daniel “saw one like a human being” (Greek huios anthropou). By using the title Human One in the Gospels and Acts, the CEB preserves this connection to Daniel’s vision.

Second, the phrase “Lord of hosts” (Yahweh sebaoth in Hebrew; Kyrios sabaoth in Greek) appears hundreds of times in older Bibles and persists as an idiom in translations that preserve King James usage. This archaic translation is no longer meaningful to most English speakers. The CEB renders Yahweh sebaoth and Kyrios sabaoth as “Lord of heavenly forces,” which conveys accurately the meaning of the Hebrew and Greek phrases by using contemporary English language.

English speakers, especially when telling a story, writing a letter, or engaging in conversation, make frequent use of contractions. As a result, translators have often used contractions, particularly in direct speech, in the CEB. However, formal genres of literature typically do not include contractions. As a result, translators did not include contractions in contexts such as (a) formal trials or royal interviews (socially formal situations), (b) much divine discourse (e.g., Hos 11:9; Exod 24:12), and (c) poetic and/or liturgical discourse (several types of psalms).

Texts. Translators of the Old Testament used as their base text the Masoretic Text (MT) as found in Biblia Hebraica Stuttgartensia and the published fascicles of Biblia Hebraica Quinta. For some books the Hebrew University Bible Project was consulted. Judicious departures from the Masoretic Text, based on ancient manuscript (e.g., reading with the Dead Sea Scrolls in 1 Sam 10:27b or Deut 32:8) and versional evidence (e.g., reading with the Septuagint in Gen 4:8), were sometimes necessary. In those situations, in which one may postulate two literary editions of a biblical book, or in which there are major or lengthy differences between the Masoretic Text and other texts or versions (e.g., 1 Sam 17), the CEB translated the edition that became canon in the Masoretic Text.

Translators of the New Testament used as their base text the eclectic Greek text known as Nestle Aland, the twenty-seventh edition, which was published in 1993.

Translators of the Apocrypha faced a more complicated set of choices. Translators generally used the base text presented in the Göttingen Septuagint. For those books not yet published in the fascicles of the Göttingen Septuagint, translators used the 2006 revised edition of Rahlfs’ Septuaginta, edited by Robert Hanhart. However, in those instances in which Hebrew texts have survived and offer a better reading (e.g., in Sirach and Tobit), the translator noted alternative readings to the Greek Septuagint. Second Esdras presents a special problem, explained in a footnote about the Latin text.

Footnotes. Translators decided, in certain instances, that they should explain their translations or textual decisions. However, notes are kept to a minimum and are rendered with utmost concision. Such notes when present offer: (a) evidence from ancient texts and versions (e.g., LXX; MT men of); (b) brief philological comment (e.g., Heb uncertain); (c) explanations of anomalies in versification (e.g., Acts 8:37: Critical editions of the Gk New Testament do not include 8:37 Philip said to him, “If you believe with your whole heart, you can be.” The eunuch answered, “I believe that Jesus Christ is God’s Son”); (d) citations of the Old Testament in the New Testament; and rarely (e) alternative translations (e.g., Or everyone). In those instances in which the Old Testament is cited in the New Testament, the quoted text is set in italic font.

Measurements. When possible, the CEB converts linear and spatial dimensions to feet and inches. Thus archaic terms such as rods, cubits, spans, handbreadths, and fingerbreadths are replaced with feet and inches. For example, Genesis 6:15 gives the dimensions of Noah's ark in 'ammah or "forearms." Most translations since the KJV use the archaic English cubit to translate 'ammah: "the length of the ark three hundred cubits, its width fifty cubits, and its height thirty cubits." The CEB translates the dimensions of the ark as "four hundred fifty feet long, seventy-five feet wide, and forty-five feet high."

The CEB prefers to transliterate (rather than translate) measurements of capacity, both wet (e.g., bath) and dry (e.g., homer), as well as measurements of weight (e.g., kikkar). When feasible, a footnote is allowed to calculate the rough equivalent in a U.S. English measurement, such as quarts.

Monetary values are inherently relative, and prices are constantly changing. Therefore, the CEB prefers to transliterate (rather than translate) monetary weights (e.g., shekel) and coins (e.g., denarion).

Months in the biblical lunar calendar are transliterated, with a footnote to indicate the approximate month or months in the Gregorian solar calendar (e.g., Nisan is March–April).

Pronouns. In ancient Hebrew and Greek a pronoun is often bound with the verb. If the translator is too literal, the English reader loses the antecedent of the pronoun so that one cannot tell who is speaking or acting in the sentence or paragraph. This problem occurs throughout much biblical literature. The CEB addresses this issue by substituting a noun for a pronoun, but only when the antecedent is clear. Because this problem and its resolution are so common, the CEB usually does not offer footnotes to identify these substitutions. CEB translators also use gender-inclusive or neutral syntax for translating pronouns that refer to humans, unless context requires otherwise.

Consistency. Although translators often try to use the same English word for a Hebrew or Greek word, many words in any language offer a breadth of meanings that do not readily correlate with a single word in the target language. For example, the Hebrew word torah, which has often been translated as Law, is often better translated as Instruction. The same could be said for Sheol (Hebrew) and Hades (Greek). The CEB translates these two terms as "grave" or "death" and "underworld" or "hell," respectively depending on context. A mechanical selection of any one term for words that involve semantic breadth would preclude a translation sensitive to the originating literary context.

The women and men who participated in the creation of the CEB hope that those who read and study it will find the translation to be an accurate, clear, and inspiring version of Christian scripture.

2. The second step is to gather information about the problem. This involves collecting data and consulting with others who may have experience with the problem.

3. The third step is to analyze the information and identify the root cause of the problem. This involves using logical reasoning and critical thinking to determine the most likely cause of the problem.

4. The fourth step is to develop a plan of action to address the problem. This involves identifying the steps that need to be taken to solve the problem and determining the resources that will be needed to implement the plan.

5. The fifth step is to implement the plan and monitor the results. This involves putting the plan into action and tracking the progress of the solution to ensure that the problem is being resolved.

6. The sixth step is to evaluate the solution and determine if the problem has been resolved. This involves assessing the effectiveness of the solution and identifying any areas for improvement.

7. The seventh step is to communicate the results of the solution to the relevant stakeholders. This involves sharing the findings and the actions that were taken to solve the problem.

THE CANONS OF SCRIPTURE

Almost complete agreement prevails within contemporary Christianity regarding the content of the NT canon. The following tables list only the various OT canons.

All Christian churches accept the 39-book Jewish canon for the OT (Table I). The Roman Catholic and Orthodox traditions accept additional books into the OT canon. Anglicans, Lutherans, and other Protestants call these books the Apocrypha.

Table I: The Jewish Canon

Jewish Scriptures are divided into three parts: Torah, Prophets, and Writings. 1–2 Samuel, 1–2 Kings, 1–2 Chronicles, Ezra and Nehemiah, and the twelve minor prophets are each considered a single book because each set of writings forms one complete scroll.

Torah	Prophets	Writings
Genesis	Former Prophets	Psalms
Exodus	Joshua	Proverbs
Leviticus	Judges	Job
Numbers	1–2 Samuel	Song of Songs
Deuteronomy	1–2 Kings	Ruth
	Lamentations	Ecclesiastes
	Latter Prophets	Esther
	Isaiah	Daniel
	Jeremiah	Ezra
	Ezekiel	Nehemiah
	The Twelve	1–2 Chronicles
	Hosea
	Joel
	Amos Obadiah
	Jonah
	Micah
	Nahum
	Habakkuk
	Zephaniah
	Haggai
	Zechariah
	Malachi

Table II: The Protestant Old Testament

Most Protestant denominations accept the following 39 books as the canon of the OT. Most Lutheran denominations possess no official canon of Scripture, but in actual practice, Lutherans generally use the 39-book Protestant OT canon.

Genesis	Isaiah
Exodus	Jeremiah
Leviticus	Lamentations
Numbers	Ezekiel
Deuteronomy	Daniel
Joshua	Hosea
Judges	Joel
Ruth	Amos
1-2 Samuel	Obadiah
1-2 Kings	Jonah
1-2 Chronicles	Micah
Ezra	Nahum
Nehemiah	Habakkuk
Esther	Zephaniah
Job	Haggai
Psalms	Zechariah
Proverbs	Malachi
Ecclesiastes
Song of Songs

Table III: The Roman Catholic Old Testament Canon

The Roman Catholic Canon includes all 39 books found in the OT in Table II, plus 11 additional books. These books are arranged variously in different Roman Catholic Bibles. The order below reflects that of the New American Bible. The names of books in italics are those books not found in the Protestant canon.

Genesis	Wisdom of Solomon
Exodus	Sirach
Leviticus	Isaiah
Numbers	Jeremiah
Deuteronomy	Lamentations
Joshua	Baruch (Baruch 6 = Letter of Jeremiah)
Judges	Ezekiel
Ruth	Daniel (with three additions: the Prayer of Azariah [and Hymn of the Three Young Men], Susanna, and Bel and the Snake )
1 Samuel	Hosea
2 Samuel	Joel
1 Kings	Amos
2 Kings	Obadiah
1 Chronicles	Jonah
2 Chronicles	Micah
Ezra	Nahum
Nehemiah	Habakkuk
Tobit	Zephaniah
Judith	Haggai
Esther ( with six additions )	Zechariah
1 Maccabees	Malachi
2 Maccabees
Job
Psalms
Proverbs
Ecclesiastes
Song of Songs

[The Vulgate, or Latin, translation of the Roman Catholic Bible contains 3 Esdras = 1 Esdras, 4 Esdras = 2 Esdras, and the Prayer of Manasseh in an appendix.]

Table IV: The Orthodox Old Testament Canon

The Orthodox tradition includes all 39 books of the OT found in Table II, plus 14 additional books. In the Greek Orthodox Church, the traditional text for the OT is the Greek Septuagint (LXX). The Slavonic translation of the Septuagint is the traditionally used OT text for the Russian Orthodox Church. The names of books in italics are those not found in the Protestant canon.

Genesis	Song of Solomon (= Song of Songs)
Exodus	Wisdom of Solomon
Leviticus	Wisdom of Sirach (= Sirach in the Numbers	CEB Apocrypha)
Deuteronomy	Hosea
Joshua	Amos
Judges	Micah

1 Kingdoms (= 1 Samuel)	Obadiah
2 Kingdoms (= 2 Samuel)	Jonah
3 Kingdoms (= 1 Kings)	Nahum
4 Kingdoms (= 2 Kings)	Habakkuk
1 Chronicles	Zephaniah
2 Chronicles	Haggai
1 Esdras (= 1 Esdras in the CEB Apocrypha, = 2 Esdras in Slavonic Bibles)	Zechariah
2 Esdras (= Ezra, in some Orthodox Bibles 2 Esdras also included Nehemiah)	Malachi
Nehemiah	Isaiah
Tobit	Jeremiah
Judith	Baruch

Psalms ( with Psalm 151 )	[Greek Orthodox Bibles contain 4 Maccabees and the Prayer of Manasseh in an appendix. Slavonic Bibles add 3 Esdras = 1 Esdras to this appendix.]
Job
Proverbs

Table V: The Anglican Apocrypha

Anglicans accept the 39-book Jewish OT canon. Additionally, the Anglican Church, according to Article VI, the Articles of Religion, The Book of Common Prayer, accepts the Apocrypha as to be “read for example of life and instruction of manners; but [are] not [applied] to establish any doctrine.” In actual practice, only Wisdom and Sirach are used in the lectionary cycle, and short readings from Judith and 2 Esdras are used for two minor festivals. Some Anglicans would reject any canonical value for the Apocrypha and accept only the 39-book Protestant canon.

GENESIS

Stories about beginnings deal more with the present than the past. The stories of Genesis focus on the present world and the lives of the people who composed them. The authors' aim was to make sense of the world they knew by explaining how it came into being. They came to terms with who they were as a people by explaining their own origins in that world. So these stories describe their people's identity and their particular role in the world. The writers of Genesis explain their own connection to their natural landscape and how that environment shaped their lives. They also explain their place in the larger cultural landscape they occupied as a small ancient kingdom. As a deeply religious people, they showed how their origins were part of God's design for the world and themselves.

Even modern readers sense intuitively how these stories are about the present, including their own present circumstances. The world that these stories bring into being is still, of course, in many ways, the world in which we all live. As we will see, the world that the authors of Genesis set out to explain was their own small world. They describe their own society in its actual ancient natural and cultural landscape, far removed from the realities of modern readers. Yet, when the particular is described with enough depth and insight, the universal truths of our common humanity can speak through it. Readers of Genesis thus face a decision: when to understand its view of the world as limited by its time and place, and when to understand its view of the world as touching the very roots of our humanity.

To tell this story of themselves and their place in the world, the writers of Genesis used the genealogy list, which is foreign to most modern readers. Modern readers stall when repeatedly reading that so-and-so became the father of so-and-so. They usually skip these parts of the Bible. But even the well-known stories in Genesis are part of this genealogical design. They explain with detail what happened to key people in genealogies.

For ancient societies, and for traditional societies today, genealogies provide a key way to understand one's identity and relationships with others in the world. These lists of names are actually cultural maps. By identifying their earliest ancestors and their relations to each other, the authors of Genesis tell us (1) who they considered to be within their human "family"; (2) how they were related to others in their family; and (3) what their particular role in the family was. In a genealogy, every person stands not merely for the one historical figure but for all that figure's descendants. For example, the story of Jacob and Esau isn't only the story of the conflict and reconciliation of two brothers, but also the story of the relationship between their descendants, the Israelites and the Edomites.

Readers of Genesis notice that several of the events in the book are told twice. There are two accounts of creation, two records of the generations between creation and the flood, two flood narratives (woven together), three stories of Israel's ancestors presenting their wives as their sisters on foreign soil, two stories of Hagar's exile from Abraham's family, two explanations of how Jacob's name was changed to Israel, and so on. These are all genuine marks that the book of Genesis wasn't written down as a single story by a single author—such as Moses, as tradition has it—but that the book is a collection of multiple traditions of Israel's beginnings from different sources or authors. The book of Genesis itself doesn't identify its authors, and biblical scholars have suggested a number of different proposals for them.

The classic proposal is that there were three authors. None of these figures should be considered authors in the modern sense, but rather skilled communicators who preserved and passed along traditions that had been developed over time by many before them. The two earliest of these are the Yahwist and the Elohist.

The Yahwist, it is believed, lived during the Davidic monarchy, founded around 1025 BCE, an important and influential ancient Near Eastern kingdom (1 and 2 Sam; 1 and 2 Kgs). Scholars gave him his name because he used Israel's personal name of God, "Yahweh," rendered in the CEB as "the LORD," a title traditionally substituted for Yahweh. The Elohist, it is believed, lived during the monarchy as well and has been associated with the northern kingdom of Israel. His name comes from his avoidance of God's personal name in Genesis and his use of the common Hebrew word elohim, "God." The third author is the Priestly writer, so called because his contributions to Genesis reflect the practices of Israelite religion, like the Sabbath and circumcision, and his interest in thorough record keeping. He lived either during or after the Babylonian exile, which began in 587 BCE, a time when the Israelites hoped for the restoration of their monarchy and the reconstruction of their temple.

Editors skillfully combined the stories of these three writers into a single account of Israel's beginnings. Genesis, therefore, provides the reader not one but multiple viewpoints on beginnings. The reader will still notice at times the special styles and perspectives of the writers and differences in their traditions. As a result, the reader experiences a richer picture of God, of the world, and of God's people than would be possible from a single ancient writer. At key places in Genesis where details and religious viewpoints differ, the notes will help the reader hear these unique voices more clearly.

The book of Genesis isn't an independent and complete volume in the Bible. It's only the start of the stories of Israel's beginnings found in the first four books of the Bible: Genesis, Exodus, Leviticus, and Numbers. These books deal with the exodus from Egypt, the revelation of the Instruction at Mount Sinai, and the journey through the desert back to Canaan. As the beginning of this whole story, and as a sacred text in Jewish and Christian scripture, Genesis becomes the starting point for thinking about the nature of the world and of humanity itself. Its power to shape the beliefs and practices of its readers has never ceased.

World's creation in seven days

1 When God began to create<sup>a</sup> the heavens and the earth—<sup>2</sup>the earth was without shape or form, it was dark over the deep sea, and God's wind swept over the waters—<sup>3</sup>God said, "Let there be light." And so light appeared. <sup>4</sup>God saw how good the light was. God separated the light from the darkness. <sup>5</sup>God named the light Day and the darkness Night.

There was evening and there was morning: the first day.

1:1–2:4a Genesis gives readers two perspectives on creation: one in Genesis 1:1–2:4a and another in Genesis 2:4b–3:24. This first account is more spacious, taking in the whole world. The following account in Genesis 2 and 3 has a more limited, localized setting, taking place entirely at a garden in Eden. Here in the first account, God creates the world in six days. God then rests on the seventh, establishing the Sabbath as a day of rest and a part of the natural order. God's week of creative work follows a perfectly symmetrical pattern. In the first three days, God marks out three earthly realms: (1) day and night; (2) sky and sea; and (3) land and plants. In the second three days, God populates these three realms with stars and planets, birds and sea creatures, and land animals including humans. God is viewed as high and powerful in this account, creating mostly by command. This creation story was likely written by one of Israel's priests. It connects with several of Israel's religious practices and rituals. This account describes the Sabbath as creation's climax (2:1-3). It refers to the major events of Israel's religious calendar (1:14). It divides the world into the spaces separating clean from unclean animals (1:20-25). Finally, it employs repetition, which may have been intended for liturgical reading. This Priestly writer aimed to describe creation with such harmony and beauty that it would inspire the people of Israel to praise and worship their creator. This text shows how Israel's religious practices connect with the very structure of the world.

1:1-2 The introduction mentions the vast waters on the unformed earth from which God creates an ordered world. 1:2 The deep sea is the great reservoir of water preceding creation, which on the second day of creation (Gen 1:6-7) will be divided. wind: translates a Hebrew term whose basic meaning is "air." Depending on its context, it is usually translated either "wind" or "breath." Here both meanings may be intended. In some cases, God's wind is connected to God's activity in creation (Ps 104:4). Here God's breath is connected to God's creative activity, since God's commands bring everything into being. The translation "Spirit" used in some English translations (KJV, RSV, NIV) comes from later Greek ideas. The author of Genesis doesn't divide between spirit and matter as did later Greek thought. Nor is the author referring here to the third member of the Trinity.

1:3 The first day begins, as does each day, with a divine command: God said.

1:4 The translation God saw how good . . . appears here and at each stage of creation (Gen 1:10, 12, 18, 21, 25, 31). It emphasizes God's approval of creation and better reflects the underlying Hebrew than the usual translation, "God saw that it was good." The English word "good" doesn't adequately capture the full meaning of the Hebrew term, which is usually used for what is beautiful, excellent, valuable, and of high quality. This statement is one of the Bible's clearest and strongest claims that the world of creation has great value on its own terms apart from its usefulness to humans, who won't be created until the sixth day. 1:5 The phrase evening . . . morning closes each day. It probably reflects the idea that night (between evening and morning) ends the day. A new day thus begins at dawn, when each new creative act takes place. Some texts indicate this practice of beginning days at sunrise (Lev 7:15), while others lay the framework for the current Jewish practice of beginning days at sunset (Lev 23:32).

1:6-8 On the second day of creation, God creates the Sky by forming a dome to separate the vast waters at the beginning of creation (Gen 1:2) into two great reservoirs, one above the dome or sky and one beneath it. According to ancient Israel's concept of the world's design, this dome (sometimes translated "firmament") is a barrier that holds back a great reservoir of water in the sky, the source of rainfall. When the "windows in the skies" are opened (e.g., Gen 7:11), the water in this reservoir falls as rain. The reservoir of water below the sky will become the world's seas when separated from the land on the third day of creation. 1:9-13 On the third day, dry land and plants appear in two creative acts: God separates the waters under the sky from the dry land (1:9-10); and God calls forth plants, earth's first forms of life (1:11-13).

1:11-12 The earth, formed by God's first act on the third day (Gen 1:9-10), now participates in God's creative activity, producing the world's plant life. The writer of this

In God's Image How does being formed in God's image make humans unique in creation? Interpreters have answered that question in many different ways. Their answers typically relate to how they themselves view human nature.

Early Christian interpreters believed that having God's image made humans like God spiritually. It gave humans a soul. For example, Augustine believed the image of God referred to the rational soul, placed by God in the human body. Thus God and humans were spiritual beings, while all other life was merely material. However, this division between soul and body, or spirit and matter, is a later development in Greek thought. The idea of a soul isn't shared by OT writers.

A different answer given by interpreters from ancient to modern times is that being made in God's image gives humans special dignity. According to this interpretation, the divine image refers to the worth of all human beings. In this view, all persons carry God's image and are to be treated with equal respect. This understanding of human nature focuses, as Genesis does, on the whole person rather than on the soul alone. It has given powerful support for those who are demeaned, marginalized, and oppressed.

Recent biblical scholars have looked in ancient cultures around Israel to understand better this idea of the image of God in Genesis 1. Egypt and Mesopotamia described reigning kings as the images of particular gods. The phrase designated a ruler as a certain god's special representative on earth. So by adapting this expression, the writer of Genesis 1 identifies human beings as the representatives of divine rule on earth.

This interpretation of humans as representatives of divine rule matches what comes next in Genesis. God says that humanity is made in the image of God so that humans can take charge of animals (Gen 1:28). So when read in light of its literary and ancient cultural contexts, the image of God describes humanity's prominent position in the world. It shows humanity's responsibility to rule creation as God's representative. Human beings are thus considered mediators of God's presence in the world.

<sup>14</sup>God said, "Let there be lights in the dome of the sky to separate the day from the night. They will mark events, sacred seasons, days, and years. <sup>15</sup>They will be lights in the dome of the sky to shine on the earth." And that's what happened. <sup>16</sup>God made the stars and two great lights: the larger light to rule over the day and the smaller light to rule over the night. <sup>17</sup>God put them in the dome of the sky to shine on the earth, <sup>18</sup>to rule over the day and over the night, and to separate the light from the darkness. <sup>20</sup>God said, "Let the waters swarm with living things, and let birds fly above the earth up in the dome of the sky." <sup>21</sup>God created the great sea animals and all the tiny living things that swarm in the waters, each according to its kind, and all the winged birds, each according to its kind. <sup>23</sup>There was evening and there was morning: the fifth day.

text carefully observed and classified the world. Here, the writer divided vegetation into the two kinds of plants cultivated by Israelite farmers. The first, plants yielding seeds, may also be translated "grains yielding seed." It refers to wheat and barley, whose seed is plainly visible on the stalk. These grains were the primary crops of Israelite agriculture. The second kind of plant life, trees bearing fruit, are the tree crops, primarily olives, whose seeds are hidden inside the fruit (with seeds inside it). Israelite farmers used fruit to supplement grain production. God gives these two kinds of plants to human beings as their food later in this story (Gen 1:29). The term "kind" is the closest ancient equivalent of the modern scientific term "species," since it indicates a distinct form of life that reproduces.

1:14-19 On the fourth day, God begins filling the world's spaces created on the first three days by populating the realms of day and night with the heavenly bodies that inhabit and regulate these realms.

1:14-15 The heavenly bodies have two purposes: to provide light for earth and to determine time by marking out its significant periods. days and years: the basic units of time. sacred seasons: the primary periods in Israel's liturgical year, that is, its major religious festivals (see Lev 23).

1:20-23 God divides the animal world into three categories: (1) the animals in the sea, created on the fifth day; (2) the birds in the sky, also created on the fifth day; and (3) the land animals, created on the sixth day. These are the three categories used by Israel's priests to classify animals when they make distinctions between clean (edible) and unclean (inedible) animals in Leviticus 11:1-19.

1:20-21 The swarm of living things refers here to all of the animal life that inhabits seas and rivers (Lev 11:10, 46). The great sea animals are probably the largest sea creatures (KJV "whales"), as this same Hebrew term is used for "crocodile" in Ezekiel 29:3 and "sea monster" in Ezekiel 32:2. See also the note on Exodus 7:8-13.

1:22 God's blessing gives animals the ability to reproduce. In ancient times, the mysterious nature of conception was directly associated with divine activity (Gen 4:1; 16:2).

1:24-31 On the sixth day, God populates the earth with land animals, including human beings.

1:24-25 As on the third day, the earth participates in God's creative activity. This time, the earth produces the land's animals. The earth and its animals are also closely linked in the second creation story, where animals are made from the soil of the earth itself (Gen 2:19). The word translated livestock can refer both to the larger animals on a typical Israelite farm and to all large animals (Gen 6:20; Lev 11:1-8). These animals contrast with the crawling things, that is, the smaller creatures.

1:26-31 Human beings are created on the sixth day with the other animals, but they are given a unique place among all living things. Humans alone are made in God's image, and they are commanded to Take charge of the other animals (see sidebar, "In God's Image" at Gen 1; "Dominion or Dependence?" at Gen 2).

1:26 When God uses the word "us" here and in Genesis 11:7, God is addressing the divine council, the assembly of heavenly beings believed to assist God in governing the world and communicating with the human race (Gen 1:16; 16:7; 1 Kgs 22:19-23; Job 1:6-7; Jer 23:18, 22). humanity translates the Hebrew word adam. Later, this word is used as the name of the first man, Adam (e.g., Gen 5:1). Here, it is used more generally for humanity, since it is defined in the following phrase as including both male and female (see sidebar, "Gender in Genesis" at Gen 3).

1:29 Here humans were vegetarians before the flood. They were given food from the two traditional Mediterranean crops, grains and fruits, created on the third day of creation (Gen 1:11-12).

2:1-4a The first creation account comes to its climax when the seventh day of the week is designated as a sacred day of rest, modeled on God's own behavior at creation (cf. Exod 20:8-11). As seen clearly here, the Priestly writer's aim is to show that Israel's religious practices are part of the structure and rhythms of the world itself.

2:2 A number of ancient translations identified in translation note c preserve the original designation sixth as the day when God finished creating. "LXX" refers to the Septuagint, an ancient Greek translation. "Sam" refers to the Samaritan Pentateuch. "Syr" refers to the Syriac (also called the Peshitta). Our current Hebrew text is called the Masoretic Text. It is abbreviated MT in translation note c. The MT contains the alternative "seventh." Because this word differs from many other ancient translations and contradicts the aim of rest on the seventh day, it is likely an error made by scribes who copied ancient manuscripts by hand. The Hebrew terms for rested and "Sabbath" are different forms of the same Hebrew word.

2:4 The word "account" translates a Hebrew term that usually means "an account of a man and his descendants." So this word introduces part of a larger genealogy. In the case of Genesis, the word appears 13 times, dividing the book's genealogical framework into major sections (Gen 5:1; 6:9; 10:1; etc.). Here the writer uses it to say that creation itself is the very beginning of the genealogical record of the world's people.

2:4b-3:24 Here in the second account of creation, the world comes into existence by God's acts and purposes. The same was true of the first account of creation (Gen 1:1-2:4a). Yet the reader will notice a number of differences between this story and the previous story of creation. Here the scene is limited to a garden, and there is no mention of the time it took God to create the world. Further, the order of creation is different from the first account: Here the first human being is made before anything else. In this story, God is closer and more personal, planting and shaping things on the ground rather than commanding from a distance. In place of the formal, repetitious style of the first account, this dramatic story features interacting characters and a different vocabulary for creation. The Israelite name of God is introduced for the first time. Probably pronounced "Yahweh," it is represented by the word "LORD" (in capital and small capital letters; Gen 2:4b, 5, 7, etc.), following an old tradition that regarded the name as too holy to read aloud. Because this writer uses the divine name "Yahweh," he has been called the Yahwist. These differences in the style, the details, and the portraits and names of God in the two stories of creation in Genesis reflect the distinct views of their writers. They show that Israel valued and honored a variety of voices and their unique historical and religious perspectives. The special aim of the Eden story is to explain the Israelites' relationship to their landscape (2:4b-15; 3:14, 17-19); to God (2:16-17; 3:1-13, 20-24); and to each other (2:18-25; 3:16).

2:4b-15 The opening of this creation story describes its setting in the garden. The aim of this description is to explain the relationship of humans to creation itself, their natural environment. The details of creation in this setting, as in the first story (Gen 1:1-2:4a), are drawn from the concrete realities of the agricultural landscape in the highlands east of the Mediterranean Sea, which was home to ancient Israel.

2:4b The first creation story spoke of "the heavens and the earth" (Gen 1:1; 2:1, 4). The second story reverses these words and speaks of earth and sky, which points to this story's stronger earthly focus. The center of the story is, in fact, the garden's fertile land.

2:5 The phrase before any wild plants appeared doesn't describe nothingness or a dry wasteland. Rather, it refers to the time before the actual realities of the audience's agricultural landscape had appeared. wild plants: likely the low bushes and dwarf shrubs just beyond Israel's cultivated fields that were used as pasture for farm animals. field crops: the grains, wheat and barley, that Israelite farmers cultivated. rain: mentioned because Israelite agriculture was dependent on direct rainfall rather than irrigation systems.

2:6 The stream (sometimes translated "mist") rising from the ground must refer to a spring, a common phenomenon of the biblical landscape. A spring without the rainfall to feed it (Gen 2:5) made sense for the original audience, who imagined a large and permanent reservoir of water under the earth (cf. Gen 1:2, 6-7).

2:7 God's first act of creation in this second story is to form a human being out of topsoil. Usually translated "dust" (KJV, NRSV, NIV), this is the best soil lying on the surface of the fertile land from which the first human was made. As translation notes f and g indicate, the Hebrew words for human (adam) and fertile land (adamah) sound alike and emphasize the connection between human beings and their land. Such a story makes sense of the world for an ancient agricultural society in which its members' livelihood and survival were linked closely to the soil. The fertile land was the source of the food that sustained their lives, and it shaped their identity as farmers. The Hebrew term for the first human created in this account, adam, can mean "a man" or "a human being," as translation note e in Genesis 2:5 indicates. The ancient listener would probably have heard both meanings in this term (see sidebar, "Gender in Genesis" at Gen 3). life's breath: the capacity to breathe shared by all animals (Gen 7:22). God gives and sustains this ability in everything that breathes (Ps 104:29-30).

2:8 The name Eden is taken from a Hebrew term meaning "fertility" and reflects the garden's abundant plant life. The details of the garden's landscape don't match typical Israelite farmland. The description of Eden better matches Jordan Valley oases (like Jericho) and the temple gardens in Jerusalem, which were both irrigated by springs, like Eden. Cultures often connect creation with the site of their temple.

2:9 God creates the garden's plants from the same fertile land from which God created human beings. The tree of life and the tree of the knowledge of good and evil introduced here play important roles later when the writer explains the relationships between God and humans (see notes on Gen 2:16-17 and 3:22-23).

2:10-14 Scholars have been unsuccessful in connecting all these rivers with actual waterways in the Middle East. They have therefore never agreed on the actual location of Eden. The Pishon can't be identified, nor can Havilah, the land where it flows, but the mention of gold, resins, and gemstones points to the Arabian Peninsula, as does the later mention in Genesis of the Ishmaelites in Havilah (Gen 25:18). The Gihon is the name of the spring that is

Dominion or Dependence? Humanity is increasingly endangering its environment. How, then, should we understand God's giving humanity power over creation in Genesis 1:26, 28? These verses have been interpreted by some as granting humans unlimited power and license to exploit nature for their own use.

"Take charge of" (Gen 1:26; KJV, NRSV: "have dominion") translates the Hebrew word for "rule." It's used elsewhere for the authority of masters over servants (Lev 25:43) and kings over subjects (Ps 72:8). So it does grant humanity power and authority over the animal world. But the word doesn't in itself define the way power is exercised, since power can be used for either caring or harsh rule. In the context of Genesis 1, humans are viewed as God's representatives in creation (see sidebar, "In God's Image" at Gen 1). So, "taking charge" must be understood as exercising the same kind of authority God would exercise in the natural world.

An entirely different picture of the human place in nature is present in Genesis 2:4b–3:24. Here, the first human is made out of the "topsoil" of the earth's "fertile land" and given the command to "farm" it (Gen 2:5, 7, 15). The word translated "farm" in the CEB almost always means "serve." It expresses the service of servants to masters (Gen 12:6); of one people to another (Exod 5:9); and of people to God (Exod 4:23). So human beings are created specifically to serve the fertile soil. Humans in this account depend on nature rather than exert dominion over it.

These two different images of the human as ruler and as servant point to universally acknowledged realities: Humanity has the unique power to alter the world, but we are ultimately dependent on the earth and its life for survival.

Jerusalem's primary source of water, though its association with Cush (probably in northwest Arabia or south of Egypt) here is unclear. If the author locates creation and Eden at the site of the temple in Jerusalem, then the Gihon fits this context nicely (while the other rivers don't; see the note for Gen 2:8). The Tigris and Euphrates are the major rivers of the Mesopotamian river valley, where Israel's ancestors originated (Gen 11:28, 31; 15:7). Perhaps the author saw the important rivers of his time all springing from the same underground reservoir that fed Eden's spring.

2:15 God put Israel's first ancestor in the garden to do the typical work of Israel's ancient agricultural society: to farm the land and to take care of it. "Farm" translates a Hebrew verb used for cultivating land. It can also mean "serve" (see sidebar, "Dominion or Dependence?" at Gen 2). The Hebrew word for take care of also means to "protect" or "watch carefully."

2:16–17 Once the landscape of creation is brought to life and the human relationship to it is described (Gen 2:4b–15), the story's two plotlines begin. One starts here when God commands the first human not to eat from the tree of the knowledge of good and evil. It continues in the second half of the Eden story in Genesis 3:1–24. Its aim is to explain humanity's relationship to God. The fruit of the tree of the knowledge of good and evil provides the self-consciousness that gives humans the ability to make moral choices.

2:18–25 This creation story's other plotline begins in Genesis 2:18, when God recognizes that the first human being is alone. It concludes when a second human being is created and the human family begins. Its aim is to describe the basic relationships of humans to each other in ancient Israelite society.

2:18 perfect for him: translates a difficult Hebrew expression that can also be rendered "like himself" or "corresponding to him."

2:19 God creates the animals from the same fertile land out of which the first human was made (Gen 2:7). Naming the animals is an act of recognition, identification, and relationship to them. It doesn't necessarily express human power over them (cf. Gen 16:13).

2:20 The animals God created were, in fact, helpers on the Israelite farm, but none were like the first human, corresponding to him, or perfect for him. In other words, none were suitable partners to begin the human family.

2:21–22 While customarily translated "rib," the part of the body out of which the second human is made is in fact uncertain, since the Hebrew term is used nowhere else of the human body.

2:23 To identify the new human being as a woman, and

"This one finally is bone from my bones and flesh from my flesh.
She will be called a woman<sup>l</sup> because from a man<sup>k</sup> she was taken."

Knowledge, not eternal life

3The snake was the most intelligent<sup>l</sup> of all the wild animals that the LORD God had made. <sup>3</sup>He said to the woman, "Did God really say that you shouldn't eat from any tree in the garden?"

<sup>2</sup>The woman said to the snake, "We may eat the fruit of the garden's trees <sup>3</sup>but not the fruit of the tree in the middle of the garden. God said, 'Don't eat from it, and don't touch it, or you will die.'"

<sup>4</sup>The snake said to the woman, "You won't die! <sup>5</sup>God knows that on the day you eat from it, you will see clearly and you will be like God, knowing good and evil." <sup>6</sup>The woman saw that the tree was beautiful with delicious food and that the tree would provide wisdom, so she took some of its fruit and ate it, and also gave some to her husband, who was with her, and he ate it. <sup>7</sup>Then they both saw clearly and knew that they were naked. So they sewed fig leaves together and made garments for themselves.

<sup>8</sup>During that day's cool evening breeze, they heard the sound of the LORD God walking in the garden; and the man and his wife hid themselves from the LORD God in the middle of the garden's trees. <sup>9</sup>The LORD God called to the man and said to him, "Where are you?"

<sup>11</sup>He said, "Who told you that you were naked? Did you eat from the tree, which I commanded you not to eat?"

<sup>12</sup>The man said, "The woman you gave me, she gave me some fruit<sup>n</sup> from the tree, and I ate."

<sup>13</sup>The LORD God said to the woman, "What have you done?!"

And the woman said, "The snake tricked me, and I ate."

to link man and woman together, two new Hebrew terms are introduced into the story: ishshah, which means "woman" or "wife" (see translation note j); and ish, which means "man" or "husband" (see translation note k). The play on words in the Hebrew emphasizes their likeness and compatibility with each other. (See sidebar, "Gender in Genesis" at Gen 3.) These two words identify both biological roles (man/woman) and social roles ("husband/wife"). 2:24 one flesh: identifies both biological and social roles. Biologically, it refers to the physical union in marriage that produces children. Socially, it describes how different families are joined together in marriage. 2:25 Only after gaining self-consciousness by eating the fruit of the tree of the knowledge of good and evil do humans recognize their nakedness (Gen 3:6-7). 3:1-24 The Eden creation story now shifts back to the other plotline that began in Genesis 2:16-17. It focuses on the two trees with divine fruit (Gen 2:9, 16-17). As the chapter heading in the CEB states, humans gain knowledge from the tree of the knowledge of good and evil. However, they will be denied the tree of life, thus never gaining eternal life (Gen 3:22-23). Humans thus share God's knowledge but not God's immortality. 3:1 snake: In the ancient Near East, snakes were often thought to have sacred qualities, including immortality, because they shed their skins annually. 3:4-5 The snake was right. When the couple ate the fruit, they didn't die immediately, and they became like God, knowing good and evil (3:4). God must have changed God's mind after saying "on the day you eat from it, you will die!" (Gen 2:17; cf. Gen 6:6). The people died not as a punishment for eating the fruit but because they were created mortal (Gen 2:7; 3:19); and God denied them the immortality from the life-giving tree (Gen 3:22). 3:6 The woman actively debates with the snake. As a result, some readers emphasize her guilt. Others point to her initiative and intelligence. (See sidebar, "Gender in Genesis.") 3:8-11 The couple recognize that they are naked because they have gained self-consciousness from eating the fruit of the tree of knowledge. 3:12-13 When confronted with their disobedience, the people pass the blame instead of accepting responsibility. The man even blames God indirectly (The woman you gave me). 3:14-15 God punishes the snake with a curse that explains why snakes have no legs. This curse also explains human contempt for them: Snakes attack humans by striking at their heels, and humans kill them by striking their heads.

Gender in Genesis Creation stories in Genesis have been used throughout history both to blame women for the origin of sin and to give women lower status than men. This is especially true of the story of creation at the garden in Eden. To support this way of reading Genesis, interpreters point out that the woman ate the forbidden fruit first and then gave some to her husband (Gen 3:6). She is punished by being placed under her husband's authority (Gen 3:16). This interpretation is reinforced by understanding the first human as male (Gen 2:7), and then seeing the woman as derived from the man and made to be his helper (Gen 2:20-23).

Modern interpreters have challenged the negative view of women in this traditional reading of Genesis 1-3. They point out that in the first creation story both "male and female" are created at the same time in God's image (Gen 1:27). They note that even if the woman was created after the man in the second creation story (Gen 2:23), this ordering doesn't necessarily make her inferior. After all, humanity isn't inferior by virtue of being created after many other things in Genesis 1. While the woman fills the role of "helper" in the second creation story (Gen 2:18, 20), this title doesn't necessarily mean she is inferior. In fact, God is often called a "helper" (e.g., Ps 30:10). Furthermore, the woman and the man both disobey in the second story. Interestingly, the woman here is the more active, thoughtful person, engaging the questions and issues raised by the snake. The man, by contrast, is entirely passive and unreflective (Gen 3:1-6). Finally, interpreters argue, the subordination of women to men isn't a part of the ideal world God created in the garden. It's one of the consequences of human sin (Gen 3:16). Thus Genesis 2-3 actually presents an ideal of sexual equality in human society.

At the same time, the picture of Israelite society that emerges from Genesis and the OT as a whole isn't one where the sexes have equal status. It's rather a society that has some powerful women, but gives authority to men. Men hold positions of institutional power (1) as head of the Israelite family (called the "father's household," Gen 12:1); (2) as leaders of Israelite society (kings, 2 Sam 7:11-14); and (3) as religious leaders (priests, Exod 28:1; and prophets, Gen 20:7). Furthermore, Israelite society is structured around men. Genealogies figure descent through men and usually omit the names of women (Gen 5:3-32). Property is owned and passed down through males (Gen 27:1-4). The family resides in the man's house (Gen 24:5-9, 57-61). Even the second story of creation in the garden reflects aspects of Israel's male-centered society. The man represents the woman in the writer's narrative (Gen 3:22, 24) and when speaking with God (Gen 2:16-17; 3:9-10). He names his wife (Gen 2:23; 3:20) and holds authority over her (Gen 3:16).

While biblical women don't possess institutional authority, they are often powerful and influential figures, especially in the family setting of the stories in Genesis. Sarah, Rebekah, Leah, Rachel, and Tamar are all strong characters. They take the lead in order to direct male-centered structures toward their own goals. They often subvert male-centered authority and exert more influence over the outcome of events than their husbands. Furthermore, what women want often aligns with what God intends (e.g., see Gen 25:23; 27:5-10). Thus the stories of Genesis both recognize the male-centered structure of Israelite society and undermine its power and authority.

 "I will make your pregnancy very painful;
 in pain you will bear children.
 You will desire your husband,
 but he will rule over you."

3:16 God punishes the woman by increasing the difficulty of her primary role in the Israelite family: bearing children. By associating pain both with pregnancy and with bear[ing] children, punishment includes the anxieties, difficulties, and dangers of conceiving, carrying, and giving birth to children (cf. Gen 16:1; 30:1; 35:16-20). The second part of the punishment guarantees male authority in the family. desire: translates a Hebrew term that also includes an element of power or persuasion, as it does when used in the story of Cain and Abel (Gen 4:7). The underlying Hebrew could also be translated "entice." See sidebar, "Gender in Genesis."

3:17-19 God punishes the man by increasing the difficulty of his primary role in the Israelite family: farming. The ground God curses is the same fertile land out of which humans were made (Gen 2:7) and which they were given to farm (Gen 2:5, 15; 3:23). The curse on fertile land continues until the flood, when God removes it (Gen 4:11-12; 5:29; 8:21). The return to the fertile land at death isn't part of the punishment. It ends the hard life of farming, the punishment imposed.

3:20-23 The story of the garden in Eden ends when the first couple are driven out of the garden. God expels them not as their punishment for eating from the tree of knowledge, but in order to keep them from eating also the fruit of the tree of life and gaining eternal life (3:22-23). The difference between humans and God is drawn: Humans share God's knowledge but not God's immortality. They remain mortal.

3:24 The winged creatures are sometimes called "cherubim," which is merely the Hebrew term. They aren't angels but probably look like lions with eagle's wings and human faces. They are closely associated with God (1 Kgs 6:23-28; Ps 18:10).

4:1-16 The story of Cain and Abel is about family conflict. It parallels the story of the garden in Eden in many ways: God issues a command, humans disobey, God confronts them, they protest, and God punishes them with expulsion. In the stories of Genesis, the first period of human history before the flood was an era of human failure, which ended with the punishment of the flood and the survival of the first righteous person, Noah (Gen 6:8; 7:1). Here in Genesis 4, the failure is the breakdown of family bonds when Cain kills his brother, Abel. It shows how family conflict should not be handled. Conflicts between brothers also threaten generations after the flood in Genesis, but these later conflicts are resolved without bloodshed (see sidebar, "Family Conflict in Genesis").

4:1 In Hebrew, the name Cain sounds like the verb for given life to (or "created"; see translation note). It's a suitable name for the first human born. In stories written by the Yahwist, mothers name their children (Gen 4:25; 16:10; 29:31-35). Eve credits God for the birth, since pregnancies and children were considered God's gifts (cf. Gen 16:2).

4:2 While Cain and Abel are often viewed as representing farming and herding cultures, they are better understood as the story actually describes them: brothers doing the two main tasks on an Israelite family farm. Cain, the older son and heir to the family's land, farmed the fertile land, as did his father. Abel, the younger son, cared for the flocks, as was customary for the youngest son in Israelite families (cf. 1 Sam 16:11).

4:3-5 The story doesn't give the reason God accepted Abel and his sacrifice over Cain and his sacrifice. Similarly, God's choice of one brother over another isn't explained in later generations in Genesis (e.g., Gen 25:23). The point of the story is to examine how to deal with the conflict between brothers, not to explain God's preferences.

Family Conflict in Genesis The rivalry between Cain and Abel introduces the theme of family conflict that appears throughout Genesis. Readers find quarrels and discord between:

- Noah's sons (Gen 9:20-27);
- Abraham and his nephew Lot (Gen 13:1-18);
- Sarah and her household servant Hagar (Gen 16:1-16);
- their sons Isaac and Ishmael (Gen 21:8-21);
- Jacob and Rachel (Gen 30:1-4);
- Rachel and Leah (Gen 30:14-16);
- Jacob and Laban (Gen 31:1-55);
- Jacob and Esau (Gen 25-36);
- Tamar and Judah (Gen 38); and
- Joseph and his brothers (Gen 37; 39-50).

In many of these cases, conflict is introduced when a younger son is favored over the older son, who is the legitimate heir. Brotherly disputes result.

These sorts of conflicts occur frequently because Genesis focuses on family stories. In biblical Israel, the family is the basic unit of society. Each higher level of social organization—clan, tribe, kingdom—is modeled on family structures. In such a society, the stability of the family is essential for the stability of society as a whole. The passing of authority from one generation to the next is a matter of highest concern. The most pressing need is to pass authority without the violence that could destroy the family and society itself.

Cain and Abel clearly fail. They are the negative model for dealing with conflict. By contrast, the stories of brotherly conflict after the flood are all resolved by reconciliation without violence. In the stories of Jacob and Esau and of Joseph and his brothers, the elder brothers whose authority has been challenged consider murder, as did Cain. In both of these cases, however, conflict is resolved by reconciliation. The brother who has been wronged, and who is also the more powerful, sets aside his anger in order to reunite the family.

These stories are immensely entertaining. But they also carry the deeper message that social conflicts need to be resolved through peaceful means, not violence.

Cain said, "I don't know. Am I my brother's guardian?"

<sup>10</sup>The LORD said, "What did you do? The voice of your brother's blood is crying to me from the ground. <sup>11</sup>You are now cursed from the ground that opened its mouth to take your brother's blood from your hand. <sup>12</sup>When you farm the fertile land, it will no longer grow anything for you, and you will become a roving nomad on the earth."

<sup>13</sup>Cain said to the LORD, "My punishment is more than I can bear. <sup>14</sup>Now that you've driven me away from the fertile land and I am hidden from your presence, I'm about to become a roving nomad on the earth, and anyone who finds me will kill me."

<sup>15</sup>The LORD said to him, "It won't happen," anyone who kills Cain will be paid back seven times. The LORD put a sign on Cain so that no one who found him would assault him. <sup>16</sup>Cain left the LORD's presence, and he settled down in the land of Nod, east of Eden.

Cain's descendants

4:10-12 Cain's sin continues the curse on fertile land that began in Eden as God's punishment for his father's disobedience (Gen 3:17). In this case, the land is polluted by Abel's blood. It will produce nothing for Cain.

4:13-14 For an ancient Near Eastern farmer like Cain, removal to the desert was a death sentence. Vegetation and water were lacking, if not gone altogether. God was not even present there.

4:15-16 The sign given to Cain isn't explained in the story. The text says that God provided it to Cain to assure him of protection, but interpreters don't know what it looked like or how those who found Cain would know what it meant. Nod means "wandering" and is related to the Hebrew term translated "nomad" in Genesis 4:12. Nod isn't a specific country but a reference to the desert where nomads lived.

4:17-26 This is the Yahwist's record of the generations who lived before the flood. The Priest's record is found in Genesis 5. This account of Cain's descendants pays special attention to the last generation, Lamech's family. The text links Lamech's family with the origins of several human occupations (4:20-22) and a short song (4:23-24).

"Adah and Zillah, listen to my voice;
wives of Lamech, pay attention to my words:

I killed a man for wounding me,
a boy for striking me;

<sup>24</sup>so Cain will be paid back seven times and Lamech seventy-seven times."

<sup>25</sup>Adam knew his wife intimately again, and she gave birth to a son. She named him Seth<sup>a</sup> "because God has given me another child in place of Abel, whom Cain killed." <sup>26</sup>Seth also fathered a son and named him Enosh. At that time, people began to worship in the LORD's name.

Adam's descendants

5 This is the record of Adam's descendants. On the day God created humanity, he made them to resemble God<sup>2</sup> and created them male and female. He blessed them and called them humanity<sup>7</sup> on the day they were created. <sup>3</sup>When Adam was 130 years old, he became the father of a son in his image, resembling him, and named him Seth. <sup>4</sup>After Seth's birth, Adam lived 800 years; he had other sons and daughters. <sup>5</sup>In all, Adam lived 930 years, and he died.

<sup>6</sup>When Seth was 105 years old, he became the father of Enosh. <sup>7</sup>After the birth of Enosh, Seth lived 807 years; and he had other sons and daughters. <sup>8</sup>In all, Seth lived 912 years, and he died.

<sup>9</sup>When Enosh was 90 years old, he became the father of Kenan. <sup>10</sup>After Kenan's birth, Enosh lived 815 years; and he had other sons and daughters. <sup>11</sup>In all, Enosh lived 905 years, and he died.

<sup>12</sup>When Kenan was 70 years old, he became the father of Mahalalel. <sup>13</sup>After the birth of Mahalalel, Kenan lived 840 years; and he had other sons and daughters. <sup>14</sup>In all, Kenan lived 910 years, and he died.

4:17 The city is simply mentioned. No anti-urban attitudes are present here or elsewhere in Genesis.

4:20 Jabal is the first seminomadic herder whose descendants live in tents, similar to modern Bedouin.

4:21 Jubal, the first musician, may have been the first epic singer of traditions like those found in Genesis narratives. stringed and wind instruments: used to accompany songs of Israel's epic story (Exod 15; Judg 5).

4:22 Tubal-cain is the first blacksmith, making tools for planting, harvesting, and preparing food used in agricultural economies like Israel's.

4:23-24 Lamech's song, composed in archaic Hebrew poetry, is so short and obscure that its meaning and purpose are hard to determine. It may be a boast in battle, similar to Samson's (Judg 15:16) or David's (1 Sam 17:46). Here it emphasizes Lamech's strength and prowess. Lamech emphasizes his power by comparing his revenge to his ancestor Cain's.

4:25 On Adam, see the note on Genesis 5:1-3.

5:1-32 The interest in genealogies springs from the belief that one's ancestry and heritage determine one's identity (see the intro. to Genesis). This is the Priest's record of the generations before the flood. While the genealogy in 5:1-32 shares some of the names of the Yahwist's genealogy that precedes it (e.g., Enoch and Lamech; Gen 4:17-18), it also has unique features. Most obviously, it tells readers how long figures lived. It also traces Adam's lineage through Seth (5:4-6) instead of through Cain (Gen 4:17; cf. Gen 4:25-26). It contains different names in a different order (see note on 5:9-20). Furthermore, it includes ten generations instead of seven.

5:1-3 The two most important figures in Genesis 5:1-32 are Adam and Noah, who receive more attention than others. Genesis 5:1-3 repeats phrases from the Priest's creation story, especially Genesis 1:26-28: God created humanity... to resemble... male and female... blessed them. It begins with the phrase This is the record of Adam's descendants, which is similar to Genesis 2:4a. In Genesis 5:1a, 3-5, Genesis uses the Hebrew word adam as the proper name Adam. Typically, the Hebrew word means humanity (as in 5:1b-2; see translation note).

5:4 The long life spans of these pre-flood individuals appears to stem from an ancient Near Eastern belief that people before the flood long outlived their descendants after the flood. On other flood stories in the ancient Near East, see the note on Genesis 6:5-8:19.

5:6-8 The genealogy here traces humanity through Seth, not Cain (cf. Gen 4:17-26). Thus this genealogy excludes the murderer Cain from the ancestors of Noah and the human race.

5:9-20 While the names Kenan, Mahalalel, and Jared are similar to Cain, Mehujael, and Irada in Genesis 4:17-18, they <sup>15</sup>When Mahalalel was 65 years old, he became the father of Jared. <sup>16</sup>After Jared's birth, Mahalalel lived 830 years; and he had other sons and daughters. <sup>17</sup>In all, Mahalalel lived 895 years, and he died.

Ancient heroes

6When the number of people started to increase throughout the fertile land, daughters were born to them. <sup>2</sup>The divine beings saw how beautiful these human women were, so they married the ones they chose. <sup>3</sup>The LORD said, "My breath<sup>w</sup> will not remain in humans forever, because they are flesh. They will live one hundred twenty years." <sup>4</sup>In those days, giants<sup>y</sup> lived on the earth and also afterward, when divine beings and human daughters had sexual relations and gave birth to children. These were the ancient heroes, famous men.

Great flood

are neither identical nor in the same order. Their relationship has been impossible to determine. The Yahwist's and the Priest's traditions differ here.

5:22-24 The phrase walked with God is used also of the great ancestors Noah (Gen 6:9) and Abraham (cf. Gen 17:1). 5:27 Methuselah lived the longest of all.

5:28-29 Lamech refers back to the curse on the fertile land described in earlier stories (Gen 3:17-19; cf. Gen 4:10-12).

6:1-4 This unusual story tells about ancient heroes, famous men who were born to divine men and human women before the flood. Most interpreters have considered these divine-human unions offensive and regarded this story as an introduction to the wickedness that preceded the flood. But this story describes these men in heroic terms. It mentions no sins, as do the following verses introducing the flood (Gen 6:5-13). giants (Hebrew Nephilim; see translation note y) are mentioned again in Numbers 13:33, where they are described as warriors of great physical stature.

6:5-8:19 Israel shared with its neighbors the idea that history was divided into two ages. The first age ended with a great flood. Both the Epic of Gilgamesh and the Atrahasis Epic from Mesopotamia describe such a flood. They have many parallels to the biblical story. One key difference is that the Atrahasis Epic explains the flood as the gods' attempt to control overpopulation, while Genesis describes it as God's judgment of human sin. All of these flood stories appear to give expression to the deep human uneasiness about the stability of order in the world and the constant threat of chaos. In the biblical world, uncontrolled floodwaters were the primary symbol of chaos. The reader will notice a number of details that contrast or conflict with each other in the flood story. These can be best explained as coming from two writers, whose different stories have been skillfully combined here (rather than set side by side, as were the two creation stories). In the Yahwist's flood story, God is referred to by name (Yahweh, "the LORD" in the CEB). Heavy rain brings on the flood (7:4, 12; 8:2b), and it lasts 40 days and nights (7:4, 12, 17; 8:6). Noah brings seven pairs of the clean animals onto the ark (7:2-3), because they can be eaten and sacrificed, as Noah does immediately after the flood (Gen 8:20). The Priest always uses the word "God" in his story. The flood happens because the orders of creation fall apart (7:11; 8:2a), and it lasts an entire year (7:11, 24; 8:3b, 4-5, 13-14). Noah brings only one pair of all the animals onto the ark (6:19-20; 7:9, 15), since the Priest's traditions say that people don't eat meat until after the flood (Gen 1:29, 9:3), and they don't make sacrifices until God gives instructions for them at Mount Sinai (Lev 1-7).

6:5 With the phrase every idea their minds thought up, the text describes sin in personal, interior language. Sin is also described in inward terms elsewhere by the Yahwist in the Cain and Abel story (Gen 4:6-7) and in the conclusion to the flood story (Gen 8:20-22).

6:6 The Lord regretted: Regret and grief illustrate the Yahwist's view of God as a very humanlike figure. he was heart-broken: can also be translated "he felt pain in his heart."

beings on the earth, and he was heartbroken. <sup>7</sup>So the LORD said, "I will wipe off of the land the human race that I've created: from human beings to livestock to the crawling things to the birds in the skies, because I regret I ever made them." <sup>8</sup>But as for Noah, the LORD approved of him.

<sup>13</sup>God said to Noah, "The end has come for all creatures, since they have filled the earth with violence. I am now about to destroy them along with the earth, <sup>14</sup>so make a wooden ark. <sup>a</sup>Make the ark with nesting places and cover it inside and out with tar. <sup>15</sup>This is how you should make it: four hundred fifty feet long, seventy-five feet wide, and forty-five feet high. <sup>16</sup>Make a roof <sup>b</sup> for the ark and complete it one foot from the top. <sup>c</sup> Put a door in its side. In the hold below, make the second and third decks.

<sup>17</sup>"I am now bringing the floodwaters over the earth to destroy everything under the sky that breathes. Everything on earth is about to take its last breath. <sup>18</sup>But I will set up my covenant with you. You will go into the ark together with your sons, your wife, and your sons' wives. <sup>19</sup>From all living things—from all creatures—you are to bring a pair, male and female, into the ark with you to keep them alive. <sup>20</sup>From each kind of bird, from each kind of livestock, and from each kind of everything that crawls on the ground—a pair from each will go in with you to stay alive. <sup>21</sup>Take some from every kind of food and stow it as food for you and for the animals."

The same Hebrew word was used earlier for the woman's "pain" in pregnancy and childbirth (Gen 3:16) and for the man's "pain" in farming (Gen 3:17).

6:8 approved of: a typical phrase for describing the favorable regard and special generosity of one individual for another (Gen 18:3; 19:19).

6:9 These are Noah's descendants: This phrase identifies Noah as the first ancestor of the second age of history, which will begin after the flood. Aside from Enoch (Gen 5:22-23), Noah is the first person who walked with God. He is the first to be called moral and exemplary.

6:11-13 Whereas Genesis 6:5 described sin in personal terms, the Priest's focus here is more general: the earth had become corrupt and was filled with violence.

6:14-16 Neither the ark's building materials nor its design is completely understood. They don't appear to reflect the typical structure of ships in ancient times. The terms for the ark's wood and the tar to cover it in 6:14 (see translation note a) are used nowhere else in the Bible. The ark's dimensions in 6:15 suggest a rectangular shape. Such a boxy design appears to be part of the ancient Near Eastern flood tradition: The ship described in the Epic of Gilgamesh was a perfect cube, 180 feet on a side.

6:18 God's covenant with Noah is described more fully in Genesis 9:1-17.

6:22 This summary statement about Noah's obedience is meant to emphasize his moral and exemplary character (Gen 6:9).

7:1 On the word "moral," see notes on Genesis 6:9, 22.

7:2-3 In the Yahwist's story seven pairs of clean animals and birds are needed because clean animals are suitable for food during the flood and for sacrifice afterward (Gen 8:20). The Priest's story speaks of just one pair of all animals (Gen 6:19-20; 7:9, 15) because he believes that people did not eat meat or make sacrifices until later.

7:5 Noah was the first obedient person (Gen 6:22).

7:11 The Priest describes the flood as undoing creation: The reservoirs of water above and below the earth, the windows in the skies opened. <sup>12</sup>It rained on the earth forty days and forty nights. <sup>13</sup>That same day Noah, with his sons Shem, Ham, and Japheth, Noah's wife, and his sons' three wives, went into the ark. <sup>14</sup>They and every kind of animal—every kind of livestock, every kind that crawls on the ground, every kind of bird<sup>d</sup>—<sup>15</sup>they came to Noah and entered the ark, two of every creature that breathes. <sup>16</sup>Male and female of every creature went in, just as God had commanded him. Then the LORD closed the door behind them.<sup>e</sup>

8 God remembered Noah, all those alive, and all the animals with him in the ark. God sent a wind over the earth so that the waters receded. <sup>2</sup>The springs of the deep sea and the skies<sup>f</sup> closed up. The skies held back the rain. <sup>3</sup>The waters receded gradually from the earth. After one hundred fifty days, the waters decreased; <sup>4</sup>and in the seventh month, on the seventeenth day, the ark came to rest on the Ararat mountains. <sup>5</sup>The waters decreased gradually until the tenth month, and on the first day of the tenth month the mountain peaks appeared.

<sup>6</sup>After forty days, Noah opened the window of the ark that he had made. <sup>7</sup>He sent out a raven, and it flew back and forth until the waters over the entire earth had dried up. <sup>8</sup>Then he sent out a dove to see if the waters on all of the fertile land had subsided, <sup>9</sup>but the dove found no place to set its foot. It returned to him in the ark since waters still covered the entire earth. Noah stretched out his hand, took it, and brought it back into the ark. <sup>10</sup>He waited seven more days and sent the dove out from the ark again. <sup>11</sup>The dove came back to him in the evening, grasping a torn olive leaf in its beak. Then Noah knew that the waters were subsiding from the earth. <sup>12</sup>He waited seven more days and sent out the dove, but it didn't come back to him again. <sup>13</sup>In Noah's six hundred first year, on the first day of the first month, the waters dried up from the earth. Noah removed the ark's hatch and saw that the surface of the fertile land had dried up. <sup>14</sup>In the second month, on the seventeenth day, the earth was dry.

<sup>15</sup>God spoke to Noah, <sup>16</sup>"Go out of the ark, you and your wife, your sons, and your sons' wives with you. <sup>17</sup>Bring out with you all the animals of every kind—birds, livestock, everything crawling on the ground—so that they may populate the earth, be fertile, and multiply on the earth." <sup>18</sup>So Noah went out of the ark with his sons, his wife, and his sons' wives. <sup>19</sup>All the animals, all the livestock,<sup>g</sup> all the birds, and everything crawling on the ground, came out of the ark by their families.

God's promise for the earth

separated by a dome on the second day of creation (Gen 1:6-8), now rush together into the watery chaos present before creation began (Gen 1:2).

7:12-24 Here, at the height of the catastrophe, the two themes of the flood story converge. One is the deep human fear that order and life will collapse and disappear. The other is the deep human hope that life, like the animals and people aboard Noah's boat, will persevere and triumph in the end.

8:1 Just as God's wind blew over the chaotic waters at creation to bring order to them (Gen 1:2), so God's wind blows over the floodwaters to bring order again as the world is re-created after the flood.

8:3-4 Ararat was an ancient kingdom that included parts of modern Turkey, Iran, Iraq, and Armenia.

8:13 Noah sees the new world on the first day of the new year, which gives the day special importance.

8:13-14 In the Priest's story, the earth was dry a year after the flood began (see Gen 7:11).

8:20-22 These verses conclude the Yahwist's flood story, along with the Priest's account of the covenant in Genesis 9:1-17. Both this text and the account of the covenant describe how God reestablishes order and re-creates the world. Here the focus is on the stability of the earth's regular agricultural cycles in the new post-flood age (e.g., seedtime and harvest).

pleasing scent, and the LORD thought to himself, I will not curse the fertile land anymore because of human beings since the ideas of the human mind are evil from their youth. I will never again destroy every living thing as I have done.

seedtime and harvest,
cold and hot,
summer and autumn,
day and night
will not cease.

God's covenant with all life

9 God blessed Noah and his sons and said to them, "Be fertile, multiply, and fill the earth. <sup>2</sup>All of the animals on the earth will fear you and dread you—all the birds in the skies, everything crawling on the ground, and all of the sea's fish. They are in your power. <sup>3</sup>Everything that lives and moves will be your food. Just as I gave you the green grasses, I now give you everything. <sup>4</sup>However, you must not eat meat with its life, its blood, in it.

<sup>5</sup>I will surely demand your blood for a human life, from every living thing I will demand it.
From humans, from a man for his brother,
I will demand something for a human life.

by a human his blood will be shed;
for in the divine image God made human beings.

<sup>7</sup>As for you, be fertile and multiply. Populate the earth and multiply in it." <sup>8</sup>God said to Noah and to his sons with him, <sup>9</sup>"I am now setting up my covenant with you, with your descendants, <sup>10</sup>and with every living being with you—with the birds, with the large animals, and with all the animals of the earth, leaving the ark with you." <sup>11</sup>I will set up my covenant with you so that never again will all life be cut off by floodwaters. There will never again be a flood to destroy the earth."

8:20 Noah begins life after the flood by building an altar and making offerings. He thus reestablishes religious rituals, entirely burned offerings: made to give thanks, to ask for something, or to request forgiveness of sin.

8:21 Noah's sacrifice moves God to promise never again to curse the fertile land as punishment for human sin (Gen 3:17-19; 4:11-13; 5:29). Farmers in the new age therefore won't live constantly under this threat of destruction.

8:22 God's promise to protect the earth highlights the key events in Israel's agricultural calendar. seedtime: the sowing of barley and wheat in the fall. harvest: the gathering of these grain crops in the spring. summer and autumn: refer more specifically to the summer fruit harvest (primarily grapes) and the autumn fruit harvest (primarily olives). cold and hot: refer to the winter rainy season and the summer dry season into which the Mediterranean year is divided.

9:1-17 Here God reestablishes order and re-creates the world through a covenant, as the CEB section heading notes. A covenant establishes a committed relationship between God and human beings, between God and the world, or between one human and another human. This text describes the first covenant in the Bible. By it God begins the new age following the flood (Gen 8:8-17).

9:1-7 Creation's orders are reestablished and somewhat revised after the flood (see note on Gen 9:2-3).

9:1 God re-creates the fertility of the world in the new age by repeating the blessing given at creation (Gen 1:28; see also Gen 9:7).

9:2-3 The relationship established at creation between animals and humans changes. Whereas people were given only green grasses (the grains wheat and barley) for food at creation (Gen 1:29), they are now allowed to kill animals for food. This new order institutes Israel's practice of eating meat. It also legitimates sacrifice, which is established in the covenant at Mount Sinai.

9:4-6 Two prohibitions are introduced to prevent the violence that brought the flood (Gen 6:13). They will govern the new order between human beings and between human beings and animals. First, people aren't allowed to eat meat with its life, its blood, in it, a prohibition based on the idea that the blood carried life (Lev 17:10-14; Deut 12:23-25; cf. Lev 1:5, 15). Second, capital punishment is ordered for anyone shedding human blood and thereby taking human life. Human beings, unlike animals, were made in the divine image (Gen 1:26-27).

9:8-17 The orders of the new era following the flood are guaranteed by a covenant God makes with the entire world: with the earth (9:13); with every living being (that is, with all the world's animals; 9:10); and with Noah and all his descendants (that is, with all the world's people; 9:9). It's the first of three covenants that mark the major periods of history in the post-flood era. The second is with Abraham (Gen 15:1-21; 17:1-27); and the third and climactic covenant is with Israel at Mount Sinai, where all the instructions for living as a religious people are given (Exod 31:12-17).

9:9-11 The covenant is initiated, drawn up, and guaranteed by God. It is eternal (Gen 9:11, 12, 16).

Israel among the Nations The stories in Genesis speak on two levels. The first is the family level. Here the characters represent the individuals that make up a typical biblical family. The second is the national level. On this more symbolic level, the characters represent the nations made up of their descendants. Thus Jacob (renamed Israel) represents a single ancestor and at the same time the entire people of Israel who count themselves as his descendants.

The stories in Genesis, therefore, describe not only the relations between the individuals in the stories but also the relations between the nations descended from them. In this regard, Genesis contains a political map. Its stories are intended to describe the relations between the nations that existed at later times in Israel's history when the writers of Genesis lived.

The major nations represented in Genesis by their ancestors are the Canaanites (Gen 9:20-27); the Ishmaelites (Gen 16:1-6; 21:8-21); the Moabites and Ammonites (Gen 19:30-38); the Philistines (Gen 21:22-34; 26:1-33); the Edomites (Gen 25:19-34; 27:1-45; 32:1-33:17); and the Arameans (Gen 29:1-31:55). These peoples shared Israel's borders and shaped its national life. In these stories of the origins of Israel and these nations, the authors of Genesis reveal the values toward international relations present in their own time.

Genesis presents a two-sided message about Israel's neighbors. On the one hand, the text says that Israel's neighbors are close relatives of Israel's own ancestors. The Ishmaelites, Moabites, Ammonites, Edomites, and Arameans are all descendants of Abraham's father, Terah. Thus these neighboring nations aren't viewed as foreign or alien. Instead, these groups share Israel's identity and deserve the respect and privileges given to any family member. God appears to the ancestors of Israel's neighbors and makes promises to them (Gen 16:7-11). Genesis portrays the ancestors of Israel's neighbors as generous peacemakers who often work to reconcile differences (Gen 21:22; 26:26-29; 33:1-4).

While embracing these nations as members of Israel's own family, the authors of Genesis frequently present them in a less-than-favorable light. The Canaanites' ancestors show disrespect to their father, Noah, and are cursed to serve the Israelites (Gen 9:20-27). The Ishmaelites' mother, Hagar, is forced out from Abraham's household. Her descendants live in the desert, facing constant conflict with surrounding peoples (Gen 16:12). The Moabites and Ammonites have questionable origins in the union of Lot and his daughters (Gen 19:30-38). The Edomites are descendants of Esau, Jacob's (Israel's) own brother. However, his descendants are placed in Israel's service (Gen 27:29). Each of these stories seeks to position the Israelite kingdom—the descendants of Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob—most favorably in its ancient political context.

This twofold picture of Israel's relations with its neighbors effectively describes both the bonds and the conflicts between Israel and the surrounding nations. Genesis affirms the identity and interests Israel shares with its neighbors. Yet the book recognizes the tensions, conflicts, and self-interest that emerge between nations. When tensions do arise in Genesis between Israel's ancestors and the ancestors of the surrounding nations, they are resolved through reconciliation or by a formal agreement, rather than by conflict and violence. Such is the case with the Philistines (Gen 21:27; 26:31); the Arameans (Gen 31:44); and the Edomites (Gen 33:1-4). When Simeon and Levi choose violence, Jacob disapproves and disinherits them (Gen 34:30; 49:5-7). Underlying these stories is the confidence that international conflict is best resolved peacefully.

<sup>12</sup>God said, "This is the symbol of the covenant that I am drawing up between me and you and every living thing with you, on behalf of every future generation. <sup>13</sup>I have placed my bow in the clouds; it will be the symbol of the covenant between me and the earth. <sup>14</sup>When I bring clouds over the earth and the bow appears in the clouds, <sup>15</sup>I will remember the covenant between me and you and every living being among all the creatures. Floodwaters will never again destroy all creatures. <sup>16</sup>The bow will be in the clouds, and upon seeing it I will remember the enduring covenant between God and every living being of all the earth's creatures." <sup>17</sup>God said to Noah, "This is the symbol of the covenant that I have set up between me and all creatures on earth."

Shem's blessing and Canaan's curse

<sup>18</sup>Noah's sons Shem, Ham, and Japheth came out of the ark. Now Ham was Canaan's father. <sup>19</sup>These were Noah's three sons, and from them the whole earth was populated.

9:12-16 The symbol of the covenant with the world is a natural phenomenon: the rainbow. The Hebrew word is actually bow, which usually refers to the weapon used by ancient Near Eastern soldiers and deities, including Israel's God (Hab 3:9; Lam 2:4). God's weapon of war and death is laid aside in the clouds and becomes the sign of the peace and life assured in the covenant.

9:18-27 One purpose of the Genesis genealogies and stories after the flood is to explain how all the world's cultures came into being and how they are related to each other. Another purpose is to describe Israel's identity and role among these cultures. See the introduction; see sidebar, "Israel among the Nations." This first story of Noah and his sons, from whom the whole earth was

"Cursed be Canaan:
the lowest servant
he will be for his brothers."

<sup>26</sup>He also said,
"Bless the LORD,
the God of Shem;
Canaan will be his servant.

he will live in Shem's tents, and Canaan will be his servant."

9:20 The first thing Noah does is plant a vineyard. Vineyards were common in the agricultural world of ancient Israel. Like Adam and Cain before him, Noah was a Mediterranean farmer.

9:21 Although later interpreters often saw this story as a moral tale against drinking too much, the story doesn't take this approach or criticize Noah, who is always called a moral man (Gen 6:9). The story focuses instead on Ham's disgraceful act and the consequences for Canaan. The verb translated became drunk here means "to drink generously," as Joseph and his brothers do later in Genesis to celebrate (Gen 43:34).

9:22-23 Ham's sin is difficult to determine. The phrase saw his father naked can be interpreted different ways. Some suggest that the phrase refers to sexual contact of some kind, as in Leviticus 20:17, when a similar Hebrew expression is used. However, it may refer to the disrespect in observing a parent naked and telling others about it.

9:25-27 Though Ham sinned, Noah curses Ham's son Canaan (Gen 9:22; 10:6). The story aims to justify Canaan's descendants, the Canaanites, later serving Shem's descendants, the Israelites (Gen 11:10-30). Because the Canaanites posed the strongest threat to the Israelites at the very beginning of their history in Canaan (Josh; Judg), the narrator here wants to explain Israel's successes against them. While the Canaanites are reduced to servants in this story, they are portrayed elsewhere in Genesis in more neutral or positive terms. The text says they live alongside and even marry Israel's ancestors (Gen 12:6; 38:2).

9:28-29 These verses connect back to Genesis 5:32; 6:9.

10:1-32 This genealogy explains how the cultures of the known world originated in the new era after the flood. It shows how these cultures were related to each other through Noah's three sons, Shem, Ham, and Japheth. It's a branched genealogy: a family tree that traces more than one line of descent from a single ancestor in order to show the relationship between individuals and the nations descended from them. This genealogy thus represents a map of the world as the writer knew it. See sidebar, "Israel among the Nations" at Genesis 9. While many of these names are well known, some are no longer identifiable. Exactly 70 names are listed, a number likely signifying the totality of the human race. Compare with Genesis 46:27.

10:1 The genealogy begins with the words These are the descendants of, which Genesis uses to begin the major sections within its genealogical framework (cf. Gen 2:4a; 5:1; 6:9).

10:2-5 Japheth's sons represent the nations north and northwest of biblical Israel, in the general area now covered by the modern countries of Turkey, Greece, and Cyprus.

10:2 Magog's identity is uncertain. It has been related to a ruler of ancient Lydia, located in modern Turkey. Ezekiel considered it the location of an apocalyptic battle (Ezek 38-39).

10:3 Ashkenaz: While used by Jews since the Middle Ages as a designation for eastern European Jews, in antiquity it referred to the Scythians, who were located between the Black and Caspian Seas.

10:4 Javan (cf. Gen 10:2) refers to the Ionians, that is, Greeks who settled the west coast of Asia Minor (modern Turkey). Elishah is the island of Cyprus; and Kittim is ancient Kition (modern Larnaka), a city on Cyprus's southeast coast. Rodanim probably refers to the inhabitants of the island of Rhodes.

Origin of languages and cultures

11 All people<sup>m</sup> on the earth had one language and the same words. <sup>2</sup>When they traveled east,<sup>a</sup> they found a valley in the land of Shinar and settled there. <sup>3</sup>They said to each

10:6-20 Ham's sons represent the nations south of biblical Israel, including the modern countries of Saudi Arabia, Egypt, and Libya. They also represent the Canaanites, the traditional inhabitants of the land of biblical Israel. They are not linked only to Africa, as many later interpreters claimed.

10:6-7 While Cush is identified by later interpreters with Ethiopia, his sons here are connected with places in modern Saudi Arabia and the Sudan. Put is likely Libya.

10:8-10 Nimrod can't be identified with any historical figure. Though interpreters have made him out to be an evil Babylonian ruler, he's simply described here as a legendary warrior (cf. Mic 5:6). great hunter: a common description for ancient kings. Babel refers to Babylon. On Shinar, see Genesis 11:2.

10:11-12 Asshur has been identified with Assyria (cf. Gen 10:22); and Nineveh with its capital.

10:13-14 The Philistines, who play a role in the stories that follow (e.g., Gen 26), are associated with Egypt and linked to Caphtorim, the island of Crete. This preserves the historical memory of the Philistines, a seafaring people from the Greek world who invaded Egypt and eventually settled on the southern coast of Canaan, where they appear in the Genesis narratives.

10:15-19 This list of Canaanite clans appears again later (with some changes) when God promises this land to Israel's ancestors (e.g., Gen 15:18-21; Exod 3:8). Their territory is identified primarily with the lowlands along the Mediterranean coast and in the Jordan Valley.

10:22-32 Shem's sons represent the nations east of biblical Israel, in the general area now covered by the modern countries of Syria, Iraq, and Iran. This lineage and this area are featured because the writers connect this location with the origins of civilization (Gen 11:1-9) and the Israelites themselves (Gen 11:10-32). The biblical Hebrew language is, in fact, more closely related to the ancient northwest and northeast Semitic languages spoken in these areas than to the languages once spoken in the areas of most of Ham's and Japheth's descendants.

10:22-23 Among Shem's sons are Asshur (Assyria) in Mesopotamia, the ancient homeland of Israel's ancestors (Gen 11:27-28); and Aram (Syria), ancestor of the Arameans, with whom Israel's ancestors are closely related (Gen 24:1-10; 25:20; 28:1-5).

10:31 The phrase their clans, their languages, their lands, and their nations concludes the listing of Shem's sons (as Gen 10:5 did for Japheth's sons and Gen 10:20 did for Ham's sons). Peoples and nations are distinguished by different languages and locations.

11:1-9 This story describes the origin of the world's cultures. The story has been interpreted as a story of human pride and divine punishment. In fact, the text itself emphasizes the human wish to preserve one common culture (11:1-4). This wish comes into conflict with God's aim to create a new world with different cultures (11:5-9). The reader may find it strange that after Genesis 10 describes the entire world being populated, Genesis 11 begins by saying everyone lived in one place and spoke the same other, "Come, let's make bricks and bake them hard." They used bricks for stones and asphalt for mortar. <sup>4</sup>They said, "Come, let's build for ourselves a city and a tower with its top in the sky, and let's make a name for ourselves so that we won't be dispersed over all the earth."

<sup>5</sup>Then the LORD came down to see the city and the tower that the humans built. <sup>6</sup>And the LORD said, "There is now one people and they all have one language. This is what they have begun to do, and now all that they plan to do will be possible for them. <sup>7</sup>Come, let's go down and mix up their language there so they won't understand each other's language." <sup>8</sup>Then the LORD dispersed them from there over all of the earth, and they stopped building the city. <sup>9</sup>Therefore, it is named Babel, because there the LORD mixed up<sup>o</sup> the language of all the earth; and from there the LORD dispersed them over all the earth.

When Shem was 100 years old, he became the father of Arpachshad, two years after the flood. <sup>11</sup>After Arpachshad was born, Shem lived 500 years; he had other sons and daughters.

<sup>12</sup>When Arpachshad was 35 years old, he became the father of Shelah. <sup>13</sup>After Shelah was born, Arpachshad lived 403 years; he had other sons and daughters.

<sup>14</sup>When Shelah was 30 years old, he became the father of Eber. <sup>15</sup>After Eber was born, Shelah lived 403 years; he had other sons and daughters.

<sup>16</sup>When Eber was 34 years old, he became the father of Peleg. <sup>17</sup>After Peleg was born, Eber lived 430 years; he had other sons and daughters.

<sup>18</sup>When Peleg was 30 years old, he became the father of Reu. <sup>19</sup>After Reu was born, Peleg lived 209 years; he had other sons and daughters.

<sup>20</sup>When Reu was 32 years old, he became the father of Serug. <sup>21</sup>After Serug was born, Reu lived 207 years; he had other sons and daughters.

<sup>22</sup>When Serug was 30 years old, he became the father of Nahor. <sup>23</sup>After Nahor was born, Serug lived 200 years; he had other sons and daughters.

language. These are different traditions about the beginning of the world's cultures, the Priest's in Genesis 10 and the Yahwist's here.

11:1 The theme of a single culture with one language is emphasized by the repetition of the word for one four times in the story, in one case in this verse translated same (see Gen 11:6 for the other two).

11:2 Shinar is the Mesopotamian river valley where Babylon was located (Gen 11:9; cf. Gen 10:10). Together with the Nile Valley, it gave birth to civilization in the ancient Near East.

11:4 The people clearly state their reason for building the city and its tower: so that we won't be dispersed over all the earth. Their aim was to stay in one place, speaking one language. It wasn't to storm heaven and challenge God by building the tower, as interpreters have claimed. a tower with its top in the sky: simply a cliché for a tall tower. make a name: or reputation. This can be a good thing (cf. Gen 12:2).

11:6 When God arrives at the city, God notices the people's common culture and their aim to preserve it, not any challenge to God's sovereignty.

11:7-8 God turns one culture into many by introducing different languages and by dispersing the people to different lands (see note on Gen 10:31).

11:9 Babel refers to ancient Babylon. Though this word doesn't come from the Hebrew word for "mixed up" (Hebrew balal; see translation note), they sound alike. Genesis often explains names on the basis of similar-sounding words.

11:10-32 This genealogy traces the line of Shem again, just like the one in Genesis 10:21-31. Shem's line was important because it was the line of Israel's own ancestors. This time the writer uses a linear genealogy (like Gen 5:1-32), rather than a branched genealogy (like Gen 10:1-32). The first five generations in this linear genealogy (11:10-17) are the same as those in Shem's genealogy in Genesis 10:21-25. The last five generations in this genealogy are unique (11:18-26). This genealogy's purpose is to describe the status of a single family line, that of Israel, within human history.

11:11 In biblical traditions, as in Mesopotamian traditions, the first generations after the flood approach the long life spans of their pre-flood ancestors, though their ages gradually decrease as time goes by (cf. Gen 11:13, 19; see note on Gen 5:4).

11:16 The term "Hebrew" comes from the name Eber.

11:26 The final generation includes Abram and his brothers Nahor and Haran. Nahor is the grandfather of Rebekah, the woman Abram's son Isaac marries (Gen 22:20-24; 24:15). Nahor is also the great-grandfather of Leah and Rachel, the women Isaac's son Jacob marries (Gen 28:1-2;

Abram's family moves to Canaan

12 The LORD said to Abram, "Leave your land, your family, and your father's household for the land that I will show you. <sup>2</sup>I will make of you a great nation and will bless you. I will make your name respected, and you will be a blessing.

<sup>3</sup>I will bless those who bless you, those who curse you I will curse;

all the families of the earth will be blessed because of you."<sup>q</sup>

Gen 29:5-6). Haran is the father of Lot, whom Abram takes to Canaan (Gen 11:27; 12:4-5). The name Haran in this verse refers to a person, whereas in Genesis 11:31-32 and Genesis 12:4, the name Haran refers to the city where Terah's family settles. Although they are identical in English, the names differ in the original Hebrew.

11:30 Sarai's childlessness continues a theme that began with the woman's punishment at the garden in Eden (Gen 3:16). It will run throughout the stories that follow. Women in Genesis face difficulties getting pregnant (Gen 16:1; 25:21; 30:1); carrying a child to term (Gen 25:22); and delivering it safely (Gen 35:16-19). Women in ancient Israel would have experienced and related to these difficulties. The Eden creation story explained their own difficulties and those of their ancestors.

11:31 Here and in Genesis 11:28, Israel's origins are located among the people of the Mesopotamian river valley—the location of Ur of the Chaldeans (see note on Gen 11:2). Haran was a city northeast of Canaan near the modern border between Syria and Turkey (see note on Gen 11:26). 12:1-9 This story begins the narratives about Abram, who was introduced in the preceding genealogy (Gen 11:27-32). The purpose of this first story is to link him with the land of Canaan. This land will become the homeland of his descendants, the Israelites.

12:1 The land and family that Abram leaves will continue to play an important role in Genesis. Abram's relatives in Haran (Gen 11:31) provide wives for Isaac and Jacob. They also shelter Jacob from Esau's anger (Gen 27-31).

12:2 The first in a series of promises made to Israel's ancestors. See sidebar, "The Promises to the Ancestors." The great nation refers to Israel under the monarchy that started with David, in which the writer's audience lived. make your name respected: refers to the reputation Israel and its ancestors enjoy among their neighbors.

12:3 The Hebrew word for blessed in the final phrase of this verse has three possible translations (see translation note). One, will be blessed, as used here, suggests that Israel's own wealth and well-being will be so great that they will overflow to all the families of the earth. This happens, in fact, even in the generations of the ancestors themselves (Gen 30:27, 30; 39:5). Christian interpreters have usually preferred this translation. Paul uses it in the NT to argue that God's blessings would extend even to the Gentiles (Gal 3:8). A second possible translation, "will bless themselves," suggests that all the families of the earth will take Abram's great wealth and well-being as the desired standard when asking for a blessing for themselves: "May we be as blessed as Abram was" (see Gen 48:20). A third possible translation, "will find a blessing," is similar to the first. 12:6 Abram stops at each of the urban centers of the Canaanite mountains, which become the homeland of biblical Israel. Shechem is in the north. Bethel is in the central region (Gen 12:8). Hebron is in the south (Gen 13:18). The text thus links these important Israelite cities with Israel's first ancestors. By visiting the sacred place at Shechem and receiving a divine revelation there (Gen 12:7), Abram begins Israelite worship at this site. Moreh is a Hebrew term meaning "teaching, instructing." This term indicates that the oak of Moreh—literally "an oak that teaches"—is one where divine messages are received. Aspects of the natural landscape are viewed as sacred. God communicates through them (e.g., Gen 13:18; 18:1; 28:22). See sidebar, "The Ancestors in Their Environment" at Genesis 13.

12:7 The land promised to Abram's descendants is the land where the writer's audience lived and farmed. The altar initiates the worship of God there that was continued by the Israelites, Abram's descendants.

The Promises to the Ancestors God's promises link the stories of Israel's ancestors together. They provide a goal toward which these stories point. Their aim is to show the people of Israel, to whom these stories were told, that their identity and lives hadn't come into being haphazardly but were God's purpose for them from the beginning. Their nation, their land, their population, their blessings of wealth and well-being, their relations with their neighbors—these were all part of God's design.

During Israel's monarchy, the Israelites who listened to the Yahwist's and Elohist's stories experienced these promises as coming true in their own time and as describing exactly who they were. Much later, at the time of the Priestly writer, when Israel and Judah had been conquered, these promises were no longer a reality. Yet these old promises gave a vision about who God's people might be again in the future. Readers hoped they might once again see these promises come true.

altar there to the LORD who appeared to him. <sup>8</sup>From there he traveled toward the mountains east of Bethel, and pitched his tent with Bethel on the west and Ai on the east. There he built an altar to the LORD and worshipped in the LORD's name. <sup>9</sup>Then Abram set out toward the arid southern plain, making and breaking camp as he went.

<sup>10</sup>When a famine struck the land, Abram went down toward Egypt to live as an immigrant since the famine was so severe in the land. <sup>11</sup>Just before he arrived in Egypt, he said to his wife Sarai, "I know you are a good-looking woman. <sup>12</sup>When the Egyptians see you, they will say, 'This is his wife,' and they will kill me but let you live. <sup>13</sup>So tell them you are my sister so that they will treat me well for your sake, and I will survive because of you."

12:8 The next altar similarly initiates the worship of God near Bethel. Whereas Shechem was the key city in the north, Bethel was a key city in the central part of biblical Israel.

12:9 The arid southern plain is located south of the mountains of biblical Israel at the northern edge of the Sinai Peninsula.

12:10-20 This story troubles modern readers because Abram puts his wife, Sarai, in a disreputable situation. He tells her to lie (12:13) and makes her available to Pharaoh (12:15). Yet it must have been an important story for ancient Israel, because similar stories are found twice more, in Genesis 20:1-18 and Genesis 26:1-11. The story develops out of two major social issues. One is the powerlessness of immigrants (12:10) in their host societies, where the norms of hospitality that should protect the foreigner (cf. Gen 18:1-5; 19:1-8) couldn't always be trusted (12:12). The other is the danger of powerful men in male-dominated societies. Kings, such as the pharaoh in this story, had the power to take any desirable woman they chose (12:14-15) and to eliminate any rivals to her (12:12). This is exactly what King David did with Bathsheba and her husband, Uriah the Hittite (2 Sam 11). So Abram's act was the survival strategy of an immigrant in a foreign society that he didn't trust and where he had no status or power. Yet Abram, in his own social world, is also a powerful man, and he devises an arrangement between powerful men: Abram makes his wife, Sarai, available to Pharaoh to save his own life and to gain honor and wealth as Sarai's brother (12:13, 16).

12:10 This story looks ahead to Genesis 41:57-42:3; 43:1, 15; 45:16-47:12. A famine in Canaan causes Israel's ancestors to move to Egypt. Dryland farming in ancient Israel depended on rainfall, which wasn't always reliable. Agriculture in Egypt, on the other hand, used water from the Nile, a more stable source of water. As a result, Egypt is considered the breadbasket of the Mediterranean world. 12:17 God counters Pharaoh's power and possession of Sarai (Gen 12:19) by sending plagues. This event looks ahead to the plagues in Exodus 7-11. Throughout Genesis, God protects Israel's ancestors, especially in hopeless situations.

12:18-19 In his protest to Abram, Pharaoh suggests that he would have honored the norms of hospitality if he had known Abram was married to Sarai. His claim to be honorable and innocent could be read as what he had to say to end the plagues. However, it could also be taken at face value. In the other two stories of this kind in Genesis, the writers make it very clear that the foreign king was genuinely hospitable, dealing honestly and honorably with Israel's ancestors (Gen 20:6-10; 26:8-11).

12:20 Abram and Sarai leave Egypt with everything he had. As Genesis 12:16 and 13:2 indicate, Abram possessed great wealth comparable to the wealth the Israelites left Egypt with in the later story of the exodus (Exod 12:35-36).

<sup>8</sup>Abram said to Lot, "Let's not have disputes between me and you and between our herders since we are relatives. <sup>9</sup>Isn't the whole land in front of you? Let's separate. If you go north, I will go south; and if you go south, I will go north." <sup>10</sup>Lot looked up and saw the entire Jordan Valley. All of it was well irrigated, like the garden of the LORD, like the land of Egypt, as far as Zoar (this was before the LORD destroyed Sodom and Gomorrah). <sup>11</sup>So Lot chose for himself the entire Jordan Valley. Lot set out toward the east, and they separated

The Ancestors in Their Environment Israel's ancestors are commonly pictured in Bible studies, in popular art, and on television as shepherds who roamed the desert as nomads. They were not nomads. They were typical ancient farmers in the mountains east of the Mediterranean. It's true that they traveled through the land of Canaan, pitched tents, and owned herds of sheep, goats, cattle, donkeys, and camels. However, the specific details of their lives reveal characters whose agricultural way of life mirrored their Israelite descendants', including the authors of Genesis who wrote these stories about them.

God gives Israel's ancestors the agricultural land in the Canaanite mountains (e.g., Gen 12:7; 13:1-15). They live on this land and cultivate grain on it (Gen 26:12). God gives them the produce of the vineyard and the field of grain as divine blessings (Gen 27:28). They live in houses (Gen 27:15; 33:17) in and near the urban centers of their agrarian landscape (Gen 13:18). They don't live on the desert fringes, where seminomads raised sheep and goats. The animals the ancestors owned—sheep and goats, donkeys, cattle—were typical livestock on a Mediterranean family farm. Cattle pulled plows. Donkeys carried loads. Sheep and goats provided milk products and wool. Israel's ancestors are described as practicing the same agricultural style of life as their descendants'. They are farmers involved in the mixed agricultural economy typical of the Mediterranean highlands: cultivating grains and fruits while raising animals to assist in cultivation and to supplement its produce. They traveled not as nomadic shepherds but as settled farmers, moving as immigrants from one place to another (Gen 12:10; 45:17-20).

The highlands east of the Mediterranean Sea not only provided a place for Israel's ancestors to farm but were also a sacred landscape. God appeared to them at places marked by particular natural features, such as the oak tree (Gen 12:6; 18:1); the mountain (Gen 12:8); and the source of water (Gen 16:7, 14; 26:24-25; 32:22-23). At these places of divine revelation, the ancestors built altars that identified the locations as sacred (Gen 12:8; 13:18; 26:25; cf. 28:10-20).

Thus the religion of Israel's ancestors was linked closely with the land where they lived and farmed. Their landscape provided a way of experiencing God. They saw the land's produce as God's blessing on them. Interpreters have sometimes portrayed nature as the realm of pagan deities and history as the realm of the biblical God. This portrayal doesn't hold true in Genesis. The religious experience of Israel's ancestors connected them closely with the landscape that sustained them.

13:1-18 This story begins a longer narrative, continued in Genesis 19, that explains the relationship between Abram's descendants, the Israelites, and Lot's descendants, the Moabites and Ammonites. (See intro.; see sidebar, "Israel among the Nations" at Gen 9.) It makes the claim that Israelites are closely related to two of their nearest neighbors, the Moabites and the Ammonites (Gen 19:36-38). The narrative shows how Abram (and his descendants, the Israelites) claimed the land in the mountains of biblical Israel (13:14-17) and how Lot (and his descendants, the Moabites and Ammonites) came to live in the highlands east of the Jordan River and the Dead Sea (13:11-13; Gen 19:29-30).

13:3-4 Bethel is an important city in the central region of the land of Israel where Abram had lived and built an altar before his trip to Egypt (see notes on Gen 12:6, 8).

13:8-9 Israel's ancestors are portrayed as kind and generous toward others. Here Abram is the peacemaker, mediating the dispute between his and Lot's shepherds. He is also generous, offering Lot his choice of land.

13:10 The Jordan Valley in biblical times, as today, was an arid plain except for the Jordan River and a few spring-fed oases. But the writer believed it had been a lush valley, as green as the garden of the LORD (a reference to the garden in Eden) and Egypt (that is, the fertile Nile Valley) before its vegetation was wiped out by the firestorm that destroyed Sodom and Gomorrah (Gen 19:24-28).

from each other. <sup>12</sup>Abram settled in the land of Canaan, and Lot settled near the cities of the valley and pitched his tent close to Sodom. <sup>13</sup>The citizens of Sodom were very evil and sinful against the LORD.

<sup>14</sup>After Lot separated from him, the LORD said to Abram, "From the place where you are standing, look up and gaze to the north, south, east, and west, <sup>15</sup>because all the land that you see I give you and your descendants forever. <sup>16</sup>I will make your descendants like the dust of the earth. If someone could count the bits of dust on the earth, then they could also count your descendants. <sup>17</sup>Stand up and walk around through the length and breadth of the land because I am giving it to you." <sup>18</sup>So Abram packed his tent and went and settled by the oaks of Mamre in Hebron. There he built an altar to the LORD.

Abram rescues Lot

13:14-17 Now God promises Abram and his numerous descendants all the land in the central region of Israel's homeland. See sidebar, "The Promises to the Ancestors" at Genesis 12.

13:18 The oaks of Mamre are sacred trees, as is the oak of Moreh at Shechem (Gen 12:6-7). See sidebar, "The Ancestors in Their Environment." Hebron is the main city in the southern region of biblical Israel (see note on Gen 12:6). Abram settled and built an altar there, just as he had lived and built altars at the main cities of Shechem in the northern region of Israel (Gen 12:7) and Bethel in the central region (Gen 12:8). Here, too, Abram's altar establishes true Israelite worship.

14:1-24 Most stories in Genesis focus on family interactions. However, this narrative is international in scope. It is the only story in Genesis that describes a major military campaign and pictures Abram as the commander of a militia. The story is important to many interpreters because of the figure of Melchizedek, who blesses Abram when he returns from battle (14:18-20).

14:1-13 An alliance of four kings from Mesopotamia mounts an attack on an alliance of five kings from the Jordan Valley (14:1-4). This event can't be connected with any historical event known through sources outside the Bible. The kings, only a few of which have known ancient Near Eastern names, can't be linked to identified historical figures. In this battle, Sodom is sacked. Lot, who had settled there (Gen 13:11-12), is taken captive (14:10-12).

14:13 Hebrew is another term for "Israelite," used to describe God's people. This verse is the only time this word describes Abram in the OT.

14:14-16 This portrait of Abram as the commander of an army is unusual and seems out of character in the context of the other traditions about him, which describe him only as the head of a family. At the same time, acting as Lot's protector is consistent with the surrounding narratives, him. <sup>18</sup>Now Melchizedek the king of Salem and the priest of El Elyon<sup>a</sup> had brought bread and wine, <sup>19</sup>and he blessed him, “Bless Abram by El Elyon, creator of heaven and earth;

Abram gave Melchizedek one-tenth of everything. <sup>21</sup>Then the king of Sodom said to Abram, “Give me the people and take the property for yourself.”

<sup>22</sup>But Abram said to the king of Sodom, “I promised the LORD, El Elyon, creator of heaven and earth, <sup>23</sup>that I wouldn’t take even a thread or a sandal strap from anything that was yours so that you couldn’t say, ‘I’m the one who made Abram rich.’ <sup>24</sup>The only exception is that the young men may keep whatever they have taken to eat, and the men who went with me—Aner, Eshcol, and Mamre—may keep their share.”

God’s covenant with Abram

15 After these events, the LORD’s word came to Abram in a vision, “Don’t be afraid, Abram. I am your protector.<sup>b</sup> Your reward will be very great.”

<sup>2</sup>But Abram said, “LORD God, what can you possibly give me, since I still have no children? The head of my household is Eliezer, a man from Damascus.”<sup>a</sup> <sup>3</sup>He continued, “Since you haven’t given me any children, the head of my household will be my heir.”

<sup>4</sup>The LORD’s word came immediately to him, “This man will not be your heir. Your heir will definitely be your very own biological child.” <sup>5</sup>Then he brought Abram outside and said, “Look up at the sky and count the stars if you think you can count them. He continued, “This is how many children you will have.” <sup>6</sup>Abram trusted the LORD, and the LORD recognized Abram’s high moral character.

where he offers Lot his choice of the best lands (Gen 13:8-9) and then pleads with God not to destroy Sodom, where Lot has settled (Gen 18:16-33).

14:18 Melchizedek means “my king is Sidqu [a Canaanite god],” “my king is righteous,” or “my king is legitimate.” Melchizedek was both king and priest, offices held by a single individual in some ancient Near Eastern societies but kept separate in Israel. He was king of Salem, which is elsewhere called Jerusalem. Thus Melchizedek’s blessing of Abram links Israel’s ancestor directly with Jerusalem, the central political and religious city from the time of David onward. The text also says that as a priest, Melchizedek served El Elyon. As translation note s indicates, El Elyon is a divine title meaning “God Most High.” This title could be used to refer to the chief Canaanite god, but Abram identifies El Elyon with Israel’s own God, “the LORD” (Gen 14:22). Melchizedek brought bread and wine to refresh Abram’s returning troops (cf. 2 Sam 17:27-29). Because Melchizedek appears without background or explanation, later interpreters have given his encounter with Abram various meanings. In Jewish interpretation, Melchizedek is a memorable individual, either a righteous priest or a cosmic figure signaling the end time. In Christian interpretation, he is seen as a forerunner of Jesus and Jesus’ priestly office (Heb 6:19-20; 7:9-25).

15:1-21 The covenant between Abram and God is described in two versions, the Yahwist’s version in this chapter and the Priest’s version in Genesis 17. Here the text focuses on two key promises to Israel’s ancestors: descendants (15:1-6) and land (15:7-21). See sidebar, “The Promises to the Ancestors” at Genesis 12.

15:1-6 God’s promise of descendants to Abram follows a three-part pattern: God’s promise (15:1); Abram’s protest (15:2-3); and God’s reassurance (15:4-6).

15:1 God’s title protector may also be translated “benefactor” (see translation note). Both titles make sense in context. protector: relates to God’s constant care for Abraham in times of conflict and danger. The word “benefactor” refers to the one who gives Abram the reward, that is, the descendants promised in Genesis 15:4-5.

15:2-3 Abram’s protest is reasonable, since Sarai was unable to have children (Gen 11:30). According to an ancient Near Eastern custom, a servant could be adopted as the heir of a childless couple. This servant would inherit their wealth in exchange for assuming the duties of a son.

15:4-5 God reassures Abram by renewing the promise of children (Gen 12:7; 13:14-17).

15:6 Abram’s trust and high moral character are key qualities that match how Abram is described in Genesis 18:19; 22:15-19; 26:4-5. In the NT, both Paul and James refer to this verse. Paul observes that Abram is here considered righteous, even before the circumcision of Genesis 17:24. On that basis, Paul interprets this verse to mean that God declared Abram righteous because of his faith and not because of his actions and observance of the Law (or instruction in the OT). Therefore, circumcision isn’t required of Gentiles to enter God’s kingdom (Rom 4:3, 9, 22; Gal 3:6). Meanwhile, James observes that Abraham was so obedient that he was willing to sacrifice his own son in Genesis 22. On that basis, James interprets this verse to say that actions must accompany faith (Jas 2:21-24).

15:7-21 God’s promise of land to Abram follows the same three-part pattern as the promise of descendants in Genesis 15:1-6: God’s promise (15:7); Abram’s protest (15:8); and God’s reassurance (15:9-21).

15:7 Ur of the Chaldeans was in Mesopotamia. It was a great ancient culture to the east of Canaan, where Israel’s ancestors originated (see note on Gen 11:31).

<sup>8</sup>But Abram said, "LORD God, how do I know that I will actually possess it?"

<sup>9</sup>He said, "Bring me a three-year-old female calf, a three-year-old female goat, a three-year-old ram, a dove, and a young pigeon." <sup>10</sup>He took all of these animals, split them in half, and laid the halves facing each other, but he didn't split the birds. <sup>11</sup>When vultures swooped down on the carcasses, Abram waved them off. <sup>12</sup>After the sun set, Abram slept deeply. A terrifying and deep darkness settled over him.

<sup>13</sup>Then the LORD said to Abram, "Have no doubt that your descendants will live as immigrants in a land that isn't their own, where they will be oppressed slaves for four hundred years.

<sup>14</sup>But after I punish the nation they serve, they will leave it with great wealth. <sup>15</sup>As for you, you will join your ancestors in peace and be buried after a good long life. <sup>16</sup>The fourth generation will return here since the Amorites' wrongdoing won't have reached its peak until then."

Hagar and the Ishmaelites' origins

16 Sarai, Abram's wife, had not been able to have children. Since she had an Egyptian servant named Hagar, <sup>2</sup>Sarai said to Abram, "The LORD has kept me from giving birth, so go to my servant. Maybe she will provide me with children." Abram did just as Sarai said. <sup>3</sup>After Abram had lived ten years in the land of Canaan, Abram's wife Sarai took her Egyptian servant Hagar and gave her to her husband Abram as his wife. <sup>4</sup>He slept with 15:9-12 In the ancient Near East, two parties would sometimes bind themselves to each other by slaughtering and splitting animals. Next the partners would walk between the pieces of animals, taking upon themselves the fate of the animals should they violate the covenant (cf. Jer 34:18). In this ritual, God alone, symbolized by a "fiery flame," passes between the pieces of animals (Gen 15:17-18). Abram himself slept deeply (15:12).

15:13-16 These verses look forward to later events. Near the end of Genesis (Gen 45:16-47:12), Abraham's descendants move to a land that isn't their own. As the beginning of Exodus describes (Exod 1:8-14), there they become oppressed slaves. The Yahwist's tradition of four hundred years in Genesis 15:13 contrasts slightly with the Priest's reference to 430 years in Exodus 12:40.

15:16 Genesis often reflects the idea that sin brings punishment, as seen in the stories of Adam and Eve, Cain and Abel, the flood, and Sodom and Gomorrah. Here that idea is used to explain why the Amorites, Canaan's local inhabitants, were eventually conquered by the Israelites, Abram's descendants.

15:17 The smoking vessel is literally a clay oven used for baking (Lev 2:4). Its fiery flame symbolizes God (Isa 31:9). By passing between the animal pieces alone, while Abram sleeps (Gen 15:12), God takes sole responsibility for fulfilling the covenant with Abram (see the note on Gen 15:9-12).

15:18 The Hebrew expression cut a covenant likely comes from the ritual of splitting animals in this ceremony (Gen 15:9-10, 17). The text here focuses on land (cf. Gen 12:7; 13:14-15). Egypt's river probably refers to the Wadi el-Arish, 45 miles southwest of Gaza, rather than to the Nile. The Euphrates is one of the great rivers of Mesopotamia. These boundaries, more ideal than real, reflect the land claimed by Israel during the reign of Solomon (1 Kgs 4:21; cf. Isa 27:12).

15:19-21 Lists of the groups inhabiting Canaan vary in length and in the identity of the groups (e.g., Gen 12:6; 13:7; Exod 3:8). Some can't be clearly identified.

16:1-16 The story of Sarai and Hagar provides an intimate portrait of the relationship between women in a male-centered household. It focuses on the woman with least power in this family, the outsider and servant Hagar. Its events raise ethical questions for contemporary readers (see note on 16:6). As a national story, it explains the relationships between Sarai's descendants, the Israelites; and Hagar's descendants, the Ishmaelites (see sidebar, "Israel among the Nations" at Gen 9).

16:1-6 The first half of the story takes place in Abram's household, the second half in the desert (Gen 16:7-16).

16:1 Hagar was Sarai's servant, one of a number of men and women servants in Abram's household (Gen 12:16). This kind of slavery was common in ancient Near Eastern and biblical society (Exod 21:1-11). Frequently servants were outsiders, as was the Egyptian Hagar.

16:2 Ancient Near Eastern legal texts describe similar situations where an infertile wife gives her servant to her husband, hoping that children will be born through that union. In such cases, the principal wife may possess legal rights to the children of her servant (cf. Gen 30:1-13). Sarai's proposal follows accepted practices and shouldn't necessarily be considered an act of faithlessness in God's promises of descendants. God hasn't yet prescribed the line through which Abram's heirs will come.

16:3 Hagar becomes Abram's wife. However, she is the secondary wife with a status below Sarai, Abram's principal wife.

16:4 In biblical society, pregnancy was highly regarded, while childlessness was shameful. Because of these cultural values, Hagar uses her new status to challenge Sarai's authority, even though Hagar is the secondary wife.

Hagar, and she became pregnant. But when she realized that she was pregnant, she no longer respected her mistress. <sup>5</sup>Sarai said to Abram, "This harassment is your fault. I allowed you to embrace my servant, but when she realized she was pregnant, I lost her respect. Let the LORD decide who is right, you or me."

<sup>7</sup>The LORD's messenger found Hagar at a spring in the desert, the spring on the road to Shur, <sup>8</sup>and said, "Hagar! Sarai's servant! Where did you come from and where are you going?" She said, "From Sarai my mistress. I'm running away."

<sup>9</sup>The LORD's messenger said to her, "Go back to your mistress. Put up with her harsh treatment of you." <sup>10</sup>The LORD's messenger also said to her,

"I will give you many children, so many they can't be counted!"

<sup>11</sup>The LORD's messenger said to her,
"You are now pregnant and will give birth to a son.
You will name him Ishmael" because the LORD has heard about your harsh treatment.

<sup>12</sup>He will be a wild mule of a man;
he will fight everyone, and they will fight him.
He will live at odds with all his relatives."<sup>w</sup>

God's covenant with Abraham

17 When Abram was 99 years old, the LORD appeared to Abram and said to him, "I am El Shaddai.<sup>a</sup> Walk with me and be trustworthy. <sup>2</sup>I will make a covenant between us and

<sup>v</sup>Or God hears <sup>w</sup>Or He will reside near all his relatives. <sup>x</sup>Or God who sees or God whom I've seen <sup>y</sup>Heb uncertain; or Have I really seen God and survived? <sup>z</sup>Or the Well of the Living One who sees me or whom I've seen <sup>a</sup>Or God Almighty or God of the Mountain

16:5 Sarai blames Abram, the male head of the household, for allowing Hagar's harassment and lack of respect. He hasn't protected Sarai's status as the principal wife.

16:6 treated... harshly: translates the same verb used for the Egyptians' oppression of their Israelite servants (Gen 15:13; Exod 1:11). Within her social world (and in the narrator's perspective), Sarai was defending her rights as the principal wife, calling both her servant and her husband to account for transgressing accepted family norms and undermining her legitimate status. At its time, Sarai's harsh treatment of Hagar was considered the appropriate punishment for a servant who usurped her mistress' status. Such practices conflict directly with contemporary laws and values. Slavery and the harsh behavior mentioned here illustrate the differences between biblical and modern values. These differences caution the reader against imitating what biblical characters do. Critical reflection is needed. 16:7-16 The second half of the story is set in the desert where Hagar escapes. This location is important because it places the origin of Hagar's descendants, the Ishmaelites, in the desert, where they lived and traveled (Gen 37:25, 28b; 39:1).

16:7 The precise location of Shur and its spring are unknown. They were somewhere south of the mountains of Israel in the Sinai desert on the way to Egypt, Hagar's homeland (Gen 20:1; 25:18).

16:9-10 God tells Hagar to return to Sarai and accept her authority over her. Yet God also honors Hagar, who lacks social status for three reasons: She is a woman, she is a servant, and she is a foreigner. God speaks directly to her and makes the same promise to her as God made to Abram, that she will have children beyond number (Gen 13:16).

16:11 Ishmael: means "God hears" (see translation note). It shows that God gives special attention to those who experience harsh treatment (Gen 18:20-21; Exod 3:7-8).

16:12 Ishmael is compared to a wild mule, a traveling species in the southern desert. His descendants, the Ishmaelites, are described elsewhere in Genesis as traveling desert traders (Gen 37:25, 28b; 39:1). See sidebar, "Israel among the Nations" at Genesis 9. The picture of Ishmael fighting others may arise from the viewpoint of settled Israelite farmers who were suspicious of those who traveled in the desert beyond their boundaries.

16:13-14 Hagar's question shows her amazement that she has seen God directly and survived (see translation note y; cf. Gen 32:30). Hagar named both God (El Roi) and the well (Beer-lahai-roi) to honor and remember God's direct appearance to her (see translation notes x and z). The exact location of this well can no longer be identified.

17:1-27 This is the second account of God's covenant with Abram. As in the Yahwist's version of the covenant in Genesis 15, God promises Abram descendants (17:2, 6) and land (17:8). However, here in the Priest's version in Genesis 17, the covenant focuses especially on the ritual of circumcision. Like the Priest's covenant with Noah, the covenant with Abram here in Genesis 17 is set up by God (Gen 9:9; 17:7, 19) as an enduring covenant (Gen 9:16; 17:7, 13, 19) accompanied by a covenant symbol (Gen 9:12; 17:11).

17:1 El Shaddai is traditionally translated "God Almighty." It likely means "God of the Mountain" (see translation note).

I will give you many, many descendants.”<sup>3</sup> Abram fell on his face, and God said to him, “<sup>4</sup>But me, my covenant is with you; you will be the ancestor of many nations. <sup>5</sup>And because I have made you the ancestor of many nations, your name will no longer be Abram<sup>b</sup> but Abraham.<sup>c</sup> <sup>6</sup>I will make you very fertile. I will produce nations from you, and kings will come from you. <sup>7</sup>I will set up my covenant with you and your descendants after you in every generation as an enduring covenant. I will be your God and your descendants’ God after you. <sup>8</sup>I will give you and your descendants the land in which you are immigrants, the whole land of Canaan, as an enduring possession. And I will be their God.”

<sup>9</sup>God said to Abraham, “As for you, you must keep my covenant, you and your descendants in every generation. <sup>10</sup>This is my covenant that you and your descendants must keep: Circumcise every male. <sup>11</sup>You must circumcise the flesh of your foreskins, and it will be a symbol of the covenant between us. <sup>12</sup>On the eighth day after birth, every male in every generation must be circumcised, including those who are not your own children: those born in your household and those purchased with silver from foreigners. <sup>13</sup>Be sure you circumcise those born in your household and those purchased with your silver. Your flesh will embody my covenant as an enduring covenant. <sup>14</sup>Any uncircumcised male whose flesh of his foreskin remains uncircumcised will be cut off from his people. He has broken my covenant.”

<sup>15</sup>God said to Abraham, “As for your wife Sarai, you will no longer call her Sarai. Her name will now be Sarah. <sup>16</sup>I will bless her and even give you a son from her. I will bless her so that she will become nations, and kings of peoples will come from her.”

<sup>17</sup>Abraham fell on his face and laughed. He said to himself, Can a 100-year-old man become a father, or Sarah, a 90-year-old woman, have a child? <sup>18</sup>To God Abraham said, “If only you would accept Ishmael!”

<sup>19</sup>But God said, “No, your wife Sarah will give birth to a son for you, and you will name him Isaac.<sup>d</sup> I will set up my covenant with him and with his descendants after him as an enduring covenant. <sup>20</sup>As for Ishmael, I’ve heard your request. I will bless him and make him fertile and give him many, many descendants. He will be the ancestor of twelve tribal leaders, and I will make a great nation of him. <sup>21</sup>But I will set up my covenant with Isaac, who will be born to Sarah at this time next year. <sup>22</sup>When God finished speaking to him, God ascended, leaving Abraham alone.

<sup>23</sup>Abraham took his son Ishmael, all those born in his household, and all those purchased with his silver—that is, every male in Abraham’s household—and he circumcised the flesh of their foreskins that same day, just as God had told him to do. <sup>24</sup>Abraham was 99 years old when he circumcised the flesh of his foreskin, <sup>25</sup>and his son Ishmael was 13 years old when the flesh of his foreskin was circumcised. <sup>26</sup>That same day Abraham and his son Ishmael were circumcised. <sup>27</sup>All the men of his household, those born in his household and those purchased with silver from foreigners, were circumcised with him.

Like other gods in the ancient Near East, the God of the Bible is often associated with mountains (Exod 19:3; Ps 48:1; see sidebar, “The Ancestors in Their Environment” at Gen 13). Abram is commanded to Walk with God, a phrase used to describe Enoch (Gen 5:22) and Noah (Gen 6:9).

17:5 On Abram and Abraham, see translation notes b and c. In ancient societies and in some communities today, a new name marks a new phase in the life of its bearer. Here it marks a new covenant relationship.

17:8 The Yahwist describes Israel’s ancestors as at home in Canaan, where God promises them land, and as immigrants only outside of Canaan (Gen 12:10). But the Priest calls his ancestors immigrants in Canaan where they are promised land. This may be because the Priest observes a careful historical difference between the era of the ancestors and the time of later Israel.

17:9-14 Circumcision is the symbol of the covenant with Abraham, just as the rainbow is the symbol of the covenant with Noah and the whole world (Gen 9:12-17). The origins and meaning of the ritual of circumcision are difficult to determine. It was practiced in many ancient Near Eastern cultures (though not among the Philistines; Judg 14:3; 1 Sam 17:26, 36). Here circumcision is nevertheless viewed as the required ritual of entrance into the community of Israel. It illustrates the male-centered character of Israelite society and religion. The biblical household or family included not only Abraham’s own children but also his servants, those purchased with your silver (cf. Gen 12:5, 16; 15:2).

17:15-16 Sarai may be an alternate form of Sarah, which means “princess.” The name Sarah, “princess,” is related to God’s promise that she will be the mother of kings. The writer has in mind here the kings in David’s line.

17:17-19 Here Abraham is the one who laughed at God’s promise that he and Sarah would have a son. Later it is Sarah who laughs (Gen 18:12-15). The name of their son Isaac means “he laughs” (see translation note d).

17:20 Abraham appeals for Ishmael to be his heir (Gen 17:18). While God selects Isaac (Gen 17:19, 21), God makes to Ishmael the same promises made to Abraham: many descendants and a great nation.

Isaac's birth announced

18The LORD appeared to Abraham at the oaks of Mamre while he sat at the entrance of his tent in the day's heat. <sup>2</sup>He looked up and suddenly saw three men standing near him. As soon as he saw them, he ran from his tent entrance to greet them and bowed deeply. <sup>3</sup>He said, "Sirs, if you would be so kind, don't just pass by your servant. <sup>4</sup>Let a little water be brought so you may wash your feet and refresh yourselves under the tree. <sup>5</sup>Let me offer you a little bread so you will feel stronger, and after that you may leave your servant and go on your way—since you have visited your servant."

They responded, "Fine. Do just as you have said."

And he said, "Right here in the tent."

<sup>10</sup>Then one of the men said, "I will definitely return to you about this time next year. Then your wife Sarah will have a son!"

Sarah was listening at the tent door behind him. <sup>11</sup>Now Abraham and Sarah were both very old. Sarah was no longer menstruating. <sup>12</sup>So Sarah laughed to herself, thinking, I'm no longer able to have children and my husband's old.

<sup>13</sup>The LORD said to Abraham, "Why did Sarah laugh and say, 'Me give birth? At my age?'"

But he said, "No, you laughed."

Abraham pleads for Sodom

<sup>16</sup>The men got up from there and went over to look down on Sodom. Abraham was walking along with them to send them off <sup>17</sup>when the LORD said, "Will I keep from Abraham what

*One seah is seven and a half quarts.

18:1-15 This is the Yahwist's account of the announcement of Isaac's birth, parallel to the Priest's account in the previous chapter (Gen 17:15-22). This story has two scenes: Abraham's generous hospitality to three visitors (18:1-8); and the visitors' announcement of Sarah's pregnancy (18:9-15).

18:1 God frequently appears to the ancestors at natural features, such as majestic oaks (see notes on Gen 12:6; 13:18; see sidebar, "The Ancestors in Their Environment" at Gen 13).

18:2 Abraham models true hospitality by rushing to greet his visitors respectfully. Hospitality is an important theme in this story. It's also important in the story of Lot that follows (Gen 19:1-11) and in the book of Genesis as a whole (see the notes on Gen 12:10-20; 12:18-19). Biblical society valued openness and generosity to strangers and outsiders. Throughout this story, the visitors' identity is unclear. Here they are referred to as three men (Gen 18:16, 22), but in Genesis 18:1, 13 one of them appears to be "The Lord," the God of Israel. Blurring of the line between human and divine is found elsewhere in Genesis 32:22-32.

18:6-8 Abraham, the host, hurried to prepare the meal and served only the best food. Meat was reserved for special occasions. The term translated butter here may refer to leben, a common Middle Eastern dairy product similar to yogurt.

18:10 The phrase this time next year translates the Hebrew idiom "at the time of life." It can signal the time when pregnancy results in birth (cf. 2 Kgs 4:16).

18:12 Sarah laughed at the announcement of Isaac's birth, given her age.

18:13 Now we know that one of the three men (Gen 18:2) is actually the Lord.

18:14 The question Is anything too difficult for the LORD? expresses a key theme of Genesis. Many stories show that God's promises reach fulfillment not as the result of human strength but because of divine power. See sidebar, "The Promises to the Ancestors" at Genesis 12.

18:16-19:38 The drama of an heir for Abraham and Sarah is temporarily interrupted by the story of Sodom, a city considered so wicked that it lacked 10 righteous people (18:32). In fact, this event, rather than the disobedience of Adam and Eve in the garden, is regarded as the prime example of crime and punishment in the OT (see Isa 1:9-10; Jer 23:14; Amos 4:11; cf. Matt 10:25; Rom 9:29). Sodom's sin isn't primarily the sexual acts of its citizens but rather Sodom's harsh treatment of outsiders. The story itself and its earliest interpreters focus on Sodom's lack of hospitality (see note on Gen 18:2).

18:16-33 In the first scene of the Sodom story, Abraham appeals to God to save the city. Abraham's concern illustrates his generosity to outsiders, as did his hospitality in entertaining strangers in the preceding story (Gen 18:1-15).

18:16 The exact location of Sodom is uncertain, but the narrative locates it somewhere on the southern shores of the Dead Sea.

18:17-19 These verses describe Abraham as Israel's

I'm about to do? <sup>18</sup>Abraham will certainly become a great populous nation, and all the earth's nations will be blessed because of him. <sup>19</sup>I have formed a relationship with him so that he will instruct his children and his household after him. And they will keep to the LORD's path, being moral and just so that the LORD can do for Abraham everything he said he would." <sup>20</sup>Then the LORD said, "The cries of injustice from Sodom and Gomorrah are countless, and their sin is very serious! <sup>21</sup>I will go down now to examine the cries of injustice that have reached me. Have they really done all this? If not, I want to know."

<sup>26</sup>The LORD said, "If I find fifty innocent people in the city of Sodom, I will save it because of them."

<sup>27</sup>Abraham responded, "Since I've already decided to speak with my Lord, even though I'm just soil and ash, <sup>28</sup>what if there are five fewer innocent people than fifty? Will you destroy the whole city over just five?"

The LORD said, "If I find forty-five there, I won't destroy it."

<sup>29</sup>Once again Abraham spoke, "What if forty are there?"

The LORD said, "For the sake of forty, I will do nothing."

<sup>30</sup>He said, "Don't be angry with me, my Lord, but let me speak. What if thirty are there?"

The LORD said, "I won't do it if I find thirty there."

<sup>31</sup>Abraham said, "Since I've already decided to speak with my Lord, what if twenty are there?"

The LORD said, "I won't do it, for the sake of twenty."

<sup>32</sup>Abraham said, "Don't be angry with me, my Lord, but let me speak just once more. What if there are ten?"

And the LORD said, "I will not destroy it because of those ten." <sup>33</sup>When the LORD finished speaking with Abraham, he left; but Abraham stayed there in that place.

Lot leaves Sodom

19 The two messengers entered Sodom in the evening. Lot, who was sitting at the gate of Sodom, saw them, got up to greet them, and bowed low. <sup>2</sup>He said, "Come to your servant's house, spend the night, and wash your feet. Then you can get up early and go on your way."

But they said, "No, we will spend the night in the town square." <sup>3</sup>He pleaded earnestly with them, so they went with him and entered his house. He made a big meal for them, even baking unleavened bread, and they ate.

primary ancestor. Even his descendants, Isaac, Jacob, and their children, receive God's promises because of Abraham's relationship to God. The phrase oversee his children (18:19) can mean providing instruction to descendants. 18:20-21 cries of injustice: translates a term that elsewhere refers to the outcry of victims of oppression (Exod 3:7; Isa 5:7; cf. Gen 19:13). So the primary sin of Sodom and Gomorrah is the harsh treatment of their citizens, neighbors, and visitors. As in Genesis 11:5, God decides to go down to investigate earth's affairs (18:21). 18:23-33 Abraham argues with God. Abraham's willingness to challenge God when God's rule appears unjust isn't viewed as a lack of faith in God. It's viewed as a legitimate religious act, one found also among the psalmists (e.g., Pss 10; 22); the prophets (e.g., Jer 12:1-4); and Job's speeches. In fact, here it only boosts Abraham's reputation as one who appears unusually generous to others, even the citizens of Sodom. Abraham's concern for Sodom's people illustrates God's promise that the blessings on Abraham and his descendants will overflow to their neighbors (see note on Gen 12:3).

19:1-11 In the second scene of the Sodom story, Lot's guests arrive to rescue him (Gen 19:12-13). When they are placed in danger, the injustices (Gen 18:20; 19:13) of Sodom become clear. Judges 19:10-30 tells a very similar story of a Levite traveler in Gibeah. Both of these stories vividly criticize the harsh treatment of foreigners. Hospitality should reign instead. 19:1 The men who visit Abraham (Gen 18:2) and now Lot (Gen 18:5, 10, 12, 16, 17) are referred to as (divine) messengers in this story (Gen 18:11, 15; see the note on Gen 18:2). Lot sits at the gate of Sodom, the place for official business, in the city in which he had settled after separating from Abraham (Gen 13:10-13). 19:2-3 Lot's hospitality mirrors that of Abraham, which has just been described (Gen 18:1-15). In fact, hospitality is the main theme in this part of the Sodom story. Lot's earnest plea that the strangers spend the night in Lot's house rather than in the town square contrasts the safe hospitality of his home with the potential dangers in Sodom's town square. 19:4-5 have sex with them: Here the type of sex is violent to the oldest—surrounded the house <sup>5</sup>and called to Lot, “Where are the men who arrived tonight? Bring them out to us so that we may have sex with them.”

<sup>6</sup>Lot went out toward the entrance, closed the door behind him, <sup>7</sup>and said, “My brothers, don’t do such an evil thing. <sup>8</sup>I’ve got two daughters who are virgins. Let me bring them out to you, and you may do to them whatever you wish. But don’t do anything to these men because they are now under the protection of my roof.”

<sup>9</sup>They said, “Get out of the way!” And they continued, “Does this immigrant want to judge us? Now we will hurt you more than we will hurt them.” They pushed Lot back and came close to breaking down the door. <sup>10</sup>The men inside reached out and pulled Lot back into the house with them and slammed the door. <sup>11</sup>Then the messengers blinded the men near the entrance of the house, from the youngest to the oldest, so that they groped around trying to find the entrance.

<sup>12</sup>The men said to Lot, “Who’s still with you here? Take away from this place your sons-in-law, your sons, your daughters, and everyone else you have in the city <sup>13</sup>because we are about to destroy this place. The LORD has found the cries of injustice so serious that the LORD sent us to destroy it.”

<sup>14</sup>Lot went to speak to his sons-in-law, married to his daughters, and said, “Get up and get out of this place because the LORD is about to destroy the city.” But his sons-in-law thought he was joking.

<sup>15</sup>When dawn broke, the messengers urged Lot, “Get up and take your wife and your two daughters who are here so that you are not swept away because of the evil in this city.” <sup>16</sup>He hesitated, but because the LORD intended to save him, the men grabbed him, his wife, and two daughters by the hand, took him out, and left him outside the city.

<sup>17</sup>After getting them out, the men said, “Save your lives! Don’t look back! And don’t stay in the valley. Escape to the mountains so that you are not swept away.”

<sup>18</sup>But Lot said to them, “No, my lords, please. <sup>19</sup>You’ve done me a favor and have been so kind to save my life. But I can’t escape to the mountains since the catastrophe might overtake me there and I’d die. <sup>20</sup>This city here is close enough to flee to, and it’s small. It’s small, right? Let me escape there, and my life will be saved.”

<sup>21</sup>He said to Lot, “I’ll do this for you as well; I won’t overthrow the city that you have described. <sup>22</sup>Hurry! Escape to it! I can’t do anything until you get there.” That is why the name of the city is Zoar.<sup>1</sup>

Sodom and Gomorrah destroyed

sex, rape that demeans and humiliates its male victims (see Gen 19:9). The townsmen see this abuse as a way to harm and eliminate outsiders (cf. Judg 19:22; 20:5). This story therefore specifically criticizes rape, whether it is against men, Lot’s visitors; or against women, Lot’s daughters (Gen 19:8). Such behavior is utterly opposed to the sacred duty to be hospitable. The story’s earliest interpreters focus on the townsmen’s harsh treatment of outsiders, rather than on the sexual activity by which they meant to cause harm (e.g., Ezek 16:49; Matt 10:11-15).

19:6-11 Lot is determined to show hospitality to the men who came under the protection of his roof. He goes to such lengths to protect them that he puts himself in danger (19:6, 9-10) and offers his own daughters in their place (19:8). The storyteller likely views Lot’s offer of his daughters as the desperate act of a father fiercely committed to ancient standards of hospitality. Lot’s action also reveals the dangerous place of women as second-class citizens in a male-dominated world and the violence they could experience there (cf. Judg 19:22-26). See sidebar, “Gender in Genesis” at Genesis 3.

19:12-28 The third scene of the Sodom story describes Lot’s rescue and the city’s destruction. Lot’s sons-in-law stay in their city (19:14); but Lot, his wife, and his daughters leave.

19:18-22 Lot’s appeal explains why Zoar (meaning “small”; see 19:20 and translation note), a small oasis town south-east of the Dead Sea, escaped the catastrophe.

19:25 Destruction strikes the cities, valley, inhabitants, and all of the fertile land’s vegetation, reducing the valley to a desert. Today, meteorologists see the desert landscape around the Dead Sea as resulting from the meager rainfall in the rain shadow produced by the mountains to the west.

19:26 Salt deposits around the Dead Sea can take the form of pillars, some with lifelike shapes, which provides the source for this familiar detail about Lot’s wife.

<sup>27</sup>Abraham set out early for the place where he had stood with the LORD, <sup>28</sup>and looked out over Sodom and Gomorrah and over all the land of the valley. He saw the smoke from the land rise like the smoke from a kiln.

Origin of Moab and Ammon

<sup>29</sup>When God destroyed the cities in the valley, God remembered Abraham and sent Lot away from the disaster that overtook the cities in which Lot had lived. <sup>30</sup>Since Lot had become fearful of living in Zoar, he and his two daughters headed up from Zoar and settled in the mountains where he and his two daughters lived in a cave. <sup>31</sup>The older daughter said to the younger, "Our father is old, and there are no men in the land to sleep with us as is the custom everywhere. <sup>32</sup>Come on, let's give our father wine to drink, lie down with him, and we'll have children from our father." <sup>33</sup>That night they served their father wine, and the older daughter went in and lay down with her father, without him noticing when she lay down or got up. <sup>34</sup>The next day the older daughter said to the younger, "Since I lay down with our father last night, let's serve him wine tonight too, and you go in and lie down with him so that we will both have children from our father." <sup>35</sup>They served their father wine that night also, and the younger daughter lay down with him, without him knowing when she lay down or got up. <sup>36</sup>Both of Lot's daughters became pregnant by their father. <sup>37</sup>The older daughter gave birth to a son and named him Moab. He is the ancestor of today's Moabites. <sup>38</sup>The younger daughter also gave birth to a son and named him Ben-ammi.<sup>1</sup> He is the ancestor of today's Ammonites.

20 Abraham traveled from there toward the land of the arid southern plain, and he settled as an immigrant in Gerar, between Kadesh and Shur. <sup>2</sup>Abraham said of his wife Sarah, "She's my sister." So King Abimelech of Gerar took her into his household.

<sup>3</sup>But God appeared to Abimelech that night in a dream and said to him, "You are as good as dead because of this woman you have taken. She is a married woman."

<sup>4</sup>Now Abimelech hadn't gone near her, and he said, "Lord, will you really put an innocent nation to death? <sup>5</sup>Didn't he say to me, 'She's my sister,' and didn't she—even she—say, 'He's my brother'? My intentions were pure, and I acted innocently when I did this."

<sup>6</sup>God said to him in the dream, "I know that your intentions were pure when you did this. In fact, I kept you from sinning against me. That's why I didn't allow you to touch her. <sup>7</sup>Now return the man's wife. He's a prophet; he will pray for you so you may live. But if you don't return her, know that you and everyone with you will die!"

19:29-38 The final scene of the Sodom story explains the origin of two of Israel's closest neighbors east of the Jordan River, the Moabites and the Ammonites (19:37-38). The phrases today's Moabites and today's Ammonites show that this story was written during the Israelite monarchy, when these peoples already existed. The writer connects the birth of their ancestors with the territory, the mountains east of the Dead Sea (19:30), where the Moabites and Ammonites actually lived. The narrative describes these two neighbors of Israel in ambiguous terms. On the one hand, the Moabites and Ammonites are close relatives of Abraham and his descendants: They are children of Abraham's nephew Lot. Thus they deserve special respect. On the other hand, they derive from questionable beginnings, the incestuous union of Lot and his daughters (19:31-36). Such narratives were an effective way of describing both the bonds and the tensions between Israel and its neighbors during the Israelite monarchy (see 1 Sam 22:3-4; 2 Sam 8:2). 20:1-18 This is the second of the three narratives in Genesis in which an ancestor (Abraham or Isaac), while an immigrant in a foreign country, presents his wife as his sister to protect himself (Gen 12:10-20; 26:1-11). The social factors that led the ancestor to do this are explained in the notes on Genesis 12:10-20. This story introduces the third author in Genesis, the Elohists. Like the Yahwist, the Elohists told the stories of his ancestors to explain the identity and role of Israel in its world during the monarchy in which he lived (see intro.). We see here many of the Elohists' most distinctive traits that will appear in his stories that follow: God's appearance in dreams (20:3, 6); an interest in prophecy (20:7); a regard for the reverence toward God (20:11); and a special concern for moral integrity (20:4-6, 12).

20:1 Gerar is located in the arid southern plain, southwest of Hebron in the foothills, where Abraham had been living (Gen 13:18; 18:1).

20:3 Here God communicates with humans indirectly through dreams or messengers, rather than face-to-face as in Genesis 3:9; 18:22. God appeared in dreams to Israel's neighbors (Gen 41:25) just as to Israel's own ancestors (Gen 37:5).

20:4-6 This storyteller makes a point to protect the moral integrity of each major character. Here the text says that God saw that Abimelech's intentions were pure and didn't allow Abimelech to touch her (20:6; cf. Gen 12:19).

20:7 Israel's classic prophets, such as Isaiah and Amos, lived and preached when there were kings in Israel and Judah. By calling Abraham a prophet, the writer connects the prophets of his era with Israel's earliest ancestors.

<sup>8</sup>Abimelech got up early in the morning and summoned all of his servants. When he told them everything that had happened, the men were terrified. <sup>9</sup>Then Abimelech summoned Abraham and said to him, "What have you done to us? What sin did I commit against you that you have brought this terrible sin to me and my kingdom, by doing to me something that simply isn't done?" <sup>10</sup>Abimelech said to Abraham, "What were you thinking when you did this thing?"

<sup>11</sup>Abraham said, "I thought to myself, No one reveres God here and they will kill me to get my wife. <sup>12</sup>She is, truthfully, my sister—my father's daughter but not my mother's daughter—and she's now my wife. <sup>13</sup>When God led me away from my father's household, I said to her, "This is the loyalty I expect from you: in each place we visit, tell them, "He is my brother."'"

<sup>14</sup>Abimelech took flocks, cattle, male servants, and female servants, and gave them to Abraham; and Abimelech returned his wife Sarah. <sup>15</sup>Abimelech said, "My land is here available to you. Live wherever you wish." <sup>16</sup>To Sarah, he said, "I've given your brother one thousand pieces of silver. It means that neither you nor anyone with you has done anything wrong. Everything has been set right." <sup>17</sup>Abraham prayed to God; and God restored Abimelech, his wife, and his women servants to health, and they were able to have children. <sup>18</sup>Because of the incident with Abraham's wife Sarah, the LORD had kept all of the women in Abimelech's household from having children.

Isaac's birth

21 The LORD was attentive to Sarah just as he had said, and the LORD carried out just what he had promised her. <sup>2</sup>She became pregnant and gave birth to a son for Abraham when he was old, at the very time God had told him. <sup>3</sup>Abraham named his son—the one Sarah bore him—Isaac. <sup>4</sup>Abraham circumcised his son Isaac when he was eight days old just as God had commanded him. <sup>5</sup>Abraham was 100 years old when his son Isaac was born. <sup>6</sup>Sarah said, "God has given me laughter. Everyone who hears about it will laugh with me."<sup>1</sup> <sup>7</sup>She said, "Who could have told Abraham that Sarah would nurse sons? But now I've given birth to a son when he was old!"

Hagar and Ishmael evicted

Praying for others (see also Gen 20:17) is a characteristic of the classical prophets (e.g., Amos 7:2, 5).

20:11 Here and in Genesis 22:12, revering God is the mark of doing what is right. Abraham explains his acts by expressing his doubt that a foreign king would hold the same high standards of hospitality that he observes. See the notes on Genesis 12:10-20; 18:2.

20:12 Abraham gave a legitimate explanation about Sarah being his sister. As he explains, they share the same father but not the same mother. The genealogies in Genesis don't give her lineage (Gen 11:27-32). Some legal codes (Lev 18:9, 11; 20:17; Deut 27:22) forbade the marriage of a half brother or sister, while this text shows that other writers found this practice acceptable (cf. 2 Sam 13:13).

21:1-7 Isaac's birth is the finale of repeated promises to Abraham of an heir and descendants (Gen 12:2; 13:16; 15:4-6; 17:15-19; 18:9-15). These promises had appeared hopeless because of Sarah's inability to have children (Gen 11:30; 16:1); Abraham's and Sarah's ages (Gen 17:17; 18:11-12); and Sarah's endangerment in foreign countries (Gen 12:10-20; 20:1-18).

21:1-2 God fulfills the specific promises made to Abraham and Sarah that she would have a son (Gen 17:19; 18:10, 14).

21:3-5 Abraham named Isaac and circumcised him just as God had commanded in Genesis 17:12, 19.

21:6 Isaac's name means "he laughs" (see translation note at Gen 21:3). Here Sarah's laughter is likely the laughter of joy, rather than the laughter of disbelief (cf. Gen 17:17; 18:12, 15). However, as the translation note indicates, the Hebrew allows more than one interpretation.

21:8-21 This is the Elohist's story of Hagar's expulsion from Abraham's household. In the overall narrative of Genesis, this text now provides the sequel to the Yahwist's account in Genesis 16.

21:9-10 Sarah considers Hagar's child a threat to the status of her son, Isaac. While Sarah is the primary wife, Hagar's son was born first. Sarah wants to protect both her son's status as primary heir and her own status as primary wife. When Sarah saw Hagar's son laughing, it may have ignited her fears that he would take over the identity and role of Isaac, whose name means "he laughs" (Gen 17:17; 18:13-15; 21:6). On Sarah's possession and treatment of Hagar as her servant, see the note on Genesis 16:6.

<sup>11</sup>This upset Abraham terribly because the boy was his son. <sup>12</sup>God said to Abraham, "Don't be upset about the boy and your servant. Do everything Sarah tells you to do because your descendants will be traced through Isaac. <sup>13</sup>But I will make of your servant's son a great nation too, because he is also your descendant." <sup>14</sup>Abraham got up early in the morning, took some bread and a flask of water, and gave it to Hagar. He put the boy in her shoulder sling and sent her away.

She left and wandered through the desert near Beer-sheba. <sup>15</sup>Finally the water in the flask ran out, and she put the boy down under one of the desert shrubs. <sup>16</sup>She walked away from him about as far as a bow shot and sat down, telling herself, I can't bear to see the boy die. She sat at a distance, cried out in grief, and wept.

<sup>17</sup>God heard the boy's cries, and God's messenger called to Hagar from heaven and said to her, "Hagar! What's wrong? Don't be afraid. God has heard the boy's cries over there. <sup>18</sup>Get up, pick up the boy, and take him by the hand because I will make of him a great nation." <sup>19</sup>Then God opened her eyes, and she saw a well. She went over, filled the water flask, and gave the boy a drink. <sup>20</sup>God remained with the boy; he grew up, lived in the desert, and became an expert archer. <sup>21</sup>He lived in the Paran desert, and his mother found him an Egyptian wife.

<sup>22</sup>At that time Abimelech, and Phicol commander of his forces, said to Abraham, "God is with you in everything that you do. <sup>23</sup>So give me your word under God that you won't cheat me, my children, or my descendants. Just as I have treated you fairly, so you must treat me and the land in which you are an immigrant."

<sup>24</sup>Abraham said, "I give you my word. <sup>25</sup>Then Abraham complained to Abimelech about a well that Abimelech's servants had seized.

<sup>26</sup>Abimelech said, "I don't know who has done this, and you didn't tell me. I didn't even hear about it until today." <sup>27</sup>Abraham took flocks and cattle, gave them to Abimelech, and the two of them drew up a treaty. <sup>28</sup>Abraham set aside, by themselves, seven female lambs from the flock. <sup>29</sup>So Abimelech said to Abraham, "What are these seven lambs you've set apart?"

21:11-14 The writer seeks to emphasize Abraham's moral character. Abraham is terribly upset about sending Hagar and her son away. God assures Abraham that Sarah's request is legitimate since his descendants will be traced through Isaac. God directs Abraham to Do everything Sarah tells him. God also promises to make the descendants of Hagar's son a great nation (cf. Gen 21:18), just as Isaac's descendants would become. Abraham provides food and water for Hagar and her child.

21:16 The story describes Hagar's emotions in an unusually strong and intimate way.

21:17 Ishmael isn't named in this account, but the phrase God heard appears twice in this verse. It seems related to the name Ishmael, meaning "God hears" (Gen 16:11).

21:18-21 The story connects Hagar's son with the southern desert, which was home to his descendants, the Ishmaelites. The Paran desert is south of Israel and its southernmost city, Beer-sheba (Gen 21:14). It's the same desert to which Hagar flees in Genesis 16:7-14. Ishmael is portrayed as an expert archer, though references later in Genesis identify his descendants as desert traders (Gen 37:25, 28b; 39:1).

21:22-34 This narrative continues the story of Abraham and Sarah in Gerar from Genesis 20:1-18. Its purpose is to show that the city of Beer-sheba (along with its well) is the legitimate possession of Abraham and his descendants. It presents both Abimelech and Abraham as honest brokers of a treaty between themselves and, by extension, their descendants.

21:22-24 The foreign king Abimelech initiates a good-faith agreement between him, his people, and Abraham.

21:25-26 Abimelech, as in the earlier case with Sarah (Gen 20:5, 9-10), acts honestly and with integrity in response to Abraham's complaint.

21:27-31 The treaty recognizes Beer-sheba and its well as Abraham's. The Hebrew word Beer means "well," and sheba can mean either "seven" or "to give one's word." So Beer-sheba can mean "well of seven" or "well of giving one's word." The text relates events to both meanings: Abraham gave Abimelech seven lambs, and Abraham and Abimelech gave each other their word.

21:32-34 The conclusion to the story identifies Abimelech with the Philistines, the people who lived on the coastal plain where Gerar was located during the days of Israelite kings when the writer lived. Trees mark sacred sites (see Gen 12:6-7; 13:18; 18:1; sidebar, "The Ancestors in Their Environment" at Gen 13). Abraham went over, took the ram, and offered it as an entirely burned offering instead of his son. <sup>14</sup>Abraham named that place "the LORD sees."<sup>b</sup> That is the reason people today say, "On this mountain the LORD is seen."<sup>c</sup>

<sup>15</sup>The LORD's messenger called out to Abraham from heaven a second time <sup>16</sup>and said, "I give my word as the LORD that because you did this and didn't hold back your son, your only son, <sup>17</sup>I will bless you richly and I will give you countless descendants, as many as the

are common in these ancestral stories. Others are El Elyon, "God Most High" (Gen 14:18-20); and El Shaddai, "God of the Mountain" (Gen 17:1).

22:1-19 This story of Abraham and Isaac is one of the most admired and most troubling stories in Genesis. Abraham is presented as the model of supreme obedience to God, but to obey God, Abraham must be prepared to kill his son. Nowhere in Genesis does a single event contain such a strong moral tension for the interpreter (see note on Gen 22:12-13; sidebar, "The Moral Dilemma of the Sacrifice of Isaac"). In Jewish tradition, the story is known as the Akeidah or Binding of Isaac, from the Hebrew verb translated tied up in Genesis 22:9.

22:1 Testing is a key theme in several stories in the Bible's first five books (Exod 15:25; 16:4; Deut 8:2, 16; 13:3). Abraham's response, I'm here, occurs at three crucial points in this story: when God commands Abraham here to sacrifice Isaac; when Isaac asks Abraham what the sacrifice will be (Gen 22:7); and when God's messenger commands Abraham not to sacrifice Isaac (Gen 22:11-12).

22:2 The phrase your son, your only son whom you love, Isaac focuses attention on the object of the test and on God's extremely harsh demand. Moriah resembles the verb "to see," used repeatedly in this story (Gen 22:4, 8, 14; see the notes following). Neither its exact meaning nor its precise location is clear, though 2 Chronicles 3:1 identifies Moriah with the temple mount in Jerusalem. An entirely burned offering is one where fire consumes the entire sacrifice on the altar (cf. Lev 1).

22:6 Here Abraham laid the wood on top of Isaac. Later he "laid" Isaac on top of the wood (Gen 22:9). The phrase the two of them walked on together frames the frightening question Isaac asks his father, appearing here and in Genesis 22:8.

22:8 Abraham's reply, God will see, is similar to the phrase used to name the mountain, "the LORD sees" (Gen 22:14). Since Abraham's inner thoughts aren't described, his response could be taken as an expression of faith or as a parent being intentionally vague.

22:10 The verb translated kill . . . as a sacrifice is customarily used for the slaughter of animals in sacrifices (e.g., Exod 29:11).

22:12-13 Abraham has passed the ultimate test (Gen 22:1). To revere God is a primary religious duty in Genesis 20:11; 42:18. See sidebar, "The Moral Dilemma of the Sacrifice of Isaac"

22:15-19 This text emphasizes key themes: the promise of numerous descendants (cf. Gen 13:16; 15:5) and the

The Moral Dilemma of the Sacrifice of Isaac The moral dilemma in the story of the sacrifice of Isaac comes to a climax in Genesis 22:12-13. There God allows an animal to be sacrificed in place of Isaac but also praises Abraham's willingness to sacrifice Isaac. Many interpreters have read the story as an argument against human sacrifice. According to this interpretation, the story describes God demanding a human sacrifice, only to show that in the end God desires not human but animal sacrifices. This interpretation appears to be supported by frequent condemnations of human sacrifice in the OT (Deut 12:31; Jer 7:30-32).

The key difficulty with this interpretation is that it works against the main point of the text, Abraham's absolute obedience in his willingness to slay Isaac. How can the story honor Abraham so highly for his willingness to do what the story condemns? Abraham's obedience is meaningful only if the story takes human sacrifice as a genuine act of worship, as was the case in the ancient Near East and apparently at some point even in ancient Israel (Exod 22:29-30; Ezek 20:25-26; see also notes on Exod 11:5; 13:1-2; Num 3:11-13).

Among the many attempts to respond to this moral dilemma are two major proposals. According to one, God is above all human moral codes and is free to act in divine wisdom: God's ways aren't human ways. According to the other proposal, the vast difference between ancient and modern cultural practices must be recognized. The obedience of Abraham and God's praise of him might be understood from a historical perspective. However, as texts like Deuteronomy 12:31 and Jeremiah 7:30-32 recognize, human sacrifice is a contradiction to genuine worship and morality.

stars in the sky and as the grains of sand on the seashore. They will conquer their enemies' cities. <sup>18</sup>All the nations of the earth will be blessed because of your descendants, because you obeyed me." <sup>19</sup>After Abraham returned to the young men, they got up and went to Beer-sheba where Abraham lived.

Abraham's nephews in Syria

Sarah's death and burial site

23 Sarah lived to be 127 years old; this was how long she lived. <sup>2</sup>She died in Kiriath-arba, that is, in Hebron, in the land of Canaan; and Abraham cried out in grief and wept for Sarah. <sup>3</sup>After he got up from embracing his deceased wife, he spoke with the Hittites: "I am an immigrant and a temporary resident with you. Give me some property for a burial plot among you so that I can bury my deceased wife near me."

<sup>5</sup>The Hittites responded to Abraham, <sup>6</sup>"Listen to us, sir. You are an eminent man of God among us. Bury your dead in one of our own select burial sites. None of us will keep our own burial plots from you to bury your dead."

promise of being a bless[ing] for the nations (cf. Gen 12:3; 18:18). Both of these promises are directly related to Abraham's obedience (cf. Gen 18:18-19; 26:3-5).

22:20-24 The family tree of Nahor, Abraham's brother, adds to the genealogical information in Genesis 11:28-30. The references to Bethuel and Rebekah provide the background for the account of the marriage of Isaac and Rebekah in Genesis 24.

23:1-20 This story shows how highly the Israelites revered their matriarch, Sarah. The exact historical location of Sarah's grave in the area near Hebron is no longer known. Some connect this site with the great mosque known as Al-Haram Al-Ibrahimi (Sanctuary of Abraham) in the center of the modern city of Hebron. The site is also called the Tomb of the Patriarchs.

23:2 Hebron was the largest and most important city in the south during the Israelite monarchy. It was David's first capital (Jerusalem was his second; 2 Sam 5:1-10). In Genesis, Hebron is the primary residence of Abraham and Sarah (Gen 13:18; 18:1).

23:3 Genesis regards the Hittites as one of the peoples native to Canaan (Gen 10:15; 15:20; 26:34). The relationship between this group and the great Hittite Empire in Anatolia (modern Turkey and northern Syria) before and during the biblical period is difficult to determine.

23:4 As an immigrant living outside the sphere of his own family and relatives, Abraham lacked the privileges of a citizen, including the ownership of land. This image of the ancestors as immigrants in Canaan is unique to the Priestly writer, who preserves the fact that the Israelites had not yet inherited the land (cf. Gen 17:8). The Yahwist, by contrast, pictures the ancestors at home in Canaan, just as their descendants were in his own day, and as immigrants only outside Canaan (Gen 12:10; 15:13; 26:3).

23:5-6 The Hittites and Abraham reach an agreement with each other respectfully. The Hittites don't wish to sell their land, because in ancient times land stayed within families. However, the Hittites do make a generous offer to the immigrant Abraham that he use one of their own select burial sites (Gen 23:10-11).

<sup>7</sup>Abraham rose, bowed to the local citizens the Hittites, <sup>8</sup>and spoke with them: "If you yourselves allow me to bury my dead near me, listen to me and ask Ephron, Zohar's son, <sup>9</sup>to give me his own cave in Machpelah at the edge of his field. Let him give it to me for the full price, to be witnessed by you, as my own burial property."

<sup>10</sup>Now Ephron was a native Hittite. So Ephron the Hittite responded to Abraham publicly in order that the Hittites and everyone at his city's gate could hear: <sup>11</sup>"No, sir. Listen, I will give you the field, and I will give you the cave in it. In front of my people's witnesses, I will give it to you. Bury your dead!"

<sup>12</sup>Abraham bowed before the local citizens <sup>13</sup>and spoke to Ephron publicly in the presence of the local citizens: "If only you would accept my offer. I will give you the price of the field. Take it from me so that I can bury my dead there."

Isaac marries Rebekah

24 As the days went by and Abraham became older, the LORD blessed Abraham in every way. <sup>2</sup>Abraham said to the oldest servant of his household, who was in charge of everything he owned, "Put your hand under my thigh. <sup>3</sup>By the LORD, God of heaven and earth, give me your word that you won't choose a wife for my son from the Canaanite women among whom I live. <sup>4</sup>Go to my land and my family and find a wife for my son Isaac there."

<sup>5</sup>The servant said to him, "What if the woman doesn't agree to come back with me to this land? Shouldn't I take your son back to the land you left?"

<sup>6</sup>Abraham said to him, "Be sure you don't take my son back there. <sup>7</sup>The LORD, God of heaven—who took me from my father's household and from my family's land, who spoke with me and who gave me his word, saying, 'I will give this land to your descendants'—he will send his messenger in front of you, and you will find a wife for my son there. <sup>8</sup>If the woman won't agree to come back with you, you will be free from this obligation to me. Only don't take my son back there." <sup>9</sup>So the servant put his hand under his master Abraham's thigh and gave him his word about this mission.

23:7-9 Abraham wishes to buy the land in part because he will gain status as a property owner. The land will then belong to him and his descendants. For his descendants who are telling this story, Abraham's purchasing this land boosts their claim to it.

23:10 Archaeological digs have uncovered benches in the gate areas of ancient cities. Legal and economic agreements typically took place in these gate areas, as is the case here (cf. Gen 19:1).

23:14-16 We don't know whether four hundred shekels of silver was a high price for the field or not.

23:17-20 The public exchange of money and official transfer of the land for Sarah's burial aims to say that this burial site was in Israelite hands from very ancient times.

24:1-67 The scene shifts from Sarah to her daughter-in-law Rebekah. The story reflects numerous customs governing marriage in biblical Israel. Its aims are (1) to honor Rebekah's character and beauty (Gen 24:16-20, 24-25, 56-58); and (2) to show how in her union with Isaac, God's promises to Abraham endure and unfold (Gen 24:7, 27, 50-51, 60).

24:2 Abraham's oldest servant may be Eliezer, the man

Abraham thought would be his heir before Isaac was born (Gen 15:2-3). The ritual required of Abraham's servant isn't entirely understood. It may involve touching the male genitals, one meaning of the Hebrew term translated thigh (Gen 24:9). If so, this hand placement would be a solemn act symbolizing the life-or-death power of the agreement. 24:3 Some traditional societies like biblical Israel stress marriage within one's larger group of extended family and distant relatives. See note on Genesis 28:1-2.

24:7 Abraham repeats God's promise of the land of Canaan (Gen 12:7; 13:15; 15:18). He also insists that his son Isaac not leave Canaan (Gen 24:6, 8). In doing so, he again emphasizes the ancient connection between his descendants, the Israelites, and their homeland in Canaan (see sidebar, "The Promises to the Ancestors" at Gen 12).

24:10 Brief genealogies of Abraham's brother Nahor (Gen 24:15) are found in Genesis 11:27-32; 22:20-24. The location Aram-naharaim connects Abraham's own ancestral homeland with an area to the northeast of Canaan, within the ancient Aramean kingdom (modern Syria; cf. Gen 11:31-32; 12:1).

the city at the well in the evening, when women come out to draw water. <sup>12</sup>He said, "LORD, God of my master Abraham, make something good happen for me today and be loyal to my master Abraham. <sup>13</sup>I will stand here by the spring while the daughters of the men of the city come out to draw water. <sup>14</sup>When I say to a young woman, 'Hand me your water jar so I can drink,' and she says to me, 'Drink, and I will give your camels water too,' may she be the one you've selected for my servant Isaac. In this way I will know that you've been loyal to my master." <sup>15</sup>Even before he finished speaking, Rebekah—daughter of Bethuel the son of Milcah wife of Nahor, Abraham's brother—was coming out with a water jar on her shoulder. <sup>16</sup>The young woman was very beautiful, old enough to be married, and hadn't known a man intimately. She went down to the spring, filled her water jar, and came back up.

<sup>22</sup>As soon as the camels had finished drinking, the man took out a gold ring, weighing a half shekel,<sup>a</sup> and two gold bracelets for her arms, weighing ten shekels. <sup>23</sup>He said, "Please tell me whose daughter you are. Is there room in your father's house for us to spend the night?"

<sup>30</sup>When he had seen the ring and the bracelets on his sister's arms, and when he had heard his sister Rebekah say, "This is what the man said to me," he went to the man, who was still standing by the spring with his camels. <sup>31</sup>Laban said, "Come in, favored one of the LORD! Why are you standing outside? I've prepared the house and a place for the camels." <sup>32</sup>So the man entered the house. Then Laban unbridled the camels, provided straw and feed for them and water to wash his feet and the feet of the men with him, <sup>33</sup>and set out a meal for him.

But the man said, "I won't eat until I've said something."

Laban replied, "Say it."

<sup>39</sup>I said to my master, 'What if the woman won't come back with me?' <sup>40</sup>He said to me, 'The LORD, whom I've traveled with everywhere, will send his messenger with you and make your trip successful; and you will choose a wife for my son from my relatives and from my father's household. <sup>41</sup>If you go to my relatives, you will be free from your obligation to me. Even if they provide no one for you, you will be free from your obligation to me.'

24:11 Other biblical stories also describe encounters at wells leading to marriage (Gen 29:1-30; Exod 2:11-22). In biblical and other traditional societies, drawing water is usually women's work (Ruth 2:9 being an exception).

24:12-14 The servant's prayer to God emphasizes the fact that his selection of Rebekah isn't the result of chance or his own judgment but a part of God's larger plan (cf. Gen 24:21, 27, 50-51).

24:22 According to ancient custom, the husband gave his bride jewelry at their marriage. Both here and later, Abraham's servant offers them on Isaac's behalf (Gen 24:30, 53).

24:23-25 Rebekah demonstrates the same kind of hospitality that Abraham and Lot had previously offered to strangers (Gen 24:31-33; cf. Gen 18:2-5; 19:1-2).

young woman who comes out to draw water and to whom I say, "Please give me a little drink of water from your jar,"<sup>44</sup> and she responds to me, "Drink, and I will draw water for your camels too," may she be the woman the LORD has selected for my master's son.<sup>45</sup> Before I finished saying this to myself, Rebekah came out with her water jar on her shoulder and went down to the spring to draw water. And I said to her, "Please give me something to drink."<sup>46</sup> She immediately lowered her water jar and said, "Drink, and I will give your camels something to drink too." So I drank and she also gave water to the camels.<sup>47</sup> Then I asked her, "Whose daughter are you?" And she said, "The daughter of Bethuel, Nahor's son whom Milcah bore him." I put a ring in her nose and bracelets on her arms.<sup>48</sup> I bowed and worshipped the LORD and blessed the LORD, the God of my master Abraham, who led me in the right direction to choose the granddaughter of my master's brother for his son.<sup>49</sup> Now if you're loyal and faithful to my master, tell me. If not, tell me so I will know where I stand either way."

<sup>50</sup>Laban and Bethuel both responded, "This is all the LORD's doing. We have nothing to say about it."<sup>51</sup> Here is Rebekah, right in front of you. Take her and go. She will be the wife of your master's son, just as the LORD said."<sup>52</sup> When Abraham's servant heard what they said, he bowed low before the LORD.<sup>53</sup> The servant brought out gold and silver jewelry and clothing and gave them to Rebekah. To her brother and to her mother he gave the finest gifts.<sup>54</sup> He and the men with him ate and drank and spent the night.

When they got up in the morning, the servant said, "See me off to my master."

<sup>56</sup>But he said to them, "Don't delay me. The LORD has made my trip successful. See me off so that I can go to my master."

<sup>57</sup>They said, "Summon the young woman, and let's ask her opinion."<sup>58</sup> They called Rebekah and said to her, "Will you go with this man?"

She said, "I will go."

<sup>59</sup>So they sent off their sister Rebekah, her nurse, Abraham's servant, and his men.<sup>60</sup> And they blessed Rebekah, saying to her,

"May you, our sister, become thousands of ten thousand;
may your children possess their enemies' cities."

The servant said, "He's my master." So she took her headscarf and covered herself.<sup>67</sup> The servant told Isaac everything that had happened.<sup>68</sup> Isaac brought Rebekah into his mother Sarah's tent. He received Rebekah as his wife and loved her. So Isaac found comfort after his mother's death.

previously. Such repetition is a common feature of biblical and ancient Near Eastern literature.

24:50-52 Marriage arrangements for women in ancient Near Eastern and biblical society were handled by the men who had legal responsibility for them, typically their fathers and brothers.

24:53 According to biblical custom, the family of the groom gave a "bride price" to the family of the bride (cf. Gen 31:15; 34:12). Here, the finest gifts that Abraham's servant gives Rebekah's brother and mother are her bride price. This exchange of wealth was seen as a normal way of compensating the family that lost its daughter. The wealth could provide funds for the daughter's dowry or for her brother to obtain a wife.

Rebekah's jewelry in Genesis 24:22 is her husband's marriage gift.

24:59 Rebekah's nurse was likely a household servant who nursed her when she was young and remained her female servant (Gen 35:8).

24:60 The blessing Rebekah's family gave her mirrors the blessing God gave Abraham (Gen 22:17).

24:62 Isaac lives in the arid southern plain not far from Hebron where Abraham and Sarah lived (Gen 13:18; 23:19). Beer-lahai-roi is the well in this region where Hagar encountered God (Gen 16:14).

24:65 The purpose of Rebekah's headscarf is unclear. Veiling isn't mentioned as customary for married women in biblical society.

Abraham and Keturah's children

Jacob and Esau are born

25:1-34 This chapter provides the transition from one generation to the next. It describes the concluding events of Abraham's life (25:1-11); and it introduces the families of his two sons, Ishmael (25:12-18) and Isaac (25:19-34).
25:1-6 This short summary of Abraham's third wife, Keturah, and of their children adds to the more detailed accounts of Sarah, Hagar, and their children in earlier chapters.
25:2 The only one of Keturah's children who figures prominently in biblical traditions is Midian, from whose descendants came Moses' wife Zipporah (Exod 2:15-21). Midianites are often pictured as traders (Gen 37:28, 36).
25:5-6 Abraham's secondary wives are Hagar and Keturah. This last narrative of Abraham's family concludes with the statement that among all his sons, Isaac is his sole legitimate heir.
25:7-11 Genesis recounts the death and burial of many of the great ancestors: Sarah (Gen 23); Abraham (in this text); Rachel (Gen 35:16-21); Isaac (Gen 35:27-29); Jacob (Gen 49:29-33; 50:12-13); and Joseph (Gen 50:22-26). On Rebekah and Leah, see Genesis 49:31.
25:7 Regarding Abraham's long life, see the notes on Genesis 5:4; 11:11.
25:9-10 Once Abraham had purchased the field of Zohar's son Ephron near Hebron as a burial plot (Gen 23:17-20), most of Israel's ancestors were buried there (Gen 35:27-29; 49:29-32; 50:12-13). The key exception is Joseph, who is first placed in a coffin in Egypt (Gen 50:26) and then buried in Shechem (Josh 24:32). Sons typically bury their fathers (Gen 35:29; 50:12-13).

25:11 Isaac's residence, Beer-lahai-roi, can no longer be identified, but it was located somewhere in the arid plain south of Hebron (cf. Gen 16:14; 24:62).
25:12-18 This genealogy of Ishmael begins with the phrase These are the descendants of, which marks off a major branch in the genealogical framework of Genesis (Gen 2:4a; 5:1-3; 6:9; 25:19). As in Genesis 16:1-14; 21:8-21, the Ishmaelites are a nomadic people traveling the southern deserts. They live in villages and settlements and are organized by tribes with tribal leaders (25:16). They inhabit the arid terrain from Egypt toward Arabia (Havilah to Shur) in the south (25:18).
25:19-20 While the narratives that follow are identified with Isaac, they are in fact primarily about his sons, Jacob and Esau. Isaac plays a less prominent role in Genesis than Abraham, Jacob, and Joseph. The stories about Isaac's childhood are included in the Abraham narratives (Gen 21-22). Stories about him as patriarch are included in the Jacob narratives (Gen 26).
25:21-26 Struggle marks the first story about Jacob and Esau, even though it describes their birth. Conflict will continue to characterize their stories as a whole (see sidebar, "Family Conflict in Genesis" at Gen 4). In the story of the struggle between these brothers, Genesis explains the roots of later tensions between their descendants, the Israelites and Edomites (see sidebar, "Israel among the Nations" at Gen 9).
25:21 Like other mothers in Genesis, Rebekah is unable to have children at first (Gen 3:16; 11:30; 16:1; 30:1; see note on Gen 11:30).

Rebekah became pregnant. <sup>22</sup>But the boys pushed against each other inside of her, and she said, "If this is what it's like, why did it happen to me?"<sup>a</sup>

So she went to ask the LORD. <sup>23</sup>And the LORD said to her,

"Two nations are in your womb;

two different peoples will emerge from your body.

One people will be stronger than the other;

the older will serve the younger."<sup>b</sup>

<sup>24</sup>When she reached the end of her pregnancy, she discovered that she had twins. <sup>25</sup>The first came out red all over, clothed with hair, and she named him Esau. <sup>26</sup>Immediately afterward, his brother came out gripping Esau's heel, and she named him Jacob. Isaac was 60 years old when they were born.

Jacob acquires the oldest son's rights

Isaac and Rebekah visit Gerar

26 When a famine gripped the land, a different one from the first famine that occurred in Abraham's time, Isaac set out toward Gerar and toward King Abimelech of the Philistines. <sup>2</sup>The LORD appeared to him and said, "Don't go down to Egypt but settle temporarily in the land that I will show you. <sup>3</sup>Stay in this land as an immigrant, and I will be with you and bless you because I will give all of these lands to you and your descendants. I will keep my word, which I gave to your father Abraham. <sup>4</sup>I will give you as many descendants as the stars in the sky, and I will give your descendants all of these lands. All of the nations

25:23 God's response to Rebekah reveals what these stories are really about: the Two nations of the author's own time, the Israelites and the Edomites. On the two nations, see the note on Genesis 25:21-26. On how the older will serve the younger, see 2 Samuel 8:13-14.

25:25 The Hebrew term for hair sounds like Esau. Esau's red color is the origin of his other name, "Edom" (Gen 25:30), which can mean "red."

25:26 The name Jacob is a verb derived from the noun "heel." When the verb appears elsewhere (Gen 27:36; Jer 9:3; Hos 12:4), it describes one brother usurping the rights of another.

25:27-34 Like the preceding birth story, this account of Esau, as the oldest male child giving up his rights to Jacob, explains why the younger brother became prominent over the older brother. For early readers of this text, this story also signaled the prominence of Jacob's descendants, the Israelites, over Esau's descendants, the Edomites.

25:30 In Hebrew, the word for Edom means red (see translation note). This story links this name with the red lentil dish (Gen 25:34) that Jacob prepared and that Esau ate (cf. Gen 25:25).

25:31-33 The oldest son had unique rights, including the primary share of the family's wealth when his father died (Gen 43:33; Deut 21:15-17). Though Esau gave his rights as oldest son to Jacob, only their father's formal recognition of one son would confirm that son as his legitimate heir (Gen 27:36).

26:1-33 This text contains the only story with Isaac as the main character. It's important because God repeats to Isaac the promises first made to Abraham (26:2-5, 24). This story relates the Yahwist's traditions about Israel's ancestors' relations with Abimelech and Gerar. They are parallel to the Elohist's traditions in Genesis 20:1-17, where Abraham and Sarah visit Abimelech in Gerar; as well as in Genesis 21:22-31, where Abraham and Abimelech dispute ownership of a well. Here Isaac and Rebekah are the main characters, and Abimelech is the king of the Philistines. The Philistines lived in the coastal plain during the later period of Israel's judges and kings (ca. 1200-586 BCE). The story thus reflects the later political world of Israel. The Philistines provided David refuge before he became king, but they were also a threat to his kingdom (1 Sam 27:31; 2 Sam 5).

26:1-11 Twice before, Genesis has told a story of Israel's patriarch presenting his wife as his sister on foreign soil to save his life: once about Sarah in Egypt (Gen 12:10-20); and once about Sarah in Gerar (Gen 20:1-17). The social factors that motivate Isaac's actions are explained in the notes on Genesis 12:10-20.

26:1 Gerar is located in the southern coastal plain. On the Philistines, see the notes on Genesis 26:1-33.

26:3-5 God makes to Isaac the same promises previously made to Abraham (Gen 12:1-3; 13:14-17; 22:16-18).

of the earth will be blessed because of your descendants. <sup>4</sup>I will do this because Abraham obeyed me and kept my orders, my commandments, my statutes, and my instructions.”

<sup>6</sup>So Isaac lived in Gerar. <sup>7</sup>When the men who lived there asked about his wife, he said, “She’s my sister,” because he was afraid to say, “my wife,” thinking, “The men who live there will kill me for Rebekah because she’s very beautiful. <sup>8</sup>After Isaac had lived there for some time, the Philistines’ King Abimelech looked out his window and saw Isaac laughing together with his wife Rebekah.

Isaac responded, “Because I thought that I might be killed because of her.”

<sup>10</sup>Abimelech said, “What are you trying to do to us? Before long, one of the people would have slept with your wife; and you would have made us guilty.” <sup>11</sup>Abimelech gave orders to all of the people, “Anyone who touches this man or his wife will be put to death!”

Isaac’s treaty with the Philistines

<sup>23</sup>Then he went up from Gerar to Beer-sheba. <sup>24</sup>The LORD appeared to him that night and said, “I am the God of your father Abraham. Don’t be afraid because I am with you. I will bless you, and I will give you many children for my servant Abraham’s sake.” <sup>25</sup>So Isaac built an altar there and worshipped in the LORD’s name. Isaac pitched his tent there, and his servants dug a well.

26:6-11 In this story, Abimelech doesn’t take Rebekah into his household, as the foreign king does to Sarah in the other stories (Gen 12:15; 20:2). Isaac and Rebekah laughing is a play on the name Isaac, meaning “the laughs” (Gen 17:17-19; 18:15; 21:5-6). It must have signaled something about their relationship that made Abimelech suspicious. In the other stories like this, the foreign king finds out about the marriage because God punishes him (Gen 12:17-18) or tells him directly (Gen 20:3-6). In all the stories, once the foreign king finds out, he acts honorably and restores the patriarch’s wife to him. The modern reader may be puzzled by the fact that Abimelech lived long enough to go through this same experience with Abraham and Sarah (20:1-17) and then a generation later with Isaac and Rebekah. The reader may also find it strange that Abimelech didn’t learn his lesson the first time and wasn’t prepared when the same thing happened again. This can be quite easily explained if we recognize that these are Abimelech stories from two different authors that were later combined in the book of Genesis, this one from the Yahwist and the other from the Elohist (Gen 20:1-17).

26:12-33 The treaty between Isaac and Abimelech explains the relationship between their descendants, the Israelites and the Philistines. In particular, it signals their mutual recognition of Beer-sheba and its well as Israelite possessions (see sidebar, “Israel among the Nations” at Gen 9). The conflict at the story’s outset is control of water, a key issue in land disputes in the Middle East over the centuries. The story supports the settlement of disputes through diplomacy rather than violence. This is the Yahwist’s version of the treaty with Abimelech described also by the Elohist in Genesis 21:22-31.

26:15-18 These wells of Abraham aren’t mentioned earlier in Genesis. Sometimes, Genesis refers back to earlier events that weren’t mentioned previously (see notes on Gen 42:21; 49:31; 50:5, 16-17).

26:24-25 Genesis frequently speaks of the Lord’s appearance to an ancestor, the Lord’s promise, the ancestor’s

<sup>28</sup>They said, "We now see that the LORD was with you. Isaac sent them off, and they left peacefully.

<sup>32</sup>That day Isaac's servants informed him about the well that they had been digging and said to him, "We found water." <sup>33</sup>He called it Shibah;<sup>b</sup> therefore, the city's name has been Beer-sheba<sup>a</sup> until today.

Esau's wives

Jacob acquires his father's blessing

27When Isaac had grown old and his eyesight was failing, he summoned his older son Esau and said to him, "My son?"

And Esau said, "I'm here."

<sup>2</sup>He said, "I'm old and don't know when I will die. <sup>3</sup>So now, take your hunting gear, your bow and quiver of arrows, go out to the field, and hunt game for me. <sup>4</sup>Make me the delicious food that I love and bring it to me so I can eat. Then I can bless you before I die."

<sup>5</sup>Rebekah was listening when Isaac spoke to his son Esau. When Esau went out to the field to hunt game to bring back, <sup>6</sup>Rebekah said to her son Jacob, "I just heard your father saying to your brother Esau, 'Bring me some game and make me some delicious food so I can eat, and I will bless you in the LORD's presence before I die.' <sup>7</sup>Now, my son, listen to me, to what I'm telling you to do. <sup>8</sup>Go to the flock and get me two healthy young goats so I can prepare them as the delicious food your father loves. <sup>9</sup>You can bring it to your father, he will eat, and then he will bless you before he dies."

<sup>11</sup>Jacob said to his mother Rebekah, "My brother Esau is a hairy man, but I have smooth skin. <sup>12</sup>What if my father touches me and thinks I'm making fun of him? I will be cursed instead of blessed."

<sup>13</sup>His mother said to him, "Your curse will be on me, my son. Just listen to me: go and get them for me." <sup>14</sup>So he went and got them and brought them to his mother, and his mother made the delicious food that his father loved. <sup>15</sup>Rebekah took her older son Esau's favorite building an altar at that site, and the ancestor's worshiping in the Lord's name (Gen 12:7, 8; 13:18; 18:1, 10; see sidebar, "The Ancestors in Their Environment" at Gen 13).

26:30-31 Eating a common meal is a customary ritual when making a treaty in the biblical period (Gen 31:44-46; Exod 24:9-11).

26:32-33 Compare the Elohist's traditions in Genesis 21:30-31, where Abraham founds Beer-sheba. Here in the Yahwist's traditions, Isaac founds the city.

26:34-35 On the Hittites, see the note on Genesis 23:3. The phrase made life very difficult is used because some traditional societies like biblical Israel stress marriage within one's larger group of extended family and kin, rather than outside it (see Gen 24:3; 27:46; 28:1-2).

27:1-29 According to custom, the oldest son was the family's primary heir. Although Jacob is the younger son, he becomes the family's primary heir by deceiving his father, Isaac, who unknowingly gives him his blessing. The previous chapter contained clues that this reversal would happen, particularly when the Lord predicted to Rebekah that her older child would serve the younger (Gen 26:23) and when Esau sold Jacob his birthright (Gen 26:33). This episode is part of a larger pattern within Genesis in which the primary blessing goes to the younger son. This story's aim is to describe the passing of God's promises and blessings to Jacob. It also accounts for the relationships between Jacob's descendants, the Israelites, and Esau's descendants, the Edomites. (See note on Gen 25:23; see sidebar, "Israel among the Nations" at Gen 9.)

27:1-25 Women and secondary sons were excluded from the privileges of power and property that biblical society typically gave to the father and the oldest son. As a result, those without formal authority found ways to work within and around social structures in order to achieve their goals. Here Rebekah determines the outcome of this contest between those with power and those without—as well as the outcome of Genesis as a whole (see sidebar, "Gender in Genesis" at Gen 3). Since the storyteller treats all the characters as real and complex people and makes no explicit judgments about their behavior, it's hard to tell exactly how to interpret their actions. If we read the story from the viewpoint of the men with power, Isaac and Esau, we may disapprove of the deception that Rebekah and Isaac resorted to in order to achieve their goals. After all, the Bible views cheating and deception negatively on many occasions (e.g., Gen 21:23; 29:25; Lev 19:11; Ps 101:7). Furthermore, we may relate to the distress of Isaac and Esau when their plans failed (Gen 27:30-40). On the other hand, if we read the story from the viewpoint of women and secondary sons without power, clothes that were in the house with her, and she put them on her younger son Jacob. <sup>16</sup>On his arms and smooth neck she put the hide of young goats, <sup>17</sup>and the delicious food and the bread she had made she put into her son's hands.

And he said, "I'm here. Who are you, my son?"

<sup>19</sup>Jacob said to his father, "I'm Esau your oldest son. I've made what you asked me to. Sit up and eat some of the game so you can bless me."

<sup>20</sup>Isaac said to his son, "How could you find this so quickly, my son?"

He said, "The LORD your God led me right to it."<sup>j</sup>

<sup>21</sup>Isaac said to Jacob, "Come here and let me touch you, my son. Are you my son Esau or not?" <sup>22</sup>So Jacob approached his father Isaac, and Isaac touched him and said, "The voice is Jacob's voice, but the arms are Esau's arms." <sup>23</sup>Isaac didn't recognize him because his arms were hairy like Esau's arms, so he blessed him.

And he said, "I am."

<sup>25</sup>Isaac said, "Bring some food here and let me eat some of my son's game so I can bless you." Jacob put it before him and he ate, and he brought him wine and he drank. <sup>26</sup>His father Isaac said to him, "Come here and kiss me, my son." <sup>27</sup>So he came close and kissed him. When Isaac smelled the scent of his clothes, he blessed him,

"See, the scent of my son is like the scent of the field that the LORD has blessed.

<sup>28</sup>May God give you showers from the sky,
olive oil from the earth,
plenty of grain and new wine.

<sup>29</sup>May the nations serve you,
may peoples bow down to you.
Be the most powerful man among your brothers, and may your mother's sons bow down to you.
Those who curse you will be cursed,
and those who bless you will be blessed."

Esau receives a secondary blessing

<sup>30</sup>After Isaac had finished blessing Jacob, and just as Jacob left his father Isaac, his brother Esau came back from his hunt. <sup>31</sup>He too made some delicious food, brought it to his father, and said, "Let my father sit up and eat from his son's game so that you may bless me."

And he said, "I'm your son, your oldest son, Esau."

<sup>33</sup>Isaac was so shocked that he trembled violently. He said, "Who was the hunter just here with game? He brought me food, and I ate all of it before you came. I blessed him, and he will stay blessed!"

<sup>34</sup>When Esau heard what his father said, he let out a loud agonizing cry and wept bitterly. He said to his father, "Bless me! Me too, my father!"

Rebekah and Jacob, then we may regard their actions as an understandable response of those disadvantaged by social structures that privilege some members of society over others. In fact, Rebekah appears to be acting in light of the Lord's plan that Jacob be stronger (Gen 25:23). The story is told so effectively that we are likely meant to see both of these viewpoints.

27:26-29 Isaac passes the blessing to Jacob. It emphasizes agricultural abundance. grain, wine, and olive oil: the three primary crops of the typical Israelite farmer (Deut 8:7-9). The blessing also emphasizes the power of the descendants of Jacob, the Israelites, over other peoples surrounding Israel (Gen 9:25-26; 22:17-18) and over brothers, which would include Esau and his descendants, the Edomites. The word "brothers" is plural because the Hebrew word behind it can refer not only to brothers, but also to other male relatives such as nephews. Thus the same word is translated "relatives" in Genesis 13:8 when describing Abram and Lot.

27:30-40 Esau, the older son, loses the blessing reserved for the oldest male and can't become the family's primary heir. He receives only a secondary blessing.

27:36 The name Jacob is related to both the word "heel" (see Gen 25:26) and the word taken (see translation note).

But when you grow restless,<sup>1</sup> you will tear away his harness from your neck."

Jacob sent away for protection

<sup>41</sup>Esau was furious at Jacob because his father had blessed him, and Esau said to himself, "When the period of mourning for the death of my father is over, I will kill my brother.

<sup>42</sup>Rebekah was told what her older son Esau was planning, so she summoned her younger son Jacob and said to him, "Esau your brother is planning revenge. He plans to kill you. <sup>43</sup>So now, my son, listen to me: Get up and escape to my brother Laban in Haran. <sup>44</sup>Live with him for a short while until your brother's rage subsides, <sup>45</sup>until your brother's anger at you goes away and he forgets what you did to him. Then I will send for you and bring you back from there. Why should I suffer the loss of both of you on one day?"

<sup>6</sup>Esau understood that Isaac had blessed Jacob and sent him to Paddan-aram to marry a woman from there. He recognized that, when Isaac blessed Jacob, he had ordered him,

As in Jeremiah 9:3 and Hosea 12:4, this verse describes one brother taking the rights of another.

27:39 It's difficult to tell whether Isaac grants Esau any agricultural bounty, as he had Jacob (Gen 27:27-28). The Hebrew behind far away from can also be translated "from" or "out of." These other meanings suggest that Esau would enjoy olive groves and showers. He thus would make a home "from" or "out of" these resources. The Edomites lived in the mountains east of the Jordan Valley, where they farmed but with less rainfall than the Israelites in the mountains west of the Jordan.

27:40 Esau's secondary blessing grants his descendants eventual independence from serving Jacob's descendants. Edom remained under Israelite control from the time of David (2 Sam 8:13-14) until they revolted in the time of Jehoram (2 Kgs 8:16-22; see sidebar "Israel among the Nations" at Gen 9).

27:41-46 Two explanations are given for Jacob's trip back to Abraham's homeland and family in Haran (Gen 12:1; 24:3): (1) In 27:41-45, Rebekah hears that Esau is planning revenge and aims to kill Jacob after Isaac's death. So she works again to benefit her favorite son, Jacob (Gen 25:28), this time to protect him from his brother's anger. (2) In 27:46, Rebekah wants Jacob to marry within the extended family (see notes on Gen 24:3; 26:34-35; 28:1-2).

28:1-2 In Genesis 24:2-4, Isaac needed to marry within his own group of extended family and distant relatives. Now Isaac requires the same thing of his primary heir, Jacob. Marrying within this group was important to maintain social position, legal status, ethnic identity, and family ownership of property.

28:3-4 The blessing Isaac gave Jacob in Genesis 27:27-29 is here supplemented by another blessing that shows the Priest's style and thought. It draws upon themes and language from the blessing of Abraham in Genesis 17. Isaac asks God Almighty (Gen 17:1) to make Jacob fertile and numerous (Gen 1:28; 9:1; 17:2, 6) and to grant him the land where he now lives as an immigrant (Gen 17:8).

28:6-9 In this account, Esau wants to follow his brother's example of marrying someone from his extended family

"Don't marry a Canaanite woman," <sup>7</sup>and that Jacob had listened to his father and mother and gone to Paddan-aram. <sup>8</sup>Esau realized that his father Isaac considered Canaanite women unacceptable. <sup>9</sup>So he went to Ishmael and married Mahalath daughter of Abraham's son Ishmael and sister of Nebaioth, in addition to his other wives.

<sup>16</sup>When Jacob woke from his sleep, he thought to himself, The LORD is definitely in this place, but I didn't know it. <sup>17</sup>He was terrified and thought, This sacred place is awesome. It's none other than God's house and the entrance to heaven. <sup>18</sup>After Jacob got up early in the morning, he took the stone that he had put near his head, set it up as a sacred pillar, and poured oil on the top of it. <sup>19</sup>He named that sacred place Bethel,<sup>b</sup> though Luz was the city's original name. <sup>20</sup>Jacob made a solemn promise: "If God is with me and protects me on this trip I'm taking, and gives me bread to eat and clothes to wear, <sup>21</sup>and I return safely to my father's household, then the LORD will be my God. <sup>22</sup>This stone that I've set up as a sacred pillar will be God's house, and of everything you give me I will give a tenth back to you."

29 <sup>1</sup>Jacob got to his feet and set out for the land of the easterners. <sup>2</sup>He saw a well in the field in front of him, near which three flocks of sheep were lying down. That well was their source for water because the flocks drank from that well. A huge stone covered the well's opening. <sup>3</sup>When all of the flocks were gathered there, the shepherds would roll the stone from the well's opening, water the sheep, and return the stone to its place at the well's opening. <sup>4</sup>Jacob said to them, "Where are you from, my brothers?"

They said, "We're from Haran."

and distant relatives. He does so because he sees that it pleases his father, Isaac. Previously, Esau had made things difficult for Isaac and Rebekah by marrying local Hittite (i.e., Canaanite) women (Gen 26:34-35). See note on Genesis 28:1-2.

28:10-22 Jacob encounters God twice: here at Bethel when he departs from Canaan, and once again at the Jabbok River when he returns (Gen 32:22-32). These two encounters provide the framework for Jacob's trip to Haran. They show that God is present with him on his journey (28:15).

28:11 place: a key word that appears five times in Genesis 28:10-22. It may be translated "place" or "sacred place." As Jacob discovers, he has come to a "sacred place" (see Gen 28:17) where God appears. Jacob will designate it as God's house (Gen 28:17, 22).

28:12 God's communication through dreams is common in the Elohist's stories in Genesis 20:3; 31:10-11, 24; 40:4-41:32. The story points to the importance of Bethel and its temple, which was an important religious site later in the writer's time (e.g., Judg 20:18, 26; Amos 7:12). Jacob's dream likely includes the image of the raised staircase that was part of Bethel's actual temple platform.

28:13-16 The LORD makes Jacob the same promises of land, descendants, and blessing made to Abraham and Isaac (Gen 12:1-3; 13:14-17; 26:3-5).

28:17 God's house refers to the temple at Bethel, which, according to this story, was actually founded by Israel's ancestor Jacob (Gen 28:22).

28:18 Archaeologists have discovered upright stone slabs in the inner rooms of ancient Israelite temples. The sacred pillar in this story likely refers to such a sacred object in the temple at Bethel (Gen 28:22).

28:19 The name Bethel means "house (Beth) of God (el)," or "God's house," as translation note o indicates. Bethel was one of the two worship centers of the northern kingdom of Israel (1 Kgs 12:25-33).

29:1-31:55 These three chapters describe Jacob's living in the household of his uncle Laban for 20 years. Readers learn of Jacob's marriages, his children, his wealth, and his relationship and treaty with Laban. God's promise of descendants and blessing to Jacob (Gen 28:13-15) moves toward fulfillment even while he is away from Canaan.

29:1-14 The Bible contains several other stories where a future wife is found at a well (cf. Gen 24:10-33; Exod 2:11-22).

They said, "We know him."

They said, "He's fine. In fact, this is his daughter Rachel now, coming with the flock."

<sup>7</sup>He said to them, "It's now only the middle of the day. It's not time yet to gather the animals. Water the flock, and then go, put them out to pasture."

Jacob marries Leah and Rachel

After Jacob had stayed with Laban for a month, <sup>15</sup>Laban said to Jacob, "You shouldn't have to work for free just because you are my relative. Tell me what you would like to be paid."

<sup>16</sup>Now Laban had two daughters: the older was named Leah and the younger Rachel. <sup>17</sup>Leah had delicate eyes,<sup>Q</sup> but Rachel had a beautiful figure and was good-looking. <sup>18</sup>Jacob loved Rachel and said, "I will work for you for seven years for Rachel, your younger daughter." <sup>19</sup>Laban said, "I'd rather give her to you than to another man. Stay with me."

<sup>20</sup>Jacob worked for Rachel for seven years, but it seemed like a few days because he loved her. <sup>21</sup>Jacob said to Laban, "The time has come. Give me my wife so that I may sleep with her." <sup>22</sup>So Laban invited all the people of that place and prepared a banquet. <sup>23</sup>However, in the evening, he took his daughter Leah and brought her to Jacob, and he slept with her. <sup>24</sup>Laban had given his servant Zilpah to his daughter Leah as her servant. <sup>25</sup>In the morning, there she was—Leah! Jacob said to Laban, "What have you done to me? Didn't I work for you to have Rachel? Why did you betray me?"

<sup>26</sup>Laban said, "Where we live, we don't give the younger woman before the oldest. <sup>27</sup>Complete the celebratory week with this woman. Then I will give<sup>R</sup> you this other woman too for your work, if you work for me seven more years." <sup>28</sup>So that is what Jacob did. He completed the celebratory week with this woman, and then Laban gave him his daughter Rachel as his wife. <sup>29</sup>Laban had given his servant Bilhah to his daughter Rachel as her servant. <sup>30</sup>Jacob slept with Rachel, and he loved Rachel more than Leah. He worked for Laban seven more years.

Jacob's sons are born

<sup>31</sup>When the LORD saw that Leah was unloved, he opened her womb; but Rachel was unable to have children. <sup>32</sup>Leah became pregnant and gave birth to a son. She named him

29:9 Able-bodied men took primary responsibility for farming the fields, while herding sheep was assigned to older men, children, and sometimes women, such as Rachel in this story.

29:14 The phrase flesh and blood translates the Hebrew phrase for "bone and flesh." It refers to a family relationship (Gen 2:23-24; 37:27).

29:15-30 Because of Laban's deception, Leah becomes Jacob's first, or primary wife. Rachel, whom Jacob loves more, becomes his second wife.

29:17 The term describing Leah's eyes can mean either delicate or "weak" (see translation note), and thus it may be either a compliment or a criticism.

29:18 In place of the customary bride price (see notes on Gen 24:53; 31:15; 34:12), Jacob offers to work for Rachel's father for seven years.

29:23-26 While Leah's identity could have been hidden at first by a veil (Gen 24:65), it's unclear why Jacob didn't realize who she was earlier. Perhaps the narrator means to say that it was only in the morning that Jacob confronted Laban. The words "betray" in 29:25 and "deceitfully" in Genesis 27:35 come from the same Hebrew term. Now, however, Jacob's roles are reversed. Originally the deceiver, he is now the deceived. Whereas previously the younger brother had replaced the older, now the older sister replaces the younger.

29:27 Marriage ceremonies traditionally lasted a week (cf. Judg 14:8-17).

29:31-30:24 Genesis contains two detailed records of the children of Jacob and his wives, Leah, Rachel, Zilpah, and Bilhah. This account describes their births, and Genesis 49 describes their blessings before Jacob's death. In the two generations in Genesis before this, Abraham's family and Isaac's family, one son was the ancestor of the Israelites (Isaac, Jacob) and the other son was the ancestor of one of Israel's neighbors (Ishmael, Esau/Edom). So these stories were about the relationship between Israel and its neighbors. In the family of Jacob, whose name will be changed to Israel (Gen 32:28), each son is the ancestor of one of the Israelite tribes. So these stories are about the relationships among the Israelite tribes themselves.

29:31-35 Jacob's first four sons, Reuben, Simeon, Levi, and Judah, are the sons of his primary wife, Leah. The Lord counteracts Jacob's lack of love for Leah by giving her sons. Bearing children gave women status in biblical society (Gen 16:4-5; 30:1).

30:1-2 Rachel competes with Leah (cf. Gen 30:8) because biblical society attached so much honor to childbearing and so much shame to infertility (cf. Gen 16:4-5; 1 Sam 1). 30:3-13 The custom of acquiring children through one's

Rachel said, "For your son's erotic herbs, Jacob<sup>c</sup> may sleep with you tonight."

<sup>16</sup>When Jacob came back from the field in the evening, Leah went out to meet him and said, "You must sleep with me because I've paid for you with my son's erotic herbs." So he slept with her that night.

<sup>18</sup>Leah said, "God gave me what I paid for, what I deserved for giving my servant to my husband." So she named him Issachar.<sup>d</sup> <sup>19</sup>Leah became pregnant again and gave birth to a sixth son for Jacob,<sup>20</sup> and she said, "God has given me a wonderful gift. Now my husband will honor me since I've borne him six sons." So she named him Zebulun.<sup>e</sup> <sup>21</sup>After this, she gave birth to a daughter and named her Dinah.

<sup>22</sup>Then God remembered Rachel, responded to her, and let her conceive. <sup>23</sup>She became pregnant and gave birth to a son and said, "God has taken away my shame." <sup>24</sup>She named him Joseph,<sup>f</sup> saying to herself, May the LORD give me another son.

God blesses Jacob and Laban

<sup>25</sup>After Rachel gave birth to Joseph, Jacob said to Laban, "Send me off so that I can go to my own place and my own country. <sup>26</sup>Give me my wives and children whom I've worked for, and I will go. You know the work I've done for you."

<sup>27</sup>Laban said to him, "Do me this favor. I've discovered by a divine sign that the LORD has blessed me because of you, <sup>28</sup>so name your price and I will pay it."

<sup>29</sup>Jacob said to him, "You know how I've worked for you, and how well your livestock have done with me. <sup>30</sup>While in my care, what little you had has multiplied a great deal. The LORD blessed you wherever I took your livestock.<sup>g</sup> Now, when will I be able to work for my own household too?"

Jacob said, "Don't pay me anything. If you will do this for me, I will take care of your flock again, and keep a portion.<sup>h</sup> <sup>32</sup>I will go through the entire flock today, taking out all of the speckled and spotted sheep, all of the black male lambs, and all of the spotted and speckled female goats. That will be my price. <sup>33</sup>I will be completely honest with you: when you come to check on our agreement, every female goat with me that isn't speckled or spotted and every male lamb with me that isn't black will be considered stolen."

servant is also reflected in the story of Sarah and Hagar (see note on Gen 16:2). Bilhah is Rachel's servant who becomes Jacob's third wife (30:4). Zilpah is Leah's servant who becomes Jacob's fourth wife (30:9).

30:14 erotic herbs: often translated "mandrakes" (see translation note), which are members of the nightshade family. These herbs were believed to increase fertility, perhaps because of their fragrance, or because their roots often have a torso shape, or because the Hebrew terms for "erotic herb" and "love" sound alike.

30:21 Dinah is the only one of Jacob's daughters mentioned. She is a major figure in Genesis 34.

30:22-24 While Joseph is Jacob's eleventh son, he is the first son of Jacob's favorite wife. Like many younger sons in Genesis, he will play a major role in the family.

30:25-43 After describing the births of Jacob's sons, the narrative turns to his gaining wealth. Throughout the ancestral stories, wealth and well-being are regarded as part of God's blessing (Gen 12:16; 13:2; 26:12-14, 28-29). The Bible understands well-being in terms of having things that provide a healthy and secure life: land, family, food, and respect.

30:27 The activity described with the phrase discovered by a divine sign is sometimes called divination. Through a ritual, the diviner (here, Laban) learns God's will. Here in Genesis, divination seems entirely acceptable (see Gen 44:5, 15). Yet other texts forbid this practice (Deut 18:10). Certain religious practices were regarded differently at different times and places in the biblical period.

30:30 Laban experiences the Lord's promise that the blessings of Israel's ancestors would flow to others (Gen 12:3).

<sup>37</sup>Then Jacob took new branches from poplar, almond, and plane trees; and he peeled white stripes on them, exposing the branches' white color. <sup>38</sup>He set the branches that he had peeled near the watering troughs so that they were in front of the flock when they drank, because they often mated when they came to drink. <sup>39</sup>When the flock mated in front of the branches, they gave birth to striped, speckled, and spotted young. <sup>40</sup>Jacob sorted out the lambs, turning the flock to face the striped and black ones in Laban's flock but keeping his flock separate, setting them apart from Laban's flock. <sup>41</sup>Whenever the strongest of the flock mated, Jacob put the branches in front of them near the watering troughs so that they mated near the branches. <sup>42</sup>But he didn't put branches up for the weakest of the flock. So the weakest became Laban's and the strongest Jacob's. <sup>43</sup>The man Jacob became very, very rich: he owned large flocks, female and male servants, camels, and donkeys.

31 Jacob heard that Laban's sons were saying, "Jacob took everything our father owned and from it he produced all of this wealth." <sup>2</sup>And Jacob saw that Laban no longer liked him as much as he used to.

<sup>3</sup>Then the LORD said to Jacob, "Go back to the land of your ancestors and to your relatives, and I will be with you."

<sup>4</sup>So Jacob sent for Rachel and Leah and summoned them into the field where his flock was. <sup>5</sup>He said to them, "I am aware that your father no longer likes me as much as he used to. But my father's God has been with me. <sup>6</sup>You know that I've worked for your father as hard as I could. <sup>7</sup>But your father cheated me and changed my payment ten times. Yet God didn't let him harm me. <sup>8</sup>If he said, 'The speckled ones will be your payment,' the whole flock gave birth to speckled young. And if he said, 'The striped ones will be your payment,' the whole flock gave birth to striped young. <sup>9</sup>God took away your father's livestock and gave them to me. <sup>10</sup>When the flocks were mating, I looked up and saw in a dream that the male goats that mounted the flock were striped, speckled, and spotted. <sup>11</sup>In the dream, God's messenger said to me, 'Jacob!' and I said, 'I'm here.' <sup>12</sup>He said, 'Look up and watch all the striped, speckled, and spotted male goats mounting the flock. I've seen everything that Laban is doing to you. <sup>13</sup>I am the God of Bethel, where you anointed a sacred pillar and where you made a solemn promise to me. Now, get up and leave this country and go back to the land of your relatives.'"

30:37-42 Jacob's breeding strategy is a combination of ancient and more scientific techniques. On the one hand, it reflects the ancient idea that animals who see the striped images of tree limbs while mating will have striped offspring. On the other hand, Jacob's strategy also aligns with the contemporary idea that breeding stronger animals increases the quality of the herd.

31:1-42 Having been blessed with a large family and great wealth, Jacob makes arrangements to return to Canaan.

31:1-16 Genesis again describes family conflict. Laban's sons feel that Jacob has robbed their father (31:1). Laban likes Jacob less than previously (31:2, 5). Jacob believes Laban has cheated him (31:6-13). Rachel and Leah believe Laban has mistreated them (31:14-16). So Jacob and his wives decide to leave secretly. See sidebar, "Family Conflict in Genesis" at Genesis 4.

31:13 God refers to Jacob's dream at Bethel in Genesis 28:18-22.

31:15 the payment he received for us: refers to the bride price. It's customarily given to the father of the bride. The father may use it to purchase wives for his sons or for other purposes. However, some of the bride price may go back to the bride as an "indirect dowry." Rachel and Leah may be blaming their father for using the part of the bride price that they considered rightfully theirs. See notes on Genesis 24:53; 34:12.

31:19 Neither the nature of the household's divine images nor Rachel's reason for taking them is clear. They appear to represent deities (Gen 31:30); to be associated with religious settings (Judg 17:5); and to be used in divination to determine divine intentions (Ezek 21:26; Zech 10:2; cf. note on Gen 30:27). In these cases they are viewed positively, but some biblical texts condemn them (2 Kgs 23:24). Some evidence from ancient Nuzi associates such images with the family's estate. So Rachel's (Gen 31:33-35) and Laban's (Gen 31:30) interest in deceived Laban the Aramean by not sending word to him that he was leaving. <sup>21</sup>So Jacob and his entire household left. He got up, crossed the river, and set out directly for the mountains of Gilead.

So he left Leah’s tent and went into Rachel’s. <sup>34</sup>Now Rachel had taken the divine images and put them into the camel’s saddlebag and sat on them. Laban felt around in the whole tent but couldn’t find them. <sup>35</sup>Rachel said to her father, “Sir, don’t be angry with me because I can’t get up for you; I’m having my period.” He searched but couldn’t find the divine images.

<sup>36</sup>Jacob was angry and complained to Laban, “What have I done wrong and what’s my crime that you’ve tracked me down like this? <sup>37</sup>You’ve now felt through all of my baggage, and what have you found from your household’s belongings? Put it in front of our relatives, and let them decide between us. <sup>38</sup>For these twenty years I’ve been with you, your female sheep and goats haven’t miscarried, and I haven’t eaten your flock’s rams. <sup>39</sup>When animals were killed, I didn’t bring them to you but took the loss myself. You demanded compensation from me for any animals poached during the day or night. <sup>40</sup>The dry heat consumed me during the day, and the frost at night; I couldn’t sleep. <sup>41</sup>I’ve now spent twenty years in your household. I worked for fourteen years for your two daughters and for six years for your flock, and you changed my pay ten times. <sup>42</sup>If the God of my father—the God of Abraham and the awesome one of Isaac—hadn’t been with me, you’d have no doubt sent me away without anything. God saw my harsh treatment and my hard work and reprimanded you yesterday.”

Jacob and Laban’s treaty

<sup>43</sup>Laban responded and told Jacob, “The daughters are my daughters, the children are my children, and the flocks are my flocks. Everything you see is mine. But what can I do now about my daughters and about their sons? <sup>44</sup>Come, let’s make a treaty, you and me, and let something be our witness.”<sup>1</sup>

them may be related to the property Jacob has taken (Gen 31:9, 16).

31:21 Gilead is the mountainous territory that rises to the east of the Jordan Valley.

31:24 God’s communication through dreams and God’s direction of human affairs (Gen 31:11-13) play important roles in this narrative (Gen 31:29, 42) and elsewhere (Gen 45:5-9; 50:20).

31:43-55 The treaty defines the relationship between Jacob, Laban, and their heirs (see sidebar, “Israel among the Nations” at Gen 9). The story places great value on the reconciliation of differences in peaceful ways (Gen 30:26, 31). The treaty between Laban and Jacob is accompanied by rituals typical of ancient treaty ceremonies, such as making promises (31:53) and sharing a meal (31:46, 54).

31:45-46 The sacred pillar and mound of stones are intended as boundary markers between Jacob’s and Laban’s lands (Gen 31:51-52).

31:47 The stone mound is named both in Hebrew (Galeed)

<sup>48</sup>Laban said, “This mound is our witness today,” and, therefore, he too named it Galeed. <sup>49</sup>He also named it Mizpah,<sup>m</sup> because he said, “The LORD will observe both of us when we are separated from each other. <sup>50</sup>If you treat my daughters badly and if you marry other women, though we aren’t there, know that God observed our witness.”

<sup>51</sup>Laban said to Jacob, “Here is this mound and here is the sacred pillar that I’ve set up for us. <sup>52</sup>This mound and the sacred pillar are witnesses that I won’t travel beyond this mound and that you won’t travel beyond this mound and this pillar to do harm. <sup>53</sup>The God of Abraham and the God of Nahor<sup>a</sup> will keep order between us.” So Jacob gave his word in the name of the awesome one of his father Isaac. <sup>54</sup>Jacob offered a sacrifice on the mountain, and invited his relatives to a meal. They ate together and spent the night on the mountain. <sup>55</sup>Laban got up early in the morning, kissed his sons and daughters, blessed them, and left to go back to his own place.

32 Jacob went on his way, and God’s messengers approached him. <sup>2</sup>When Jacob saw them, he said, “This is God’s camp,” and he named that sacred place Mahanaim.<sup>p</sup> <sup>3</sup>Jacob sent messengers ahead of him to his brother Esau, toward the land of Seir, the open country of Edom. <sup>4</sup>He gave them these orders: “Say this to my master Esau. This is the message of your servant Jacob: ‘I’ve lived as an immigrant with Laban, where I’ve stayed till now. <sup>5</sup>I own cattle, donkeys, flocks, men servants, and women servants. I’m sending this message to my master now to ask that he<sup>q</sup> be kind.’”

<sup>7</sup>Jacob was terrified and felt trapped, so he divided the people with him, and the flocks, cattle, and camels, into two camps. <sup>8</sup>He thought, If Esau meets the first camp and attacks it, at least one camp will be left to escape.

<sup>9</sup>Jacob said, “LORD, God of my father Abraham, God of my father Isaac, who said to me, ‘Go back to your country and your relatives, and I’ll make sure things go well for you,’ <sup>10</sup>I don’t deserve how loyal and truthful you’ve been to your servant. I went away across the Jordan with just my staff, but now I’ve become two camps. <sup>11</sup>Save me from my brother Esau! I’m afraid he will come and kill me, the mothers, and their children. <sup>12</sup>You were the one who told me, ‘I will make sure things go well for you, and I will make your descendants like the sand of the sea, so many you won’t be able to count them.’” and in Aramaic (Jegar-sahadutha; see translation notes). Aramaic is the language of the land where Laban lived, east of biblical Israel (Gen 29:1). Because Gilead (Gen 31:21) sounds like Galeed, this story explained the name of this territory east of the Jordan for early readers. It also explained the boundary marker there and the peace between the Israelites and the Arameans (the people associated with Laban in Gen 31:14, 20). See sidebar, “Israel among the Nations” at Genesis 9. <sup>31:54</sup> Ceremonial meals were a normal part of treaty rituals (Gen 31:46; 26:30). <sup>32:1-21</sup> Jacob returns to Canaan and faces Esau, the brother he robbed and fled from in Genesis 27. Like the story of Joseph and his brothers to follow (Gen 37-50), this account praises reconciliation rather than violence behind us.” Jacob thought, I may be able to pacify Esau with the gift I’m sending ahead. When I meet him, perhaps he will be kind to me. <sup>21</sup>So Jacob sent the gift ahead of him, but he spent that night in the camp.

(cf. Gen 4:1-16; see sidebar, “Family Conflict in Genesis” at Gen 4). It urges readers in later generations to find peace instead of resorting to warfare (see sidebar, “Israel among the Nations” at Gen 9). <sup>32:3-5</sup> Jacob prepares to meet Esau by sending messengers with a peaceful overture. your servant and my master: formal terms of respect (Gen 18:3; 32:18). To be kind means to be gracious beyond what is deserved or required. <sup>32:6-8</sup> Jacob can imagine only a violent end to his conflict with Esau (Gen 32:11). <sup>32:9-12</sup> Jacob has followed the Lord’s instructions (Gen 31:3) and now asks for protection. He admits that his successes in Haran were not his own achievements (but the Lord’s blessings) (cf. Gen 28:15). <sup>32:20</sup> In anticipation of seeing God’s face (Gen 32:30)

Jacob wrestles with God

But Jacob said, “I won’t let you go until you bless me.”

<sup>27</sup>He said to Jacob, “What’s your name?” and he said, “Jacob.” <sup>28</sup>Then he said, “Your name won’t be Jacob any longer, but Israel,” because you struggled with God and with men and won.”

But he said, “Why do you ask for my name?” and he blessed Jacob there. <sup>30</sup>Jacob named the place Peniel, <sup>31</sup>“because I’ve seen God face-to-face, and my life has been saved.” <sup>32</sup>Therefore, Israelites don’t eat the tendon attached to the thigh muscle to this day, because he grabbed Jacob’s thigh muscle at the tendon.

Esau forgives Jacob

33 Jacob looked up and saw Esau approaching with four hundred men. Jacob divided the children among Leah, Rachel, and the two women servants. <sup>2</sup>He put the servants and their children first, Leah and her children after them, and Rachel and Joseph last.

and Esau’s face (Gen 33:10), Jacob uses the word “face” four times in this verse. This is a literal translation: “I may appease his face with the present that goes before my face, and afterwards I shall see his face; perhaps he will lift up my face.” These face-to-face encounters underline the theme of negotiation and reconciliation in this story.

32:22-32 Jacob’s struggle at night with a mysterious attacker is one of the most memorable stories in Genesis. Its mysterious elements have inspired an array of interpretations. Some people read the story as a battle with a river demon. Others think it is a contest with an enemy like Esau or Esau’s guardian angel. It’s also been viewed as a rite of passage, a test of fitness for future responsibilities, and an inner struggle leading to a transformed self. As both Jacob (32:30) and his attacker (32:28) say, it’s about a direct encounter with God. This story is important to the broader movement of Genesis. It occurs as Jacob reenters the land of promise—just as the dream at Bethel occurred when he left that land (Gen 28:10-22). The story also looks forward to Jacob’s encounter with Esau, another feared adversary with whom he has struggled and yet will survive. Additionally, the story introduces something new that will shape biblical history for all time: Jacob’s name is changed to Israel—the name that will be used for his descendants as well.

32:22 The Jabbok River flows into the Jordan River from the highlands to the east. It’s mentioned elsewhere as marking the border of Israelite territory (Num 21:24; Deut 3:16). The Hebrew word for “wrestle” (Gen 32:24-25) sounds like Jabbok, and even a bit like the name Jacob. So a play on words links the river’s name, the event that happened there, and the central character.

32:24 The narrator refers to Jacob’s attacker as a man (also in Gen 32:25), but Jacob later says he has seen God’s face (Gen 32:30). Elsewhere, Genesis sometimes pictures the Lord as a humanlike figure (Gen 18:1-2, 13). See note on Genesis 32:30.

32:25 The winner of the wrestling match is left in some doubt. The attacker couldn’t defeat Jacob and said that Jacob “won” (Gen 32:28). Yet the attacker wounds Jacob and has the power to bless him (Gen 32:29). The attacker tore a muscle in Jacob’s thigh. Such injuries commonly occur while wrestling. It’s unlikely that the text refers to a hip dislocation as often translated (KJV, NRSV), since a hip dislocation is so serious that the injured person doesn’t walk away from it, even with a limp (Gen 32:28).

32:28 The storyteller understands the name Israel to mean “God struggles” or “one who struggles with God” (see translation note). It thus relates to the struggle between God and Jacob that has just occurred. By also mentioning Jacob’s struggles with men, the narrator connects this name with Jacob’s larger story of conflict with his brother, Esau. It also relates to Israel’s struggles with its neighbors, including Edom (see sidebar, “Israel among the Nations” at Gen 9).

32:29 Jacob is blessed again (Gen 27:26; 28:14).

32:30 The story explains the origin of the name Peniel (called “Penuel” in Gen 32:31), meaning “face of God.” This site can no longer be located with certainty. In this verse, Jacob speaks of a direct encounter with God. Yet, as noted in Genesis 32:24-25, the text speaks of Jacob wrestling with a man. Further, in Genesis 33:10, Jacob tells Esau, “Seeing your face is like seeing God’s face.” Here, as in the story of Abraham’s visitors (Gen 18:1-2, 13), the narrator pictures God’s appearance in humanlike form.

32:31 See note on Genesis 32:25.

33:1-17 Like the story of Joseph and his brothers (Gen 37-50), the story of Jacob and Esau comes to its climax with the reconciliation of brothers who have been feuding. As such, the story promotes reconciliation rather

<sup>3</sup>He himself went in front of them and bowed to the ground seven times as he was approaching his brother. <sup>4</sup>But Esau ran to meet him, threw his arms around his neck, kissed him, and they wept. <sup>5</sup>Esau looked up and saw the women and children and said, "Who are these with you?"

Jacob said, "The children that God generously gave your servant." <sup>6</sup>The women servants and their children came forward and bowed down. <sup>7</sup>Then Leah and her servants also came forward and bowed, and afterward Joseph and Rachel came forward and bowed.

Jacob said, "To ask for my master's kindness."

<sup>10</sup>Jacob said, "No, please, do me the kindness of accepting my gift. Seeing your face is like seeing God's face, since you've accepted me so warmly. <sup>11</sup>Take this present that I've brought because God has been generous to me, and I have everything I need." So Jacob persuaded him, and he took it.

<sup>13</sup>But Jacob said to him, "My master knows that the children aren't strong and that I am responsible for the nursing flocks and cattle. If I push them hard for even one day, all of the flocks will die. <sup>14</sup>My master, go on ahead of your servant, but I've got to take it easy, going only as fast as the animals in front of me and the children are able to go, until I meet you in Seir."

But Jacob said, "Why should you do this since my master has already been so kind to me?" <sup>16</sup>That day Esau returned on the road to Seir, <sup>17</sup>but Jacob traveled to Succoth. He built a house for himself but made temporary shelters for his animals; therefore, he named the place Succoth.†

34 Dinah, the daughter whom Leah had borne to Jacob, went out to meet the women of that country. <sup>2</sup>When Shechem the son of the Hivite Hamor and the country's prince than violence when conflicts arise. Because Jacob and Esau represent the Israelites and the Edomites, the text promotes peace between family members and nations (see sidebars, "Family Conflict in Genesis" at Gen 3; "Israel among the Nations" at Gen 9). In both the Jacob and Joseph stories, the injured party (1) has good reasons for revenge; (2) has the power to harm the wrongdoer (Gen 33:1; 32:6-8, 11, 20); and (3) makes sure that peace comes about instead (33:4, 10).

33:2 The arrangement of Jacob's household represents the relative status of his wives, except for his bias toward Rachel and her children (Gen 29:31, 33; 30:15). Leah, the first wife, should hold the position of honor.

33:4 Esau has been wronged and has the power to exact justice (see Gen 32:6). However, he chooses reconciliation rather than revenge (Gen 33:10).

33:8 kindness: translates a Hebrew word that means graciousness beyond what is deserved or required (Gen 32:5).

33:10 The phrase Seeing your face . . . God's face links this episode with the nighttime wrestling match (see Gen 32:30).

33:11 Presenting gifts is a common ritual in biblical society. The Hebrew term behind present can also mean "blessing." The same term was used in Genesis 27:35-36 to refer to the blessing Jacob stole from Esau. Jacob uses the word here to say that he is giving back what he wrongfully took—or at least is making amends.

33:12-17 Jacob and Esau go their own ways. Their separation points to how their descendants were divided and lived in different homelands. Seir is a name for the land of Edom southeast of the Dead Sea (Gen 32:3; Num 24:18). Succoth is probably located at the mouth of the Jabbok River in the Jordan Valley, on the traditional border of Israel (Num 21:24; Deut 3:16).

33:18–34:31 The story of Jacob at Shechem starts peacefully and ends violently (see also Gen 49:5-7). Shechem (modern Nablus) is the largest city in the northern region of biblical Israel and the first capital of the northern kingdom (1 Kgs 12:1, 25).

33:18-20 Jacob's return journey to the promised land parallels the earlier journey of his grandfather Abraham (Gen 12:1-7). Both make their first stop at Shechem and build an altar there to God. Jacob acquires land through purchase, as occurs elsewhere in Genesis 23:1-20. The peace between Jacob and the people of Shechem contrasts sharply with the conflict between them in the story that follows.

34:1-31 Like many narratives in Genesis, the story of Dinah operates at two levels: the family and the tribe. On the one hand, the story describes conflict between the families of Shechem and Dinah (a daughter of Jacob mentioned in Gen 30:21). On the other hand, the story deals with the relationship between the city of Shechem (represented by Hamor's son, Shechem) and the Israelites (represented by saw her, he took her, slept with her, and humiliated her. <sup>3</sup>He was drawn to Dinah, Jacob's daughter. He loved the young woman and tried to win her heart. <sup>4</sup>Shechem said to his father Hamor, "Get this girl for me as my wife." <sup>5</sup>Now Jacob heard that Shechem defiled his daughter Dinah; but his sons were with the animals in the countryside, so he decided to keep quiet until they got back. <sup>6</sup>Meanwhile, Hamor, Shechem's father, went out to Jacob to speak with him. <sup>7</sup>Just then, Jacob's sons got back from the countryside. When they heard what had happened, they were deeply offended and very angry, because Shechem had disgraced Israel by sleeping with Jacob's daughter. Such things are simply not done.

<sup>8</sup>Hamor said to them, "My son Shechem's heart is set on your daughter. Please let him marry her. <sup>9</sup>Arrange marriages with us: give us your daughters and take our daughters for yourselves. <sup>10</sup>Live with us. The land is available to you: settle down, travel through it, and buy property in it."

<sup>11</sup>Shechem said to Dinah's father and brothers, "If you approve of me, tell me what you want, and I will give it to you. <sup>12</sup>Make the bride price and marriage gifts as large as you like, and I will pay whatever you tell me. Then let me marry the young woman."

Jacob's sons). For more, see sidebar, "Israel among the Nations" at Genesis 9. At both levels, the story struggles with the question of how wrongs should be set right.

34:2-3 We can't tell exactly what the storyteller meant to say about how Shechem treated Dinah. The Hebrew word translated humiliated is sometimes used to mean putting a virgin in a difficult social situation by having sex with her before marriage (Deut 22:29). In this case, the man was required to marry the woman and couldn't divorce her. In other texts, this Hebrew word refers to abusive sex, that is, rape (Judg 20:5; 1 Sam 13:12, 14). Because the story stresses Shechem's love for Dinah (cf. Gen 34:11, 19), it may imply the first meaning, that by having sex with Dinah before marriage Shechem damaged Dinah's social standing. As required, he seeks to marry her (Gen 34:4-12). In any event, Dinah's brothers clearly felt Shechem had committed a serious wrong (Gen 34:7).

34:4 Shechem asks his father to arrange his marriage to Dinah, because parents arrange marriages in biblical society (Gen 21:21; 24:1-4).

34:5 defiled: like "humiliated" in Genesis 35:3, has multiple meanings. It can, like "humiliated," mean jeopardizing a woman's position in society by having sex with her outside marriage (cf. Lev 18:20; Num 5:19). In light of Dinah's brothers' complaint later about Shechem being uncircumcised (Gen 34:7, 14), it may also refer to her intimate contact with a non-Israelite.

34:7 Israel here refers to the later audience listening to this story, rather than the name of the individual ancestor, Jacob, from whom it descended.

34:8-10 Hamor proposes an arrangement so that Jacob's family will share citizenship with his family in Shechem and surrounding areas. Jacob's family would be free to intermarry, move about, and own property.

34:12 A bride price is customary for marriage (see notes on Gen 24:53; 31:15). In fact, a man who had sexual relations with an unmarried and unengaged woman was required by Israelite teaching to pay a bride price and marry this woman (Deut 22:28-29).

34:13 Jacob's sons regarded their devious response and the deadly revenge toward which it leads (Gen 34:25) as a legitimate reaction to their sister's treatment (Gen 34:31). Absalom reacted in the same way in response to what happened to his sister Tamar (2 Sam 13).

34:14-17 Circumcision was the mark of membership in the Israelite community (Gen 17:9-14).

34:23 This verse suggests a second, economic motive for Hamor's invitation to Jacob (Gen 34:9-10, 21): gaining at least some of Jacob's wealth.

the city that had defiled their sister. <sup>28</sup>They took their flocks, their cattle, and their donkeys, whether in the city or in the fields nearby. <sup>29</sup>They carried off their property, their children, and their wives. They looted the entire place. <sup>30</sup>Jacob said to Simeon and Levi, "You've put me in danger by making me offensive to those who live here in the land, to the Canaanites and the Perizzites. I have only a few men. They may join forces, attack me, and destroy me, and my household."

35 God said to Jacob, "Get up, go to Bethel, and live there. Build an altar there to the God who appeared to you when you ran away from your brother Esau."

<sup>2</sup>Jacob said to his household and to everyone who was with him, "Get rid of the foreign gods you have with you. Clean yourselves and change your clothes. <sup>3</sup>Then let's rise and go up to Bethel so that I can build an altar there to the God who answered me when I was in trouble and who has been with me wherever I've gone." <sup>4</sup>So they gave Jacob all of the foreign gods they had, as well as the rings in their ears, and Jacob buried them under the terebinth at Shechem. <sup>5</sup>When they set out, God made all of the surrounding cities fearful so that they didn't pursue Jacob's sons. <sup>6</sup>Jacob and all of the people with him arrived in Luz, otherwise known as Bethel, in the land of Canaan. <sup>7</sup>He built an altar there and named the place El-bethel,† because God had revealed himself to him there when he ran away from his brother. <sup>8</sup>Rebekah's nurse Deborah died and was buried at Bethel under the oak, and Jacob named it Allon-bacuth.*

<sup>9</sup>God appeared to Jacob again, while he was on his way back from Paddan-aram, and blessed him. <sup>10</sup>God said to him, "Your name is Jacob, but your name will be Jacob no longer. No, your name will be Israel." And he named him Israel. <sup>11</sup>God said to him, "I am El Shaddai.‡ Be fertile and multiply. A nation, even a large group of nations, will come from you; kings will descend from your own children. <sup>12</sup>The land I gave to Abraham and to Isaac, I give to you; and I will give the land to your descendants after you." <sup>13</sup>Then God ascended, leaving him alone in the place where he spoke to him. <sup>14</sup>So Jacob set up a sacred pillar, a stone pillar, at the place

34:30-31 Jacob disagrees with his sons Simeon and Levi about how to respond to Shechem. Other texts in the Bible support each position. On the one hand, Israelite teaching prescribes the death penalty for those who engage in some kinds of unacceptable sexual activity (Deut 22:22-27). In fact, Absalom ordered the killing of Amnon when Amnon raped his sister Tamar (2 Sam 13). On the other hand, Israelite teaching states that a man having sexual relations with an unwed and unengaged woman like Dinah will pay the bride price and marry her (Deut 22:28-29), much like Shechem's proposal (Gen 34:11-12). This latter approach, favored by Jacob, appears to be affirmed by this story and the book of Genesis as a whole. Jacob here is the head of the household, and his opinion carries the highest authority. Later, on his deathbed, Jacob disinherits both Simeon and Levi because of their excessive violence (Gen 49:5-7). This story, therefore, reaffirms a value, seen elsewhere in Genesis 21:25-34; 33:1-11, that conflict—between families and between tribes and nations—should be resolved peacefully rather than through violence. Of course, neither this analysis nor the narrative itself takes into consideration the viewpoint of Dinah, the woman at the center of the story. We never hear her voice. This illustrates once again the male-centered character of biblical society, where the welfare of daughters, sisters, and wives is determined by their legal guardians, their fathers, brothers, or husbands. While the story describes a struggle between two male responses, it doesn't explore the response of the female, even though

35:1 In the Yahwist's traditions, Abraham builds Bethel's altar (Gen 12:8; 13:4); while in the Elohist's tradition here, Jacob does (cf. Gen 28:17-18, 20-22).

35:2 This is the only mention of foreign gods in Genesis. In the rest of Genesis, Israel's ancestors and their neighbors alike all relate to a single God. Earlier, Jacob's and Rachel's divine images are mentioned without criticism (see the note on Gen 31:19). Clean bodies and clothes are symbolic of religious purification (cf. Exod 19:10, 14).

35:4 A terebinth is a sacred tree. The significance of the earrings is unknown, but in several other instances they are associated with divine images (Exod 32:1-4; Judg 8:24-27).

35:8 Jacob's mother, Rebekah, had taken her nurse Deborah with her from Haran when she was brought to Canaan as Isaac's wife (Gen 24:59). She is now part of Jacob's household.

35:9-12 This is the Priest's account of God changing Jacob's name. God's promise to Jacob shares much of the content and many of the words and phrases of the Priest's accounts of God's covenant with Noah in Genesis 9:1, 7; and with Abraham in Genesis 17:1-8 (cf. Gen 28:3-4). The Yahwist's version of God changing Jacob's name is in the story of Jacob's wrestling with God (Gen 32:22-32).

35:14 The sacred pillar is what Jacob had set up at Bethel after his dream (Gen 28:18, 22).

Benjamin's birth and Rachel's death

Jacob's family

Jacob had twelve sons. <sup>23</sup>The sons of Leah were Reuben, Jacob's oldest son, and Simeon, Levi, Judah, Issachar, and Zebulun. <sup>24</sup>The sons of Rachel were Joseph and Benjamin. <sup>25</sup>The sons of Bilhah, Rachel's servant, were Dan and Naphtali. <sup>26</sup>The sons of Zilpah, Leah's servant, were Gad and Asher. These were Jacob's sons born to him in Paddan-aram.

Isaac's death

Esau's descendants

35:16-21 Benjamin is the only one of Jacob's sons who is born in Canaan in the general area occupied by his descendants, the tribe of Benjamin. The village of Benjamin's birth, Ephrath, is identified with Bethlehem, just south of Jerusalem (Gen 48:7). The pillar Jacob sets up here (35:20) is similar to the "sacred pillar" set up at Bethel (Gen 28:18) and at the site of the treaty between Jacob and Laban (Gen 31:51). Childbirth, without modern technology to deal with its many possible complications, was often a dangerous event in ancient times (cf. Gen 3:16).

35:22-26 In spite of Reuben's status as oldest male son, he is disinherited because he slept with Bilhah his father's secondary wife (Gen 49:3-4). The list of Jacob's sons is arranged according to the status of Jacob's wives, starting with the sons of Jacob's first wife, Leah.

35:27-29 Like Abraham and Sarah, Isaac is buried at Hebron (Gen 23:19; 25:9). Both Esau and Jacob bury him.

36:1-43 The conclusion of the Jacob narratives in Genesis

35 is followed by his brother Esau's family tree. It's divided into sections on Esau's family (36:1-5); Esau's settlement in Edom (36:6-8); and Esau's descendants (36:9-19, 40-43). This text also contains a list of descendants of Seir the Horite (36:20-30) and a list of Edomite kings (36:31-39).

36:1-5 Genesis preserves two different traditions about Esau's family: this record of his three wives as Adah, Oholibamah, and Basemath; and another tradition in the preceding stories of his wives as Judith, Basemath (with different parents), and Mahalath (Gen 26:34; 28:9).

36:6-8 This account of Jacob and Esau's separation has similarities with Genesis 33:15-17. It also echoes the earlier separation of Abraham and Lot (Gen 13:6).

36:9-19 The record of Esau's descendants in Genesis 36:9-14 is paralleled by the record of Esau's clans in 36:15-18. Of these descendants and clans, only Amalek is a significant people in recorded biblical history. In Exodus 17:8-16 and Deuteronomy 25:17-19, Amalek is Israel's enemy.

Anah is the one who found water<sup>e</sup> in the desert while pasturing his father Zibeon's donkeys.

37 Jacob lived in the land of Canaan where his father was an immigrant. <sup>2</sup>This is the account of Jacob's descendants. Joseph was 17 years old and tended the flock with his brothers. While he was helping the sons of Bihah and Zilpah, his father's wives, Joseph told 36:20-30 The Horites are a people who occupy Edomite territory together with Esau's descendants (Gen 14:6; Deut 2:12, 22). Among them is Esau's wife Oholibamah (Gen 36:2, 25).

36:31-39 The tradition that kings reigned in Edom before in Israel (36:31) is related to the memory of Esau being Jacob's (Israel's) older brother (Gen 25:23).

36:40-43 This is a different record of the tribal chiefs descended from Esau than the one in Genesis 36:15-19. Only Kenaz and Teman appear in both lists.

37:1-50:26 The last major section of the book of Genesis recounts the story of Joseph, Jacob's favorite son (Gen 33:2; 37:3-4). Like the story of Jacob and Esau before it, the Joseph narrative begins with a falling-out between brothers and concludes with their reconciliation (see sidebar, "Family Conflict in Genesis" at Gen 4). Also like the story of Jacob and Esau, the main character is forced away from home before reuniting with his family. Unlike the Jacob story, the Joseph story doesn't end in the land of Canaan. It describes how Jacob's family moved to Egypt because of a severe famine in Canaan. It thus provides the transition to the next major events in the stories of Israel's ancestors: slavery and deliverance in the land of Egypt (Exod 1-15). 37:1-36 This story of the split between Joseph and his brothers contains a number of details that contrast or conflict with each other. They can be best explained as coming from two writers, whose different stories have been skillfully combined here. In the Yahwist's story, set in the south (37:14), Joseph's brothers are jealous of Jacob's love for Joseph and his long robe (37:3-4). Judah persuades their father unflattering things about them. <sup>3</sup>Now Israel loved Joseph more than any of his other sons because he was born when Jacob was old. Jacob had made for him a long<sup>g</sup> robe. <sup>4</sup>When his brothers saw that their father loved him more than any of his brothers, they hated him and couldn't even talk nicely to him.

<sup>5</sup>Joseph had a dream and told it to his brothers, which made them hate him even more. <sup>6</sup>He said to them, "Listen to this dream I had. <sup>7</sup>When we were binding stalks of grain in the field, my stalk got up and stood upright, while your stalks gathered around it and bowed down to my stalk."

<sup>8</sup>His brothers said to him, "Will you really be our king and rule over us?" So they hated him even more because of the dreams he told them.

<sup>9</sup>Then Joseph had another dream and described it to his brothers: "I've just dreamed again, and this time the sun and the moon and eleven stars were bowing down to me."

<sup>10</sup>When he described it to his father and brothers, his father scolded him and said to him, "What kind of dreams have you dreamed? Am I and your mother and your brothers supposed to come and bow down to the ground in front of you?" <sup>11</sup>His brothers were jealous of him, but his father took careful note of the matter.

Joseph's brothers take revenge

<sup>12</sup>Joseph's brothers went to tend their father's flocks near Shechem. <sup>13</sup>Israel said to Joseph, "Aren't your brothers tending the sheep near Shechem? Come, I'll send you to them." And he said, "I'm ready."

<sup>14</sup>Jacob said to him, "Go! Find out how your brothers are and how the flock is, and report back to me."

So Jacob sent him from the Hebron Valley. When he approached Shechem, <sup>15a</sup>a man found him wandering in the field and asked him, "What are you looking for?"

<sup>18</sup>They saw Joseph in the distance before he got close to them, and they plotted to kill him. <sup>19</sup>The brothers said to each other, "Here comes the big dreamer. <sup>20</sup>Come on now, let's kill him and throw him into one of the cisterns, and we'll say a wild animal devoured him. Then we will see what becomes of his dreams!"

them not to kill Joseph but to sell him to Ishmaelite traders (37:25-27), who carry Joseph to Egypt and sell him to Potiphar, Pharaoh's chief officer (37:28b; cf. Gen 39:1). In the Elohist's story, set in the north (37:12, 17), Joseph's brothers are jealous of Joseph's dreams (37:5-11). Reuben persuades them not to kill Joseph but to throw him into a dry cistern, hoping to later rescue him (37:19-22, 24). Midianite traders find Joseph, pull him from the cistern (37:28a), carry him to Egypt, and sell him to Potiphar (37:36). Reuben is heartbroken at Joseph's disappearance (37:29-30). 37:1-11 The Joseph story begins with the conflict that drives the brothers apart. For similar conflict and separation between brothers, see Genesis 21:8-14; 27:41-45. 37:1-2 The Joseph story is introduced by the Priest's phrase used elsewhere in Genesis to introduce genealogies: This is the account of Jacob's descendants (Gen 2:4a; 5:1; 6:9; etc.). In his introduction, the Priest gives his own explanation for the conflict between Joseph and his brothers: Joseph said unflattering things about them to their father, Jacob. 37:3-4 These verses point to the Yahwist's version of the conflict: Joseph's brothers were jealous because Jacob/Israel loved Joseph more and gave him a long robe. The rare Hebrew word translated "long" appears to refer to the palms of the hands or soles of the feet. Thus, the garment is probably "a long robe with sleeves" (cf. 2 Sam 13:18, 19) or simply an ankle-length robe. The traditional translation, "a coat of many colors," is based on the old Greek translation (LXX), which took this unusual Hebrew term to mean "multicolored."

37:5-11 Readers here find the Elohist's reason for the conflict between Joseph and his brothers (cf. Gen 37:2, 3-4). Joseph has dreams that predict his superiority in the family. On dreams elsewhere in Genesis, see Genesis 20:3; 28:12.

37:12-39 Initially, the brothers plot to kill Joseph out of jealousy, just as Cain killed his brother, Abel (Gen 4:4-7; cf. Gen 27:41-45). However, Joseph's brothers back away from such a plan.

37:12 Shechem is a major city in the north (cf. Gen 12:5-7). 37:14 Hebron is a major city in the south (cf. Gen 13:18).

37:17 Dothan is located in the north like Shechem (Gen 37:12).

37:19-22 Reuben, the Elohist's hero, is Jacob's oldest son. Here he appealed for Joseph's life with the hope of rescuing him later from the cistern into which they threw him.

<sup>29</sup>When Reuben returned to the cistern and found that Joseph wasn't in it, he tore his clothes. <sup>30</sup>Then he returned to his brothers and said, "The boy's gone! And I—where can I go now?"

<sup>33</sup>He recognized it and said, "It's my son's robe! A wild animal has devoured him. Joseph must have been torn to pieces!" <sup>34</sup>Then Jacob tore his clothes, put a simple mourning cloth around his waist, and mourned for his son for many days. <sup>35</sup>All of his sons and daughters got up to comfort him, but he refused to be comforted, telling them, "I'll go to my grave mourning for my son." And Joseph's father wept for him. <sup>36</sup>Meanwhile the Midianites had sold Joseph to the Egyptians, to Potiphar, Pharaoh's chief officer, commander of the royal guard.

<sup>6</sup>Judah married his oldest son Er to a woman named Tamar. <sup>7</sup>But the LORD considered Judah's oldest son Er immoral, and the LORD put him to death. <sup>8</sup>Judah said to Onan, "Go to your brother's wife, do your duty as her brother-in-law, and provide children for your brother." <sup>9</sup>Onan knew the children wouldn't be his so when he slept with his brother's wife, he wasted his semen on the ground, so he wouldn't give his brother children. <sup>10</sup>The LORD considered what he did as wrong and put him to death too. <sup>11</sup>Judah said to Tamar his daughter-in-law,

37:25-27 Judah, the Yahwist's hero, is Jacob's fourth son and the ancestor of King David. Here he appealed for Joseph's life and convinced his brothers to sell him to Ishmaelite traders. The identity of the traders who carried Joseph to Egypt varies between the Ishmaelites (37:25, 27, 28b) in the Yahwist's story; and the Midianites in the Elohist's story (Gen 37:28a, 36).

37:29, 34 Tearing one's clothes is a sign of grief and dismay in the Bible (Num 14:6; Judg 11:35). Similarly, mourning cloth is a traditional sign of loss and sorrow (1 Kgs 21:27).

38:1-30 The story of Tamar temporarily interrupts the Joseph narratives. It's the story of a woman who, like other important women before her (e.g., Rebekah in Gen 27), works within the male-dominated structures of her society to achieve her goals and change the direction of Israelite history. The sexual relationships in this story can be understood only within the realities of ancient Israelite society, as the notes below illustrate. The story has been preserved in Genesis in part because it relates to the family of Judah, from which King David descended (Ruth 4:18-22; Matt 1:1-6).

28:1-2). As a result, it's interesting that Judah, David's own ancestor, marries Shua's daughter, a Canaanite woman. Since Judah is living away from his brothers among Canaanites, Tamar, the wife he selects for his oldest son Er, may also be Canaanite.

38:7-10 Judah's instructions to Onan are strange to the modern reader. However, they are based on an Israelite custom designed to protect widows and to maintain stable families. In biblical times, married women depended on their husbands and sons for economic support. A woman without a husband or sons, like Tamar, would have difficulty finding a way to survive. To protect the childless widow, an Israelite law required that the deceased husband's brother have sexual relations with his sister-in-law. As a result, she could have children who would in time provide economic support for their mother (Deut 25:5-10). They would also be regarded as the sons of the woman's deceased husband. However, brothers frequently resisted their responsibility, as Onan does in this story (cf. Deut 25:7-10). They did so because they saw their older brother's sons as their rivals to the family's inheritance and estate.

"Stay as a widow in your father's household until my son Shelah grows up." He thought Shelah would die like his brothers had. So Tamar went and lived in her father's household.

<sup>15</sup>Judah saw her and thought she was a prostitute because she had covered her face. <sup>16</sup>He turned to her beside the road and said, "Let me sleep with you," because he didn't know she was his daughter-in-law.

She said, "What will you give me for sleeping with you?"

She said, "Only if you give me some deposit, as security to guarantee that you will send it."

<sup>18</sup>He said, "What kind of deposit should I give you?"

And she said, "Your seal, its cord, and the staff in your hand." He gave these to her, slept with her, and she became pregnant by him.

But they said, "There's no consecrated worker here."

<sup>23</sup>Judah said, "Let her keep everything so we aren't laughed at. I did send this kid goat, but you couldn't find her."

<sup>24</sup>About three months later, Judah was told, "Your daughter-in-law Tamar has become a prostitute and is now pregnant because of it."

And Judah said, "Bring her out so that she may be burned."

<sup>25</sup>When she was brought out, she sent this message to her father-in-law, "I'm pregnant by the man who owns these things. See if you recognize whose seal, cord, and staff these are."

of Judah's household through marriage to his son Er. So when Judah told Tamar to stay in her father's household, he abandoned his legal responsibilities toward her. Though Judah presents his action as a temporary solution, the storyteller suggests that Judah wanted to protect his last son, Shelah, and had no intention of taking her back (Gen 38:14). 38:12-16 Without a husband or children, Tamar has no status or future in her ancient society (cf. Gen 30:1). She has been placed in this position because Judah, the man responsible for her, has failed at his responsibilities. Her only option is to take matters into her own hands. She comes up with a plan to trick Judah into fulfilling his responsibilities required by Israelite law. Her plan is to sleep with Judah.

38:17-18 Tamar tells Judah the deposit is to guarantee future payment. However, her real reason appears to be identifying Judah as the father of her child should she become pregnant (Gen 38:22, 25). The narrator doesn't criticize Judah for going to a prostitute.

38:21-22 Both consecrated worker and holy woman translate the same Hebrew word. Why Judah's friend asks for the holy woman rather than the "prostitute" (a different Hebrew word in Gen 38:15) is unclear. The Hebrew word for holy woman has traditionally been interpreted as a "temple prostitute" (NRSV; see CEB translation note j). Some biblical scholars claim that religious prostitution existed in the ancient Near East (cf. Hos 4:14). The idea is that people engaged in ritual sexual relations at a holy site to promote fertility. However, there is virtually no evidence that such practices existed.

38:24 Texts like Deuteronomy 22:22 prescribe the death penalty for sexual relations outside marriage and outside the special norms for a widow (see note on Gen 38:7-10).

38:26 Judah admits that he hasn't fulfilled his responsibilities to Tamar, who is a member of his family. He even recognizes her actions as just and fair. Modern readers may be troubled by her acting as a prostitute and sleeping with her father-in-law. However, the story itself completely defends Tamar. The story thus praises women who claim their rights when the men responsible for them fail to do what is right.

38:29 Perez is the son of Judah. King David will descend from him (Ruth 4:18-22; Matt 1:1-6).

Joseph's rise and betrayal

39When Joseph had been taken down to Egypt, Potiphar, Pharaoh's chief officer, the commander of the royal guard and an Egyptian, purchased him from the Ishmaelites who had brought him down there. <sup>2</sup>The LORD was with Joseph, and he became a successful man and served in his Egyptian master's household. <sup>3</sup>His master saw that the LORD was with him and that the LORD made everything he did successful. <sup>4</sup>Potiphar thought highly of Joseph, and Joseph became his assistant; he appointed Joseph head of his household and put everything he had under Joseph's supervision. <sup>5</sup>From the time he appointed Joseph head of his household and of everything he had, the LORD blessed the Egyptian's household because of Joseph. The LORD blessed everything he had, both in the household and in the field. <sup>6</sup>So he handed over everything he had to Joseph and didn't pay attention to anything except the food he ate.

Now Joseph was well-built and handsome.

<sup>8</sup>He refused and said to his master's wife, "With me here, my master doesn't pay attention to anything in his household; he's put everything he has under my supervision. <sup>9</sup>No one is greater than I am in this household, and he hasn't denied me anything except you, since you are his wife. How could I do this terrible thing and sin against God?" <sup>10</sup>Every single day she tried to convince him, but he wouldn't agree to sleep with her or even to be with her.

39:1-23 This story focuses on the abuse of power and the importance of integrity. Such themes are common in world literature. In the Egyptian "Story of Two Brothers," the wife of the older brother tries to seduce the younger. She accuses him of rape when he resists her advances. In the Joseph narrative, these same themes appear. The abuse of power is represented by a woman with higher status, and the importance of integrity is represented by a man with lower status. The story emphasizes Joseph's character and God's presence with him. The story also provides a look ahead to Egyptian abuses of power when the Israelites are slaves in the book of Exodus.

 39:5 As in Genesis 12:3; 30:27, God's blessing overflows to people who come into contact with Israel's ancestors.

39:6 Joseph's handsome looks are described in the same Hebrew words as his mother's beauty (Gen 29:17).
 39:14-19 Deuteronomy 22:23-27 instructs women to cry out for help when sexually assaulted. Her cry is accepted as evidence against the man. So to make Joseph appear guilty, Potiphar's wife claims she screamed. Of course, her status as Potiphar's wife and Joseph's status as a slave are the primary reasons her account is accepted.
 39:20-23 in jail: Just as in Potiphar's household, Joseph rises to power because of the Lord's presence with him.
 40:1-41:57 This story describes Joseph's rise to power in Egypt. He ends up in a position of authority second only to the king of Egypt. Joseph reaches such status not through his own political skills but because of his ability to interpret dreams, an ability given to him by God (40:8); steward and the chief baker,<sup>3</sup> and he put them under arrest with the commander of the royal guard in the same jail where Joseph was imprisoned. <sup>4</sup>The commander of the royal guard assigned Joseph to assist them. After they had been under arrest for some time, <sup>5</sup>both of them—the wine steward and the baker for Egypt's king who were imprisoned in the jail—had dreams one night, and each man's dream had its own meaning. <sup>6</sup>When Joseph met them in the morning, he saw that they were upset. <sup>7</sup>He asked the officers of Pharaoh who were under arrest with him in his master's house, "Why do you look so distressed today?"

Joseph said to them, "Don't interpretations belong to God? Describe your dreams to me."

<sup>9</sup>The chief wine steward described his dream to Joseph: "In my dream there was a vine right in front of me, <sup>10</sup>and on the vine were three branches. When it budded, its blossoms appeared, and its clusters ripened into grapes. <sup>11</sup>Pharaoh's cup was in my hand, so I took the grapes, crushed them into Pharaoh's cup, and put the cup in Pharaoh's hand."

<sup>12</sup>Joseph said to him, "This is the dream's interpretation: The three branches are three days. <sup>13</sup>After three days, Pharaoh will give you an audience and return you to your position. You will put Pharaoh's cup in his hand, just the way things were before when you were his wine steward. <sup>14</sup>But please, remember me when you are doing well and be loyal to me. Put in a good word for me to Pharaoh, so he sets me free from this prison. <sup>15</sup>I was stolen from the land of the Hebrews, and here too I've done nothing to be thrown into this dungeon."

<sup>16</sup>When the chief baker saw that the interpretation was favorable, he said to Joseph, "It was the same for me. In my dream, there were three baskets of white bread<sup>m</sup> on my head. <sup>17</sup>In the basket on top there were baked goods for Pharaoh's food, but birds were eating them out of the basket on my head."

<sup>20</sup>The third day was Pharaoh's birthday, and he gave a party for all of his servants. Before all of his servants, he gave an audience to the chief wine steward and the chief baker. <sup>21</sup>He returned the chief wine steward to his position, and he placed the cup in Pharaoh's hand. <sup>22</sup>But the chief baker he hanged, just as Joseph had said would happen when he interpreted their dreams for them. <sup>23</sup>But the chief wine steward didn't remember Joseph; he forgot all about him.

Joseph interprets Pharaoh's dreams

41 Two years later, Pharaoh dreamed that he was standing near the Nile. <sup>2</sup>In front of him, seven healthy-looking, fattened cows climbed up out of the Nile and grazed on the reeds. <sup>3</sup>Just then, seven other cows, terrible-looking and scrawny, climbed up out of the Nile after them and stood beside them on the bank of the Nile. <sup>4</sup>The terrible-looking, scrawny cows devoured the seven healthy-looking, fattened cows. Then Pharaoh woke 41:16, 38-39). Dreams were widely regarded in the ancient Near East as a means by which God communicated with human beings. Through these nighttime messages, God gave instructions or alerted people to coming events. Dreams are a special mark of the Elohist's stories (Gen 20:3, 6; 28:12; 31:10-11, 24; 37:5-11).

40:1-23 Dreams occur in pairs in Genesis, a fact that confirms they are reliable (Gen 41:32). The first two dreams that Joseph interprets are those of Pharaoh's wine steward and his baker. Joseph's relationship to Pharaoh's wine steward becomes the basis for his release at a later time (Gen 41:9-14).

40:1 Pharaoh's wine steward and baker held important roles in the court because they controlled access to the king's food. They had to be trusted completely, since poisoning food was one of the most common ways for rivals and traitors to harm their king. We aren't told why they had offended their master.

40:8 Joseph's own dreams ignited his brothers' anger and got him into this difficulty (Gen 37:5-11). Now he will interpret dreams to get himself out of prison.

40:15 Joseph's reference to being stolen from the land refers back to Midianite traders finding Joseph in a desert cistern, pulling him out, and bringing him to Egypt to sell him as a slave (Gen 37:21-22, 24, 28a, 36; see note on Gen 37:1-36).

40:23 Two years later, when Pharaoh needs dreams interpreted, the wine steward will remember how Joseph interpreted his own dreams. At that time, the steward will recommend him to Pharaoh (Gen 41:9-13).

41:1-32 Having proved himself a reliable interpreter of dreams in jail (Gen 40:1-23), Joseph now interprets the dreams of the king of Egypt. As a result, he gains power second only to that of Pharaoh himself (Gen 41:33-57).

41:1 The Nile River is the site of Pharaoh's dream. Egypt has been described as "the gift of the Nile." From ancient times, nearly all of Egypt's people lived in the Nile Valley and depended on this river to survive. Today, the Nile up. <sup>5</sup>He went back to sleep and had a second dream, in which seven ears of grain, full and healthy, grew on a single stalk. <sup>6</sup>Just then, seven ears of grain, scrawny and scorched by the east wind, sprouted after them, <sup>7</sup>and the scrawny ears swallowed up the full and well-formed ears. Then Pharaoh woke up and realized it was a dream. <sup>8</sup>In the morning, he was disturbed and summoned all of Egypt's religious experts<sup>a</sup> and all of its advisors. Pharaoh described his dreams<sup>b</sup> to them, but they couldn't interpret them for Pharaoh.

<sup>14</sup>So Pharaoh summoned Joseph, and they quickly brought him from the dungeon. He shaved, changed clothes, and appeared before Pharaoh. <sup>15</sup>Pharaoh said to Joseph, "I had a dream, but no one could interpret it. Then I heard that when you hear a dream, you can interpret it."

<sup>17</sup>So Pharaoh said to Joseph, "In my dream I was standing on the bank of the Nile. <sup>18</sup>In front of me, seven fattened, stout cows climbed up out of the Nile and grazed on the reeds. <sup>19</sup>Just then, seven other cows, weak and frail and thin, climbed up after them. I've never seen such awful cows in all the land of Egypt. <sup>20</sup>Then the thin, frail cows devoured the first seven, fattened cows. <sup>21</sup>But after they swallowed them whole, no one would have known it. They looked just as bad as they had before. Then I woke up. <sup>22</sup>I went to sleep again<sup>c</sup> and saw in my dream seven full and healthy ears of grain growing on one stalk. <sup>23</sup>Just then, seven hard and thin ears of grain, scorched by the east wind, sprouted after them, <sup>24</sup>and the thin ears swallowed up the healthy ears. I told the religious experts,<sup>d</sup> but they couldn't explain it to me."

<sup>25</sup>Joseph said to Pharaoh, "Pharaoh has actually had one dream. God has announced to Pharaoh what he is about to do. <sup>26</sup>The seven healthy cows are seven years, and the seven healthy ears of grain are seven years. It's actually one dream. <sup>27</sup>The seven thin and frail cows, climbing up after them, are seven years. The seven thin ears of grain, scorched by the east wind, are seven years of famine. <sup>28</sup>It's just as I told Pharaoh: God has shown Pharaoh what he is about to do. <sup>29</sup>Seven years of great abundance are now coming throughout the entire land of Egypt. <sup>30</sup>After them, seven years of famine will appear, and all of the abundance in the land of Egypt will be forgotten. The famine will devastate the land. <sup>31</sup>No one will remember the abundance in the land because the famine that follows will be so very severe. <sup>32</sup>The dream occurred to Pharaoh twice because God has determined to do it, and God will make it happen soon.

Valley makes up less than 5 percent of Egypt's land area, but it's home to over 95 percent of its population.

41:5 Two dreams with the same theme are considered particularly reliable (Gen 41:32; 37:5-11; see note on Gen 40:1-23).

41:8 The word for religious experts in this story may be borrowed from the Egyptian language. These officers are found only in Pharaoh's court. Later they have the ability to duplicate some (but not all) of Moses' amazing acts (Exod 7:11; 8:7, 18-19).

41:16 Joseph always gives God credit for interpreting dreams (Gen 41:28, 39; 40:8).

41:17-24 Detailed repetition of previous events is a common feature of stories from the biblical world (cf. Gen 24:34-49).

41:27-31 Egypt's agricultural economy has been one of the most stable in the Middle East, due to the regular flow of the Nile, which is fed by rains and rivers across a broad area of northeastern Africa. It was the breadbasket of the Mediterranean world. Famine is therefore a remarkable event, more unusual in Egypt than in Canaan, where rainfall was always variable (Gen 12:10; 26:1).

41:33-57 Because of Joseph's wisdom, he gains power over all Pharaoh's other officials. His position is second only to Pharaoh, a post known as vizier in Egyptian records. It's impossible to place this story in any known historical setting in Egyptian history. Yet the idea of a foreigner achieving high status in the Egyptian administration isn't entirely fanciful. Egyptian records identify some non-Egyptians in high official roles during the 14th and 13th centuries BCE.

41:34-36 Joseph suggests centralized control of Egypt's agricultural economy and a 20 percent tax in order to stockpile reserved food in preparation for the coming famine.

all the produce of the land of Egypt during the seven years of abundance. <sup>35</sup>During the good years that are coming, they should collect all such food and store the grain under Pharaoh's control, protecting the food in the cities. <sup>36</sup>This food will be reserved for the seven years of famine to follow in the land of Egypt so that the land won't be ravaged by the famine."

Then Joseph assumed control of the land of Egypt. <sup>46</sup>Joseph was 30 years old when he began to serve Pharaoh, Egypt's king, when he left Pharaoh's court and traveled through the entire land of Egypt. <sup>47</sup>During the seven years of abundance, the land produced plentifully. <sup>48</sup>He collected all of the food during the seven years of abundance<sup>j</sup> in the land of Egypt, and stored the food in cities. In each city, he stored the food from the fields surrounding it. <sup>49</sup>Joseph amassed grain like the sand of the sea. There was so much that he stopped trying to measure it because it was beyond measuring. <sup>50</sup>Before the years of famine arrived, Asenath the daughter of Potiphara, priest of Heliopolis,<sup>k</sup> gave birth to two sons for Joseph. <sup>51</sup>Joseph named the oldest son Manasseh,<sup>l</sup> "because," he said, "God has helped me forget all of my troubles and everyone in my father's household." <sup>52</sup>He named the second Ephraim,<sup>m</sup> "because," he said, "God has given me children in the land where I've been treated harshly." <sup>53</sup>The seven years of abundance in the land of Egypt came to an end, <sup>54</sup>and the seven years of famine began, just as Joseph had said. The famine struck every country, but the entire land of Egypt had bread. <sup>55</sup>When the famine ravaged the entire land of Egypt and the people pleaded to Pharaoh for bread, Pharaoh said to all of the Egyptians, "Go to Joseph. Do whatever he tells you." <sup>56</sup>The famine covered every part of the land, and Joseph opened all of the granaries<sup>n</sup> and sold grain to the Egyptians. In the land of Egypt, the famine became more and more severe. <sup>57</sup>Every country came to Egypt to buy grain from Joseph, because in every country the famine had also become more severe.

Joseph's brothers arrive in Egypt

41:42 Pharaoh's signet ring bore the king's seal. It gave Joseph the authority to act and to validate documents on the king's behalf. linen clothes: worn by high officials in Egypt and in Israel (Exod 39:27-29). The gold necklace was a symbol of distinction given by the king to those with special favor.

41:45 Joseph's new name symbolizes his new status. Zaphenath-paneah is Egyptian and means either "God speaks, he lives" or "Sustainer of life." Both meanings reflect the activity of Joseph in these narratives. Asenath means "she who belongs to (the goddess) Neith." She is the daughter of a powerful religious figure. Heliopolis is just north of Cairo. Heliopolis is the modern name for ancient On (see translation note). Joseph, now a high official, marries a woman of Egypt's royal house. Earlier generations of Israel's ancestors had married only members of their family from Haran (Gen 24:3; 28:1-2). As a result, it's interesting that Joseph marries outside the family.

41:50-52 Manasseh and Ephraim are Joseph's sons. Their descendants become the two most powerful tribes in the northern region of Israel. As the children of Asenath, they are half Egyptian. Joseph names them to express his (and their) identity. Joseph is now both a successful Egyptian official and a Hebrew (Gen 41:12) in exile from his family in Canaan.

41:53-57 Egypt plays the role of the breadbasket of the Mediterranean world, opening its granaries to every country who came to purchase grain.

42:1-45:15 The conflict between Joseph and his brothers (Gen 37:1-36) slowly reaches resolution. Joseph is now the more powerful party in the conflict. He moves to repair the relationship rather than to exact revenge for past wrongs. Perhaps no other narrative in Genesis describes the emotions of its major characters with such care and power. This story, as many in Genesis, operates there and buy some for us so that we can survive and not starve to death.”<sup>3</sup> So Joseph’s ten brothers went down to buy grain in Egypt. <sup>4</sup> However, Jacob didn’t send Joseph’s brother Benjamin along with his brothers because he thought something bad might happen to him. <sup>5</sup> Israel’s sons came to buy grain with others who also came since the famine had spread to the land of Canaan.

<sup>6</sup> As for Joseph, he was the land’s governor, and he was the one selling grain to all the land’s people. When Joseph’s brothers arrived, they bowed down to him, their faces to the ground. <sup>7</sup> When Joseph saw his brothers, he recognized them, but he acted like he didn’t know them. He spoke to them with a harsh tone and said, “Where have you come from?”

And they said, “From the land of Canaan to buy food.”

<sup>8</sup> Joseph recognized his brothers, but they didn’t recognize him. <sup>9</sup> Joseph remembered the dreams he had dreamed about them, and said to them, “You are spies. You’ve come to look for the country’s weaknesses.”

Joseph’s brothers return to Canaan

<sup>17</sup> He put them all in prison for three days. <sup>18</sup> On the third day, Joseph said to them, “Do this and you will live, for I’m a God-fearing man. <sup>19</sup> If you are honest men, let one of your brothers stay in prison, and the rest of you, go, take grain back to those in your households who are hungry. <sup>20</sup> But bring your youngest brother back to me so that your words will prove true and you won’t die.”

So they prepared to do this. <sup>21</sup> The brothers said to each other, “We are clearly guilty for what we did to our brother when we saw his life in danger and when he begged us for mercy, but we didn’t listen. That’s why we’re in this danger now.”

at two levels. One is the level of the family, where brotherly conflicts are peacefully resolved (see sidebar, “Family Conflict in Genesis” at Gen 4). The other is the level of the nation of Israel, where each brother represents one of the 12 tribes. Their unification results from Judah’s leadership (Gen 44:18-34), which points to King David—a descendant of Judah—bringing together the 12 tribes of Israel at a later time. The story itself describes two trips to Egypt to buy grain, the first made by the brothers without Benjamin (42:1-38); the second made with Benjamin (43:1-44:34). Though they have been artfully woven together, variations in the accounts of these two trips show that the first, in which Reuben is the spokesman, is the Elohist’s; while the second, in which Judah is the spokesman, is the Yahwist’s (see notes on Gen 37:1-36). The story ends with Joseph’s overture to his brothers and their reconciliation (45:1-15).

42:1-16 On their first trip to Egypt to buy grain, Jacob’s oldest son, Reuben, provides leadership. The brothers meet a hostile Joseph, who accuses them of spying and sends them back for Benjamin to prove that they are honest.

42:4 Jacob continues to play favorites among his sons. Having already lost Joseph, Jacob keeps his youngest son, Benjamin, at home. In Jacob’s mind, Benjamin is the only remaining son of his favorite wife, Rachel (Gen 35:16-20).

42:5 Canaan was even more likely to face famine than Egypt, since its farming depended entirely on local rainfall. 42:9 Joseph realizes that his dreams as a young man (Gen 37:5-11) have come true. The Egyptians were always alert about the security of their northeastern border. It was the border between Egypt and its major military rivals in the ancient Near East. Joseph, of course, knows that although the men have just crossed this border, they aren’t spies (Gen 42:7-8). He uses this accusation to get more information from them and to get them to bring his brother Benjamin to Egypt (Gen 42:15).

42:17-38 On their trip back to Canaan to get Benjamin, Reuben takes charge (42:22, 37; cf. notes on Gen 37:19-22; 42:1-45:15).

42:21 The brothers say that Joseph begged us for mercy, which wasn’t mentioned in Genesis 37:18-30.

42:22 Reuben reminds his brothers that he tried to protect Joseph in Genesis 37:19-22, 24, 29-30.

42:24 Joseph wept in private. In doing so, he reflects the tension between his tough, hostile exterior and his inner affections. Joseph likely selected Simeon because he knew

<sup>37</sup>Reuben said to his father, "You may put both of my sons to death if I don't bring him back to you. Make him my responsibility, and I will make sure he returns to you."

<sup>38</sup>But Jacob said to him, "My son won't go down with you because his brother's dead and he's been left all alone. If anything were to happen to him on the trip you are taking, you would send me—old as I am—to my grave in grief."

Joseph's brothers return with Benjamin

43 The famine was severe in the land, <sup>2</sup>and when they had eaten all the grain that they brought from Egypt, their father said to them, "Go back and buy us a little food."

<sup>3</sup>Judah said to him, "The man was absolutely serious when he said, 'You may not see me again without your brother with you.' <sup>4</sup>If you agree to send our brother with us, then we will go down and buy you food. <sup>5</sup>But if you don't agree to send him, then we can't go down because the man said to us, 'You may not see me again without your brother with you.'"

<sup>7</sup>They said, "The man asked us pointedly about our family: 'Is your father still alive? Do you have a brother?' So we told him just what we've said. How were we to know he'd say, 'Bring your brother down here?'"

<sup>8</sup>Judah said to his father Israel, "Send the young man with me. Let's get ready to leave so that we can stay alive and not die—we, you, and our children. <sup>9</sup>I will guarantee his safety; you can hold me responsible. If I don't bring him back to you and place him here in front of you, it will be my fault forever. <sup>10</sup>If we hadn't waited so long, we would've returned twice by now."

<sup>11</sup>Their father Israel said to them, "If it has to be, then do this. Take in your bags some of the land's choice produce, and bring it down to the man as a gift: a little medicinal resin, a little honey, gum, resin, pistachios, and almonds. <sup>12</sup>Take twice as much silver with you, and take back the silver returned in the top of your sacks. It might have been a mistake. <sup>13</sup>And take your brother, get ready, and go back to the man. <sup>14</sup>May God Almighty<sup>b</sup> make the man compassionate toward you so that he may send back our other brother and Benjamin with you. But me, if I'm left childless, then I'm left childless."

he was second in age and rank, just behind Reuben, the oldest brother (Gen 43:33; 44:12).

42:37-38 Reuben tries to convince his father that he will protect Benjamin. He puts the responsibility on his own shoulders. Jacob is unwilling to part with Benjamin, who has become the favorite son.

43:1-34 On their second trip to Egypt to buy grain, Judah—Jacob's fourth son, the ancestor of David—provides leadership (cf. note on Gen 42:1-45:15). In Egypt, the brothers are immediately invited to Joseph's residence for a banquet. Nothing is said about Joseph's earlier accusation that they were spies.

43:8-9 Judah guarantees Benjamin's safety on this trip. On the previous trip in Genesis 42:37, Reuben made a similar promise (cf. note on Gen 42:1-45:15).

43:11 The gift is intended to gain Joseph's favor (Gen

<sup>18</sup>When they were brought to Joseph's house, the men were frightened and said, "We've been brought here because of the silver put back in our sacks on our first trip so he can overpower us, capture us, make slaves of us, and take our donkeys."

<sup>23</sup>He said, "You are fine. Don't be afraid. Your God and your father's God must have hidden a treasure in your sacks. I received your money." Then he brought Simeon out to them.

<sup>29</sup>Joseph looked up and saw his brother Benjamin, his own mother's son, and he said, "Is this your youngest brother whom you told me about? God be gracious to you, my son." <sup>30</sup>Joseph's feelings for his brother were so strong he was about to weep, so he rushed to another room and wept there. <sup>31</sup>He washed his face, came back, pulled himself together, and said, "Set out the dinner." <sup>32</sup>So they set out his food by himself, their food by themselves, and the Egyptians' who ate with him by themselves because Egyptians don't allow themselves to eat with Hebrews; the Egyptians think it beneath their dignity. <sup>33</sup>They were seated in front of him from the oldest to the youngest in their exact birth order, and the men looked at each other with amazement. <sup>34</sup>Portions of food from Joseph's table were brought to them, but Benjamin's portion was five times as large as theirs. So they drank together and were at ease.

44 Joseph gave commands to his household manager: "Fill the men's sacks with as much food as they'll hold, and put each man's silver at the top of his sack. <sup>2</sup>Put my cup, the silver cup, on top of the youngest brother's sack, together with the silver for his grain." So he did just as Joseph told him to do.

43:30 On Joseph's feelings, see note on Genesis 42:24.

43:32 Joseph dines separately because of his high status among the Egyptians. Dietary rules and practices are a common way in which cultures (including ancient Israel) identify themselves, set themselves apart, and preserve their differences from others.

43:33 The brothers' amazement at being seated by birth order increases the suspense developed by Joseph's scheme.

44:1-17 Following the banquet for his brothers, Joseph sets in motion a scheme to separate Benjamin from them and keep him in Egypt. At this point in the story, Joseph wants to be reunited only with Benjamin, his sole full brother. Joseph doesn't seem to want reconciliation with his half brothers, who harmed him in Genesis 37.

44:5 discover God's plans: or "divination" (see translation note e), which involves a ritual procedure, such as watching how liquid appears inside a cup. This type of practice seems entirely acceptable when practiced by Joseph (Gen 44:15) and others in Genesis (Gen 30:27). Yet it is condemned elsewhere in the Bible (Deut 18:10).

<sup>6</sup>When he caught up to them, he repeated these words. <sup>7</sup>They replied, "Why does my master talk to us like this? Your servants would never do such a thing. <sup>8</sup>The silver that we found at the top of our sacks, we've just brought back to you from the land of Canaan. We didn't steal silver or gold from your master's house. <sup>9</sup>Whoever of your servants is found with it will be put to death, and we'll be my master's slaves."

<sup>10</sup>He said, "Fine. We'll do just as you've said. Whoever is found with it will be my slave, and the rest of you will go free." <sup>11</sup>Everyone quickly lowered their sacks down to the ground and each opened his sack. <sup>12</sup>He searched the oldest first and the youngest last, and the cup was found in Benjamin's sack. <sup>13</sup>At this, they tore their clothing. Then everyone loaded their donkeys, and they returned to the city.

<sup>14</sup>When Judah and his brothers arrived at Joseph's house, he was still there, and they fell to the ground in front of him. <sup>15</sup>Joseph said to them, "What's this you've done? Didn't you know someone like me can discover God's plans?"<sup>f</sup>

<sup>16</sup>Judah replied, "What can we say to my master? What words can we use? How can we prove we are innocent? God has found your servants guilty. We are now your slaves, all of us, including the one found with the cup."

<sup>17</sup>Joseph said, "I'd never do such a thing. Only the man found with the cup will be my slave. As for the rest of you, you are free to go back to your father."

His brother is dead and he's his mother's only child. But his father loves him.' <sup>21</sup>You told your servants, 'Bring him down to me so I can see him.' <sup>22</sup>And we said to my master, 'The young man can't leave his father. If he leaves, his father will die.' <sup>23</sup>You said to your servants, 'If your youngest brother doesn't come down with you, you'll never see my face again.'

<sup>24</sup>"When we went back to my father your servant, we told him what you said. <sup>25</sup>Our father told us, 'Go back and buy for us a little food.' <sup>26</sup>But we said, 'We can't go down. We will go down only if our youngest brother is with us. We won't be able to gain an audience with the man without our youngest brother with us.' <sup>27</sup>Your servant my father said to us, 'You know that my wife gave birth to two sons for me. <sup>28</sup>One disappeared and I said, "He must have been torn up by a wild animal," and I haven't seen him since. <sup>29</sup>And if you take this one from me too, something terrible will happen to him, and you will send me—old as I am—to my grave in despair.' <sup>30</sup>When I now go back to your servant my father without the young man—whose life is so bound up with his—<sup>31</sup>and when he sees that the young man isn't with us,<sup>g</sup> he will die, and your servants will have sent our father your servant—old as he is—to his grave in grief. <sup>32</sup>I, your servant, guarantee the young man's safety to my father, telling him, 'If I don't bring him back to you, it will be my fault forever.' <sup>33</sup>Now, please let your servant stay as your slave instead of the young man so that he can go back with his brothers. <sup>34</sup>How can I go back to my father without the young man? I couldn't bear to see how badly my father would be hurt."

44:17 Joseph tells his brothers they are free to go. As a result, the brothers face a situation similar to what they faced in Genesis 37. Will they abandon Benjamin now, just as they had once forsaken Joseph? When they refuse to do so (Gen 44:18-34), they convince Joseph that they now recognize the importance of family and their responsibilities to each other.

44:18-34 Judah delivers a speech that brings about the reconciliation of Joseph and his brothers. At the family level, it models what brothers must do to keep the family together and to reconcile differences without force. At the national level, Judah's work brings brothers together just as King David, Judah's descendant, united the 12 tribes of Israel descended from these brothers into a single kingdom (2 Sam 5:1-5).

44:28 Judah recalls the brothers' earlier lies when they falsely told their father that Joseph had been killed by a wild animal (Gen 37:31-33).

44:32-34 Judah is willing to sacrifice himself for the good of the family in line with what he said in Genesis 43:8-9.

45:1-15 The conflict between Joseph and his brothers comes to a peaceful ending. Joseph has gained the power his brothers. <sup>2</sup>He wept so loudly that the Egyptians and Pharaoh's household heard him. <sup>3</sup>Joseph said to his brothers, "I'm Joseph! Is my father really still alive?" His brothers couldn't respond because they were terrified before him.

<sup>4</sup>Joseph said to his brothers, "Come closer to me," and they moved closer. He said, "I'm your brother Joseph! The one you sold to Egypt. <sup>5</sup>Now, don't be upset and don't be angry with yourselves that you sold me here. Actually, God sent me before you to save lives. <sup>6</sup>We've already had two years of famine in the land, and there are five years left without planting or harvesting. <sup>7</sup>God sent me before you to make sure you'd survive<sup>b</sup> and to rescue your lives in this amazing way. <sup>8</sup>You didn't send me here; it was God who made me a father to Pharaoh, master of his entire household, and ruler of the whole land of Egypt.

<sup>9</sup>"Hurry! Go back to your father. Tell him this is what your son Joseph says: 'God has made me master of all of Egypt. Come down to me. Don't delay. <sup>10</sup>You may live in the land of Goshen, so you will be near me, your children, your grandchildren, your flocks, your herds, and everyone with you. <sup>11</sup>I will support you there, so you, your household, and everyone with you won't starve, since the famine will still last five years.' <sup>12</sup>You and my brother Benjamin have seen with your own eyes that I'm speaking to you. <sup>13</sup>Tell my father about my power in Egypt and about everything you've seen. Hurry and bring my father down here." <sup>14</sup>He threw his arms around his brother Benjamin's neck and wept, and Benjamin wept on his shoulder. <sup>15</sup>He kissed all of his brothers and wept, embracing them. After that, his brothers were finally able to talk to him.

<sup>16</sup>When Pharaoh's household heard the message "Joseph's brothers have arrived," both Pharaoh and his servants were pleased. <sup>17</sup>Pharaoh said to Joseph, "Give your brothers these instructions: Load your pack animals and go back to the land of Canaan. <sup>18</sup>Get your father and your households and come back to me. Let me provide you with good things from the land of Egypt so that you may eat the land's best food. <sup>19</sup>Give them these instructions too: Take wagons from the land of Egypt for your children and wives, and pick up your father and come back. <sup>20</sup>Don't worry about your possessions because you will have good things from the entire land of Egypt."

<sup>21</sup>So Israel's sons did that. Joseph gave them wagons as Pharaoh instructed, and he gave them provisions for the road. <sup>22</sup>To all of them he gave a change of clothing, but to Benjamin he gave three hundred pieces of silver and five changes of clothing. <sup>23</sup>To his father he sent ten male donkeys carrying goods from Egypt, ten female donkeys carrying grain and bread, and rations for his father for the road. <sup>24</sup>He sent his brothers off; and as they were leaving, he told them, "Don't be worried about the trip."<sup>1</sup>

<sup>25</sup>So they left Egypt and returned to their father Jacob in the land of Canaan. <sup>26</sup>They announced to him, "Joseph's still alive! He's actually ruler of all the land of Egypt!" Jacob's heart nearly failed, and he didn't believe them.

<sup>27</sup>When they told him everything Joseph had said to them, and when he saw the wagons Joseph had sent to carry him, Jacob recovered. <sup>28</sup>Then Israel said, "This is too much! My son Joseph is still alive! Let me go and see him before I die."

Jacob's household moves to Egypt

46 Israel packed up everything he owned and traveled to Beer-sheba. There he offered sacrifices to his father Isaac's God. <sup>2</sup>God said to Israel in a vision at night, "Jacob!

to determine the outcome of events. Yet he chooses not to take revenge for past wrongs. Instead, he makes peace with those who have mistreated him. The family is reunited.

45:5-8 Here Joseph suggests that everything that happened previously was in fact part of God's plan. In this plan, even the brothers' criminal acts could be used by God with positive results (cf. Gen 50:19-20). In the stories at the end of Genesis, Egypt is portrayed as a refuge where Israel's ancestors' lives were saved. It isn't the harsh oppressor it becomes in the stories at the beginning of Exodus.

Jacob!" and he said, "I'm here." <sup>3</sup>He said, "I am El,<sup>1</sup> your father's God. Don't be afraid to go down to Egypt because I will make a great nation of you there. <sup>4</sup>I will go down to Egypt with you, and I promise to bring you out again. Joseph will close your eyes when you die." <sup>5</sup>Then Jacob left Beer-sheba. Israel's sons put their father Jacob, their children, and their wives on the wagons Pharaoh had sent to carry him. <sup>6</sup>They took their livestock and their possessions that they had acquired in the land of Canaan, and arrived in Egypt, Jacob and all of his children with him. <sup>7</sup>His sons and grandsons, his daughters and his granddaughters—all of his descendants he brought with him to Egypt.

<sup>28</sup>Israel had sent Judah ahead to Joseph so that Joseph could explain the way to Goshen. Then they arrived in the land of Goshen. <sup>29</sup>Joseph hitched up his chariot and went to meet his father Israel in Goshen. When he arrived, he threw his arms around his neck and wept,

In Genesis 26:23-33, Isaac built an altar there. In this text it is recognized as a sacred site by God's appearance to Jacob.

46:4 God's promise to bring Jacob out again may refer both to his own burial in Canaan (Gen 50:12-14) and to his descendants' leaving Egyptian bondage for the land of promise (Gen 15:13-16; Exod 1-15).

46:7-27 The narrative of Jacob's move to Egypt switches to genealogical information that lists all the members of Jacob's household. As is typical of an Israelite household, it includes three generations: Jacob, the oldest male and head of the household, and his wives; his children; and his grandchildren. The record that follows shares much information with other records of Jacob's household (Gen 35:22-36; Exod 6:14-25; Num 26:4-51; 1 Chron 2-8). As is customary in many biblical genealogies, women are almost entirely omitted. The few that are mentioned aren't counted in the number of offspring provided in Genesis 46:15, 18.

46:8-15 The record of Jacob's household begins with the children of his first, primary wife, Leah (cf. Gen 29:31-35; 30:17-21). Judah's family (46:12) is described in Genesis 38:1-30. Perez's sons, the only great-grandsons of Jacob mentioned, are listed here because one of them, Hezron, was the ancestor of King David (Ruth 4:18-22). In spite of the concluding phrase, his sons and daughters (46:15), Dinah isn't counted. The number 33 includes only male offspring.

46:16-18 Zilpah was Leah's servant (Gen 29:24; 30:9-13). Asher's daughter Serah isn't included in the number 16.

46:19-22 Rachel's sons include Joseph (Gen 30:22-24; 35:16-19). Joseph's two sons were born in Egypt (Gen 41:50-52).

46:23-27 Before a summary of the entire household, the records conclude with the sons of Rachel's servant Bilhah (Gen 29:29; 30:3-7).

46:26 The total number 66 includes all the male offspring listed above, except Er and Onan, who died in Canaan (Gen 46:12); and Manasseh and Ephraim, who were born in Egypt (Gen 46:20).

46:27 There is no obvious way to arrive at the total of 70 people from the list above. Because the number 70 can symbolize completeness, the writer appears to use it as a symbolic way of saying that "all" Israel went to Egypt (Exod 1:5; Deut 10:22). Compare the note on Genesis 10:1-32.

46:28-30 Israel (also called Jacob) is finally reunited with his son Joseph. Here Judah acts on behalf of his brothers (Gen 43:3; 44:18).

embracing him for a long time. <sup>30</sup>Israel said to Joseph, "I can die now after seeing your face. You are really still alive!"

Jacob's household settles in Egypt

<sup>31</sup>Joseph said to his brothers and to his father's household, "Let me go up and inform Pharaoh and tell him, 'My brothers and my father's household who were in the land of Canaan have arrived. <sup>32</sup>The men are shepherds, because they own livestock. They've brought with them their flocks and herds and everything they own.' <sup>33</sup>When Pharaoh summons you and says, 'What do you do?' <sup>34</sup>say, 'Your servants have owned livestock since we were young, both we and our ancestors,' so that you will be able to settle in the land of Goshen, since Egyptians think all shepherds are beneath their dignity."

47 Joseph went to inform Pharaoh and said, "My father and brothers with their flocks, herds, and everything they own have come from the land of Canaan and are now in the land of Goshen." <sup>2</sup>From all of his brothers, he selected five men and presented them before Pharaoh.

They said to Pharaoh, "Your servants are shepherds, both we and our ancestors." <sup>4</sup>They continued, "We've come to the land as immigrants because the famine is so severe in the land of Canaan that there are no more pastures for your servants' flocks. Please allow your servants to settle in the land of Goshen."

<sup>5</sup>Pharaoh said to Joseph, "Since your father and brothers have arrived, <sup>6</sup>the land of Egypt is available to you. Settle your father and brothers in the land's best location. Let them live in the land of Goshen. And if you know capable men among them, put them in charge of my own livestock."

<sup>13</sup>There was no food in the land because the famine was so severe. The land of Egypt and the land of Canaan dried up from the famine. <sup>14</sup>Joseph collected all of the silver to be found in the land of Egypt and in the land of Canaan for the grain, which people came to buy, and he deposited it in Pharaoh's treasury. <sup>15</sup>The silver from the land of Egypt and from the land of Canaan had been spent, and all of the Egyptians came to Joseph and said, "Give us food. Why should we die before your eyes, just because the silver is gone?"

<sup>16</sup>Joseph said, "Give me your livestock, and I will give you food for your livestock if the silver is gone." <sup>17</sup>So they brought their livestock to Joseph, and Joseph gave them food for the horses, flocks, cattle, and donkeys. He got them through that year with food in exchange for all of their livestock.

<sup>18</sup>When that year was over, they came to him the next year and said to him, "We can't hide from my master that the silver is spent and that we've given the livestock to my master.

46:31–47:12 Joseph oversees the settlement of his family in Egypt.

46:31-34 On shepherds, see sidebar, "The Ancestors in Their Environment" at Genesis 13. Joseph gives these instructions because his brothers are actually typical Mediterranean farmers. If they had been shepherds raising livestock, Joseph wouldn't have to instruct them to say so. As immigrants in Egypt (Gen 47:4), his brothers don't have the rights of natives to own land (though Joseph does grant them property in Gen 47:11). Guests who work for Egyptians, shepherding their livestock (Gen 47:6), are less a threat than visitors who seek land.

47:6 Outside their own land, Jacob's sons support themselves by caring for the livestock of their hosts, just as Jacob had cared for the livestock of Laban in Haran (Gen 30:29-30).

47:7 God's blessing of Israel's neighbors through their ancestors is a central theme in Genesis (Gen 47:10; 12:3; 30:27; 39:5).

47:11 The land of Rameses is another name for the land of Goshen, the northeastern Nile Delta. In the 13th century BCE, the pharaoh Rameses II made a city in this area, Tanis, his capital (Exod 1:11; 12:37).

47:13-26 In order to survive the most difficult years of the famine, Joseph centralizes Egypt's economy to secure sufficient production for the entire population. The story

All that's left for my master is our corpses and our farmland. <sup>19</sup>Why should we die before your eyes, we and our farmland too? Buy us and our farms for food, and we and our farms will be under Pharaoh's control. Give us seed so that we can stay alive and not die, and so that our farmland won't become unproductive." <sup>20</sup>So Joseph bought all of Egypt's farmland for Pharaoh because every Egyptian sold his field when the famine worsened. So the land became Pharaoh's. <sup>21</sup>He moved the people to the cities<sup>m</sup> from one end of Egypt to the other. <sup>22</sup>However, he didn't buy the farmland of the priests because Pharaoh allowed the priests a subsidy, and they were able to eat from the subsidy Pharaoh gave them. Therefore, they didn't have to sell their farmland.

<sup>23</sup>Joseph said to the people, "Since I've now purchased you and your farmland for Pharaoh, here's seed for you. Plant the seed on the land. <sup>24</sup>When the crop comes in, you must give one-fifth to Pharaoh. You may keep four-fifths for yourselves, for planting fields, and for feeding yourselves, those in your households, and your children."

<sup>25</sup>The people said, "You've saved our lives. If you wish, we will be Pharaoh's slaves." <sup>26</sup>So Joseph made a law that still exists today: Pharaoh receives one-fifth from Egypt's farmland. Only the priests' farmland didn't become Pharaoh's.

Jacob blesses Ephraim and Manasseh

<sup>27</sup>Israel lived in the land of Egypt, in the land of Goshen. They settled in it, had many children, and became numerous. <sup>28</sup>After Jacob had lived in the land of Egypt for seventeen years, and after he had lived a total of 147 years, <sup>29</sup>Israel's death approached. He summoned his son Joseph and said to him, "If you would be so kind, lay your hand under my thigh, and be loyal and true to me. Don't bury me in Egypt. <sup>30</sup>When I lie down with my fathers, carry me from Egypt and bury me in their grave."

Joseph said, "I will do just as you say."

48After this happened, Joseph was told,<sup>a</sup> "Your father is getting weaker," so he took his two sons Manasseh and Ephraim with him. <sup>2</sup>When Jacob was informed,<sup>b</sup> "Your son Joseph is here now," he<sup>c</sup> pulled himself together and sat up in bed. <sup>3</sup>Jacob said to Joseph, "God Almighty<sup>d</sup> appeared to me in Luz in the land of Canaan. He blessed me <sup>4</sup>and said to me, 'I am about to give you many children, to increase your numbers, and to make you a large group of peoples. I will give this land to your descendants following you as an enduring possession.' <sup>5</sup>Now, your two sons born to you in the land of Egypt before I arrived in Egypt are my own. Ephraim and Manasseh are just like Reuben and Simeon to me. <sup>6</sup>Your family who is born to you after them are yours, but their inheritance will be determined under their emphasizes Joseph's wisdom as a shrewd administrator. It may also contrast Egypt's centralized government with Israel's less centralized tribal society.

47:20-26 Royal grants of land to temples and their priests were common in the ancient Near East. However, existing Egyptian records don't speak of the king owning the entire land (47:20) or a one-fifth tax rate (47:24).

47:27-48:22 Jacob's life story comes to an end with a series of instructions and blessings made just before his death. After providing instructions for his burial (47:29-31; Gen 49:29-33), he blesses Joseph's sons (48:1-22).

47:29-31 The instructions Jacob gives Joseph about his burial are carried out immediately after Jacob's death (Gen 50:4-14).

47:29 The ritual of placing the hand under the thigh is explained in the note on Genesis 24:2.

47:30 Jacob wishes to be buried in his own land in his family's own burial place (Gen 35:27-29), not in the land where he lives as an immigrant (Gen 47:4).

48:1-22 Before his final words to his own sons (Gen 49), Jacob blesses his grandsons, Manasseh and Ephraim. This special attention to Joseph's sons reflects the fact that they became ancestors, in place of their father, of two of the most important tribes of Israel (Num 26; Josh 13-19). In later lists of tribes in Israel (e.g., Num 1:4-16), Manasseh and Ephraim take Joseph's place. Yet the number of tribes in Israel remains at 12 because Levi isn't mentioned either. Levi's descendants (the Levites) played special religious roles different from those of other tribes (e.g., Num 1:48-53).

48:1 The births of Manasseh and Ephraim are recorded in Genesis 41:50-52.

48:3-4 Jacob refers here to God's appearance to him in Genesis 35:9-12.

48:5-6 Jacob claims that Joseph's sons are just like his own sons. This claim gives Manasseh and Ephraim a place among his own sons as ancestors of the tribes of the people of Israel. Jacob compares them to his oldest sons, Reuben and Simeon.

brothers' names. <sup>7</sup>When I came back from Paddan-aram,<sup>7</sup> Rachel died, to my sorrow, on the road in the land of Canaan, with some distance yet to go to Ephrathah, so I buried her there near the road to Ephrathah,<sup>7</sup> which is Bethlehem.<sup>7</sup>

Israel said, "Bring them to me and I will bless them."<sup>10</sup>Because Israel's eyesight had failed from old age and he wasn't able to see, Joseph brought them close to him, and he kissed and embraced them.

"May the God before whom my fathers

Abraham and Isaac walked, may the God who was my shepherd from the beginning until this day,

<sup>16</sup>may the divine messenger who protected me from all harm, bless the young men.

Through them may my name be kept alive and the names of my fathers Abraham and Isaac.

May they grow into a great multitude throughout the land."

<sup>19</sup>But his father refused and said, "I know, my son, I know. He'll become a people too, and he'll also be great. But his younger brother will be greater than he will, and his descendants will become many nations."<sup>20</sup>Israel blessed them that day, saying,

"Through you, Israel will pronounce blessings, saying,

'May God make you like Ephraim and Manasseh.'

So Israel put Ephraim before Manasseh.<sup>21</sup>Then Israel said to Joseph, "I'm about to die. God will be with you and return you to the land of your fathers.<sup>22</sup>I'm giving you one portion more than to your brothers," a portion that I took from the Amorites with my sword and my bow."

Jacob reveals his sons' destinies

49 Jacob summoned his sons and said, "Gather around so that I can tell you what will happen to you in the coming days.

48:7 Jacob mentions Rachel because she is Joseph's mother (Gen 30:22-24). Her death is described in Genesis 35:16-20.

48:13-14 Jacob reverses the status of Manasseh and Ephraim in his blessing by placing his right hand (the symbol of honor) on the head of Ephraim, Joseph's younger son. This event recalls an earlier deathbed blessing in which Jacob received status above his older brother, Esau (Gen 27:1-45). This event also explains for the author and his audience the status and power of the tribe of Ephraim among the northern tribes in their own time (Gen 48:19). By the period of the divided monarchy, the name Ephraim could be used for the entire northern kingdom of Israel (Hos 11:8; Isa 7:9; Jer 31:9).

48:16 Throughout the book of Genesis, divine messengers play roles providing guidance and protection (Gen 16:7-12; 21:17-19; 22:11-12; 24:7).

48:20 Ephraim and Manasseh will be the standards by which blessings are measured.

48:22 The Hebrew of this verse is difficult (see translation note). The Hebrew word translated portion can refer to the city Shechem, which was on the border between Ephraim and Manasseh. But Genesis doesn't tell us of Jacob's taking it from the Amorites. The word can also be translated "shoulder," meaning the "burden" or portion that the shoulder carried (cf. Gen 49:15).

49:1-28 Jacob's final words to his sons are from an ancient poem. Much of the Hebrew text is difficult, and many of the images are obscure. However, several features reflect the later realities of the Israelite tribes. Here as elsewhere in Genesis, Jacob's sons represent the later Israelite tribes that bear their names. Thus the fortunes of the sons described here are in fact the fortunes experienced by their tribal descendants, who make up the audience listening to these stories. A similar list of tribal blessings is found in Deuteronomy 33:1-29.

49:3-4 Reuben's status as oldest male child represents the ancient prominence of this tribe, and his illicit sexual activity, recorded both here and in Genesis 35:22, explains the tribe's early collapse (Deut 33:6; Judg 5:15-16). Reuben, the oldest son, played an important role in Genesis 37:21-22; 42:37.

49:5-7 Like Reuben, Simeon and Levi appear to have once been prominent tribes in Israel, but both appear to have lost landed status (49:7b), explained here by their violent behavior (49:5-7a; Gen 34:25-31). Simeon was incorporated into Judah (Josh 19:1). Levi was a tribe without landholdings, explained here by its excessive violence, but elsewhere in the Bible because of God's selection of them for priestly service (Num 18:20-24; Deut 33:8-11).

49:8-12 Judah finds favored status over his older brothers (Reuben, Simeon, and Levi). This text reflects the period of the monarchy. At that time the tribe of Judah rose to highest importance in Israelite history when David, a Judahite, became king of Israel. In contrast to the criticism of his older brothers, Judah is praised. The scepter (49:10) is a sign of kingship (Ps 45:6). It symbolizes Judah's rule over his brothers (49:8). Fertility, suggested by an abundance of wine (49:11-12), indicates God's favor.

49:13-15 The relative status of Zebulun and Issachar varies. Here, as in Judges 5:14-15, Zebulun appears first. Elsewhere in Genesis, Issachar is listed first as the older brother (Gen 30:17-20; 35:23; 46:13-14). The tribal allotments in Joshua 19:10-16 place Zebulun inland. However, Jacob's and Moses' blessings (Deut 33:18-19) locate the tribe of Zebulun along the Mediterranean seashore in the northeast part of Israel. Issachar's description is brief and obscure. References to a donkey and joining work gangs may indicate that the members of this tribe were laborers for the Canaanites.

49:16-17 The name Dan is a form of a Hebrew word meaning "judge, advocate, fight for." The first line of 49:16 could also be translated "Dan will fight for his people." The text contains military imagery, as the horse and rider are cavalry.

49:18 A short prayer is inserted into the list of tribal descriptions.

49:19-21 The descriptions of Gad, Asher, and Naphtali are too brief to provide full explanations of their intent. Gad, which is a play on the word "attack" (translation note a), appears to be praised for the tribe's military strength (Deut 33:20; 1 Chron 5:18). Asher, located in the fertile land of western Galilee (Josh 19:24-31), is noted for its abundant produce (Deut 33:24). The wild doe, to which Naphtali is compared, suggests many possible meanings. One is quickness and sure-footedness in battle (Ps 18:33; Hab 3:19).

28 These are the twelve tribes of Israel, and this is what their father said to them. He blessed them by giving each man his own particular blessing.

Jacob's death and burial

29 Jacob ordered them, “I am soon to join my people. Bury me with my ancestors in the cave that’s in the field of Ephron the Hittite; 30 in the cave that’s in the field of Machpelah near Mamre in the land of Canaan that Abraham bought from Ephron the Hittite as a burial property. 31 That is where Abraham and his wife Sarah are buried, and where Isaac and his wife Rebekah are buried, and where I buried Leah. 32 It is the field and the cave in it that belonged to the Hittites.” 33 After he finished giving orders to his sons, he put his feet up on the bed, took his last breath, and joined his people.

50 Joseph fell across his father’s body, wept over him, and kissed him. 2 Joseph then ordered the physicians in his service to embalm his father, and the physicians embalmed Israel. 3 They mourned for him forty days because that is the period required for embalming. Then the Egyptians mourned him for seventy days. 4 After the period of mourning had passed, Joseph spoke to Pharaoh’s household: “If you approve my request, give Pharaoh this message: 5 My father made me promise, telling me, ‘I’m about to die. You must bury me in the tomb I dug for myself in the land of Canaan.’ Now, let me leave and let me bury my father, and then I will return.”

7 So Joseph left to bury his father. All of Pharaoh’s servants went with him, together with the elder statesmen in his household and all of the elder statesmen in the land of Egypt, 8 Joseph’s entire household, his brothers, and his father’s household. Only the children, flocks, and cattle remained in the land of Goshen. 9 Even chariots and horsemen went with him; it was a huge collection of people. 10 When they arrived at the threshing floor of Atad on the other side of the Jordan River, they observed a solemn, deeply sorrowful period of mourning. He grieved seven days for his father.

11 When the Canaanites who lived in the land saw the observance of grief on Atad’s threshing floor, they said, “This is a solemn observance of grief by the Egyptians.” Therefore, its name is Abel-mizraim.<sup>1</sup> It is on the other side of the Jordan River. 12 Israel’s sons did for Joseph tribes, Ephraim and Manasseh, were the prominent tribes in northern Israel. Jacob’s blessing focuses on fertility (49:22, 25-26) and military strength (49:23-24). The northern mountains inhabited by these tribes yielded agricultural wealth.

49:27 Comparing Benjamin to a wolf portrays him as a warlike tribe. This portrayal reflects both Benjamin’s role in Israel’s early battles (Judg 5:14) and its native son Saul, who was Israel’s first warrior king (1 Sam 9:1).

49:29-50:14 As he has instructed his sons, Jacob is buried not in Egypt where he is an immigrant (Gen 47:4), but in his own land.

49:29-33 These burial instructions are more detailed than the instructions in Genesis 47:29-31. This text refers to other parts of Genesis, including the purchase of the field of Machpelah near Mamre (Gen 23:1-18) and the burial there of Sarah (Gen 23:19-20); Abraham (Gen 25:9-10); and Isaac (Gen 35:27-29). The deaths and burials of Rebekah and Leah aren’t recorded earlier in Genesis. Rachel isn’t mentioned in this list because she died and was buried while her family was traveling near Ephrath (i.e., Bethlehem; Gen 35:16-21). 50:1-14 Following Jacob’s death, his sons bury him in Canaan as he instructed them (Gen 47:29-31; 49:29-33).

50:2-3 Joseph has come to embody both Israelite and Egyptian cultures. As an Israelite, he respects his father’s wish to be buried with his own ancestors in Canaan. As an Egyptian, he embraces the Egyptian religious ritual of embalming the dead and mourning for seventy days, in which he is joined by the Egyptians themselves.

50:5 Joseph refers to Jacob’s deathbed request described in Genesis 47:31, but Jacob’s reference to digging his own tomb isn’t recorded elsewhere.

50:6-9 Joseph has achieved such high status within Egyptian culture that he gets Pharaoh’s support to make the trip to bury his father. He also receives an Egyptian military escort and is accompanied by an array of Egyptian officials.

50:10-11 Joseph’s twofold identity remains clear. As an Israelite, he and his party observed the seven days of mourning connected with Israelite custom (1 Sam 31:13). Yet Joseph and his fellow travelers had embraced Egyptian culture so fully that the Canaanites called Joseph and his household Egyptians. The location of the threshing floor of Atad or Abel-mizraim can no longer be identified.

50:12-13 These verses make clear that Jacob was in fact buried in the same plot Abraham had purchased (Gen 23:1-20).

him just as he had ordered. <sup>13</sup>His sons carried him to the land of Canaan and buried him in the cave in the field of Machpelah near Mamre, which Abraham had purchased as burial property from Ephron the Hittite. <sup>14</sup>Then<sup>l</sup> Joseph returned to Egypt, he, his brothers, and everyone who left with him to bury his father.

<sup>15</sup>When Joseph's brothers realized that their father was now dead, they said, "What if Joseph bears a grudge against us, and wants to pay us back seriously for all of the terrible things we did to him?" <sup>16</sup>So they approached<sup>k</sup> Joseph and said, "Your father gave orders before he died, telling us, <sup>17</sup>'This is what you should say to Joseph. "Please, forgive your brothers' sins and misdeeds, for they did terrible things to you. Now, please forgive the sins of the servants of your father's God.'"<sup>m</sup> Joseph wept when they spoke to him.

<sup>19</sup>But Joseph said to them, "Don't be afraid. Am I God? <sup>20</sup>You planned something bad for me, but God produced something good from it, in order to save the lives of many people, just as he's doing today. <sup>21</sup>Now, don't be afraid. I will take care of you and your children." So he put them at ease and spoke reassuringly to them.

50:15-26 After Jacob's burial, the focus turns to Joseph, who reassures his brothers of his loyalty, sees his grandchildren born, and gives final instructions about his own burial.

50:15 Jacob, as head of the household, provided authority over his sons and united them. Following his death, each son assumed authority over his own household. The unity among brothers came into question. Jacob's sons felt vulnerable in the face of Joseph's special status in Egypt.

50:16-17 No previous story in Genesis describes Jacob giving these instructions. However, references are occasionally made to earlier events not recorded (Gen 26:15-18; 42:21; 49:31; 50:5). The brothers aren't necessarily inventing Jacob's instructions to protect themselves.

50:20 This verse suggests that God directs all human affairs. Even more, it claims that God directs human affairs to a positive end, even when human beings act wrongfully (cf. Gen 45:5-8). The well-being of the ancestors and their Israelite descendants is therefore viewed as more dependent on divine blessing than on human achievement.

Joseph views Egypt as a place of refuge where the lives of Israel's ancestors were saved.

50:23 Machir is an important clan in the tribe of Manasseh. It's mentioned by itself (perhaps in place of Manasseh) in Judges 5:14.

50:24-25 To his death, Joseph remains both an Israelite and an Egyptian. He anticipates the day when Jacob's entire household will leave Egypt and return to the land of Canaan that God had promised them. He tells his brothers to carry his own bones back with them, as he had done with the remains of his father, Jacob (Exod 13:19). Later tradition placed Joseph's burial in Shechem (Josh 24:32; cf. Gen 33:18-19). At the same time, Joseph remains fully an Egyptian, who dies, is embalmed, and is buried in a coffin in Egypt. While Joseph's death brings the stories of Israel's ancestors to a close, the book of Exodus picks up where Genesis left off. Joseph's death sets the stage for the rise of an Egyptian pharaoh who was no longer familiar with Joseph, his wise governance, or his family (Exod 1:8-14).

EXODUS

The title of the book, Exodus, comes from the name of the ancient Greek translation of the original Hebrew text, Exodus Aigyptou ("Exit out of Egypt"). Exodus is the story of God's rescue of the Israelites from slavery in Egypt (Exod 1–15), Israel's travels in the wilderness (Exod 16–18), and God's making and restoring a covenant relationship with the Israelites at Mount Sinai as they begin their journey toward the land of Canaan (Exod 19–40).

Exodus is part of the larger collection of the first five books of the OT called the Pentateuch or the Torah (Genesis, Exodus, Leviticus, Numbers, Deuteronomy). The traditions of Genesis provide important background leading up to the events of Exodus. For example, Genesis recounts three key promises from God to the people of Israel: many descendants, the land of Canaan, and a special covenant relationship with the Lord (Gen 12:1-9; 13:14-17; 15:1-21; 17:1-22; 22:15-18; 28:10-15). These three promises from Genesis begin a process of fulfillment in Exodus. Israel experiences amazing population growth in Egypt (Exod 1:1-3; 12:37). The Lord rescues the Israelites from slavery in Egypt so they can travel back to the promised land of Canaan (Exod 3:7-10; 12:29-51; 13:3-5; 23:23-33; 33; 34:11). The Lord makes a formal covenant relationship with Israel with instructions and promises (Exod 19–24), including the promise to be close and at home with the Israelites (Exod 25–31; see Exod 29:46).

In addition, two key themes that run throughout Exodus have their roots in Genesis: the Sabbath and God's names. The Sabbath first appears at the end of the creation story in Genesis 2:1-3 and then reappears as an important theme throughout Exodus: the manna story (Exod 16:23-29), the Ten Commandments (Exod 20:8-11), the instructions of the covenant document (Exod 23:12), at the end of the instructions for building the Lord's tent dwelling (Exod 31:14-16), the instructions of the restored covenant (Exod 34:21), and at the beginning of the actual building of the Lord's tent dwelling (Exod 35:2). The Sabbath is built into the fabric of creation from the beginning in Genesis but becomes a special part of Israel's identity as the people of God in Exodus.

A second recurring theme is the unfolding of God's name and character in several stages throughout Exodus. In Genesis, God's name was known as "the LORD" (Gen 15:7; 28:13), the God of Abraham and the God of Isaac (28:13; 31:42, 53), the God of Jacob (Gen 28:20-21) and God Almighty (Gen 17:1; 28:3; 35:11; 43:14; 48:3). In Exodus, God reveals additional divine names that provide a deepening of insight into God's character at key points (Exod 3:13-15; 6:2-8; 15:26; 20:2, 5-6; 23:21; 29:46; 33:19; 34:6-7). In the end, this progressive revealing of God's names and character makes it possible for the Lord's holy presence to live in the middle of Israel's camp, in spite of Israel's sin in worshipping the gold calf (Exod 32; see notes on Exod 33:19; 34:6-7).

Exodus contains many different forms of literature: stories (much of Exod 1-18; 32-34), an ancient poetic song (Exod 15), a ritual ceremony for making a covenant between God and people (Exod 19; 24), commandments (Exod 20:1-14), an ancient instruction containing case laws (Exod 20:19-23:19), detailed plans and instructions for building and furnishing a tent dwelling for God's presence (Exod 25-31), and a detailed account of actually carrying out the plan for the tent dwelling (Exod 35-40).

A number of different traditions have been gathered and gradually woven together over centuries to make up the present form of Exodus. The final version of Exodus probably emerged sometime in the 6th or 5th century BCE, after the exile to Babylon in 587 BCE and the return of many of the exiles to Judah during the Persian period of Israel's history. The Exodus story of Israelites being freed from a foreign land so that they could return to their homeland would have had powerful meaning for exiles returning home to Judah in the 5th century BCE.

Not surprisingly, historical records from ancient Egypt provide little evidence for reconstructing the history of Israelite slavery in Egypt. Although some scholars connect the exodus with the reign of an Egyptian pharaoh or king named Rameses II (1290-1224 BCE; see Exod

1:11), others aren't convinced it can be dated with any certainty. Many scholars thus prefer to speak of the biblical account in Exodus not as a history but as Israel's cultural memory of what happened in Egypt. This recognizes that it is difficult to peg specific events in Exodus to particular times and dates with modern historical certainty. As cultural memory, it is assumed that there were changes and additions to the exodus traditions along the way. The traditions of Exodus, however, carried enormous significance over the centuries for Israel's understanding of its origins, its identity, the nature of its God, and the shape of its covenant and life with God and other peoples.

The book of Exodus continues to inspire and influence people today. Jews celebrate the Festival of Passover every spring as an annual ritual meal of identity ("we were slaves"—Exod 13:14) and faith ("I am the LORD your God who brought you out of Egypt, out of the house of slavery"—Exod 20:2). According to the NT Gospel writers, Christian celebration of the Lord's Supper originated in Jesus' celebration of this Jewish Passover meal (Mark 14:12-25; Matt 26:17-29; Luke 22:7-23). Moreover, Israel's memory of its slavery in Egypt shaped OT instructions protecting the disadvantaged, the vulnerable, and the outsider (e.g., Exod 23:9; Lev 19:33-34). Some OT prophets reinterpreted the ancient story of the exodus for their own time and context (Isa 51:10).

The Ten Commandments in Exodus 20 and other teaching traditions in Exodus have had enormous influence in ethical and legal matters in both religion and politics. The story of the Lord's special revelation of God's name and character to Moses in Exodus 33-34 stands as one of the most important theological summaries of God's core qualities of mercy and compassion in the entire Bible (especially Exod 34:6-7; see Num 14:17-19; Neh 9:16-19; Pss 25:4-11; 86:15; 103:8; Jon 4:2; Joel 2:23; Nah 1:2-3). Liberation movements in many parts of the world have been inspired by the story of God's victory over Egyptian oppressors and Israel's freedom from slavery. Exodus remains a living word that echoes powerfully from generation to generation.

Israel is oppressed

<sup>8</sup>Now a new king came to power in Egypt who didn't know Joseph. <sup>9</sup>He said to his people, "The Israelite people are now larger in number and stronger than we are. <sup>10</sup>Come on, let's be smart and deal with them. Otherwise, they will only grow in number. And if war breaks out, they will join our enemies, fight against us, and then escape from the land." <sup>11</sup>As a result, the Egyptians put foremen of forced work gangs over the Israelites to harass them with hard work. They had to build storage cities named Pithom and Rameses for Pharaoh. <sup>12</sup>But the more they were oppressed, the more they grew and spread, so much so that the Egyptians started to look at the Israelites with disgust and dread. <sup>13</sup>So the Egyptians enslaved the Israelites. <sup>14</sup>They made their lives miserable with hard labor, making mortar and bricks, doing field work, and by forcing them to do all kinds of other cruel work.

<sup>15</sup>The king of Egypt spoke to two Hebrew midwives named Shiphrah and Puah: <sup>16</sup>"When you are helping the Hebrew women give birth and you see the baby being born, if it's a boy, kill him. But if it's a girl, you can let her live." <sup>17</sup>Now the two midwives respected God so they didn't obey the Egyptian king's order. Instead, they let the baby boys live.

<sup>18</sup>So the king of Egypt called the two midwives and said to them, "Why are you doing this? Why are you letting the baby boys live?"

<sup>22</sup>Then Pharaoh gave an order to all his people: "Throw every baby boy born to the Hebrews into the Nile River, but you can let all the girls live."

1:1-5 The book of Exodus begins with a list of names of Jacob's 11 sons. They and their families came from the land of Canaan to Egypt in search of food (Gen 42-47). They discovered that their long-lost brother Joseph rose from being a lowly slave to a powerful leader second only to Egypt's king (Gen 41:37-45). These 12 sons of Jacob (the 11 plus Joseph) are the ancestors of the 12 tribes of Israel. The story in Exodus marks a shift from the family stories of Genesis to the history of Israel as a people and a nation.

1:1 In the Jewish tradition, the book of Exodus is called Shemot, which is the Hebrew word in this verse for names.

1:1-5 seventy: A full list of the names of the 70 family members appears in Genesis 46:8-27.

1:7 multiplied and grew dramatically: The great increase in Israel's population fulfills in part God's promises to Abraham and Sarah and the other ancestors in Genesis. God had often promised that they would have many offspring (Gen 12:1-4; 13:16; 26:4; 32:12). When the Israelites eventually leave Egypt, they will number 600,000 adult men plus women, children, and elderly (Exod 12:37): a total of two and a half million people.

1:9-10 a new king... who didn't know Joseph: A previous king of Egypt had honored Joseph and welcomed his father, his brothers, and their families to live in Egypt (Gen 47:1-12). Now, this new king sees the Israelites not as welcome guests but only as dangerous foreigners.

1:9-10 larger in number and stronger than we are: The king of Egypt exaggerates the threat of the Israelite minority within Egypt. He does so to justify his harsh actions against them.

1:13 Pharaoh: the Egyptian title for their king.

1:15-22 The king of Egypt believes that Hebrew baby boys and not girls are his greatest threat. However, the two midwives, along with Moses' mother, Moses' sister, and Pharaoh's own daughter (Exod 2:1-10), disobey the king's commands. Their actions save the baby named Moses, who will one day join God in leading the downfall of Egypt's king and his army (Exod 14:26-31). As often happens in scripture, God uses those whom others disregard to shame and overthrow the powerful (1 Sam 2:1-10; Jer 9:23; Luke 1:46-55; 1 Cor 1:26-29).

1:15 The midwives tell a lie to the king about the Hebrew mothers giving birth so quickly. They use the lie to disguise their stubborn refusal to obey the king's order to kill the Hebrew babies. This is one of the Bible's first examples of disobeying and defying an unjust and violent ruler. Hebrew: another term for "Israelite" used to describe God's people.

1:22 Nile River: The one major river that provides water and life in Egypt is used by Pharaoh to kill Hebrew boys. The first disaster God will bring upon Egypt will be turning the Nile River into blood. It will be a way to remember the death of Israel's children (Exod 4:9; 7:14-25).

2Now a man from Levi's household married a Levite woman. 2The woman became pregnant and gave birth to a son. She saw that the baby was healthy and beautiful, so she hid him for three months. 3When she couldn't hide him any longer, she took a reed basket and sealed it up with black tar. She put the child in the basket and set the basket among the reeds at the riverbank. 4The baby's older sister stood watch nearby to see what would happen to him.

5Pharaoh's daughter came down to bathe in the river, while her women servants walked along beside the river. She saw the basket among the reeds, and she sent one of her servants to bring it to her. 6When she opened it, she saw the child. The boy was crying, and she felt sorry for him. She said, "This must be one of the Hebrews' children."

7Then the baby's sister said to Pharaoh's daughter, "Would you like me to go and find one of the Hebrew women to nurse the child for you?"

8Pharaoh's daughter agreed, "Yes, do that." So the girl went and called the child's mother. 9Pharaoh's daughter said to her, "Take this child and nurse it for me, and I'll pay you for your work." So the woman took the child and nursed it. 10After the child had grown up, she brought him back to Pharaoh's daughter, who adopted him as her son. She named him Moses, "because," she said, "I pulled him out<sup>a</sup> of the water."

Moses runs away to Midian

11One day after Moses had become an adult, he went out among his people and he saw their forced labor. He saw an Egyptian beating a Hebrew, one of his own people. 12He looked around to make sure no one else was there. Then he killed the Egyptian and hid him in the sand.

13When Moses went out the next day, he saw two Hebrew men fighting with each other. Moses said to the one who had started the fight, "Why are you abusing your fellow Hebrew?"

14He replied, "Who made you a boss or judge over us? Are you planning to kill me like you killed the Egyptian?"

Moses and the Story of Sargon Like the story of Moses, other stories in the ancient world talk about heroes who as a baby were put in a basket floating in a river. One such story is about a king of Akkad in Mesopotamia (modern-day Iraq) called Sargon. The original Sargon I ruled around 2600 BCE. A later king of Assyria (7th century BCE) took on the name Sargon II and applied Sargon's story to himself. The story tells of how a woman priest had a baby in secret. She made "a basket of reeds" and "with bitumen she sealed the lid." She put her baby in the basket and then put the basket in the Euphrates River. She hoped that someone would find the baby and adopt him. Akki was the name of an Assyrian god known as "the drawer of water." Akki found the baby in the basket and adopted him as his son. Eventually this baby grew up and became the great king Sargon. The birth of Moses has some interesting similarities to this story of Sargon. One important difference is that Moses didn't become a king of Egypt but rather a leader of runaway slaves.

2:1-25 The chapter contains three short stories about attempted rescues in the early life of Moses: the birth of Moses (2:1-10), Moses' killing the Egyptian (2:11-15a), and Moses' rescue of the Midianite daughters of Reuel (2:15b-22). Three women work together to save Moses in the first story. Moses saves a Hebrew man but then is rejected by other Hebrews in the second story. Moses saves seven Midianite women in the third story. These stories look forward to God's future rescue of the Israelites from their slavery that will be led by Moses.

2:1 The mother and father of Moses are both from the Israelite tribe of Levi. The Levites were a tribe of priests who led the Israelites in the worship of God (Exod 32:25-29). The names of Moses' parents were Amran and Jochebed (Exod 6:20). Moses had a brother named Aaron who became the high priest of Israel (Exod 6:20). He also had a sister named Miriam who was a prophet in Israel (Exod 15:20; Num 12:1; 26:59; Mic 6:4).

2:3 basket: a rare word in Hebrew used only in this story and Genesis 6:14-9:18. There it refers to Noah's "ark," a large ship that enabled Noah's family and pairs of all other creatures to survive the great flood.

2:4 The baby's older sister: This is likely Miriam, the only named sister of Moses (Num 26:59).

2:9 Pharaoh's daughter pays Moses' mother for nursing her own baby, in contrast to the other Israelite slaves who work for Pharaoh and receive nothing. The kindness of Pharaoh's daughter shows that other Egyptians aren't necessarily as evil as Pharaoh himself.

2:10 Moses: The name Moses (Heb. Moshe) is presented here as a wordplay on the Hebrew verb mashah, "to draw (out of the water)." Moses also often appears in

Then Moses was afraid when he realized: They obviously know what I did. <sup>15</sup>When Pharaoh heard about it, he tried to kill Moses.

But Moses ran away from Pharaoh and settled down in the land of Midian. One day Moses was sitting by a well. <sup>16</sup>Now there was a Midianite priest who had seven daughters. The daughters came to draw water and fill the troughs so that their father's flock could drink. <sup>17</sup>But some shepherds came along and rudely chased them away. Moses got up, rescued the women, and gave their flock water to drink.

<sup>21</sup>Moses agreed to come and live with the man, who gave his daughter Zipporah to Moses as his wife. <sup>22</sup>She gave birth to a son, and Moses named him Gershom, "because," he said, "I've been an immigrant<sup>c</sup> living in a foreign land."

<sup>23</sup>A long time passed, and the Egyptian king died. The Israelites were still groaning because of their hard work. They cried out, and their cry to be rescued from the hard work rose up to God. <sup>24</sup>God heard their cry of grief, and God remembered his covenant with Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob. <sup>25</sup>God looked at the Israelites, and God understood.

Moses at the burning bush

3Moses was taking care of the flock for his father-in-law Jethro,<sup>d</sup> Midian's priest. He led his flock out to the edge of the desert, and he came to God's mountain called Horeb. <sup>2</sup>The LORD's messenger appeared to him in a flame of fire in the middle of a bush. Moses saw that the bush was in flames, but it didn't burn up. <sup>3</sup>Then Moses said to himself, Let me check out this amazing sight and find out why the bush isn't burning up.

Moses said, "I'm here."

<sup>5</sup>Then the LORD said, "Don't come any closer! Take off your sandals, because you are standing on holy ground." <sup>6</sup>He continued, "I am the God of your father, Abraham's God, Isaac's God, and Jacob's God." Moses hid his face because he was afraid to look at God.

<sup>7</sup>Then the LORD said, "I've clearly seen my people oppressed in Egypt. I've heard their ancient Egyptian names with the meaning "son" or "son of."

2:15 Midian: The Midianites were also known as Kenites (Judg 1:16). They were distant relatives of Israelites who lived in the wilderness or desert regions east of Egypt and east of Canaan (Gen 25:2; 36:35; 37:28).

2:18 Reuel: The "Midianite priest" (Exod 2:16) who becomes Moses' father-in-law (Exod 2:21) is named Reuel here. Other texts refer to this same Reuel as either "Jethro" (Exod 3:1; 4:18; 18:1) or "Hobab" (Num 10:29; Judg 4:11). These are alternate traditions about the same person.

2:22 Gershom: Moses identifies himself as an immigrant as he names his son. Moses is considered a foreigner and not fully at home among all three groups of people that he has encountered: Egyptians (Exod 2:6, 15), Israelites (Exod 2:13-14), and Midianites (Exod 2:19).

3:1 Jethro: Another name for Moses' father-in-law, who earlier was called "Reuel" (Exod 2:18). God's mountain... Horeb: The mountain named Horeb is elsewhere called "Mount Sinai" (Exod 19:11) or simply "God's mountain" (Exod 4:27; 24:13). Mountaintops in the ancient world were considered places where divine beings would live.

3:2 The LORD's messenger: For the most part, there is little difference between the direct appearance of the LORD and the appearance of the LORD's messenger (Heb. ml'k). They are virtually one and the same (see Exod 3:2, 4-5; 14:19, 24, 25). In a few instances, the LORD and the messenger seem to be related but remain separate entities (Exod 23:20-22; 32:34; 33:2-3). bush: The Hebrew word for "bush," sineh, is closely related to "Sinai" (Exod 19:11), the other name for Mount Horeb. God's presence in the fire of the burning bush is a foretaste of the dramatic fire associated with God's presence on Mount Sinai later in Exodus 19:18. Fire is a frequent image of God's presence in the Bible (Gen 15:17; Exod 40:38; Isa 29:6; Acts 2:3). didn't burn up: a sign of God's never-ending power that will enable Moses to lead the Israelites out of Egypt.

3:5 Take off your sandals: Taking off shoes is a custom that honors a sacred place ("God's mountain") in the ancient world. It's also a custom when coming into a home. Moses felt like an "immigrant" or stranger in many places (Exod 2:22), but he finds a home here in God's presence.

3:6 God of your father: The God whom Moses encounters at Horeb is the same God whom Moses' ancestors (Abraham, Isaac, Jacob) worshipped in past generations (Gen 28:13; 48:15). Moses hid his face: A human who looked directly at God could die instantly (Exod 33:20; Isa 6:5).

3:7 seen... heard... know: God became fully aware of cry of injustice because of their slave masters. I know about their pain. <sup>8</sup>I've come down to rescue them from the Egyptians in order to take them out of that land and bring them to a good and broad land, a land that's full of milk and honey, a place where the Canaanites, the Hittites, the Amorites, the Perizzites, the Hivites, and the Jebusites all live. <sup>9</sup>Now the Israelites' cries of injustice have reached me. I've seen just how much the Egyptians have oppressed them. <sup>10</sup>So get going. I'm sending you to Pharaoh to bring my people, the Israelites, out of Egypt."

<sup>11</sup>But Moses said to God, "Who am I to go to Pharaoh and to bring the Israelites out of Egypt?"

<sup>12</sup>God said, "I'll be with you. And this will show you that I'm the one who sent you. After you bring the people out of Egypt, you will come back here and worship God on this mountain."

God's special name

<sup>13</sup>But Moses said to God, "If I now come to the Israelites and say to them, 'The God of your ancestors has sent me to you,' they are going to ask me, 'What's this God's name?' What am I supposed to say to them?"

<sup>14</sup>God said to Moses, "I Am Who I Am. * So say to the Israelites, 'I Am has sent me to you.'"

<sup>15</sup>God continued, "Say to the Israelites, 'The LORD, the God of your ancestors, Abraham's God, Isaac's God, and Jacob's God, has sent me to you.' This is my name forever; this is how all generations will remember me.

<sup>16</sup>Go and get Israel's elders together and say to them, 'The LORD, the God of your ancestors, the God of Abraham, of Isaac, and of Jacob, has appeared to me. The LORD said, "I've been paying close attention to you and to what has been done to you in Egypt. <sup>17</sup>I've decided to take you away from the harassment in Egypt to the land of the Canaanites, the Hittites, the Amorites, the Perizzites, the Hivites, and the Jebusites, a land full of milk and honey.' <sup>18</sup>They will accept what you say to them. Then you and Israel's elders will go to Egypt's king

The Divine Name "the LORD" One of the most frequent names of God in the OT is "the LORD" (Heb. YHWH). This divine name appears related to the Hebrew verb "to be" (Heb. hwh; although see note on Exod 34:14). It may originally have been pronounced as Yahweh with the meaning of "he causes to be" or "he creates." We can't be sure of this pronunciation because the Hebrew language was originally written without vowels. Later scribes inserted vowels above or below the written consonants. However, they didn't add the normal vowels for pronunciation with YHWH. This name was considered so holy that it wasn't pronounced out loud (Exod 20:7). So Hebrew scribes substituted alternate vowels from the Hebrew word for "my Lord" (Heb. Adonai). These vowels told readers to read out loud the Hebrew for "my Lord" or simply "the Lord" whenever they encountered the divine name Yahweh in the biblical text. In English translations, this divine name is marked in capital letters as "the LORD." The ever-deeper meanings of this name will progressively reveal the character of God at several key points throughout Exodus (Exod 3:14; 15:26; 20:2, 5-6; 29:45-46; 33:19; 34:6-7).

*Or I Will Be Who I will Be.

Israel's suffering under Egyptian slavery in every sense: seeing the oppression, hearing the cry, and knowing intimately Israel's pain.

3:8 a land that's full of milk and honey: This phrase describes the fertile abundance of the promised land of Canaan. The phrase occurs here for the first time but will be repeated often to describe Canaan (Exod 13:5; Lev 20:24; Num 13:27; Deut 6:3; Josh 5:6; Ezek 20:6). Canaanites ... Jebusites: a traditional listing of all the native peoples living within the borders of Canaan (Gen 15:19-21; Deut 7:1; Josh 3:10).

3:11-12 Moses gives five reasons why God shouldn't use Moses to lead the Israelites out of Egypt (3:11-4:17). Leaders in the Bible often object when God calls them (Judg 6:14-15; Isa 6:1-13; Jer 1:4-10; 1 Cor 15:3-11). The first reason is that Moses doesn't feel adequate for the job: "Who am I?" God assures Moses that he won't be alone: "I'll be with you" (3:12). God also promises to bring Moses back to this same mountain (Horeb/Sinai) after he has led the Israelites out of Egypt (Exod 19:11).

3:13-15 Moses' second objection to God's call is his fear that the people will ask Moses for the specific name of this God, and Moses will have no answer for them. In response, God reveals to Moses the name, "I Am Who I Am." The name plays on the Hebrew verb for "to be." This name may also be translated as "I Will Be Who I Will Be." The name invites God's people to trust God into the future. God will continue to reveal who God is by actions and words at key moments in the story of Exodus (see notes on Exod 20:2, 5-6; 23:21; 29:46; 33:19; 34:6-7). This same Hebrew verb for "to be" is also the root for the frequent Hebrew name for God, Yahweh, translated as "the LORD."

3:18 offer sacrifices: God commands Moses to tell a lie to and say to him, "The LORD, the Hebrews' God, has met with us. So now let us go on a three-day journey into the desert so that we can offer sacrifices to the LORD our God."<sup>19</sup> However, I know that Egypt's king won't let you go unless he's forced to do it.<sup>20</sup> So I'll use my strength and hit Egypt with dramatic displays of my power. After that, he'll let you go.

<sup>21</sup>"I'll make it so that when you leave Egypt, the Egyptians will be kind to you and you won't go away empty-handed. <sup>22</sup>Every woman will ask her neighbor along with the immigrant in her household for their silver and their gold jewelry as well as their clothing. Then you will put it on your sons and daughters, and you will rob the Egyptians."

Signs of power

4 Then Moses replied, "But what if they don't believe me or pay attention to me? They might say to me, 'The LORD didn't appear to you!'"

Moses replied, "A shepherd's rod."

<sup>3</sup>The LORD said, "Throw it down on the ground." So Moses threw it on the ground, and it turned into a snake. Moses jumped back from it. <sup>4</sup>Then the LORD said to Moses, "Reach out and grab the snake by the tail." So Moses reached out and grabbed it, and it turned back into a rod in his hand. <sup>5</sup>"Do this so that they will believe that the LORD, the God of their ancestors, Abraham's God, Isaac's God, and Jacob's God has in fact appeared to you."

<sup>10</sup>But Moses said to the LORD, "My Lord, I've never been able to speak well, not yesterday, not the day before, and certainly not now since you've been talking to your servant. I have a slow mouth and a thick tongue."

<sup>11</sup>Then the LORD said to him, "Who gives people the ability to speak? Who's responsible for making them unable to speak or hard of hearing, sighted or blind? Isn't it I, the LORD?"

<sup>14</sup>Then the LORD got angry at Moses and said, "What about your brother Aaron the Levite? I know he can speak very well. He's on his way out to meet you now, and he's looking forward to seeing you. <sup>15</sup>Speak to him and tell him what he's supposed to say. I'll help both of you speak, and I'll teach both of you what to do. <sup>16</sup>Aaron will speak for you to the people. He'll be a spokesperson for you, and you will be like God for him. <sup>17</sup>Take this shepherd's rod with you too so that you can do the signs."

Egypt's king. Moses is to tell Pharaoh that the Israelites would like to go on a three-day journey into the desert. There they will offer animal and grain sacrifices to their God as an act of worship and devotion. The implication seems to be that the Israelites would return to Egypt after offering their sacrifices. God's real plan, however, is to take the Israelites away from Egypt and bring them to settle in Canaan (Exod 3:17).

3:22 rob the Egyptians: In the end, God will make it so hard on the Egyptians that they will be desperate to set the Israelites free. They will even give the Israelites their gold, silver, and clothing as encouragement to leave Egypt for good. This prediction comes true in Exodus 12:33-36.

4:1-9 Moses' third objection to God's call. Moses is afraid that the Israelites won't believe that God really appeared to him. God gives Moses two small but amazing tricks as demonstrations of power: turning a rod into a snake and healing his hand from skin disease. Such magic or "secret knowledge" was a part of ancient Egypt's culture.

God will give Moses the power to do what the Egyptian wizards can do and much more (Exod 4:30; 7:11; 8:18-19; 9:11).

4:9 Nile River: the one major river that supplies water to the otherwise dry desert nation of Egypt. water... into blood: God provides a third amazing sign to Moses in case the Israelites need more convincing. Turning the Nile River into blood will become the first of 10 great disasters that God will bring upon Egypt (Exod 7:14-25).

4:10-12 Moses' fourth reason to say no to God's call is that he isn't able to speak well in public. God already knows the needs Moses has and will teach Moses what to say.

4:13-16 Moses has a fifth and final objection to God's call. This time, however, Moses has no real reason. He tells God to just send someone else instead of Moses. God gets angry and won't take no for an answer. But God also agrees to send someone else alongside Moses. His brother Aaron will be a spokesperson for Moses, as Moses is a spokesperson for God.

Moses goes back to Egypt

<sup>18</sup>Moses went back to his father-in-law Jethro and said to him, "Please let me go back to my family in Egypt and see whether or not they are still living."

Jethro said to Moses, "Go in peace."

<sup>19</sup>The LORD said to Moses in Midian, "Go back to Egypt because everyone there who wanted to kill you has died." <sup>20</sup>So Moses took his wife and his children, put them on a donkey, and went back to the land of Egypt. Moses also carried the shepherd's rod from God in his hand.

<sup>21</sup>The LORD said to Moses, "When you go back to Egypt, make sure that you appear before Pharaoh and do all the amazing acts that I've given you the power to do. But I'll make him stubborn so that he won't let the people go. <sup>22</sup>Then say to Pharaoh, 'This is what the LORD says: Israel is my oldest son. <sup>23</sup>I said to you, "Let my son go so he could worship me." But you refused to let him go. As a result, now I'm going to kill your oldest son.'"

<sup>27</sup>The LORD said to Aaron, "Go into the desert to meet Moses." So he went, and Aaron met him at God's mountain and greeted him with a kiss. <sup>28</sup>Moses told Aaron what the LORD had said about his mission and all the signs that the LORD had told him to do. <sup>29</sup>Then Moses and Aaron called together all the Israelite elders. <sup>30</sup>Aaron told them everything that the LORD

God Tries to Kill Moses Why does God try to kill Moses? And how does the circumcision performed by Moses' wife Zipporah help to rescue Moses' life? Many explanations have been offered for this strange story.

First, this story may be a sign about the importance of the ritual of circumcision (cf. Gen 17).

Second, this story may be related to the Passover. In the previous verse, God predicts that Pharaoh's son will eventually be killed (Exod 4:23). In Exodus 12, God's destroyer kills the oldest male offspring of every house except those whose doorposts have been touched by the blood of the Passover lamb (Exod 12:12, 22-23). Zipporah's action with the blood here in Exodus 4:24-26 may be a sign that points forward to this greater event involving blood and deliverance from death.

Third, this story has similarities with other stories where God attacks or nearly attacks people chosen for a special mission. God (or God's messenger) threatens Jacob in Genesis 32:22-32, Balaam in Numbers 22:22-35, and Joshua in Joshua 5:13-15. The threat of the attack reminds those whom God has chosen to be very careful. They shouldn't assume that God will always be on their side. They remain subject to God's judgment and may be punished for disobedience. (See Num 20:9-13, 24; 27:12-14; Deut 32:48-52; 34:1-12.)

4:21 God gives Moses amazing acts to try to convince a stubborn Pharaoh to let Israel go. Many times Pharaoh will make himself stubborn and resist Moses (Exod 7:13; 8:15, 32; 9:7, 34-35). At other times, God will be the one who will make him stubborn (Exod 9:12; 10:1, 20, 27; 11:10; 14:8, 17). The story holds together Pharaoh's responsibility for his own actions and God's final control over the end result.

4:22-23 God predicts that Pharaoh's oldest son will be killed because Pharaoh has mistreated the Israelites, who are God's oldest son. This will happen in the last or tenth disaster that God will bring on Egypt (Exod 12:29-32).

4:24-26 Moses and his family obediently begin their journey back to Egypt so that Moses can lead the Israelites out of their slavery, as God commanded. But then God suddenly attacks Moses and tries to kill him! The story is hard to understand. We may not have all the necessary historical background to grasp the story fully. Moreover, the underlying Hebrew is unclear whether God tries to kill Moses or his son (see translation note). Zipporah: wife of Moses, mother of their son Gershom, and daughter of a Midianite priest (Exod 2:18-22). flint stone: a thin stone with a sharp edge used as a knife. cut off... foreskin: a ritual of removing the foreskin from the penis, called circumcision (4:26). Israelite tradition commands that circumcision normally be done when a male baby is eight days old (Gen 17:9-14). In ancient Egypt, circumcision was done on young adult males when they were old enough to be married. The story seems to combine these two different traditions, with the young son being circumcised and then his mother, Zipporah, touching Moses with the foreskin and saying that Moses is a bridegroom because of bloodshed. This act succeeds in protecting Moses so that God doesn't kill him. See sidebar, "God Tries to Kill Moses."

had told to Moses, and he performed the signs in front of the people. <sup>31</sup>The people believed. When they heard that the LORD had paid attention to the Israelites and had seen their oppression, they bowed down and worshipped.

First meeting with Pharaoh

5 Afterward, Moses and Aaron went to Pharaoh and said, "This is what the LORD, Israel's God, says: 'Let my people go so that they can hold a festival for me in the desert.'"

<sup>2</sup>But Pharaoh said, "Who is this LORD whom I'm supposed to obey by letting Israel go? I don't know this LORD, and I certainly won't let Israel go."

<sup>3</sup>Then they said, "The Hebrews' God has appeared to us. Let us go on a three-day journey into the desert so we can offer sacrifices to the LORD our God. Otherwise, the LORD will give us a deadly disease or violence."

<sup>17</sup>Pharaoh replied, "You are lazy bums, nothing but lazy bums. That's why you say, 'Let us go and offer sacrifices to the LORD.' <sup>18</sup>Go and get back to work! No straw will be given to you, but you still need to make the same number of bricks."

<sup>22</sup>Then Moses turned to the LORD and said, "My Lord, why have you abused this people? Why did you send me for this? <sup>23</sup>Ever since I first came to Pharaoh to speak in your name, he has abused this people. And you've done absolutely nothing to rescue your people."

5:2 I don't know this LORD: Pharaoh doesn't yet know Israel's God. God will, however, be interested in making sure that Pharaoh and the other Egyptians eventually do know the Lord (Exod 7:5, 17; 8:10; 9:14; 14:18).

5:3 a three-day journey: Moses and Aaron tell Pharaoh a lie about wanting to leave Egypt for a short journey into the wilderness in order to offer sacrifices to God. The real intention is for the Israelites to leave Egypt for good and travel through the wilderness to the land of Canaan (Exod 3:17-18). deadly disease or violence: This is a subtle warning of the disasters that the Lord will soon bring upon the Egyptians because of Pharaoh's refusal to let the Israelites go.

5:7 straw . . . bricks: The Hebrews used wet clay mixed with straw to form bricks, which they then baked in the sun.

5:21 made us stink: Now it is the Israelites who stink to Pharaoh. Later, the Nile River and the whole land of Egypt will stink from rotted fish and frogs in the first two disasters that occur in Exodus 7:21; 8:13-14.

5:22-23 My Lord, why . . . this people?: Moses complains to God for not making good on God's promise to deliver the Israelites from their suffering (Exod 3:8). The OT has a strong tradition of Israelite leaders and prophets who boldly complain to God when life becomes difficult. Examples include the Israelite king in Psalm 89 and the prophet in Jeremiah 11:18-12:6; 15:10-21; 20:7-13. Moses' original complaints to God when God first called him to be Israel's leader are in the same tradition (Exod 3:11-4:17). Moses will feel overwhelmed by the burdens of leadership and complain to God a number of times in the future.

God reassures Moses

6 The LORD replied to Moses, "Now you will see what I'll do to Pharaoh. In fact, he'll be so eager to let them go that he'll drive them out of his land by force."

<sup>2</sup>God also said to Moses: "I am the LORD. <sup>3</sup>I appeared to Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob as God Almighty,<sup>b</sup> but I didn't reveal myself to them by my name 'The LORD.' <sup>4</sup>I also set up my covenant with them to give them the land of Canaan where they lived as immigrants. <sup>5</sup>I've also heard the cry of grief of the Israelites, whom the Egyptians have turned into slaves, and I've remembered my covenant. <sup>6</sup>Therefore, say to the Israelites, 'I am the LORD. I'll bring you out from Egyptian forced labor. <sup>7</sup>I'll rescue you from your slavery to them. I'll set you free with great power and with momentous events of justice. <sup>8</sup>I'll take you as my people, and I'll be your God. You will know that I, the LORD, am your God, who has freed you from Egyptian forced labor. <sup>9</sup>I'll bring you into the land that I promised to give to Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob. I'll give it to you as your possession. I am the LORD.'" <sup>9</sup>Moses told this to the Israelites. But they didn't listen to Moses, because of their complete exhaustion and their hard labor.

<sup>12</sup>But Moses said to the LORD, "The Israelites haven't even listened to me. How can I expect Pharaoh to listen to me, especially since I'm not a very good speaker?" <sup>13</sup>Nevertheless, the LORD spoke to Moses and Aaron about the Israelites and Pharaoh, Egypt's king, giving them orders to let the Israelites go from the land of Egypt.

Family line of Moses and Aaron

(Exod 15:24-25; Num 11:10-15). In each case, God will listen patiently to Moses and provide him the help that he needs to keep going.

6:1-13 This section is a second version of God's call of Moses. The first call story was in Exodus 3:7-4:17. The two versions share a number of similarities. God promises to deliver the Israelites from their slavery in Egypt (6:1; see Exod 3:7). God had appeared before in the book of Genesis as the God of Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob (6:3; see Exod 3:6). God appears now with a new name (6:3; see Exod 3:14). God instructs Moses to tell the Israelites that God will deliver them from slavery in Egypt and bring them to the promised land of Canaan (6:6-8; see Exod 3:16-17). God tells Moses what he should say to Pharaoh (6:10; see Exod 3:18). Moses complains that he is unable to speak well in public (6:12; see Exod 4:10). The two versions of the call of Moses also have some important differences. God's new name in the first story of Moses' call is "I Am Who I Am" (Exod 3:14) alongside the name the LORD (Exod 3:15). The new name in the second version of Moses' call is simply The LORD (6:3). In the first story, Moses has five different objections to God's command that he lead Israel (Exod 3:11-4:16), but in the second story Moses protests God's call only once (6:12). This second story of God's call to Moses affirms that God remains confident in Moses as a leader, even though his first attempts to lead didn't go well. His first attempt to speak to Pharaoh led to more suffering of the Israelites, not less (Exod 5:19-20). Moses had become discouraged (Exod 5:22-23). Moses finds out that leadership comes with struggles and burdens along the way. He needs to hear again that God is still with him.

6:3 In one version of stories about Israel's ancestors earlier in Genesis, God publicly revealed God's name as God Almighty (Heb. El Shaddai) and not as the LORD (Gen 17:1; 28:3; 35:11; 43:14; 48:3). This is the same version of traditions that continues here in Exodus 6:3. According to this version, the name The LORD is revealed for the first time to Moses in Exodus. In a different set of traditions within Genesis, God revealed the name "the LORD" much earlier to pre-Israelite humans and Israel's ancestors Abraham and Jacob (Gen 4:26; 12:8; 13:4; 15:7; 21:33; 22:14; 26:24; 28:13). As a result, the name "the LORD" appears at many points throughout the book of Genesis in spite of the claim of Exodus 6:3.

6:14-19 descendants of Reuben... the Simeonites... the Levites: Reuben, Simeon, and Levi were the first three of the 12 sons born to their father, Jacob (Gen 29:31-34). The focus of this version of Jacob's family is on the line of Levi, who will become the official tribe of priests in Israel (Exod 32:28-29; Num 3:1-51). The family line within the tribe of Levi concentrates further on Levi's son Kohath and his descendants (6:16). For more on the Kohathites, see Numbers 3:27-32; 4:1-20.

<sup>26</sup>It was this same Aaron and Moses whom the LORD commanded, "Bring the Israelites out of the land of Egypt in military formation." <sup>27</sup>It was also this same Moses and Aaron who spoke to Pharaoh king of Egypt to bring the Israelites out of Egypt.

<sup>28</sup>At the time the LORD spoke to Moses in the land of Egypt, <sup>29</sup>the LORD said to him, "I am the LORD. Tell Pharaoh, Egypt's king, everything that I've said to you."

<sup>30</sup>But Moses replied to the LORD, "Look, I'm not a very good speaker. How is Pharaoh ever going to listen to me?"

7The LORD said to Moses, "See, I've made you like God to Pharaoh, and your brother Aaron will be your prophet. <sup>2</sup>You will say everything that I command you, and your brother Aaron will tell Pharaoh to let the Israelites out of his land. <sup>3</sup>But I'll make Pharaoh stubborn, and I'll perform many of my signs and amazing acts in the land of Egypt. <sup>4</sup>When Pharaoh refuses to listen to you, then I'll act against Egypt and I'll bring my people the Israelites out of the land of Egypt in military formation by momentous events of justice. <sup>5</sup>The Egyptians will come to know that I am the LORD, when I act against Egypt and bring the Israelites out from among them." <sup>6</sup>Moses and Aaron did just as the LORD commanded them. <sup>7</sup>Moses was 80 years old and Aaron was 83 when they spoke to Pharaoh.

Turning rods into snakes

6:20 Amram... Jochebed: In the next generation, attention focuses on Kohath's son Amram and his wife Jochebed, the parents of Aaron and Moses (Exod 6:18, 20; see Exod 2:1). This is a rare example of Aaron being named first and then Moses, indicating that Aaron is the eldest son (Exod 7:7). Aaron and his descendants are also the focus of this section of the family tree of Levites (Exod 6:20, 26; Num 3:1). Elsewhere in Exodus, Leviticus, Numbers, and Deuteronomy, Moses is always listed first as most important, and Aaron is listed second (60 times; for example, Exod 6:26-27).

6:21-25 Aaron... Eleazar... Phinehas: The most important names in this family tree trace the line of Israel's high priests across three generations: Aaron (Exod 40:13), Aaron's son Eleazar (Num 3:32; 20:22-29), and Eleazar's son Phinehas (Num 25:10-13). This reflects a tradition with special interests in honoring the line of priests in Israel.

6:25 military formation: The listing of households and tribal leaders among the Israelites, including priests, was for the purpose of organizing for a military battle as they escaped Egypt (Exod 12:41; with "the Lord" as the primary fighter—Exod 14:14). The census list in Numbers 1–2 is a similar but more detailed organizational plan of Israel's military arrangements as they prepare to enter the land of Canaan (Num 1:1-3; see also Num 26:1-4).

6:14-27, the text returns to Moses' complaint to God about not being able to speak well (Exod 6:10-13).

7:1 God reminds an anxious Moses that Aaron will be available as his spokesperson when speaking to Pharaoh. Moses will be like God to Pharaoh in the sense that God normally uses a human messenger when talking to a human leader like Pharaoh. Aaron will be that human messenger for Moses, acting as his prophet or spokesperson. This text repeats what God first suggested in Exodus 4:14-16.

7:3 make Pharaoh stubborn: See note on Exodus 4:21.

7:5 God is interested in making sure that the Egyptians will know the power of Israel's God. This theme that Egypt would one day know Israel's God is repeated throughout the stories of the 10 disasters that God brings upon the Egyptians (Exod 7:17; 8:6, 18; 9:14; 10:2; 11:7). The prediction is fulfilled in the crossing of the Reed Sea when God defeats Pharaoh and his army (Exod 14:18, 25).

7:7 Moses is younger (80 years old) than Aaron (83 years old). Yet Moses is Aaron's superior as the primary leader of Israel. Usually in the ancient world, the eldest son is favored and most important. In the Bible, however, the younger child is often favored and chosen by God (Gen 17:15-22; 25:23; 37:5-11). God frequently works in ways contrary to what humans expect.

7:8-13 your shepherd's rod... will turn into a cobra: God first gave this amazing trick to Moses as a way to convince and they turned into cobras. But then Aaron's rod swallowed up each of their rods. <sup>13</sup>However, Pharaoh remained stubborn. He wouldn't listen to them, just as the LORD had said.

Water into blood

<sup>14</sup>Then the LORD said to Moses, "Pharaoh is stubborn. He still refuses to let the people go. <sup>15</sup>Go to Pharaoh in the morning. As he is going out to the water, make sure you stand at the bank of the Nile River so you will run into him. Bring along the shepherd's rod that turned into a snake. <sup>16</sup>Say to him, The LORD, the Hebrews' God, has sent me to you with this message: Let my people go so that they can worship me in the desert. Up to now you still haven't listened. <sup>17</sup>This is what the LORD says: By this you will know that I am the LORD. I'm now going to hit the water of the Nile River with this rod in my hand, and it will turn into blood. <sup>18</sup>The fish in the Nile are going to die, the Nile will stink, and the Egyptians won't be able to drink water from the Nile." <sup>19</sup>The LORD said to Moses, "Say to Aaron, "Take your shepherd's rod and stretch out your hand over Egypt's waters—over their rivers, their canals, their marshes, and all their bodies of water—so that they turn into blood. There will be blood all over the land of Egypt, even in wooden and stone containers.'" the Israelites to believe that his power came from God (Exod 4:1-5, 30). This time Aaron uses a similar miracle or sign to try to convince Pharaoh of the power of Israel's God. The ancient Egyptians were famous for their magicians. They do what Aaron did, turning their rods into serpents. However, Aaron's rod or snake swallowed up the Egyptians' rods or snakes. This demonstrated the superior power of Israel's God, but still Pharaoh remained stubborn. The Hebrew word for "cobra" or "serpent" (tannin) often refers to a sea creature (Gen 1:21) or a "dragon" (Isa 27:1). Such sea monsters were often seen by ancient people as opponents of God and sources of chaos and evil in the world. The text of Ezekiel 29:3 identifies Egypt's pharaoh as a "crocodile" (Hebrew tannin), which the Lord will fight and destroy. In a similar way, Aaron's serpent swallowing the Egyptian serpents is a symbol of God's future victory over Pharaoh at the Reed Sea (Exod 15:3-10).

7:14-25 The first disaster in Egypt. Turning the water of the Nile River into blood is the first of a series of 10 disasters that God will bring upon Pharaoh and the whole people of Egypt in Exodus 7:14–14:29. After each disaster, Pharaoh will in the end stubbornly refuse to let the Israelite slaves go.

7:15 Years earlier, Moses' mother had placed the baby Moses in a basket at the riverbank. Shortly thereafter, Pharaoh's daughter had met Moses (Exod 2:3-6). This time, Moses meets Pharaoh at the bank of the Nile.

7:17 turn into blood: The Nile River is the main source of

He raised the shepherd's rod and hit the water in the Nile in front of Pharaoh and his officials, and all the water in the Nile turned into blood. <sup>21</sup>The fish in the Nile died, and the Nile began to stink so that the Egyptians couldn't drink water from the Nile. There was blood all over the land of Egypt. <sup>22</sup>But the Egyptian religious experts did the same thing with their secret knowledge. As a result, Pharaoh remained stubborn, and he wouldn't listen to them, just as the LORD had said. <sup>23</sup>Pharaoh turned and went back to his palace. He wasn't impressed even by this. <sup>24</sup>Meanwhile, all the Egyptians had to dig for drinking water along the banks of the Nile River, because they couldn't drink the water of the Nile itself. <sup>25</sup>Seven days went by after the LORD had struck the Nile River.

Invasion of frogs

8<sup>1</sup>Then the LORD said to Moses, "Go to Pharaoh and tell him: This is what the LORD says: Let my people go so that they can worship me. <sup>2</sup>If you refuse to let them go, then I'll send a plague of frogs over your whole country. <sup>3</sup>The Nile will overflow with frogs. They'll get into your palace, into your bedroom and onto your bed, into your officials' houses, and among all your people, and even into your ovens and bread pans. <sup>4</sup>The frogs will crawl up on you, your people, and all your officials." <sup>5</sup>And<sup>1</sup> the LORD said to Moses, "Tell Aaron, 'Stretch out your hand with your shepherd's rod over the rivers, the canals, and the marshes, and make the frogs crawl up all over the land of Egypt.'" <sup>6</sup>So Aaron stretched out his hand over the waters of Egypt. The frogs crawled up and covered the land of Egypt. <sup>7</sup>However, the Egyptian religious experts were able to do the same thing by their secret knowledge. They too made frogs crawl up onto the land of Egypt.

<sup>8</sup>Then Pharaoh called for Moses and Aaron, and said, "If you pray to the LORD to get rid of the frogs from me and my people, then I'll let the people go so that they can offer sacrifices to the LORD."

<sup>9</sup>Moses said to Pharaoh, "Have it your way. When should I pray for you and your officials and your people to remove the frogs from your houses, courtyards, and fields? They'll stay only in the Nile."

Moses said, "Just as you say! That way you will know that there is no one like the LORD our God. <sup>11</sup>The frogs will leave you, your houses, your officials, and your people. They'll stay only in the Nile." <sup>12</sup>After Moses and Aaron had left Pharaoh, Moses cried out to the LORD about the frogs that the LORD had brought on Pharaoh. <sup>13</sup>The LORD did as Moses asked. The frogs died inside the houses, out in the yards, and in the fields. <sup>14</sup>They gathered them together in big piles, and the land began to stink. <sup>15</sup>But when Pharaoh saw that the disaster was over, he became stubborn again and wouldn't listen to them, just as the LORD had said.

life-giving water in Egypt. Pharaoh had earlier used the Nile's water not to give life but as a means of drowning Hebrew babies (Exod 1:22). As a consequence of Pharaoh's earlier action, God commands Moses to tell Aaron to hit the water with his rod. This action will cause the whole river and all water everywhere in Egypt to turn to blood. The fish will all die, stink, and pollute the water.

7:22 Egypt's magicians are also able to turn water into blood (see also Exod 7:11; 8:7). As the 10 disasters progress, Egypt's religious experts will reach a point where they are unable to do the same amazing acts of power as Moses and Aaron (Exod 8:18-19; 9:11).

7:25 The phrase Seven days may point back to the story of the seven-day creation of the world in Genesis 1:1-2:3. God's creation involved setting boundaries between light and darkness (Gen 1:4-5), water and land (Gen 1:9), and different spaces for different creatures (birds in the air, fish in the sea, animals on the land; Gen 1:20-21, 24-25). In various ways, the disasters in Egypt involve the breaking down of these boundaries set up in creation. This chaos leads to death and destruction. Great human injustice

8:1-15 The second disaster in Egypt. When Pharaoh again refuses to let the Israelites go, God causes the frogs to leave the rivers and other wetlands where they normally live. The frogs cross their usual boundary between water and land. They invade all the spaces on dry land where humans live. The wild animals of nature are overrunning the areas of human civilization.

8:8 If you pray... I'll let the people go: This is the first instance in which Pharaoh seems to give in a little. Pharaoh even seems to admit that Moses' God is real and that Moses' prayer to God may have the power to stop the plague. Pharaoh agrees to let the Israelites go for a few days to offer sacrifices to the LORD, nothing more.

8:15 became stubborn again: Even though Pharaoh had earlier seemed to give in (Exod 8:8), in the end he refused to let Israel go, just as God had predicted. Pharaoh will continue to move back and forth between giving in and then changing his mind, becoming stubborn again at several points (Exod 8:28, 32; 9:27-28, 34-35;

<sup>18</sup>The religious experts<sup>n</sup> tried to produce lice by their secret knowledge, but they weren't able to do it. There were lice on people and animals. <sup>19</sup>The religious experts said to Pharaoh, "This is something only God could do!" But Pharaoh was stubborn, and he wouldn't listen to them, just as the LORD had said.

<sup>20</sup>The LORD said to Moses, "Get up early in the morning and confront Pharaoh as he goes out to the water. Say to him, 'This is what the LORD says: Let my people go so that they can worship me. <sup>21</sup>If you refuse to let my people go, I'll send swarms of insects<sup>o</sup> on you, your officials, your people, and your houses. All Egyptian houses will be filled with swarms of insects and also the ground that they cover. <sup>22</sup>But on that day I'll set apart the land of Goshen, where my people live. No swarms of insects will come there so you will know that I, the LORD, am in this land. <sup>23</sup>I'll put a barrier between my people and your people. This sign will happen tomorrow.'" <sup>24</sup>The LORD did this. Great swarms of insects came into the houses of Pharaoh and his officials and into the whole land of Egypt. The land was ruined by the insects.

<sup>26</sup>Moses replied, "It wouldn't be right to do that, because the sacrifices that we offer to the LORD our God will offend Egyptians. If we openly offer sacrifices that offend Egyptians, won't they stone us to death? <sup>27</sup>We need to go for a three-day journey into the desert to offer sacrifices to the LORD our God as he has ordered us."

<sup>28</sup>So Pharaoh said, "I'll let you go to offer sacrifices to the LORD your God in the desert, provided you don't go too far away and you pray for me."

<sup>29</sup>Moses said, "I'll leave you now, and I'll pray to the LORD. Tomorrow the swarms of insects will leave Pharaoh, his officials, and his people. Just don't let Pharaoh lie to us again and not let the people go to offer sacrifices to the LORD."

8:16-19 The third disaster in Egypt. All the land's dirt turns into lice, which infect humans and animals. The first two plagues had originated with water. This third plague arises from the land's dirt, which turns into lice that swarm across the land.

8:18-19 For the first time, Egypt's magicians are unable to perform the same act of power as God does through Moses and Aaron. The magicians admit to Pharaoh that only God could do something like this.

8:20-32 The fourth disaster in Egypt. Swarms of insects invade the whole of Egypt except for the region where the Israelites live separately from the Egyptians.

8:22 The area of Goshen is a narrow strip of grasslands near where the Nile River enters the Mediterranean Sea. When Jacob had first come with his family to Egypt from Canaan, his son Joseph had been a favored official in Egypt. Joseph had chosen the grasslands of Goshen for his family since they were shepherds (Gen 45:10). In addition, Egyptians didn't like to be around sheep or shepherds, so it was good for the Israelites to live apart (Gen 43:32; 46:34). Being in a separate area became an advantage for the Israelites during this plague of insects since the insects stayed away from Goshen. Some of the other coming disasters will likewise strike only Egyptian houses (Exod 9:4, 26; 10:23).

8:25 Pharaoh is willing to allow the Israelites to offer their sacrifices to the Lord but only within the land (i.e., inside the boundaries of Egypt). Moses earlier demanded that the Israelites go into the wilderness on a three-day journey to offer their sacrifices to the Lord, but Pharaoh refused (Exod 3:18; 5:3). This original demand to go on a three-day journey was actually a plot that would allow Israel to escape from Egypt permanently.

8:26 sacrifices... offend Egyptians: The Israelites probably sacrificed sheep (Exod 12:1-10), and Egyptians didn't like shepherds or sheep (Gen 46:34).

8:30 Moses... prayed to the Lord: See note on Exodus 9:33.

8:32 Pharaoh... stubborn once again: See notes on Exodus 4:21; 8:8, 15; sidebar, "Pharaoh's Stubbornness" at Exodus 9. 9:1-7 The fifth disaster in Egypt. God sends disease that them go and you continue to hold them back,<sup>3</sup> the LORD will send a very deadly disease on your livestock in the field: on horses, donkeys, camels, cattle, and flocks. <sup>4</sup>But the LORD will distinguish Israel's livestock from Egypt's livestock so that not one that belongs to the Israelites will die." <sup>5</sup>The LORD set a time and said, "Tomorrow the LORD will do this in the land." <sup>6</sup>And the next day the LORD did it. All of the Egyptian livestock died, but not one animal that belonged to the Israelites died. <sup>7</sup>Pharaoh asked around and found out that not one of Israel's livestock had died. But Pharaoh was stubborn, and he wouldn't let the people go.

Skin sores and blisters

<sup>8</sup>Then the LORD said to Moses and Aaron, "Take handfuls of ashes from a furnace and have Moses throw it up in the air in front of Pharaoh. <sup>9</sup>The ashes will turn to soot over the whole land of Egypt. It will cause skin sores that will break out in blisters on people and animals in the whole land of Egypt." <sup>10</sup>So they took ashes from the furnace, and they stood in front of Pharaoh. Moses threw the ash up in the air, and it caused skin sores and blisters to break out on people and animals. <sup>11</sup>The religious experts<sup>P</sup> couldn't stand up to Moses because of the skin sores, because there were skin sores on the religious experts as well as on all the Egyptians. <sup>12</sup>But the LORD made Pharaoh stubborn, and Pharaoh wouldn't listen to them, just as the LORD had said to Moses.

Pharaoh's Stubbornness The Lord sends one disaster after another against Pharaoh and Egypt. The purpose of the disasters appears to be to persuade Pharaoh to decide to let the Israelites go. Pharaoh seems to have some freedom of choice in the matter. However, the Lord steps in after several disasters have happened. The Lord begins to make Pharaoh stubborn so he won't let the Israelites go (Exod 9:12). God had predicted as much from the beginning (Exod 4:21; 7:3). The book of Exodus seems to hold both human freedom and God's will together in a delicate balance. Early in the series of disasters, Pharaoh himself (not the Lord) is primarily responsible for being stubborn (Exod 7:22; 8:15, 19, 32; 9:7). But in Exodus 9:12, God steps in and begins to take over. In the rest of the narratives, the Lord increasingly makes Pharaoh stubborn (Exod 9:12; 10:1, 20, 27; 11:10; 14:4, 8). In this way, Exodus holds together human freedom and God's will as both essential to understanding the ways of God and humans in the world.

kill all the domestic animals or livestock of the Egyptians but not those of the Israelites. Some previous disasters had involved the deaths of wild animals (frogs and fish). Now, for the first time, death strikes Egypt's valuable horses, cattle, donkeys, and camels.

<sup>3-5</sup> All... livestock died: Some of the upcoming disasters will again involve the Egyptians' domestic animals (Exod 9:10, 19-21; 11:5; 12:29). Where did these animals come from if their livestock had all died in this plague? Perhaps new shipments of livestock arrived. Or perhaps the storytellers were not as bothered by such conflicts in details as we might be. The word "all" could be an exaggeration to heighten the story's drama.

water (Exod 7:20; 8:3) or from the dust of the ground (Exod 8:17). This sixth disaster comes from the air or sky. Every part of creation—water, land, and air—has started to become chaotic, extreme, and dangerous.

<sup>9</sup> Skin sores on the religious experts: In earlier disasters, Egypt's religious experts had been able to produce the same plagues as Moses and God did (Exod 7:11, 22; 8:7). In this case, they aren't able to cause the plague (Exod 8:18), and they can't escape the effects of the disaster on their own bodies.

<sup>12</sup> The LORD made Pharaoh stubborn: The Lord had earlier predicted that at some point the Lord would be the one who would make Pharaoh stubborn and refuse to let the Israelites go (Exod 4:21; 7:3). Up to this point in the series of disasters, Pharaoh has been making himself stubborn. Here, for the first time, it is God who actually makes the Egyptian king stubborn. God has given Pharaoh many warnings through several disasters. Pharaoh has had many chances to change his mind and see the error of his ways. In each case, Pharaoh refused to see the plain evidence of the power of Israel's God. Pharaoh has resisted God so many times that the Lord has determined: Pharaoh is doomed. Pharaoh has no way out from this point forward. His doom is inevitable. In the end, Pharaoh will experience the full consequences of his evil oppression of the Israelites slaves (Exod 14:26-29). See sidebar, "Pharaoh's Stubbornness."

<sup>13</sup>Then the LORD said to Moses, "Get up early in the morning and confront Pharaoh. Say to him, This is what the LORD, the God of the Hebrews, says: Let my people go so that they can worship me. <sup>14</sup>This time I'm going to send all my plagues on you, your officials, and your people so that you will know that there is no one like me in the whole world. <sup>15</sup>By now I could have used my power to strike you and your people with a deadly disease so that you would have disappeared from the earth. <sup>16</sup>But I've left you standing for this reason: in order to show you my power and in order to make my name known in the whole world. <sup>17</sup>You are still abusing your power against my people, and you refuse to let them go. <sup>18</sup>Tomorrow at this time I'll cause the heaviest hail to fall on Egypt that has ever fallen from the day Egypt was founded until now. <sup>19</sup>So bring under shelter your livestock and all that belongs to you that is out in the open. Every person or animal that is out in the open field and isn't brought inside will die when the hail rains down on them." <sup>20</sup>Some of Pharaoh's officials who took the LORD's word seriously rushed to bring their servants and livestock inside for shelter. <sup>21</sup>Others who didn't take the LORD's word to heart left their servants and livestock out in the open field.

<sup>22</sup>The LORD said to Moses, "Raise your hand toward the sky so that hail will fall on the whole land of Egypt, on people and animals and all the grain in the fields in the land of Egypt." <sup>23</sup>Then Moses raised his shepherd's rod toward the sky, and the LORD sent thunder and hail, and lightning struck the earth. The LORD rained hail on the land of Egypt. <sup>24</sup>The hail and the lightning flashing in the middle of the hail were so severe that there had been nothing like it in the entire land of Egypt since it first became a nation. <sup>25</sup>The hail beat down everything that was in the open field throughout the entire land of Egypt, both people and animals. The hail also beat down all the grain in the fields, and it shattered every tree out in the field. <sup>26</sup>The only place where hail didn't fall was in the land of Goshen where the Israelites lived.

<sup>27</sup>Then Pharaoh sent for Moses and Aaron and said to them, "This time I've sinned. The LORD is right, and I and my people are wrong." <sup>28</sup>"Pray to the LORD! Enough of God's thunder and hail! I'm going to let you go. You don't need to stay here any longer."

<sup>29</sup>Moses said to him, "As soon as I've left the city, I'll spread out my hands to the LORD. Then the thunder and the hail will stop and won't return so that you will know that the earth belongs to the LORD. <sup>30</sup>But I know that you and your officials still don't take the LORD God seriously." (<sup>31</sup>Now the flax and the barley were destroyed, because the barley had ears of grain and the flax had buds. <sup>32</sup>But both durum and spelt wheat weren't ruined, because they hadn't come up.) <sup>33</sup>Moses left Pharaoh and the city, and spread out his hands to the LORD.

9:13-33 The seventh disaster in Egypt. As with the sixth plague, which came from "up in the air" (Exod 9:10), the seventh disaster also comes from the sky. The most severe storm of hail, thunder, and lightning that had ever been seen comes upon Egypt. The hail beats down Egyptian people, animals, and fields of grain that aren't protected by shelter. For the first time, the disaster directly affects plant life as well as humans and animals.

9:14 in the whole world: God gives Moses a longer message to give to Pharaoh. This is a sign of greater urgency as the disasters continue. The message begins with God's claim that there is no other god in the whole world like Israel's God. Later, the Lord will repeat a similar claim to the Israelites when they arrive at Mount Sinai. The Lord will remind the Israelites that "the whole earth belongs to me" (Exod 19:5). Pharaoh is dealing not with a local or tribal god but the God of all nations.

9:15-16 The Lord would be able to wipe out the Egyptians all at once with a deadly disease, if the Lord wanted to do so. However, God has allowed the Egyptians to live so that they could witness God's power and make God known in the whole world. The Egyptians will indeed end up testifying to the greatness of Israel's God as a result of all the disasters that God brings upon them (Exod 14:4, 25; see Exod 8:19; 9:20, 27; 10:7; 11:3).

didn't: For the first time, there is a strong division within Pharaoh's inner circle of advisors. Some believe in the Lord's power, but others don't. Pharaoh is losing control over many of his own officials.

9:23 thunder and hail, and lightning: Powerful storms with thunder or lightning are often signs of God's holy presence or God's angry judgment in the Bible (Exod 19:16; 20:18; 1 Sam 2:10; Pss 29:3; 77:18; 104:7; Isa 28:2; 29:6; Jer 23:19; Ezek 1:24; Rev 11:19).

9:25 Goshen: See note on Exodus 8:22.

9:27 I've sinned: Pharaoh is overwhelmed by the disaster. He confesses for the first time that the Lord is right and he is wrong. Pharaoh has finally taken responsibility for his actions and recognized the Lord. Yet, when the storm ends, Pharaoh goes right back to his old stubborn ways; and "he sinned again" (Exod 9:34-35). Pharaoh will confess his sin one more time after the next disaster (Exod 10:16). Yet the Lord will make Pharaoh stubborn once again (Exod 10:20; see note on Exod 4:21, see sidebar, "Pharaoh's Stubbornness").

9:29 you will know... to the Lord: See note on Exodus 9:14.

9:31-32 The hail totally destroyed grain plants that had already sprouted. Other grain seeds hadn't yet emerged from the ground and weren't destroyed. These newer crops will be destroyed in the next disaster (Exod 10:12, 15).

9:33 Moses... spread out his hands to the Lord: Moses lifts

Then the thunder and the hail stopped, and the rain stopped pouring down on the earth. <sup>34</sup>But when Pharaoh saw that the rain, hail, and thunder had stopped, he sinned again. Pharaoh and his officials became stubborn. <sup>35</sup>Because of his stubbornness, Pharaoh refused to let the Israelites go, just as the LORD had told Moses.

Invasion of locusts

10 Then the LORD said to Moses, "Go to Pharaoh. I've made him and his officials stubborn so that I can show them my signs <sup>2</sup>and so that you can tell your children and grandchildren how I overpowered the Egyptians with the signs I did among them. You will know that I am the LORD."

<sup>3</sup>So Moses and Aaron went to Pharaoh and said to him, "This is what the LORD, the Hebrews' God, says: How long will you refuse to respect me? Let my people go so that they can worship me. <sup>4</sup>Otherwise, if you refuse to let my people go, I'm going to bring locusts into your country tomorrow. <sup>5</sup>They will cover the landscape so that you won't be able to see the ground. They will eat the last bit of vegetation that was left after the hail. They will eat all your trees growing in the fields. <sup>6</sup>The locusts will fill your houses and all your officials' houses and all the Egyptians' houses. Your parents and even your grandparents have never seen anything like it during their entire lifetimes in this fertile land." Then Moses turned and left Pharaoh.

<sup>7</sup>Pharaoh's officials said to him, "How long will this man trap us in a corner like this? Let the people go so that they can worship the LORD their God. Don't you get it? Egypt is being destroyed!"

<sup>8</sup>So Moses and Aaron were brought back to Pharaoh, and he said to them, "Go! Worship the LORD your God! But who exactly is going with you?"

<sup>9</sup>Moses said, "We'll go with our young and old, with our sons and daughters, and with our flocks and herds, because we all must observe the LORD's festival."

<sup>10</sup>Pharaoh said to them, "Yes, the LORD will be with you, all right, especially if I let your children go with you! Obviously, you are plotting some evil scheme. <sup>11</sup>No way! Only your men can go and worship the LORD, because that's what you asked for." Then Pharaoh had them chased out of his presence.

<sup>12</sup>Then the LORD said to Moses: "Stretch out your hand over the land of Egypt so that the locusts will swarm over the land of Egypt and eat all of the land's grain and everything that the hail left." <sup>13</sup>So Moses stretched out his shepherd's rod over the land of Egypt, and the LORD made an east wind blow over the land all that day and all that night. When morning came, the east wind had carried in the locusts. <sup>14</sup>The locusts swarmed over the whole land of Egypt and settled on the whole country. Such a huge swarming of locusts had never happened before and would never happen ever again. <sup>15</sup>They covered the whole landscape so that the land turned black with them. They ate all of the land's grain and all of the orchards' his hands in prayer to God (cf. 1 Kgs 8:38, 54; Ps 141:2). God stops the storm in response to Moses' prayer. Moses has a special relationship with God. God often responds positively when Moses prays for other people (Exod 15:25; 32:11-14; Num 12:13; 14:13-20).

9:35 just as the LORD had told Moses: See Exodus 4:21; 7:3; and the note on Exodus 4:21.

10:1-20 The eighth disaster in Egypt. The whole land of Egypt will be covered by big swarms of hungry locusts. The locusts will eat all the grain and fruit that remained after the last disaster of the hailstorm (Exod 9:31-32; 10:5, 15). Hunger and famine will result. The locusts will also invade the houses of all the Egyptians, including Pharaoh and his officials, just as the frogs had done earlier (Exod 8:3-4). The frogs had come from the water. The locusts will come on the east wind (10:13).

10:2 so that . . . children and grandchildren: One purpose of this long string of disasters is to show future generations of Israelites the great power of their God even against a strong empire like Egypt.

10:3 so that they can worship me: See note on Exodus 8:25.

10:7 Pharaoh's officials had a divided opinion about the Lord and the hailstorm in the last disaster (Exod 9:20-21). This time the officials are of one mind. They all try to convince Pharaoh to let the Israelites go because they see that Egypt is being destroyed!

10:8-10 Pharaoh gives in a little to the demands of Moses and Aaron. Pharaoh is willing to allow only the adult males among the Hebrews to go to worship God and offer sacrifices in the wilderness (Exod 3:18; 8:27; 10:3). Moses insists that all the Israelites, young and old . . . sons and daughters . . . flocks and herds, must be allowed to leave Egypt so that they can worship the Lord.

10:13 east wind . . . all that night: The nighttime east wind points ahead to God's final victory against Pharaoh and his army at the Reed Sea. A similar east wind will blow all night and push back the waters of the sea. The Israelites will escape through the dry land in the middle of the sea, but then the waters will fall back on Pharaoh and his army as he chases them, drowning them all (Exod 14:21, 27-28).

10:15 the land turned black: The blackness of the locusts on the land points ahead to the continual darkness of the sky both day and night in the next disaster to visit Egypt (Exod 10:21-22).

fruit that the hail had left. Nothing green was left in any orchard or in any grain field in the whole land of Egypt.

<sup>16</sup>Pharaoh called urgently for Moses and Aaron and said, "I've sinned against the LORD your God and against you. <sup>17</sup>Please forgive my sin this time. Pray to the LORD your God just to take this deadly disaster away from me."

Darkness covers Egypt

<sup>21</sup>Then the LORD said to Moses, "Raise your hand toward the sky so that darkness spreads over the land of Egypt, a darkness that you can feel." <sup>22</sup>So Moses raised his hand toward the sky, and an intense darkness fell on the whole land of Egypt for three days. <sup>23</sup>People couldn't see each other, and they couldn't go anywhere for three days. But the Israelites all had light where they lived.

<sup>24</sup>Then Pharaoh called Moses and said, "Go! Worship the LORD! Only your flocks and herds need to stay behind. Even your children can go with you."

<sup>25</sup>But Moses said, "You need to let us have sacrifices and entirely burned offerings to present to the LORD our God. <sup>26</sup>So our livestock must go with us. Not one animal can be left behind. We'll need some of them for worshipping the LORD our God. We won't know which to use to worship the LORD until we get there."

The Reed Sea or the Red Sea? The Hebrew phrase yam sup means "Reed Sea" and may best be understood as a general term for a body of water full of reeds or rushes rather than as a name for a specific lake or sea. The term appears over 20 times in the OT, five of which occur in Exodus (Exod 10:19; 13:18; 15:4, 22; 23:31). Early biblical translations of the phrase from Hebrew to Greek (the Septuagint) and to Latin (the Vulgate) understood yam sup to refer to the large and well-known sea to the south and east of Egypt along the western edge of the Arabian Peninsula known as the Red Sea. This traditional translation influenced many English translations up to the present day. However, reeds or rushes do not grow in the salty Red Sea, so yam sup (Reed Sea) does not seem to match well with the Red Sea. Moreover, the Israelite slaves lived in the delta region of the Nile River in northern Egypt (the land of Goshen—Gen 47:27; 8:22; 9:26), and their escape route to the wilderness and Canaan should have sent them through marshy bodies of water in northern Egypt, not much farther south to the Red Sea. It may be that the Greek and Latin translators had in mind the Gulf of Suez, which lies alongside the eastern boundary of Egypt and is one of two fingers of water that extend north from the Red Sea (Gulfs of Suez and Aqaba/Eilat).

10:16-17 I've sinned... forgive... Pray: Pharaoh had admitted his sin once before (Exod 9:27) but then changed his mind (Exod 9:34). He may say the right words, but he is unable to follow through with the right actions (Exod 10:20).
10:18 Moses... prayed to the LORD: See note on Exodus 9:33.
10:19 The wind blowing the locusts into the Reed Sea so that not one locust was left points ahead to what will happen to Pharaoh and his army. In the end, God will use a wind to drown them in the Reed Sea (Exod 15:10). Not one of Pharaoh's army will remain (Exod 14:28). These details are a sign that Pharaoh's end is coming ever closer.

10:19 the Reed Sea may refer to a smaller lake filled with reeds somewhere east of the Nile River delta region. Its exact location is unknown. The later Greek translation of Exodus (the Septuagint) incorrectly translated the Hebrew phrase as the much larger and better known "Red Sea," which lies farther south along the western edge of the Arabian Peninsula. See sidebar, "The Reed Sea or the Red Sea?"

10:21-29 The ninth disaster in Egypt. Darkness comes upon all of Egypt for three days. This disaster may not seem as harsh as some of the others. However, one should understand that these disasters undo the order and boundaries of creation. Recall that the Bible's first creation story begins at a time before light was created: "The earth was without shape or form, it was dark over the deep sea" (Gen 1:2). The first act of God's creation was the creation of light (Gen 1:3). In effect, the three days of darkness bring Egypt back for a time to the chaotic beginnings of creation when there was no light and only darkness.

10:23 Once again the disaster affects only the Egyptians and not the Israelites. The Israelites are probably living in the separate land of Goshen. See note on Exodus 8:22.

10:24-25 Pharaoh again gives in a little but not enough (Exod 8:25, 28; 10:8-10). This time Pharaoh will allow all Israelites to go into the wilderness and offer sacrifices to God. The only exception is that Pharaoh won't allow the Israelites to take their animals with them. Moses insists that the animals must come with them since they will be offered as sacrifices to God. See note on Exodus 3:18.

God announces the final disaster

11 The LORD said to Moses, "I'll bring one more disaster on Pharaoh and on Egypt. After that, he'll let you go from here. In fact, when he lets you go, he'll eagerly chase you out of here. <sup>2</sup>Tell every man to ask his neighbor and every woman to ask her neighbor for all their silver and gold jewelry." <sup>3</sup>The LORD made sure that the Egyptians were kind to the Hebrew people. In addition, Pharaoh's officials and the Egyptian people even came to honor Moses as a great and important man in the land.

<sup>9</sup>The LORD said to Moses, "Pharaoh won't listen to you so that I can perform even more amazing acts in the land of Egypt." <sup>10</sup>Now Moses and Aaron did all these amazing acts in front of Pharaoh, but the LORD made Pharaoh stubborn so that he didn't let the Israelites go from his land.

First Passover

12 The LORD said to Moses and Aaron in the land of Egypt, <sup>2</sup>"This month will be the first month; it will be the first month of the year for you." <sup>3</sup>Tell the whole Israelite

10:27 See note on Exodus 9:12.

10:28–29 never see my face again: Pharaoh predicts his own death without realizing it. Moses agrees that he will never see Pharaoh's face again. Pharaoh and his army will soon be destroyed by the Lord (Exod 14:26–28). This is a sign that the last and greatest disaster against Egypt is coming in the near future.

11:1–10 Moses warns Pharaoh about the tenth and final disaster to come upon Egypt. God had announced this final plague in Exodus 4:22–23.

11:1–2 God promises Moses that this last disaster will be so severe that the Egyptians will gladly give the Israelites silver and gold as a way to encourage them to leave Egypt. God originally made this prediction in Exodus 3:22. It will come true in Exodus 12:35–36. This gold and silver will be used later on two occasions at Mount Sinai. The Israelites will provide the metal to make the gold calf, which they worship as an idol (Exod 32:2–5). Later the Israelites will offer materials of silver, gold, and fine cloth to build the special dwelling or tent for God and all its equipment (Exod 25:1–9; 35:20–29; 36–37).

11:2 neighbor: Although previous texts depicted the Israelites living separate from the Egyptians (e.g., Exod 8:22), this verse suggests that at least some Israelites and Egyptians lived near each other (see also Exod 12:23). This is an example of how different ancient traditions have been woven together into the present book of Exodus.

11:5 The final disaster will involve the death of Every oldest child in every Egyptian family, from Pharaoh's family on down. In Exodus 4:22–23, God had said that Pharaoh's oldest son would die. Those words are expanded here to include all Egyptian families and even animals. Israel's

God is the creator of all beings. Therefore, God claims the right to take back every oldest male whom God chooses, whether human or animal (Exod 13:1–2; Gen 22:15–18; Num 3:11–13).

11:7 the LORD makes a distinction: God has kept Israel separate and safe from the previous disasters that struck the Egyptians (Exod 8:22–23; 9:4, 6–7, 26; 10:23). The Israelites will be kept safe from this last and greatest disaster as well. When the Egyptians see how Israel is protected, the Egyptians finally will know the power of Israel's God. God is deeply interested in what the Egyptians think about God (Exod 7:5; 8:10, 22–23; 9:14, 29; 14:4, 18; 32:11–14).

11:8 Moses, furious: As God's messenger, Moses not only speaks God's words but also feels God's emotion of anger (Exod 11:18; see Exod 32:11, 19).

11:10 the LORD made Pharaoh stubborn: See note on Exodus 9:12.

12:1–32 The Lord gives instructions about how Israelites should observe the annual festivals of Passover and Unleavened Bread. The Passover meal with the roasted lamb and its blood smeared on the doorposts plays an immediate role in the story of the exodus (12:7, 21–23). In addition, Passover is presented as an annual festival to be celebrated in the spring of every year by all future generations (12:14, 24–27). The full seven-day Festival of Unleavened Bread occurs alongside the Passover. It is intended for a later time after the Israelites have arrived in the land of Canaan (12:17–20; Exod 13:3–8). The Israelites leave Egypt the very next day after the night of Passover (12:29–32).

12:2 the first month of the year: Israel's religious calendar begins in the spring of the year (sometime in April–May community: On the tenth day of this month they must take a lamb for each household, a lamb per house. <sup>4</sup>If a household is too small for a lamb, it should share one with a neighbor nearby. You should divide the lamb in proportion to the number of people who will be eating it. <sup>5</sup>Your lamb should be a flawless year-old male. You may take it from the sheep or from the goats. <sup>6</sup>You should keep close watch over it until the fourteenth day of this month. At twilight on that day, the whole assembled Israelite community should slaughter their lambs. <sup>7</sup>They should take some of the blood and smear it on the two doorposts and on the beam over the door of the houses in which they are eating. <sup>8</sup>That same night they should eat the meat roasted over the fire. They should eat it along with unleavened bread and bitter herbs. <sup>9</sup>Don't eat any of it raw or boiled in water, but roasted over fire with its head, legs, and internal organs. <sup>10</sup>Don't let any of it remain until morning, and burn any of it left over in the morning. <sup>11</sup>This is how you should eat it. You should be dressed, with your sandals on your feet and your walking stick in your hand. You should eat the meal in a hurry. It is the Passover of the LORD. <sup>12</sup>I'll pass through the land of Egypt that night, and I'll strike down every oldest child in the land of Egypt, both humans and animals. I'll impose judgments on all the gods of Egypt. I am the LORD. <sup>13</sup>The blood will be your sign on the houses where you live. Whenever I see the blood, I'll pass over<sup>a</sup> you. No plague will destroy you when I strike the land of Egypt.

<sup>14</sup>This day will be a day of remembering for you. You will observe it as a festival to the LORD. You will observe it in every generation as a regulation for all time. <sup>15</sup>You will eat unleavened bread for seven days. On the first day you must remove yeast from your houses because anyone who eats leavened bread anytime during those seven days will be cut off from Israel. <sup>16</sup>The first day and the seventh day will be a holy occasion for you. No work at all should be done on those days, except for preparing the food that everyone is going to eat. That is the only work you may do. <sup>17</sup>You should observe the Festival of Unleavened Bread, because on this precise day I brought you out of the land of Egypt in military formation. You should observe this day in every generation as a regulation for all time. <sup>18</sup>In the first month, from the evening of the fourteenth day until the evening of the twenty-first day, you should eat unleavened bread. <sup>19</sup>For seven days no yeast should be found in your houses because whoever eats leavened bread will be cut off from the Israelite community, whether of our modern calendar). The biblical name for this first month in some traditions is Abib (Exod 13:4; 23:15; 34:18; Deut 16:1). In some later biblical traditions, the same month is called Nisan (Neh 2:1; Esth 3:7). Other biblical traditions use an entirely different calendar based on farming cycles of planting and harvesting. This alternate agricultural calendar sets the first month of the year in autumn after the fall harvest of grain (Exod 23:16; 34:22).

12:5 flawless: Animal sacrifices offered to the Lord are typically required to be healthy and in good form (Exod 29:1; Lev 3:1; 22:21; Num 28:3).

12:7 take some of the blood and smear it: so that the plague of the death of the oldest sons will pass over the Israelite homes and attack only the Egyptian homes (Exod 12:12-13, 21-23).

12:8 unleavened bread and bitter herbs: These elements in the Passover meal came to have symbolic meaning. The unleavened bread recalls the speed with which Israel suddenly had to leave Egypt. The Israelites didn't have time to wait for bread with yeast to rise as part of the baking process (Exod 12:11, 33-34). The bitter herbs recall the bitterness of the suffering and slavery of the Israelites in Egypt (Exod 2:23).

12:9 The meat of the lamb was to be roasted so that its blood would be drained and not eaten. Blood was considered to bear the essence of a creature's life. Thus the blood of any meat that was eaten had to be poured back to the ground after slaughter and allowed to return back to God, its creator (Gen 9:4; Lev 17:3-6, 11, 14; Deut 12:16). A second version of the Passover instruction in Deuteronomy 16:7 commands that the Israelites "cook" (that is, boil) the lamb meat rather than roast it. The text of 2 Chronicles 35:13 appears to harmonize the two traditions of roasting and boiling the Passover lamb.

12:11 Passover: The name of this festival comes from the Hebrew verb that we translate as "to pass over." The name recalls how the Lord's destroyer passed over Israelite homes so that no Israelites died during the plague, only Egyptians (see Exod 12:23, 27).

12:12 the gods of Egypt: It's assumed that other gods exist as gods of other nations. These other gods, however, are powerless before the Lord (Exod 15:11; see Exod 9:11, 14).

12:15 cut off from Israel: The phrase may not necessarily mean capital punishment imposed by the community. Rather, God is frequently the one who will cut off the person, meaning an early death without children left behind (Lev 17:10; 20:1-6; 23:29-30). The harsh punishment covers a range of ritual or sexual misconduct. (Exod 30:33, 38; 31:14; Gen 17:14; Lev 7:20, 21, 25, 27; 17:4, 9, 14; 18:29; 19:8; 20:17-18; 22:3; 23:29; Num 9:13; 19:13, 20). The violations are often done "deliberately" (or "with a high hand") (cf. Num 15:30-31) and in secret, making them difficult to detect. In those cases, God imposes the penalty. In other instances, the community can play a role in the punishment (e.g., Exod 31:14; cf. Num 15:32-36; see also Lev 20:2-6).

the person is an immigrant or a native of the land. <sup>20</sup>You should not eat anything made with yeast in all your settlements. You should eat only unleavened bread."

<sup>21</sup>Then Moses called together all of Israel's elders and said to them, "Go pick out one of the flock for your families, and slaughter the Passover lamb. <sup>22</sup>Take a bunch of hyssop, dip it into the blood that is in the bowl, and touch the beam above the door and the two doorposts with the blood in the bowl. None of you should go out the door of your house until morning. <sup>23</sup>When the LORD comes by to strike down the Egyptians and sees the blood on the beam above the door and on the two doorposts, the LORD will pass over that door. He won't let the destroyer enter your houses to strike you down. <sup>24</sup>You should observe this ritual as a regulation for all time for you and your children. <sup>25</sup>When you enter the land that the LORD has promised to give you, be sure that you observe this ritual. <sup>26</sup>And when your children ask you, 'What does this ritual mean to you?' <sup>27</sup>you will say, 'It is the Passover sacrifice to the LORD, for the LORD passed over the houses of the Israelites in Egypt. When he struck down the Egyptians, he spared our houses.' The people then bowed down and worshipped. <sup>28</sup>The Israelites went and did exactly what the LORD had commanded Moses and Aaron to do.

The Festivals of Passover and Unleavened Bread These two festivals of Passover and Unleavened Bread likely had different origins, but they have been woven together in the story of the exodus. The Passover is a nighttime meal celebrated on one day (Exod 12:1-13). The Festival of Unleavened Bread lasts seven days. It was not celebrated by the Israelites in Egypt itself but only by future generations when they came into the land of Canaan (Exod 12:14-20). Some biblical texts discuss the Festival of Unleavened Bread without any mention of Passover (Exod 23:15; 34:18). Other texts combine Passover and Unleavened Bread as one festival following the other (Lev 23:5-6; Num 28:16-17) or as one integrated festival (Deut 16:1-8). The immediate purpose of Passover for the Israelites was to mark their homes with the blood of the Passover lamb to protect their oldest sons from death (Exod 12:7, 13, 22-23). The second function of Passover and Unleavened Bread was for future generations to remember the story of Israel's exodus from Egypt (Exod 12:14-17, 24-27). The Passover meal was the occasion for the Lord's Supper, which Jesus celebrated with his 12 disciples on the evening before his crucifixion in Jerusalem (Matt 26:17-29; Mark 14:12-25; Luke 22:1-20).

Death of Egypt's oldest children

Israel set free

12:22 hyssop: a bushy plant often used for ritual purposes (Lev 14:4, 6; Num 19:6).

12:23 the destroyer: an angel-like figure used by God to bring judgment and death (see 2 Sam 24:16-17 for a similar figure). In Exodus 12:12-13, God is the one who will kill the oldest children directly; no destroyer is mentioned.

12:25 the land . . . to give you: See Exodus 3:8; 6:4-8.

12:26-27 The future celebrations of the Passover meal should focus on children and their questions about the meaning of the ritual meal. The meaning arises from retelling and reclaiming the story of the exodus for every new generation (the Lord spared our houses).

12:29-32 The tenth and final disaster in Egypt. The terrifying death of all of Egypt's oldest children and animals fulfills the Lord's prediction and warning given in Exodus 11:4-8 (see also Exod 4:23). As a result, Pharaoh finally lets the Israelites go so that they can Worship the Lord (12:31). Moses had demanded all along only that Pharaoh let the Israelites go on a three-day journey out of Egypt into the wilderness in order to worship and make sacrifices to the Lord (Exod 3:18; 4:23; 5:3; 7:16; 8:1, 20, 25-28; 9:1, 13; 10:3, 7, 11, 24-25). The Lord's actual plan was always to remove the Israelites permanently from their slavery in Egypt and bring them to settle in the promised land of Canaan (Exod 3:17; 6:4-8).

12:33 hurry and leave: The Egyptians plead with the Israelites to leave quickly. This plea provides the reason why the Passover meal is to be eaten hurriedly (Exod 12:11). It also explains the symbolism of the unleavened bread. The bakers don't have time for the bread to rise (Exod 12:34, 39).

12:35 silver and gold jewelry . . . their clothing: The Egyptians are so anxious to get rid of the Israelites after the deaths of told them and asked the Egyptians for their silver and gold jewelry as well as their clothing. <sup>36</sup>The LORD made sure that the Egyptians were kind to the people so that they let them have whatever they asked for. And so they robbed the Egyptians.

Instructions for observing Passover

<sup>50</sup>All the Israelites did just as the LORD had commanded Moses and Aaron. <sup>51</sup>On that precise day, the LORD brought the Israelites out of the land of Egypt in military formation.

13 The LORD said to Moses: <sup>2</sup>Dedicate to me all your oldest children. Each first offspring from any Israelite womb belongs to me, whether human or animal.

Unleavened bread

<sup>3</sup>Moses said to the people, "Remember this day which is the day that you came out of Egypt, out of the place you were slaves, because the LORD acted with power to bring you out their oldest children that they willingly give the Israelites silver, gold, and clothing. See note on Exodus 11:2.

12:36 The Israelites robbed the Egyptians as a concrete sign that the Lord had won the battle against Pharaoh.

12:37 The city of Rameses is one of the cities that the Israelite slaves built for Pharaoh (Exod 1:11). Succoth is the first place outside Egypt on Israel's journey into the wilderness. It recalls the annual Festival of Sukkoth (a Hebrew word meaning "booths" or "huts"), when Israelite families built temporary shelters and lived in them for a period of time (Lev 23:42-43; Deut 16:13-17). six hundred thousand men: This is the number of men eligible to be warriors. If one adds women, children, and elderly people, the total population of the Israelites would have been incredibly large at more than two million people. A similar number is given in a census of Israelites in Numbers 1:46 (a total of 603,550 warriors; see also Num 26:51). In these ancient times, an army of 20,000 warriors would have been considered quite large.

12:38 A diverse crowd: The group of slaves who ran out of Egypt with the Israelites included a mix of people of different races and ethnic backgrounds (see Num 11:4). The mention of ethnically diverse peoples among the Israelites may be the reason for teachings about foreigners and immigrants taking part in the Passover meal in Exodus 12:43-49. 12:39 See note on Exodus 12:33. 12:40-41 four hundred thirty years: This length of time for Israel's stay in Egypt is close to the 400 years predicted in Genesis 15:13. Another tradition in Genesis 15:16 predicted a time period of four generations (about 160 years, assuming 40 years per generation). This would match up with Moses as a member of the fourth generation of Israelites who lived in Egypt (Exod 6:16-20).

12:43-49 These additional Passover instructions about foreigners and immigrants may be related to the mention of a "diverse crowd" that accompanied the Israelites as they escaped from Egypt (Exod 12:38). On circumcision, see note on Exodus 4:24-26.

12:46 shouldn't break the bones: The bones of the Passover lamb are to remain intact. This finds an echo in the Gospel of John regarding Jesus on the cross (John 19:32-36; see John 1:29, 36).

13:1-16 God gives Moses additional instructions about dedicating the oldest child of every family to God and celebrating the Festival of Unleavened Bread. The teaching points forward to a time when Israel will leave Egypt behind and live in the land of Canaan (Exod 13:5, 11).

13:1-2 The death of Egypt's oldest children (Exod 12:29) connects to a broader claim that all oldest children among the Israelites also belong to God and should be dedicated to the Lord (Exod 13:15). The claim is repeated in the teaching at Exodus 22:29.

of there. No leavened bread may be eaten. <sup>4</sup>Today, in the month of Abib,<sup>a</sup> you are going to leave. <sup>5</sup>The LORD will bring you to the land of the Canaanites, the Hittites, the Amorites, the Hivites, and the Jebusites. It is the land that the LORD promised your ancestors to give to you, a land full of milk and honey. You should perform this ritual in this month. <sup>6</sup>You must eat unleavened bread for seven days. The seventh day is a festival to the LORD. <sup>7</sup>Only unleavened bread should be eaten for seven days. No leavened bread and no yeast should be seen among you in your whole country. <sup>8</sup>You should explain to your child on that day, 'It's because of what the LORD did for me when I came out of Egypt.'

All of the first males born to your animal belong to the LORD. <sup>13</sup>But every first male donkey you should ransom with a sheep. If you don't ransom it, you must break its neck. You should ransom every oldest male among your children. <sup>14</sup>When in the future your child asks you, 'What does this mean?' you should answer, 'The LORD brought us with great power out of Egypt, out of the place we were slaves. <sup>15</sup>When Pharaoh refused to let us go, the LORD killed all the oldest offspring in the land of Egypt, from the oldest sons to the oldest male animals. That is why I offer to the LORD as a sacrifice every male that first comes out of the womb. But I ransom my oldest sons.' <sup>16</sup>It will be a sign on your hand and a symbol on your forehead that the LORD brought us out of Egypt with great power."

God leads the way

<sup>17</sup>When Pharaoh let the people go, God didn't lead them by way of the land of the Philistines, even though that was the shorter route. God thought, If the people have to fight and face war, they will run back to Egypt. <sup>18</sup>So God led the people by the roundabout way of the Reed Sea<sup>a</sup> desert. The Israelites went up out of the land of Egypt ready for battle.

the festival's primary teaching purpose: to explain to your child . . . what the LORD did for me and to discuss the LORD's Instruction (13:8-9).

<sup>13-16</sup> sign on your hand . . . reminder on your forehead: These items refer to seals or ornaments attached to the hand and forehead as symbols. They remind the Israelites of the Lord's deliverance out of Egypt. They cause discussion of God's teachings, guiding both action (what you do with your hands) and thought (what you think with your head). This command occurs here and in three other places: Exodus 13:16; Deuteronomy 6:8; 11:18. These biblical texts are the basis for the Jewish practice of wearing phylacteries (also called tefillin) during weekday morning prayers. The phylacteries are two small leather boxes, each one containing miniature written versions of the four biblical texts. One box is tied to the head, and the other is bound to the arm, both with leather straps.

<sup>13:13-15</sup> The broad claim made in Exodus 13:1-2 about the dedication of every oldest child to God is clarified here. The first offspring of any domestic animal should be dedicated and offered as an entirely burned sacrifice to God. The oldest son in an Israelite family is also to be dedicated to God. However, rather than sacrifice the child, the parents should ransom their oldest child (13:13, 15). Later instructions provide that the members of the priestly tribe of Levi may act as substitutes and thus act as ransom for the oldest sons of the other Israelite tribes and families (Num 3:11-13). The Levites were not literally sacrificed. Instead, the Levites were priestly assistants who dedicated their lives to serving God by helping Aaron and the other priests in the worship and sacrifices in the meeting tent (Exod 38:21). Alternatively, parents may pay money to the priests as ransom for their oldest child (Num 3:40-51; 18:15-16). The dedication and ransom are thankful responses to what the Lord did for Israel in saving them from Egypt's slavery (13:14-16). See also Exodus 34:19-20; Numbers 8:16-18; Deuteronomy 15:19.

<sup>13:13</sup> The donkey is considered an unclean or impure animal according to the priestly criteria of Leviticus 11:2-8. Sheep are considered ritually clean by the same criteria. Thus, a sheep may be offered as a ransom for the oldest offspring of a donkey. If a sheep isn't available, the donkey's neck is broken. As an unclean animal, the donkey can't be slaughtered in the usual way that clean animals are sacrificed. Israelites may eat the meat of only clean animals, not unclean animals.

<sup>13:17-18</sup> land of the Philistines: The Philistines were a people who lived on the western border of Canaan along the shore of the Mediterranean Sea. This would have been the most direct route to Canaan. However, God believed that the Israelites needed more time to prepare for war against the Canaanites. Thus the Israelites traveled instead by the roundabout way of the Reed Sea; see sidebar, "The Reed Sea or the Red Sea?" at Exodus 10. This is the sea that Israel will cross and in which Pharaoh and his army will be drowned (Exod 14:21-28).

19Moses took with him Joseph's bones just as Joseph had made Israel's sons promise when he said to them, "When God takes care of you, you must carry my bones out of here with you."<sup>20</sup>They set out from Succoth and camped at Etham on the edge of the desert. 21The LORD went in front of them during the day in a column of cloud to guide them and at night in a column of lightning to give them light. This way they could travel during the day and at night. 22The column of cloud during the day and the column of lightning at night never left its place in front of the people.

Israel crossing the sea

14 Then the LORD said to Moses: 2Tell the Israelites to turn back and set up camp in front of Pi-hahiroth, between Migdol and the sea in front of Baal-zephon. You should set up camp in front of it by the sea. 3Pharaoh will think to himself, The Israelites are lost and confused in the land. The desert has trapped them. 4I'll make Pharaoh stubborn, and he'll chase them. I'll gain honor at the expense of Pharaoh and all his army, and the Egyptians will know that I am the LORD. And they did exactly that.

5When Egypt's king was told that the people had run away, Pharaoh and his officials changed their minds about the people. They said, "What have we done, letting Israel go free from their slavery to us?" 6So he sent for his chariot and took his army with him. 7He took six hundred elite chariots and all of Egypt's other chariots with captains on all of them. 8The LORD made Pharaoh, Egypt's king, stubborn, and he chased the Israelites, who were leaving confidently. 9The Egyptians, including all of Pharaoh's horse-drawn chariots, his cavalry, and his army, chased them and caught up with them as they were camped by the sea, by Pi-hahiroth in front of Baal-zephon.

10As Pharaoh drew closer, the Israelites looked back and saw the Egyptians marching toward them. The Israelites were terrified and cried out to the LORD. 11They said to Moses, "Weren't there enough graves in Egypt that you took us away to die in the desert? What have you done to us by bringing us out of Egypt like this? 12Didn't we tell you the same thing in Egypt? 'Leave us alone! Let us work for the Egyptians!' It would have been better for us to work for the Egyptians than to die in the desert."

13But Moses said to the people, "Don't be afraid. Stand your ground, and watch the LORD rescue you today. The Egyptians you see today you will never ever see again. 14The LORD will fight for you. You just keep still."

13:19 Joseph's bones: Generations earlier, Joseph had requested that his bones be taken from Egypt and buried back in the land of Canaan (Gen 50:24-26). Moses makes sure to honor his ancestor's request.

13:20 Succoth: See note on Exodus 12:37.

13:21-22 God is present within the column of cloud by day and the column of lightning by night. The columns of cloud and lightning seem to be one and the same, just visible in different ways depending on the time of day (Exod 14:24-25; 24:15-17; 40:34-38). The images of cloud and lightning reflect how the Lord is often described with images of a powerful storm, dazzling light, and other awesome forces of nature (Exod 15:8-10; 19:16-19; Pss 18:7-15; 29:1-11; see note on Exod 33:18). The column of cloud or lightning as the visible expression of God's presence marks three important moments in the story of Exodus: God's defeat of the Egyptians at the Reed Sea (Exod 14:19, 24-25), the Lord's coming down on Mount Sinai to give the commandments and instructions to Israel (Exod 19:16-19), and the climactic moment when God's presence in the cloud settles on the meeting tent or dwelling built by the Israelites (Exod 40:34-38).

14:1-31 Israel eventually crosses the Reed Sea safely while the Lord defeats Pharaoh and his army. Pharaoh had commanded the drowning of Hebrew babies in the Nile River at the beginning of the book of Exodus (Exod 1:22). Now Pharaoh himself and his army will be drowned in the Reed Sea (14:26-28).

14:1-3 the LORD commands Moses to make the Israelites turn around and come back toward the land of Egypt. God wishes to tempt Pharaoh to chase after the Israelites one more time. The place-names (Pi-hahiroth, Migdol, Baal-zephon) are unknown but are probably located in the border region of northeast Egypt.

14:4 I'll make Pharaoh stubborn: God has repeatedly made Pharaoh stubborn during the series of disasters. See notes on Exodus 4:21; 9:12. God is interested that the Egyptians will know that Israel's God is the LORD. The earlier instructions for the Festival of Passover (Exod 12-13) had been aimed at helping Israel to know and remember the amazing things that God had done against the Egyptians. God also wants the Egyptians to know and not forget who the LORD is (see also Exod 7:5; 8:10, 22-23; 9:14, 29; 14:18; 32:11-14).

14:9 horse-drawn chariots... cavalry... army: Pharaoh is approaching the Israelites with the full weight of his military might, which causes the Israelites to be terrified (Exod 14:10).

14:12 Didn't we tell you?: The Israelites refer back to an earlier time when they also complained to Moses (Exod 5:19-21). Their complaints against Moses will continue throughout Israel's future journey in the wilderness (Exod 15:22-26; 17:1-7; Num 11:1-6; 14:1-5; 20:2-13; 21:4-9).

14:13 The Egyptians... you will never ever see again: Moses tells the Israelites what he had earlier told directly to Pharaoh (Exod 10:28-29).

14:14 The LORD will fight for you: This image of God as a warrior occurs frequently in the OT. Sometimes God fights

<sup>15</sup>Then the LORD said to Moses, “Why do you cry out to me? Tell the Israelites to get moving. <sup>16</sup>As for you, lift your shepherd’s rod, stretch out your hand over the sea, and split it in two so that the Israelites can go into the sea on dry ground. <sup>17</sup>But me, I’ll make the Egyptians stubborn so that they will go in after them, and I’ll gain honor at the expense of Pharaoh, all his army, his chariots, and his cavalry. <sup>18</sup>The Egyptians will know that I am the LORD, when I gain honor at the expense of Pharaoh, his chariots, and his cavalry.”

<sup>26</sup>Then the LORD said to Moses, “Stretch out your hand over the sea so that the water comes back and covers the Egyptians, their chariots, and their cavalry.” <sup>27</sup>So Moses stretched out his hand over the sea. At daybreak, the sea returned to its normal depth. The Egyptians were driving toward it, and the LORD tossed the Egyptians into the sea. <sup>28</sup>The waters returned and covered the chariots and the cavalry, Pharaoh’s entire army that had followed them into the sea. Not one of them remained. <sup>29</sup>The Israelites, however, walked on dry ground through the sea. The waters formed a wall for them on their right hand and on their left.

<sup>30</sup>The LORD rescued Israel from the Egyptians that day. Israel saw the Egyptians dead on the seashore. <sup>31</sup>Israel saw the amazing power of the LORD against the Egyptians. The people were in awe of the LORD, and they believed in the LORD and in his servant Moses.

Moses’ victory song

15 Then Moses and the Israelites sang this song to the LORD:
I will sing to the LORD, for an overflowing victory!

Horse and rider he threw into the sea!

he has become my salvation.

against Israel’s enemies (Exod 15:3; Deut 1:30; Josh 10:14; Ps 24:8; Isa 42:13). Sometimes the Lord fights against God’s own people when they have sinned (Isa 10:5; Ezek 21:1-5). Sometimes God doesn’t take sides and stands ready to fight against either Israel or its enemies (Josh 5:13-15). In Exodus, God fights against Pharaoh, and Israel only has to keep still. 14:15 God just told Israel to “keep still” (14:14), but now God instructs Israel to get moving. Moses will stretch his rod over the sea, and God will split the waters and expose dry ground. Israel will walk to safety through the split waters of the sea. Two traditions seem to be woven together here. One tradition emphasizes God alone directly fighting against Pharaoh while Israel stood and watched (Exod 14:19-20, 24-25, 30-31). The second tradition emphasizes God working through Moses and his rod to split the waters of the sea while Israel walked on dry ground through the sea (14:15-18, 21-23, 26-29). A third tradition retells the same event in yet another way in the Song of Moses (Exod 15:1-10). The three different traditions about the battle at the sea all contribute their own unique perspective to this one event. They mark the importance of God’s victory at the sea as a high point in Israel’s memory.

14:17 I’ll make the Egyptians stubborn: See notes on Exodus 4:21; 9:12.

14:18 The Egyptians will know: See note on Exodus 14:4.

14:19 God’s messenger: another way of describing God’s presence in the column of cloud (see Exod 14:24). For the most part in Exodus, there seems virtually no difference between the direct appearance of God and the appearance of God’s messenger (Heb. m'l'k). They seem to be one and the same (see Exod 3:2, 4-5; 14:19, 24, 25). In a few cases, God and the messenger seem to be distinguished as separate, although closely related (Exod 23:20-22; 32:34; 33:2-3).

14:25 The Egyptians have finally come to know the LORD as the one who is fighting . . . against Egypt (see Exod 14:18 and the note on Exod 14:4).

15:1-21 God’s defeat of Pharaoh and rescue of Israel is celebrated with two songs. Moses sings (15:1-18), and then Miriam sings her song (15:21). The Song of Moses provides another poetic account of what happened in the battle between God and Pharaoh at the sea (see note on Exod 14:15). For example, the song makes no mention of the Israelites passing through the sea on dry ground (Exod 14:22). Both songs are written in Hebrew poetry. The poetry is rich with imagery, metaphors, and emotion. The poetic lines are generally in either couplets (two doubled or parallel lines—for example, 15:3) or triplets (three parallel lines—for example, 15:8). One important contrast in the poem involves stones, heavy lead, and a mountain. Pharaoh and the other enemies of God sink into the sea like a stone (15:5), drown like heavy lead (15:10) or freeze in fear like a stone (15:16). In contrast, God's people live in security and peace on another kind of stone, planted . . . on [the LORD's] own mountain (15:17).

15:3 The LORD is a warrior: see note on Exodus 14:14. On the LORD is his name, see Exodus 3:13–15; 6:3.

15:4 the Reed Sea: See note on Exodus 10:19.

15:11 Who is like you among the gods, LORD?: The question assumes that there are other gods worshipped by other nations and peoples. However, the Lord, the God of Israel, is superior to them. Other OT texts also appear to agree that other gods exist for other nations (Deut 32:8–9; Pss 86:8; 89:6–8). Some OT texts seem to deny the existence or power of other gods altogether (Isa 44:6–20).

15:12 The phrase earth swallowed them up works here as an image for the burial of the dead in a grave or for the dead going down into Sheol, the place of the dead (Isa 5:14). Compare Numbers 16:32, where disobedient Israelites are swallowed up in an earthquake.

15:13–18 The poem moves from celebrating God's past victory over Pharaoh in Egypt to God's future protection and guidance of Israel as it enters into the land of Canaan with God's sanctuary at its center (15:13, 17). Philistia's inhabitants live at the western border of Canaan (15:14). Edom lies to the south and east of Canaan, and Moab is on the eastern border (15:15).

the place, LORD, that you made your home,
the sanctuary, LORD, that your hand created.

<sup>19</sup>When Pharaoh's horses, chariots, and cavalry went into the sea, the LORD brought back the waters of the sea over them. But the Israelites walked through the sea on dry ground.

Miriam's victory song

<sup>20</sup>Then the prophet Miriam, Aaron's sister, took a tambourine in her hand. All the women followed her playing tambourines and dancing. <sup>21</sup>Miriam sang the refrain back to them:
Sing to the LORD, for an overflowing victory!
Horse and rider he threw into the sea!

The Sea of Chaos: God's Enemy or Ally? Creation myths from ancient cultures around Israel often portrayed the sea as a god of chaos, evil, and death. The divine sea and its monsters (named Leviathan or Rahab) fought against the good gods of life and order. The gods of life eventually won the battle over the sea and its fierce dragons, dividing the sea and drying it up. The OT borrows and adapts this imagery of the sea in some of its poetry. In Psalm 74:12-15, the poet addresses the Lord as a victorious king: "You split the sea with your power. You shattered the heads of the sea monsters on the water. . . . You split open springs and streams; you made strong-flowing rivers dry right up" (see also Isa 27:1; 51:9-10; Job 41:1-34). The poem in Exodus 15 adapts this imagery in new ways. The sea isn't the enemy of God but an ally. The Lord uses the sea as a weapon against Pharaoh and his army. Thrown into the sea, the Egyptians sink and drown (Exod 15:1, 4-5, 10).

15:17 planted them on your own mountain. . . the sanctuary. This verse likely refers to Mount Zion and the city of Jerusalem, where the Lord's temple will be built generations later under King Solomon (1 Kgs 6-8; Pss 48:1-14; 78:51-55). The building of the wilderness dwelling for the Lord and "the chest containing the covenant" at the end of Exodus point forward to the eventual building of the Jerusalem temple, which became the new home for the same "chest containing the covenant" (Exod 40:3, 20-21, 34-38; 1 Kgs 6:14, 19; 8:20-21). Both Jerusalem's Mount Zion and Mount Sinai/Horeb can be seen as the dwelling place and mountain of God (Exod 3:1, 12; 19:1-25; 24:1-14). See also Exodus 6:8.

15:20 the prophet Miriam leads the Israelite women in dance and song to celebrate the end of the battle and victory over the enemy. Her actions appear to reflect Israelite custom (Judg 11:34; 1 Sam 18:6-7). Miriam was a sister to both Aaron and Moses (Exod 2:4; Num 26:59). She is called a prophet or messenger of God. She is elsewhere listed with her brothers as one of the three leaders of Israel during their journey through the wilderness (Mic 6:4). She and Aaron later have a dispute with Moses about whether they also speak for God (Num 12:1-9).

15:22-17:7 In the barren desert, the runaway slaves immediately face a crisis: a lack of water (15:22-27; 17:1-7) and food (16:1-36). The people complain to Moses (15:24; 16:2-3; 17:2-3). God tells Moses that their complaints are justified and responds positively in each case.

God gives the people what they need (15:25; 16:11-14; 17:5-6). The Israelites are at the beginning of their wilderness journey. They will gradually struggle to learn that God will provide and meet their daily needs. At a much later stage of the journey, the people complain again. At that point the Lord will become angry because by then the Israelites should have learned to trust God (Num 11:1-3, 4-6, 10).

15:22-27 The most immediate crisis in the desert is the lack of water for all the Israelites.

15:23 Marah: The name means "bitter" in Hebrew. The bitterness made the water undrinkable.

15:25 Moses cried out to the LORD: Moses often takes on the role of praying to God on behalf of others in need (Exod 9:33; 32:11-14; Num 12:13; 14:13-20).

15:25 a tree. . . the water became sweet: In the first of the 10 disasters that God brought upon Egypt, the clear water of the Nile River was turned into undrinkable blood (Exod 7:14-25). Here at Marah, the process is reversed. Undrinkable water is made drinkable through the miracle of the tree. The 10 disasters in Egypt are replaced by nature returning to its intended function of sustaining life (see note on Exod 7:25). The prophet Elijah performed a similar life-giving miracle with water (2 Kgs 2:19-22).

15:25-26 he tested them: The Lord sets up a test of Israel's obedience (Exod 16:4; 17:7; see also Gen 22:1). If the Israelites obey God's commandments, then God won't bring upon Israel the diseases suffered by the Egyptians during

The LORD made a regulation and a ruling there, and there he tested them. <sup>26</sup>The LORD said, "If you are careful to obey the LORD your God, do what God thinks is right, pay attention to his commandments, and keep all of his regulations, then I won't bring on you any of the diseases that I brought on the Egyptians. I am the LORD who heals you."

<sup>27</sup>Then they came to Elim, where there were twelve springs of water and seventy palm trees. They camped there by the water.

Wilderness food: manna and quail

16 The whole Israelite community set out from Elim and came to the Sin desert, which is located between Elim and Sinai. They set out on the fifteenth day of the second month<sup>a</sup> after they had left the land of Egypt. <sup>2</sup>The whole Israelite community complained against Moses and Aaron in the desert. <sup>3</sup>The Israelites said to them, "Oh, how we wish that the LORD had just put us to death while we were still in the land of Egypt. There we could sit by the pots cooking meat and eat our fill of bread. Instead, you've brought us out into this desert to starve this whole assembly to death."

<sup>4</sup>Then the LORD said to Moses, "I'm going to make bread rain down from the sky for you. The people will go out each day and gather just enough for that day. In this way, I'll test them to see whether or not they follow my Instruction. <sup>5</sup>On the sixth day, when they measure out what they have collected, it will be twice as much as they collected on other days." <sup>6</sup>So Moses and Aaron said to all the Israelites, "This evening you will know that it was the LORD who brought you out of the land of Egypt. <sup>7</sup>And in the morning you will see the LORD's glorious presence, because your complaints against the LORD have been heard. Who are we? Why blame us?" <sup>8</sup>Moses continued, "The LORD will give you meat to eat in the evening and your fill of bread in the morning because the LORD heard the complaints you made against him. Who are we? Your complaints aren't against us but against the LORD."

<sup>9</sup>Then Moses said to Aaron, "Say to the whole Israelite community, 'Come near to the LORD, because he's heard your complaints.'" <sup>10</sup>As Aaron spoke to the whole Israelite community, they turned to look toward the desert, and just then the glorious presence of the LORD appeared in the cloud.

the 10 disasters. Just as Pharaoh and Egypt suffered consequences because of their disobedience, the Israelites are also subject to God's laws and may be punished (see the curses in Deut 28:27). The actual commandments and regulations will be given later at Mount Sinai, beginning in Exodus 19–24.

15:26 I am the LORD who heals you: This is the first of several stages of revealing the character of God through God's name in the book of Exodus. God's new name in Exodus began as "I Am Who I Am" (Exod 3:14). This episode of healing the people's thirst reveals something deeper about who God is: I am the LORD who heals you (see also Hos 7:1; 14:4). Further stages of revealing the full name and character of God will occur at several other key points in Exodus (Exod 20:2, 5–6; 29:45–46; 33:19; 34:6–7). We learn that God's ultimate desire for God's people is healing and life.

15:27 twelve springs of water: The water at Marah had been provided through a miracle. When the Israelites come to Elim, a great abundance of water is available more naturally in the many underground springs. The large number of palm trees suggests a flourishing oasis in the desert.

16:1–36 After water, food is the second-most-important element of basic human need. The Israelites complain to Moses and Aaron about the lack of food. God responds by sending daily bread or manna as well as meat in the form of birds called quail.

16:1 Sin desert: named because of how the Hebrew name sounds, not because of any connection with the English word "sin."

16:3 Oh, how we wish: The Israelites yearn for the "good old days" of slavery in Egypt. Their words are similar to what they said when Pharaoh was approaching them at the Reed Sea (Exod 14:11–12; see also Num 11:4–6). Looking back and yearning only for the past sometimes seems better than taking risks in freedom and moving into a new future.

16:4 I'll test them: God had earlier tested Israel with the water at Marah (Exod 15:25–26). The Lord tests Israel a second time by instructing them to go out each day and gather just enough bread for that one day and no more. The test is whether they trust that God will provide what they need each day. This story of the manna provides some of the background for the line in the Lord's Prayer that Jesus taught his disciples: "Give us the bread we need for today" (Matt 6:11; Luke 11:3; see Matt 6:25–34; Luke 12:22–31).

16:5 On the sixth day: The seventh day of every week is a holy Sabbath to the LORD (Exod 16:22–30). No one is to do any work on the Sabbath, including the work of picking up the daily bread or manna. As a result, twice as much manna will be given On the sixth day so that half of it can be carried over for the Sabbath day.

16:10 the glorious presence... in the cloud: God comes near to the people in the cloud in response to their need. Such appearances by God occur at critical points in the exodus story. The presence of the cloud marks the manna story as having special importance.

<sup>11</sup>The LORD spoke to Moses, <sup>12</sup>"I've heard the complaints of the Israelites. Tell them, 'At twilight you will eat meat. And in the morning you will have your fill of bread. Then you will know that I am the LORD your God.'"

<sup>13</sup>In the evening a flock of quail flew down and covered the camp. And in the morning there was a layer of dew all around the camp. <sup>14</sup>When the layer of dew lifted, there on the desert surface were thin flakes, as thin as frost on the ground. <sup>15</sup>When the Israelites saw it, they said to each other, "What<sup>a</sup> is it?" They didn't know what it was.

Moses said to them, "This is the bread that the LORD has given you to eat. <sup>16</sup>This is what the LORD has commanded: 'Collect as much of it as each of you can eat, one omer<sup>b</sup> per person. You may collect for the number of people in your household.'" <sup>17</sup>The Israelites did as Moses said, some collecting more, some less. <sup>18</sup>But when they measured it out by the omer, the ones who had collected more had nothing left over, and the ones who had collected less had no shortage. Everyone collected just as much as they could eat. <sup>19</sup>Moses said to them, "Don't keep any of it until morning." <sup>20</sup>But they didn't listen to Moses. Some kept part of it until morning, but it became infested with worms and stank. Moses got angry with them. <sup>21</sup>Every morning they gathered it, as much as each person could eat. But when the sun grew hot, it melted away.

<sup>22</sup>On the sixth day the people collected twice as much food as usual, two omers per person. All the chiefs of the community came and told Moses. <sup>23</sup>He said to them, "This is what the LORD has said, 'Tomorrow is a day of rest, a holy Sabbath to the LORD. Bake what you want to bake and boil what you want to boil. But you can set aside and keep all the leftovers until the next morning.'" <sup>24</sup>So they set the leftovers aside until morning, as Moses had commanded. They didn't stink or become infested with worms. <sup>25</sup>The next day Moses said, "Eat it today, because today is a Sabbath to the LORD. Today you won't find it out in the field. <sup>26</sup>Six days you will gather it. But on the seventh day, the Sabbath, there will be nothing to gather."

<sup>27</sup>On the seventh day some of the people went out to gather bread, but they found nothing. <sup>28</sup>The LORD said to Moses, "How long will you refuse to obey my commandments and instructions? <sup>29</sup>Look! The LORD has given you the Sabbath. Therefore, on the sixth day he gives you enough food for two days. Each of you should stay where you are and not leave your place on the seventh day." <sup>30</sup>So the people rested on the seventh day.

<sup>31</sup>The Israelite people called it manna. It was like coriander seed, white, and tasted like honey wafers. <sup>32</sup>Moses said, "This is what the LORD has commanded: 'Let an omer of it be kept safe for future generations so that they can see the food that I used to feed you in the desert when I brought you out of the land of Egypt.'"

The Sabbath Day of Rest The Sabbath commandment is one of the major Ten Commandments that will be given to Israel at Mount Sinai (Exod 20:8-11). Although the Sabbath commandment hasn't yet been formally given to the Israelites, the manna story assumes the Sabbath requirement is in place and expects the Israelites to obey it as they gather their food each day. Why is this? The reason goes back to the first chapters of Genesis. Resting on the seventh day of the week was already part of the rhythm of time ever since God first created the heavens and the earth. The creation was divided into six days, and on the seventh day God rested, making that day "holy" (Gen 2:1-3). The Sabbath is holy for all creation, according to Genesis 2:1-3. The Israelites, however, are the first people chosen by God to put the Sabbath into actual practice, beginning with the story of the manna. The Sabbath will also play an important role later in Exodus in the building of the tent for God's presence among the Israelites (see sidebar, "The Sabbath, Creation, and Building the Lord's Dwelling" at Exod 25:1).

16:15 What is it?: The word for What? in Hebrew is "man." It is a wordplay on manna, the name of the special bread (Exod 16:31).

16:22-30 The rule that no food should be collected on the Sabbath is part of God's test of the people's obedience (Exod 16:4). Some fail the test, and they are reminded of the need to rest on the Sabbath (16:27-30).

16:23-24 Bake what you want to bake... set the leftovers aside: Cooking food is prohibited on the Sabbath (see Exod 35:3).

16:31 tasted like honey wafers: Another biblical tradition describes the manna as tasting like "cakes baked in olive oil" (Num 11:8). Later interpreters took this disagreement about the taste of manna to mean that manna tasted like whatever your favorite food was. However, it seems likely that there were simply two different traditions about the taste of manna.

16:32-34 God commands that a jar of the manna be kept for future generations as a reminder that God provided food for the Israelites throughout their 40 years in the Then set it in the LORD's presence, where it should be kept safe for future generations."<sup>34</sup>Aaron did as the LORD commanded Moses, and he put it in front of the covenant document for safekeeping.<sup>35</sup>The Israelites ate manna for forty years, until they came to a livable land. They ate manna until they came to the border of the land of Canaan. (<sup>36</sup>An omer<sup>c</sup> is one-tenth of an ephah.)

Water from a rock

17The whole Israelite community broke camp and set out from the Sin desert to continue their journey, as the LORD commanded. They set up their camp at Rephidim, but there was no water for the people to drink. <sup>2</sup>The people argued with Moses and said, "Give us water to drink."

Moses said to them, "Why are you arguing with me? Why are you testing the LORD?"

<sup>3</sup>But the people were very thirsty for water there, and they complained to Moses, "Why did you bring us out of Egypt to kill us, our children, and our livestock with thirst?"

<sup>4</sup>So Moses cried out to the LORD, "What should I do with this people? They are getting ready to stone me."

<sup>5</sup>The LORD said to Moses, "Go on ahead of the people, and take some of Israel's elders with you. Take in your hand the shepherd's rod that you used to strike the Nile River, and go. <sup>6</sup>I'll be standing there in front of you on the rock at Horeb. Hit the rock. Water will come out of it, and the people will be able to drink." Moses did so while Israel's elders watched. <sup>7</sup>He called the place Massah<sup>d</sup> and Meribah,<sup>e</sup> because the Israelites argued with and tested the LORD, asking, "Is the LORD really with us or not?"

Israel defeats Amalek

desert. Looking forward, the manna jar is to be placed in the LORD's presence (16:33) and in front of the covenant document (16:34). This refers to God's wilderness dwelling, which will be built only later in Exodus 35–40.

16:35 This comment looks ahead 40 years to a time when Israel will enter and eat the food of the land of Canaan. Only then will the manna stop (Josh 5:6, 11–12).

17:1–7 The two previous stories portrayed God as the one who tested Israel when they had no water or food (Exod 15:25; 16:4). Here at a desert location called Rephidim, the Israelites were the ones who tested the LORD (17:1, 7). Once again, the issue is a lack of water. And again, God meets their need.

17:3 The Israelites complain to Moses about the lack of water in words similar to their earlier complaint in the manna story (Exod 16:3).

17:5 take . . . elders with you: God reminds Moses not to go alone but to take other leaders with him. This reminder points forward to the story about the need for Moses to share the burden of leadership with others in the community (Exod 18:1–27; see also Num 11:10–29). God tells Moses to pick up the same shepherd's rod that Moses had earlier used to turn the Nile River into blood, thus robbing the Egyptians of water (Exod 7:20). This time Moses' rod will be used not to take away water but rather to provide life-giving nourishment to the Israelites. Moses will hit the rock and water will flow from it (Exod 17:6). For a similar story, see Numbers 20:1–13.

17:6 God had first met Moses at the mountain of God called Horeb, which is also called Sinai (Exod 3:1; cf. Exod 19:11). God had promised that Moses would return to Horeb after leading the Israelites out of Egypt (Exod 3:12). Now God has fulfilled the promise.

17:7 Massah and Meribah: The two place names mean "test" and "argument" in Hebrew. God had responded positively to the Israelites' complaint, but at the same time their complaint seemed to be testing God. The people continue to wonder, "Is the LORD really with us or not?"

17:8–16 The first incident at Rephidim involved a natural threat to Israel's future: the lack of water (Exod 17:1). The second incident at Rephidim involves a human threat from the outside: an attack by Amalek and his army (17:8). The Israelites were runaway slaves. They were vulnerable and had few resources, which is why Amalek's attack was so morally shameful. Moses sends his assistant Joshua to lead the Israelites in fighting against Amalek's army (17:9). That won't be enough, however. Moses will also need God's and others' assistance. In the next story (Exod 18:1–27), Moses will also use help from others.

17:10–12 Hur: an elder and leader from the tribe of Judah (Exod 24:14; 31:2).

The Amalekites as Israel's Enemy God's command to "completely wipe out the memory of Amalek" may sound disturbing to our sensibilities (Exod 17:14; see also Deut 25:17-19; Num 24:20). God issued a similar blanket command to destroy all the Canaanites when Israel entered the land of Canaan because of the Canaanites' (or Amorites') wickedness (Deut 20:16-18; see also Gen 15:16; Deut 9:4). Eventually God had a change of heart and withdrew the command to kill all the Canaanites (Judg 2:20-23; 3:1-6). In contrast, nowhere in the Bible does God withdraw the command to destroy the Amalekites. In the world of the Bible, the Amalekites and the Canaanites symbolized the enemies of God and Israel (Num 14:45). The Amalekites kept reappearing in Israel's history. King Saul was ordered to wipe out the Amalekites, but he failed to kill the Amalekite king named Agag (1 Sam 15:1-35). Generations later, a man named Haman, described as a descendant of King Agag and thus an Amalekite, "planned to wipe out all the Jews" in Persia (Esth 3:1, 6). The Amalekites came to represent the continuing threat of any group or nation who sought to destroy God's people. The statement in Exodus 17:16 reflects this ongoing struggle: "The LORD is at war with Amalek in every generation."

<sup>14</sup>Then the LORD said to Moses, "Write this as a reminder on a scroll and read it to Joshua: I will completely wipe out the memory of Amalek under the sky."

Sharing the burden of leadership

18Jethro, Midian's priest and Moses' father-in-law, heard about everything that God had done for Moses and for God's people Israel, how the LORD had brought Israel out of Egypt. <sup>2</sup>Moses' father-in-law Jethro took with him Zipporah, Moses' wife whom he had sent away, <sup>3</sup>along with her two sons. One was named Gershom because he said, "I have been an immigrant<sup>g</sup> living in a foreign land." <sup>4</sup>The other was named Eliezer<sup>h</sup> because he said, "The God of my ancestors was my helper who rescued me from Pharaoh's sword." <sup>5</sup>Jethro, Moses' father-in-law, brought Moses' sons and wife back to him in the desert where he had set up camp at God's mountain. <sup>6</sup>He sent word to Moses: "I, your father-in-law Jethro, am coming to you along with your wife and her two sons." <sup>7</sup>Moses went out to meet his father-in-law, and he bowed down and kissed him. They asked each other how they were doing, and then they went into the tent. <sup>8</sup>Moses then told his father-in-law everything that the LORD had done to Pharaoh and to the Egyptians on Israel's behalf, all the difficulty they had on their journey, and how the LORD had rescued them. <sup>9</sup>Jethro was glad about all the good things that the LORD had done for Israel in saving them from the Egyptians' power.

17:14 Write this: This is the first example of Moses being told to write something on a scroll. He will write several other documents in his lifetime (Exod 24:4; 34:27; Num 33:2; Deut 31:9, 22, 24). Writing is the means by which words and memories live on for succeeding generations as a reminder. The people of Amalek live in an arid wilderness south of Canaan (Num 13:29), called the Negeb today. God's command to wipe out the Amalekites arose because of their ruthless attack on the weak and vulnerable Israelites.

17:15 "The LORD is my banner": Moses builds an altar and gives it a name. The altar and its name celebrate the power of the Lord's military victory against Amalek. It serves as a reminder for future generations.

18:1-27 Two other versions of this same story of Moses sharing authority among other leaders occur in Numbers 11:10-30 and Deuteronomy 1:9-18. Moses' Midianite father-in-law, Jethro, is the one who suggests the change in leadership structure here in Exodus 18. In Numbers 11, it is God who comes up with the idea. In Deuteronomy 1:9-18, Moses claims that the distribution of leadership was his own invention.

18:1 Jethro: Moses' Midianite father-in-law (Exod 3:1; 4:18), also known as Reuel (Exod 2:18) or as Hobab (Num 10:29-32; Judg 4:11).

18:2 Moses had married Zipporah in Midian (Exod 3:21) and then traveled with her and their son to Egypt to lead the Israelites out of slavery (Exod 4:20). Moses had apparently sent them away to live with Jethro at some point before the Israelites left Egypt. Jethro is now bringing them back to live with Moses (Exod 18:5).

18:3 Gershom: See note on Exodus 2:22.

18:11 the LORD is greater than all the gods: See note on Exodus 15:11.

18:12 Jethro is a Midianite priest (Exod 18:1; see Exod 2:16), and Aaron will become Israel's high priest (Exod sacrifices to God. Aaron came with all of Israel's elders to eat a meal with Moses' father-in-law in God's presence.

<sup>13</sup>The next day Moses sat as a judge for the people, while the people stood around Moses from morning until evening. <sup>14</sup>When Moses' father-in-law saw all that he was doing for the people, he said, "What's this that you are doing for the people? Why do you sit alone, while all the people are standing around you from morning until evening?"

<sup>15</sup>Moses said to his father-in-law, "Because the people come to me to inquire of God. <sup>16</sup>When a conflict arises between them, they come to me and I judge between the two of them. I also teach them God's regulations and instructions."

<sup>17</sup>Moses' father-in-law said to him, "What you are doing isn't good. <sup>18</sup>You will end up totally wearing yourself out, both you and these people who are with you. The work is too difficult for you. You can't do it alone. <sup>19</sup>Now listen to me and let me give you some advice. And may God be with you! Your role should be to represent the people before God. You should bring their disputes before God yourself. <sup>20</sup>Explain the regulations and instructions to them. Let them know the way they are supposed to go and the things they are supposed to do. <sup>21</sup>But you should also look among all the people for capable persons who respect God. They should be trustworthy and not corrupt. Set these persons over the people as officers of groups of thousands, hundreds, fifties, and tens. <sup>22</sup>Let them sit as judges for the people at all times. They should bring every major dispute to you, but they should decide all of the minor cases themselves. This will be much easier for you, and they will share your load. <sup>23</sup>If you do this and God directs you, then you will be able to endure. And all these people will be able to go back to their homes much happier."

<sup>24</sup>Moses listened to his father-in-law's suggestions and did everything that he had said. <sup>25</sup>Moses chose capable persons from all Israel and set them as leaders over the people, as officers over groups of thousands, hundreds, fifties, and tens. <sup>26</sup>They acted as judges for the people at all times. They would refer the hard cases to Moses, but all of the minor cases they decided themselves. <sup>27</sup>Then Moses said good-bye to his father-in-law, and Jethro went back to his own country.

Arrival at Mount Sinai

19 On exactly the third-month anniversary of the Israelites' leaving the land of Egypt, they came into the Sinai desert. <sup>2</sup>They traveled from Rephidim, came into the Sinai desert, and set up camp there. Israel camped there in front of the mountain <sup>3</sup>while Moses went up to God. The LORD called to him from the mountain, "This is what you should say to Jacob's household and declare to the Israelites: <sup>4</sup>You saw what I did to the Egyptians, and 40:13). They meet with Moses in a worship service to offer sacrifices and to eat a meal in God's presence. The entirely burned offering played an important role in Israel's sacrificial system (cf. Lev 1:1-17).

18:21 thousands, hundreds, fifties, and tens: These numbered divisions are similar to those used in military groupings (1 Sam 8:12; 2 Kgs 1:14).

18:23 If... God directs you: The advice about Moses sharing the burdens of leadership comes from a Midianite outsider. Jethro, however, also urges Moses to make sure Jethro's recommendation fits with what Israel's God commands Moses to do. Wisdom from the outside is welcomed but needs to be tested.

19:1-8 The Israelites arrive at Mount Sinai, otherwise known as Mount Horeb (Exod 3:1) or "God's mountain" (Exod 3:1; 4:27; 18:5; 24:13). This was the mountain where God had first called Moses to lead the Israelites out of Egypt (Exod 3:1-10). God thus fulfills the promise God made to Moses that he would return to this mountain after leading the Israelites out of their slavery in Egypt (Exod 3:12). God will formally make a covenant or agreement with the people of Israel here at the mountain. As part of the covenant, God will give to Israel the Ten Commandments (Exod 20:1-17) and the instructions in the covenant scroll (Exod 20:22-23:19). The whole section of instructions and covenant making runs from 19:1 to 24:18. The Israelites will remain here in their camp around Mount Sinai from Exodus 19:1 until Numbers 10:11-12.

19:1 the third-month anniversary: See note on Exodus 12:2. See also Exodus 12:6, 40. Located east of Egypt in the Sinai Peninsula, the Sinai desert has some mountainous regions. The exact location of Mount Sinai itself isn't known with certainty. The traditional location is in the south-central part of the Sinai Peninsula in a mountainous area called Jebel Musa.

19:3 Moses went up: Moses will go up and down Mount Sinai many times (up—Exod 19:3, 20; 24:9; 32:31; 33:4; down—Exod 19:14, 25; 32:15; 34:29). In the ancient world, gods were often understood to live or appear on top of mountains. In Exodus 19, the Lord comes down from the sky and appears at the top of Mount Sinai (Exod 19:18, 20; 20:22; 34:5). The Lord thus comes somewhat nearer but also remains separate from the people of Israel. By going up and down the mountain, Moses acts as a messenger between God and the people of Israel.

19:4 on eagles' wings: A similar image for God's rescue of the Israelites from Egypt appears in Deuteronomy 32:11.

The Covenant A "covenant" is an agreement and committed relationship binding two persons or groups (Gen 21:27, 32; 2 Sam 5:3). Treaties were often made between rulers of different nations in the ancient world. One type of treaty involved an unequal relationship between two rulers. The superior ruler would set up a treaty that demanded loyalty and other duties from the lesser king. The treaty would also promise blessings and protection if the lesser king and his nation obeyed the more powerful king. This more unequal form of an ancient treaty provides an analogy for the covenant at Mount Sinai. The Lord is the supreme ruler of the nations (Exod 19:5). The Lord reminds the Israelites that the Lord had rescued Israel from slavery (Exod 19:4; 20:2). God proposes a set of covenant duties or instructions that the Israelites agree to obey (Exod 20:1-17; 20:22-23:19). The Lord promises blessings and protection if the Israelites follow the covenant instructions (Exod 23:20-33). This kind of conditional covenant is also prominent in Deuteronomy (Deut 4:31; 5:3; 7:9, 12; 9:9-15; 29:1-29), the prophet Hosea (Hos 6:7; 8:1), the prophet Jeremiah (Jer 11:1-17; 31:31-34) and elsewhere (2 Kgs 17:1-41; 22:1-23:27).

These are the words you should say to the Israelites."

<sup>7</sup>So Moses came down, called together the people's elders, and set before them all these words that the LORD had commanded him. <sup>8</sup>The people all responded with one voice: "Everything that the LORD has said we will do." Moses reported to the LORD what the people said.

Preparing for a divine encounter

<sup>9</sup>Then the LORD said to Moses, "I'm about to come to you in a thick cloud in order that the people will hear me talking with you so that they will always trust you."

Moses told the LORD what the people said, <sup>10</sup>and the LORD said to Moses: "Go to the people and take today and tomorrow to make them holy. Have them wash their clothes. <sup>11</sup>Be ready for the third day, because on the third day the LORD will come down on Mount Sinai for all the people to see. <sup>12</sup>Set up a fence for the people all around and tell them, 'Be careful not to go up the mountain or to touch any part of it.' Anyone who even touches the mountain must be put to death. <sup>13</sup>No one should touch anyone who has touched it, or they must be either stoned to death or shot with arrows. Whether an animal or a human being, they must not be allowed to live. Only when the ram's horn sounds may they go up on the mountain."

19:5 God makes a covenant through Moses with the Israelites. A covenant is a committed relationship that involves gifts and duties. God has already given Israel the gift of freedom from slavery in Egypt (Exod 19:4). Israel's expected response is to faithfully obey the Lord (19:5) by keeping the Ten Commandments (Exod 20:1-17) and the instructions in the covenant scroll (Exod 20:22-23:19). If Israel is obedient and faithful to the covenant, then Israel will be the Lord's most precious possession among all the peoples and nations of the earth (see also Deut 7:6). the whole earth belongs to the Lord, even as the Lord has chosen the Israelites as God's special people.

19:6 kingdom of priests ... a holy nation: The people of Israel relate to other nations as Israelite priests relate to fellow Israelites. Priests are required to maintain stricter degrees of holiness in their role as messengers between God and people. In a similar way, Israel has a calling to be stricter in matters of holiness as it goes between God and other nations. The image of God's people as a priestly nation also occurs in Isaiah 61:6 as applied to Judah. In the NT, the image of a priestly nation is applied to the Christian community (1 Pet 2:5, 9; Rev 1:6).

19:8 Everything ... we will do: The Israelite elders agree to the covenant, including the duty to obey God's Instruction. Later, in a concluding ceremony, all the Israelite people (not just the elders) will agree to do what the covenant requires (Exod 24:3, 7).

19:10-11 make them holy: Holiness implies being set apart and separated from what is ritually unclean or impure. God's holiness is most intense. It is transferred to Mount Sinai itself since it is in direct contact with God's presence. Thus, the people around the base of the mountain are required to maintain a certain level of holiness and ritual purity. They are to wash their clothes and not have sexual relations (Exod 19:15). The sexual act made a person ritually impure for a day (Deut 23:10-11; 1 Sam 21:4). For more on this topic, see sidebar, "Clean/Unclean" at Leviticus 13.

19:12 touches the mountain ... death: Although humans can gain a certain degree of holiness and purity, it isn't comparable to the intensity of God's holiness. As a result, any human or animal that touches the holy mountain of God's presence must be put to death.

19:13 may they go up on the mountain: This allowance that the people may go up on the mountain when someone blows the ram's horn seems to go against all the other strict instruction against the people even touching the mountain (Exod 19:12; 21, 23; 24:2). This seems to be an odd exception. Nowhere in the story are the ram's horn blown and the people allowed to go up the mountain. See note on Exodus 19:22.

<sup>14</sup>So Moses went down the mountain to the people. He made sure the people were holy and that they washed their clothes. <sup>15</sup>He told the men, "Prepare yourselves for three days. Don't go near a woman."

<sup>16</sup>When morning dawned on the third day, there was thunder, lightning, and a thick cloud on the mountain, and a very loud blast of a horn. All the people in the camp shook with fear. <sup>17</sup>Moses brought the people out of the camp to meet God, and they took their place at the foot of the mountain. <sup>18</sup>Mount Sinai was all in smoke because the LORD had come down on it with lightning. The smoke went up like the smoke of a hot furnace, while the whole mountain shook violently. <sup>19</sup>The blasts of the horn grew louder and louder. Moses would speak, and God would answer him with thunder. <sup>20</sup>The LORD came down on Mount Sinai to the top of the mountain. The LORD called Moses to come up to the top of the mountain, and Moses went up. <sup>21</sup>The LORD said to Moses, "Go down and warn the people not to break through to try to see the LORD, or many of them will fall dead. <sup>22</sup>Even the priests who come near to the LORD must keep themselves holy, or the LORD will break loose against them."

<sup>23</sup>Moses said to the LORD, "The people aren't allowed to come up on Mount Sinai because you warned us and said, 'Set up a fence around the mountain to keep it holy.'"

<sup>24</sup>The LORD said to him, "Go down, and bring Aaron back up with you. But the priests and the people must not break through and come up to the LORD. Otherwise, the LORD will break loose against them." <sup>25</sup>So Moses went down to the people and told them.

The Ten Commandments

20 Then God spoke all these words:

19:15 Don't go near a woman: See note on Exodus 19:10-11. 19:22 Even the priests: The priests must keep to strict purity rules in God's presence, or God's holiness may break loose and destroy them (Lev 10:1-5; 2 Sam 6:7-8). This verse seems to suggest that all the priests may go up Mount Sinai, but the next verse says that only Aaron the priest is allowed to come up with Moses (Exod 19:23). Different traditions concerning who may go up the mountain of God have apparently been allowed to coexist in this important chapter on God's covenant at Sinai (all the people—Exod 19:13; none of the people—Exod 19:21, 23; Moses and all the priests—Exod 19:22; only Moses and Aaron—Exod 19:24). In Exodus 24, the people cannot go up on the mountain at all (Exod 24:2). However, Aaron, his two sons (Nadab and Abihu), and 70 elders are allowed to go halfway up Mount Sinai (Exod 24:1). Moses and Joshua go up higher than Aaron and the elders (Exod 24:13), but Moses alone is allowed to go all the way to the top of the mountain to come near to the LORD (Exod 24:2, 15). These different traditions about the relative status of people, elders, priests, and Moses likely reflect historical debates and conflicts about which groups had the most direct access to God (see Num 12:1-16; 16:1-50).

20:1-21 These Ten Commandments are the most important of all the Instruction that God gives at Mount Sinai. They are the first set of expectations that God gives there. These commandments are the only instruction that God speaks directly to the people. God gives all the other instructions to Moses, and then Moses passes them on to the people (20:1, 18-21). The form of the Ten Commandments as short, direct commands stands apart from the other instruction in Exodus 20:22-23:19 (see also note on Exod 20:22-23:19). These special "ten words" are written "by God's finger" (Exod 31:18) on the two stone tablets (Exod 24:4, 12; 34:1, 28; Deut 4:13; 5:22; 10:4). The importance of the Ten Commandments is further highlighted by their repetition in Deuteronomy 5:6-21 and by their placement in the special "wooden chest" (Deut 10:1-3). The Ten Commandments include duties to God (20:2-7), duties to other humans (20:12-17), and one duty that involves God, humans and non-human creation (the Sabbath commandment in 20:8-11).

20:2 I am the Lord . . . house of slavery: This introduction to the Ten Commandments is the next step in unfolding the name and character of God in Exodus. In Exodus 3:14, God had revealed God's name to Moses as "I Am Who I Am." Here God reveals another layer of God's name and character as the God who brought the Israelites out of the slavery of Egypt. God is a liberator from slavery. I am . . . your God: The Israelites are already God's people. The instructions that follow grow out of an already established relationship between God and the Israelites whom God has freed from slavery. See note on Exodus 29:46.

20:3 no other gods before me: See note on Exodus 15:11. This first rule is the most important of the Ten Commandments. 20:4 Do not make an idol: The expectation applies to images of Israel's God, as well as images of any other foreign gods. The great crisis of the gold calf involves Israel's breaking this commandment and thus threatening the whole covenant relationship with the Lord (Exod 32:1-10). See also Exodus 20:23; 34:14, 17; Leviticus 19:4; 26:1; Deuteronomy 4:15-20; 6:13-15.

20:5-6: God reveals another part of God's name and character. God doesn't focus here on what God has done for Israel (Exod 20:2) but on God's intense relationship with Israel: passionate . . . punish[ing] . . . gracious. God's passion worship them, because I, the LORD your God, am a passionate God. I punish children for their parents' sins even to the third and fourth generations of those who hate me. 6But I am loyal and gracious to the thousandth generation<sup>l</sup> of those who love me and keep my commandments.

7Do not use the LORD your God's name as if it were of no significance; the LORD won't forgive anyone who uses his name that way.

8Remember the Sabbath day and treat it as holy. 9Six days you may work and do all your tasks, 10but the seventh day is a Sabbath to the LORD your God. Do not do any work on it—not you, your sons or daughters, your male or female servants, your animals, or the immigrant who is living with you. 11Because the LORD made the heavens and the earth, the sea, and everything that is in them in six days, but rested on the seventh day. That is why the LORD blessed the Sabbath day and made it holy.

12Honor your father and your mother so that your life will be long on the fertile land that the LORD your God is giving you.

13Do not kill.<sup>k</sup>

14Do not commit adultery.

15Do not steal.

16Do not testify falsely against your neighbor.

17Do not desire your neighbor's house. Do not desire and try to take your neighbor's wife, male or female servant, ox, donkey, or anything else that belongs to your neighbor.

for Israel is expressed both as powerful king (see note on Exod 19:3—"covenant") and as loving parent (Exod 4:22). God will punish Israel for disobedience, and the effects may linger for up to three or four generations. God, however, will be loyal and gracious in ways that will multiply to the thousandth generation for all those who love and obey the Lord. This description of God's character will be taken up a second time and adapted in crucial ways in Exodus 34:6-7 as part of the unfolding meaning of God's name throughout the book (see notes on Exod 3:14; 20:2; 23:21; 29:46; 33:19; 34:6-7).

20:5 third and fourth generations: Some later prophets declared that future generations wouldn't suffer in this way for the sins of their parents (Jer 31:29-30; Ezek 18:1-32).

20:7 God's name: One example of misusing God's name was making a promise in the Lord's name and then not fulfilling that promise (Lev 6:3; 19:12; Ps 24:4). Making such promises using God's name was a common practice (Gen 14:22-24; 24:3). Calling on God's name was also a way to show that an expectation for blessing would help make the blessing happen (Num 6:24-27). Therefore, humans needed to be very careful whenever they used God's name.

20:8-11 The word "Sabbath" is related to a Hebrew verb meaning "to stop" or "break the routine." The earlier manna story in Exodus 16:5 already assumed this rule about not working every seventh day. This restful command is grounded in the story of God's creation of the world. God rested on the seventh day of creation (Gen 2:1-3). Thus God's people should imitate God and also rest every seventh day of every week. The alternate version of this same commandment in Deuteronomy finds its motivation not in God's creation but in God's liberation of the Israelites from their harsh work as slaves in Egypt (Deut 5:12-15). Note that the requirement for rest every seven days applies to family members, workers, immigrants, and even animals. The Sabbath commandment brings together obligations to God, other humans, and nonhuman creation. It is the longest of the Ten Commandments and stands at its center, dividing duties to God (Exod 20:2-7) and duties to other humans (Exod 20:12-17).

20:12 Honor your father and your mother: The original and primary concern of this command was for adult children to take care of older parents. so that your life will be long: To obey such a command makes it more likely that the next generation will treat their parents in a similar way. Israel's relationship with God was often portrayed in the image of a child's duty to honor a parent (Exod 4:22; Deut 32:16-21; Hos 11:1-11; Isa 1:2; Mal 1:6).

20:13 Do not kill: The Hebrew verb can mean "to kill" or "to murder." More precisely, the command means to stop any individual person from killing another human being without the permission of the larger community. Any acts of purely personal revenge aren't allowed (Exod 21:12; Lev 24:17; Num 35:30-34; Deut 19:11-13). All life belongs to God, so any taking of life is a matter of heavy responsibility (Gen 9:5-6).

20:14 adultery: The command seeks to stop any married person from having sexual relations with anyone other than their spouse. Other biblical prohibitions against adultery provide severe punishments (Lev 18:20; 20:10; Deut 22:22; see John 8:1-11). The Bible sometimes uses the image of husband and wife to describe the relationship of God and God's people. Adultery then becomes an image for Israel's going after and worshipping gods other than the true God of Israel (Hos 1-3; Ezek 16:1-63; Mal 2:13-16).

20:16 testify falsely: The command probably began in an informal setting where people in the community brought disputes to elders, who functioned as judges. Its aim was to ensure that those who accused someone in a dispute were telling the truth (Exod 23:1; Deut 19:15-19; 1 Kgs 21:13; Prov 6:19; 14:5, 25; 19:5, 9). The expectation eventually came to include lying about someone in any public context (Lev 19:16). Destroying someone's reputation by dishonoring their name is the human counterpart to misusing God's name (Exod 20:7).

20:17 Do not desire and try to take: This last of the Ten

<sup>18</sup>When all the people witnessed the thunder and lightning, the sound of the horn, and the mountain smoking, the people shook with fear and stood at a distance. <sup>19</sup>They said to Moses, "You speak to us, and we'll listen. But don't let God speak to us, or we'll die."

<sup>20</sup>Moses said to the people, "Don't be afraid, because God has come only to test you and to make sure you are always in awe of God so that you don't sin." <sup>21</sup>The people stood at a distance while Moses approached the thick darkness in which God was present.

Instructions about worship

<sup>22</sup>The LORD said to Moses: "Say this to the Israelites: You saw for yourselves how I spoke with you from heaven. <sup>23</sup>Don't make alongside me gods of silver or gold for yourselves. <sup>24</sup>Make for me an altar from fertile soil on which to sacrifice your entirely burned offerings, your well-being sacrifices, your sheep, and your oxen. I will come to you and bless you in every place where I make sure my name is remembered. <sup>25</sup>But if you do make for me an altar from stones, don't build it with chiseled stone since using your chisel on the stone will make it impure. <sup>26</sup>Don't climb onto my altar using steps: then your genitals won't be exposed by doing so."

Instructions about slaves

21 These are the case laws that you should set before them:

<sup>21</sup>When you buy a male Hebrew slave, he will serve you for six years. But in the seventh year, he will go free without any payment. <sup>3</sup>If he came in single, he will leave single. If he came in married, then his wife will leave with him. <sup>4</sup>If his master gave him a wife and she bore him sons or daughters, the wife and her children will belong to her master. He will leave single. <sup>5</sup>However, if the slave clearly states, "I love my master, my wife, and my children, and I don't want to go free," then his master will bring him before God. He will bring him to the door or the doorpost. There his master will pierce his ear with a pointed tool, and he will serve him as his slave for life.

Commandments focuses on a person's inner thoughts. It is especially aimed at those who are richer and more powerful in the community so that they don't take advantage of the vulnerable (1 Kgs 21:1-19). This last commandment and the first commandment (having other gods) both treat inner commitments and desires. The other commandments, in contrast, focus on outward actions.

20:18-21 God speaks the Ten Commandments directly to the people, but the other instructions are mediated through Moses. This marks the Ten Commandments as special and important among all God's Instruction. The people's fear also reflects the danger when humans encounter the holiness of God directly without a mediator (see Lev 10:1-3; Deut 4:33; 5:23-26; Isa 6:1-5).

20:22-23:19 These instructions are likely among the oldest of all the expectations in the books of Exodus, Leviticus, Numbers, and Deuteronomy. They contain some similarities to laws from neighboring ancient cultures in Mesopotamia, including the so-called Code of Hammurabi. The biblical instructions, however, also reflect the unique theology of the Israelites. Unlike other legal codes, biblical instructions emphasize worshipping only one God without any silver or gold idols (20:22-23). The topics of the instructions range widely. They deal with crimes and violence, social relationships, economic disputes, and religious concerns. Many of the instructions have the form of "if/when—then" statements (21:2), as opposed to the more direct commands of the Ten Commandments (Exod 20:3). Scholars refer to this group of teachings as "the Book of the Covenant" or "the Covenant Code" (see "the covenant scroll" in Exod 24:7). Many of the instructions here expand upon or add details to the Ten Commandments.

20:22-23 Earlier in this chapter, the Lord spoke to the Israelites from heaven, but the people saw no form or image of God. gods of silver or gold: This instruction expands on the command against making idols in Exodus 20:4-6. This command is the first one that the Israelites will break in the dramatic story of the gold calf (Exod 32:1-35).

20:24 entirely burned offerings: See Leviticus 1:1-17. well-being sacrifices: See Leviticus 3:1-17.

20:25 using your chisel . . . will make it impure: The instruction seeks to avoid the possibility of making a carved idol or image connected with the altar at which the Lord is worshipped (1 Kgs 6:7).

20:26 The instruction against going up steps to a high altar assumes those who offered sacrifices were men with robes that may be open at the bottom without any underwear. The modesty of Israelite worship may have contrasted with certain fertility rituals among non-Israelite worshippers. Priests wore undergarments to preserve their modesty and prevent exposure in the Lord's presence (Exod 28:42).

21:1-11 The large section of instructions about Israelite slaves reflects the prominent theme of Israelite slavery in the exodus story (Exod 3:7-10; 20:2). Israelite slaves typically sold themselves as temporary workers as a way to pay off debts (Exod 22:3; Lev 25:39-40; 2 Kgs 4:1). Whatever the amount of the debt, the Israelite worker was to be set free at the seventh (or sabbath) year (21:2; Deut 15:12). In the instructions of Leviticus, all Israelite servants were to be freed every fiftieth year, the Year of Jubilee (Lev 25:39-43). Israelites could have foreign slaves who could be kept permanently (Lev 25:44-46).

21:5-6 If an Israelite worker decides to stay as a slave after the six years, his ear is pierced and the blood is smeared on the door or doorpost of the house. This ritual is a sign of the worker's decision to remain permanently as a member of the household. For another version of the instruction, see Deuteronomy 15:12-17.

<sup>7</sup>When a man sells his daughter as a slave, she shouldn't be set free in the same way as male slaves are set free. <sup>8</sup>If she doesn't please her master who chose her for himself, then her master must let her be bought back by her family. He has no right to sell her to a foreign people since he has treated her unfairly. <sup>9</sup>If he assigns her to his son, he must give her the rights of a daughter. <sup>10</sup>If he takes another woman for himself, he may not reduce her food, clothing, or marital rights. <sup>11</sup>If he doesn't do these three things for her, she will go free without any payment, for no money.

<sup>12</sup>Anyone who hits and kills someone should be put to death. <sup>13</sup>If the killing wasn't on purpose but an accident allowed by God, then I will designate a place to which the killer can run away. <sup>14</sup>But if someone plots and kills another person on purpose, you should remove the killer from my altar and put him to death.

<sup>18</sup>When two people are fighting and one hits the other with a stone or with his fist so that he is in bed for a while but doesn't die—<sup>19</sup>if he recovers and is able to walk around outside with a cane, then the one who hit him shouldn't be punished, except to pay for the loss of time from work and to pay for his full recovery.

<sup>20</sup>When a slave owner hits a male or female slave with a rod and the slave dies immediately, the owner should be punished. <sup>21</sup>But if the slave gets up after a day or two, the slave owner shouldn't be punished because the slave is the owner's property.

<sup>22</sup>When people who are fighting injure a pregnant woman so that she has a miscarriage but no other injury occurs, then the guilty party will be fined what the woman's husband demands, as negotiated with the judges. <sup>23</sup>If there is further injury, then you will give a life for a life, <sup>24</sup>an eye for an eye, a tooth for a tooth, a hand for a hand, a foot for a foot, <sup>25</sup>a burn for a burn, a bruise for a bruise, a wound for a wound.

<sup>26</sup>When a slave owner hits and blinds the eye of a male or female slave, he should let the slave go free on account of the eye. <sup>27</sup>If he knocks out a tooth of a male or female slave, he should let the slave go free on account of the tooth.

<sup>28</sup>When an ox gores a man or a woman to death, the ox should be stoned to death, and the meat of the ox shouldn't be eaten. But the owner of the ox shouldn't be punished. <sup>29</sup>However, if the ox had gored people in the past and its owner had been warned but didn't watch out for it, and the ox ends up killing a man or a woman, then the ox should be stoned to death, and its owner should also be put to death. <sup>30</sup>If the owner has to pay compensation instead, he must pay the agreed amount to save his life. <sup>31</sup>If the ox gores a boy or a girl, this same case law applies to the owner. <sup>32</sup>If the ox gores a male or female slave, the owner will pay thirty silver shekels to the slave's owner, and the ox will be stoned to death.

<sup>33</sup>When someone leaves a pit open or digs a pit and doesn't cover it and an ox or a donkey falls into the pit, <sup>34</sup>the owner of the pit must make good on the loss. He should pay money to the ox's owner, but he may keep the dead animal.

21:7-11 These instructions concern a daughter who is sold by her father to become a wife to another man in payment for a debt. The practice reflects a patriarchal society (that is, a society largely controlled by men) in which a woman's sexuality is under the control of a man, usually her father or her husband.

21:12 Humans are created in God's image (Gen 9:4-6). Therefore, taking a human life is a serious offense against the person and against God ("a life for a life"; Exod 21:23). 21:13-14 a place...run away: Those who accidentally caused someone else to die could go to a special temple or altar in a designated refuge city (Num 35:9-15, 22-28; Deut 19:1-13; 1 Kgs 2:28-34). The killer could live there in safety. The victim's family member couldn't take revenge on the killer at the designated place. Anyone, however, who killed another person on purpose and ran away to the refuge city would be removed from the altar in the city and killed (21:14).

21:23-24 a life for a life... a wound for a wound: The instruction puts a limit on how much revenge can be taken in response to a death or injury (Lev 24:19-21; Deut 19-21; see Matt 5:38-39). In contrast to some law codes in the ancient world, this instruction also doesn't allow simple payment of money as a sufficient penalty for taking a life or a limb from another human being.

21:28 the ox should be stoned... shouldn't be eaten: The ox is seen as ritually impure or unclean for eating because it killed a human being (Gen 9:5).

21:30 The ox's owner can pay money to the victim's family instead of being killed. Intentional murderers didn't have

<sup>35</sup>When someone's ox hurts someone else's ox and it dies, then they should sell the live ox and divide its price. They should also divide the dead animal between them. <sup>36</sup>But if the ox was known for goring in the past and its owner hadn't watched out for it, the owner must make good the loss, an ox for an ox, but may keep the dead animal.

22<sup>1</sup>When someone steals an ox or a sheep and then slaughters or sells it, the thief must pay back five oxen for the one ox or four sheep for the one sheep.

<sup>2</sup>If the thief is caught breaking in and is beaten and dies, the one who killed him won't be guilty of bloodshed. <sup>3</sup>However, if this happens in broad daylight, then the one who killed him is guilty of bloodshed. For his part, the thief must make good on what he stole. If he has nothing, he must be sold to pay for his theft. <sup>4</sup>If an animal (whether ox, donkey, or sheep) is found alive in the thief's possession, he must pay back double.

<sup>5</sup>When someone lets an animal loose to eat in another person's field and causes the field or vineyard to be stripped of its crop, the owner must pay them back with the best from his own field or vineyard.

<sup>6</sup>When someone starts a fire and it catches in thorns and then spreads to someone else's stacked grain, standing grain, or a whole field, the one who started the fire must fully repay the loss.

<sup>7</sup>When someone entrusts money or other items to another person to keep safe and they are stolen from the other person's house and the thief is caught, the thief must pay back double. <sup>8</sup>If the thief isn't caught, the owner of the house should be brought before God to determine whether or not the owner stole the other's property.

<sup>9</sup>When any dispute of ownership over an ox, donkey, sheep, piece of clothing, or any other loss arises in which someone claims, "This is mine," the cases of both parties should come before God. The one whom God finds at fault must pay double to the other.

<sup>14</sup>When someone borrows an animal from another and it is injured or dies while the owner isn't present, full payment must be made. <sup>15</sup>If the owner was present, no payment needs to be made. If the animal was hired, only the fee for hiring the animal is due.

Instructions about social and religious matters

<sup>16</sup>When a man seduces a young woman who isn't engaged to be married yet and he sleeps with her, he must marry her and pay the bride-price for her. <sup>17</sup>But if her father absolutely refuses to let them marry, he must still pay the same amount as the bride-price for young women.

22:8-9 before God: God's decision on the owner's guilt or innocence would come through a process similar to flipping a coin or rolling dice.

22:16 the bride-price: In every marriage, the husband-to-be was expected to pay a certain amount of money to the father of the bride.

22:18 female sorcerer: Elsewhere, male sorcerers are condemned (Deut 18:10).

22:20 who offers sacrifices to any god, other than the LORD:

This instruction restates the first of the Ten Commandments (Exod 20:3) and imposes the death penalty for violating the instruction. The worshippers of the gold calf will ignore this instruction in Exodus 32:4-6.

22:21 Don't mistreat... an immigrant: The Israelites are to treat immigrants well because they experienced the difficulties of being immigrant slaves in Egypt.

22:23-24 I'll hear their cry: The Lord pays special attention to the cry of those who are weak and oppressed, whether they are Israelites (Exod 2:23-25; 3:7-9; 22:27; Deut 24:15) or people of other nations (Gen 4:10; 21:16-20). If the

<sup>29</sup>Don't delay offering the produce of your vineyards and winepresses. Give me your oldest son. <sup>30</sup>Do the same with your oxen and with your sheep. They should stay with their mother for seven days. On the eighth day, you should give them to me.

23 Don't spread false rumors. Don't plot with evil people to act as a lying witness. <sup>2</sup>Don't take sides with important people to do wrong. When you act as a witness, don't stretch the truth to favor important people. <sup>3</sup>But don't privilege unimportant people in their lawsuits either.

<sup>4</sup>When you happen to come upon your enemy's ox or donkey that has wandered off, you should bring it back to them.

<sup>5</sup>When you see a donkey that belongs to someone who hates you and it's lying down under its load and you are inclined not to help set it free, you must help set it free.

Sabbaths and festivals

<sup>10</sup>For six years you should plant crops on your land and gather in its produce. <sup>11</sup>But in the seventh year you should leave it alone and undisturbed so that the poor among your people may eat. What they leave behind, the wild animals may eat. You should do the same with your vineyard and your olive trees.

<sup>12</sup>Do your work in six days. But on the seventh day you should rest so that your ox and donkey may rest, and even the child of your female slave and the immigrant may be refreshed.

23:9 Ex 22:21; Lv 19:33; Dt 10:19, Dt 24:14, Dt 27:19 23:11 Lv 19:9-10, Lv 25:3, Lv 25:4, Lv 25:6

Israelites oppress the poor, then God will attack the Israelites as God attacked Egypt (see Exod 12:29-30; Josh 5:13-15; Amos 5:1-24).

22:25 don't...charge them interest: Israelites couldn't charge interest on loans made to other Israelites (Lv 25:36-37; Ps 15:5; Ezek 18:8, 13, 17). They could, however, charge interest from non-Israelites (Deut 23:19-20).

22:27 if he cries out to me: See note on Exodus 22:23-24.

22:29 Give me your oldest son: See notes on Exodus 11:5; 13:1-2.

22:30 seven days: When a mother gives birth, the mother and baby are ritually unclean because of the flow of blood at birth. After a waiting period of seven days, both mother and child become ritually clean or pure. This regulation applies both to animals used for sacrifice and to humans (Lv 12:2-3; 22:27).

22:31 You are holy people to me: See note on Exodus 19:6. Israel was holy and set apart from other nations in part because Israel obeyed special rules for eating. In this case, only meat that is properly slaughtered may be eaten. See Leviticus 17:1-16 and Deuteronomy 12:15-16 for instructions about the proper slaughter of animals for meat.

23:1-3 These expectations about witnesses telling the truth during a dispute expand upon the commandment in Exodus 20:16 (see Lv 19:16; Ps 27:12; Prov 14:5; 19:5). The penalty for lying as a witness is found in Deuteronomy 19:18-19.

23:4-5 These two instructions focus on showing kindness to animals, even animals that belong to an enemy. On showing kindness to enemies, see 1 Samuel 24:8-20; Matthew 5:43-47; Romans 12:19-21.

23:6-8 These instructions are for the elders during disputes and follow the expectations for witnesses in Exodus 23:1-3. For the elders to put an innocent person... to death is a serious injustice (see 1 Kgs 21:1-29; Ps 94:6-7; Luke 23:13-17, 46-47).

23:9 Don't oppress an immigrant... you were immigrants: The instruction invites Israelites to remember what life was like as oppressed immigrants in Egypt (Exod 2:23). The memory should encourage Israelites to support and not oppress immigrants in their community. Kindness and generosity toward immigrants is a frequent theme in biblical instruction (Lv 19:34; Deut 10:19; 15:13-15; 16:11-12; 24:21-22).

23:10-11 The instruction commands the owner of the land not to harvest the crop every seventh year. The seventh-year crop is dedicated entirely to the poor and the wild animals so that they may eat. In another version of the same teaching in Leviticus 25:1-8, 20-23, the land has its sabbath rest every seventh year as a reminder that the land belongs to the Lord. The Israelites are only "immigrants" and "foreign guests" living temporarily on God's land (Lv 25:23).

<sup>13</sup>Be careful to obey everything that I have said to you. Don't call on the names of other gods. Don't even mention them.

<sup>14</sup>You should observe a festival for me three times a year. <sup>15</sup>Observe the Festival of Unleavened Bread, as I commanded you. Eat unleavened bread for seven days at the appointed time in the month of Abib,<sup>a</sup> because it was in that month that you came out of Egypt.

No one should appear before me empty-handed. <sup>16</sup>Observe the Harvest Festival for the early produce of your crops that you planted in the field, and the Gathering Festival at the end of the year, when you gather your crop of fruit from the field. <sup>17</sup>All your males should appear three times a year before the LORD God.

<sup>19</sup>Bring the best of your land's early produce to the LORD your God's temple. Don't boil a young goat in its mother's milk.

God's promise: messenger and land

<sup>20</sup>I'm about to send a messenger in front of you to guard you on your way and to bring you to the place that I've made ready. <sup>21</sup>Pay attention to him and do as he says. Don't rebel against him. He won't forgive the things you do wrong because I<sup>o</sup> am with him. <sup>22</sup>But if you listen carefully to what he says and do all that I say, then I'll be an enemy to your enemies and fight those fighting you.

the Sabbath commandment in the Bible. According to this version, the Sabbath ensures that the most vulnerable animals and workers have at least one day off from work every seven days. In the version in Exodus 20:11, the purpose of rest on the Sabbath is to follow the example of the Lord, who rested on the seventh day of creation (Gen 2:1-3). In Deuteronomy 5:12-15, the purpose of the Sabbath is to pause for a day and remember how the Lord rescued Israel from slavery in Egypt.

23:13 Be careful to obey everything: In order to fulfill this call to careful obedience, some of the instructions will require further interpretation and expansion, especially in Deuteronomy 12–26 and Leviticus 17–26. The verse also includes a modified version of the first and most important of the Ten Commandments: Don't call on the names of other gods (see Exod 20:3). This commandment is what the Israelites disobey when they worship the gold calf and break the covenant with the Lord (Exod 32:1-6).

23:14-19 The instruction concludes with habits regarding three yearly festivals and the sacrifices related to them.

23:15 the Festival of Unleavened Bread: The festival is a remembrance of Israel's liberation from slavery in Egypt (Exod 12:14-20; 13:3-10). It occurs in the spring during the barley harvest. The Passover Festival is joined with the Festival of Unleavened Bread in Exodus 12:1-10 (see also Lev 23:5-6; Num 28:16-17; Deut 16:1-8). Here, however, the celebration of Passover isn't mentioned (see also Exod 34:18). On the month of Abib, see note on Exodus 12:2. No one... empty-handed: When Israelites attend the festivals and worship at the temple, they should bring with them a portion of their animals and crops as offerings to God.

23:16 Harvest Festival: See Exodus 34:22 and the note on Exodus 12:2. The festival is elsewhere called the Festival of Weeks (Lev 23:15-21; Num 28:26-31; Deut 16:9-12). It celebrates the grain harvest in the spring, seven weeks after the harvest begins. Later, Greek-speaking Jews called this festival Pentecost (see Acts 2:1-14). Gathering Festival: This festival is held in the fall at the end of the agricultural year during the last harvests of grapes and olives. It is also known as the Festival of Booths, Tabernacles, or Sukkot

23:17 appear... before the LORD God: See Deuteronomy 16:16. Every Israelite male had a duty to come to the central place of worship during these three annual festivals. This place of worship would eventually be the temple in Jerusalem built by King Solomon (1 Kgs 8:1-21). The Jerusalem temple was destroyed by the Babylonian army in 587 BCE (2 Kgs 25:1-21) and then rebuilt in 515 BCE (Ezra 6:13-18).

23:18 Don't offer the blood... with anything leavened: This is an additional instruction for the Festival of Unleavened Bread (Exod 23:15). the blood of my sacrifice refers to the blood of the Passover lamb (see Exod 34:25; Deut 16:2-4). Don't let the fat... be left over: All of the fat surrounding the internal organs (liver, kidneys) of the animals was to be burned up in the sacrifice and turned into good-smelling smoke (Exod 29:13; Lev 3:5; see Gen 8:20-21).

23:19 Don't boil... mother's milk: The dietary instruction reflects a larger principle. Crossing certain created boundaries (like something alive touching something dead) causes ritual impurity or uncleanness. In this case, using a mother goat's milk (intended to give life to a young goat) as the liquid in which to boil the meat of a young goat (now dead) causes the food to be considered ritually unclean. It shouldn't be eaten (Exod 34:26; Deut 14:21). This is the basis in Jewish dietary instruction for the practice of not mixing any dairy with meat in cooking.

23:20 a messenger in front of you: The Lord promises to send a divine messenger who will command the Lord's heavenly forces to protect the Israelites on their journey through the wilderness (Exod 14:19; 32:34; 33:2; Josh 5:13-15; Judg 2:1-5). The messenger will also be a topic of discussion between Moses and God in Exodus 32:34 and 33:2.

23:21 because I am with him: or "because my name is with him" (see translation note). This statement reveals another layer of God's name and character that continues to unfold throughout the book of Exodus (see notes on Exod 3:14; 15:26; 20:2, 5-6). See also Exodus 29:45-46; 33:19; 34:6-7.

<sup>23</sup>When my messenger goes in front of you and brings you to the Amorites, the Hittites, the Perizzites, the Canaanites, the Hivites, and the Jebusites, and I wipe them out, <sup>24</sup>don't bow down to their gods, worship them, or do what they do. Instead, you should completely destroy them and smash their sacred stone pillars to bits. <sup>25</sup>If you worship the LORD your God, the LORD will bless your bread and your water. I'll take sickness away from you, <sup>26</sup>and no woman will miscarry or be infertile in your land. I'll let you live a full, long life. <sup>27</sup>My terrifying reputation will precede you, and I'll throw all the people that you meet into a panic. I'll make all your enemies turn their backs to you. <sup>28</sup>I'll send insect swarms in front of you and drive out the Hivites, the Canaanites, and the Hittites before you. <sup>29</sup>I won't drive them out before you in a single year so the land won't be abandoned and the wild animals won't multiply around you. <sup>30</sup>I'll drive them out before you little by little, until your numbers grow and you eventually possess the land. <sup>31</sup>I'll set your borders from the Reed Sea<sup>P</sup> to the Philistine Sea and from the desert to the River. I'll hand the inhabitants of the land over to you, and you will drive them out before you. <sup>32</sup>Don't make any covenants with them or their gods. <sup>33</sup>Don't allow them to live in your land, or else they will lead you to sin against me. If you worship their gods, it will become a dangerous trap for you.

24 Then the LORD said to Moses, "Come up to the LORD, you and Aaron, Nadab and Abihu, and seventy of Israel's elders, and worship from a distance. <sup>2</sup>Only Moses may come near to the LORD. The others shouldn't come near, while the people shouldn't come up with him at all."

23:23 the Amorites... Jebusites: This is the traditional list of the inhabitants in the land of Canaan who will be removed when the Lord brings Israel into the land (see also Exod 3:8, 17; 13:5; 33:2; 34:11; Num 13:29; Deut 7:1; Josh 3:10).

23:24 don't bow down to their gods: Once again, the first of the Ten Commandments is emphasized as especially important (Exod 20:3; see notes on Exod 20:22-23, 22:20; 23:13). The command not to worship other gods runs as a thread throughout these teachings. sacred stone pillars: These were smooth stone pillars that represented gods. Archaeologists have uncovered such ancient stone pillars dating back to biblical times in the land of Canaan. Some OT traditions affirm the stone pillar as an appropriate way to represent Israel's God. Offerings of olive oil were poured over the stone as an act of worship (Gen 28:18, 22; 31:13; 35:14; Isa 19:19). However, the majority of biblical traditions condemn the stone pillars as inappropriate for Israelite worship (Exod 34:13; Deut 7:5; 12:3; 16:22; 2 Kgs 18:4; 23:14; Jer 43:13; Mic 5:13).

23:25-31 The instructions in Exodus 20-23 are part of a covenant agreement between the more powerful king (the Lord) and the less powerful people of Israel (see sidebar, "The Covenant" at Exod 19). This type of conditional covenant between unequal partners appears to be adapted from covenants between kings in the ancient Near East. These agreements are usually conditional ("if _____, then _____"). If the lesser party obeys all the commands of the more powerful king, then certain blessings are promised at the end of the covenant document. The document also typically includes curses for disobeying the instructions. In this case, the blessings (23:25-31) are emphasized rather than the curses. In contrast, the instruction and covenant in Deuteronomy place a much stronger emphasis on curses for disobedience (Deut 28:15-68; cf. Deut 28:1-14).

23:31 the Philistine sea: the Mediterranean or Western Sea (Deut 11:24). the desert: the arid wilderness region, called the Negeb, just south of Canaan and north of the Sinai Peninsula. the River: the Euphrates River in Mesopotamia, far to the northeast (Deut 11:24). These boundaries are similar to the size of Solomon's kingdom (1 Kgs 4:21).

23:32-33 The covenant document concludes with warnings against worshipping the gods of the Canaanites when Israel lives in the promised land. Again, the first of the Ten Commandments (Exod 20:3) is emphasized (see also notes on Exod 20:22-23; 22:20; 23:13, 24). Don't allow them to live in your land: This command is repeated in the holy war law of Deuteronomy 20:16-18, which requires the Israelites to kill every "living thing" when they enter the land of Canaan. However, this plan to get rid of all the Canaanites doesn't ultimately work out, and God ends up rejecting it (Judg 2:20-23; 3:1-6). The Canaanites are allowed to live among the Israelites.

24:1-18 The instructions in Exodus 20-23 are framed by two covenant-making ceremonies, one in Exodus 19 and one in Exodus 24. In Exodus 19, clouds, smoke, and fire combine with sounds of thunder, trumpets, and earthquakes. In contrast, the covenant ceremony in Exodus 24 is more peaceful, orderly, and visual. Israel's leaders see God as they drink and eat a meal (24:10-12). The rest of the Israelites see the Lord's glorious presence, which looks like a blazing fire on top of Mount Sinai (24:17). Unlike Exodus 19, with its mix of different traditions (see notes on Exod 19:13, 22), Exodus 24 has one consistent set of instructions about who is allowed to go up the mountain and how far. The priest Aaron, his two sons and 70 elders are allowed to come partway up Mount Sinai to worship from a distance (24:1). The rest of the people can't come up the mountain at all (24:2). Only Moses can come near to the Lord at the very top of the mountain (24:2).

24:1 Nadab and Abihu: These are the two sons of Aaron who will serve with him as priests (Exod 6:23; 24:9; 28:1).

<sup>3</sup>Moses came and told the people all the LORD's words and all the case laws. All the people answered in unison, "Everything that the LORD has said we will do." <sup>4</sup>Moses then wrote down all the LORD's words. He got up early in the morning and built an altar at the foot of the mountain. He set up twelve sacred stone pillars for the twelve tribes of Israel. <sup>5</sup>He appointed certain young Israelite men to offer entirely burned offerings and slaughter oxen as well-being sacrifices to the LORD. <sup>6</sup>Moses took half of the blood and put it in large bowls. The other half of the blood he threw against the altar. <sup>7</sup>Then he took the covenant scroll and read it out loud for the people to hear. They responded, "Everything that the LORD has said we will do, and we will obey."

<sup>8</sup>Moses then took the blood and threw it over the people. Moses said, "This is the blood of the covenant that the LORD now makes with you on the basis of all these words."

Covenant meal with God

<sup>9</sup>Then Moses and Aaron, Nadab and Abihu, and seventy elders of Israel went up, <sup>10</sup>and they saw Israel's God. Under God's feet there was what looked like a floor of lapis-lazuli tiles, dazzlingly pure like the sky. <sup>11</sup>God didn't harm the Israelite leaders, though they looked at God, and they ate and drank.

<sup>12</sup>The LORD said to Moses, "Come up to me on the mountain and wait there. I'll give you the stone tablets with the instructions and the commandments that I've written in order to teach them."

<sup>13</sup>So Moses and his assistant Joshua got up, and Moses went up God's mountain. <sup>14</sup>Moses had said to the elders, "Wait for us here until we come back to you. Aaron and Hur will be here with you. Whoever has a legal dispute may go to them."

<sup>15</sup>Then Moses went up the mountain, and the cloud covered the mountain. <sup>16</sup>The LORD's glorious presence settled on Mount Sinai, and the cloud covered it for six days. On the seventh day the LORD called to Moses from the cloud. <sup>17</sup>To the Israelites, the LORD's glorious 24:3-8 Moses leads the Israelites in a ritual that sets up a covenant relationship with the Lord.

24:3 the Lord's words: refers to the Ten Commandments written by God on the two stone tablets in Exodus 20:1-17 (see Exod 24:12; 31:18; 32:15-16). all the case laws: refers to the instructions in Exodus 20:22-23:19 written down by Moses (Exod 24:4) on "the covenant scroll" (Exod 24:7). Three times the people say at Mount Sinai, "We will obey" (Exod 19:8; 24:3, 7). Their words heighten the dramatic act of disobedience later in the episode with the gold calf in Exodus 32:1-35.

24:4 twelve sacred stone pillars: These 12 stone pillars represent the 12 tribes. They are different from the sacred stone pillars that represent gods in worship (see note on Exod 23:24). The tribal stone pillars act as witnesses to the covenant being made (Gen 31:44-48; Josh 24:26-27).

24:5-8 the blood is taken from the sacrificed animals and put in large bowls. The altar is a symbol of God's presence. The ritual action of throwing half the blood on the altar and the other half on the people (24:8) is a sign that binds together the Lord and the Israelites in a covenant relationship of promise and duty. the blood of the covenant: Jesus used this phrase in his words associated with the Lord's Supper. The context was Jesus eating the Passover meal with his disciples on the night before his death on the cross (Matt 26:28; Mark 14:24).

24:9-11 Making or affirming covenant agreements between humans in the ancient world often included sharing a meal together (Exod 18:12; Gen 26:30). God and people seal the covenant between them also by sharing a meal together. The animal sacrifices were offered to God (Exod 24:5), and the Israelite leaders ate and drank (24:11). 24:9 Nadab and Abihu: See note on Exodus 24:1. 24:10-11 they saw Israel's God: Traditionally, looking at

God could put a human at risk of immediate death (Deut 18:16). Normally, humans couldn't endure a direct visual encounter with the awesome holiness and presence of the divine. But there were at least partial exceptions (Gen 32:30—Jacob sees God in the dark of night; Exod 33:12-23—Moses sees the back side of God; Judg 6:22—Gideon sees the Lord's messenger; Isa 6:1-5—Isaiah sees the hem of God's robe in the smoke-filled temple). Even Moses wasn't allowed to see the front or face of God (Exod 33:23). Thus the Israelite priests and elders likely saw some small part of God, and yet God didn't harm them (24:11). lapis-lazuli: a brilliant blue gemstone often used in ancient temples because of its association with the blue color of the sky or heavens where gods had their home.

24:12 the stone tablets . . . that I've written: See note on Exodus 24:3.

24:13 An assistant to Moses, Joshua had earlier led the Israelites in their fight against Amalek (Exod 17:9; see Exod 32:17). God's mountain: See Exodus 3:1 as the place where the Lord first called Moses from the burning bush.

24:14 Hur: See note on Exodus 17:10-12. Hur and Aaron will temporarily take over Moses' duties as a judge of legal disputes (Exod 18:14-16).

24:15-16 God's glorious presence is hidden and veiled within the cloud on top of Mount Sinai (Exod 19:9, 16). The Lord traveled in the cloud with the Israelites from Egypt to Mount Sinai (Exod 13:21-22; 14:19-20, 24; 16:10). In the dramatic conclusion to the book of Exodus, "the Lord's glorious presence" in the cloud will move down from Mount Sinai and settle on the meeting tent or dwelling in the middle of the 12 tribes of Israel (Exod 40:34).

24:17 God's presence is often associated with fire (Gen 15:17; Exod 3:2; 13:21-22; 19:18; Lev 9:24; 10:2; Deut 4:33, 36; 5:4-5, 22-24; Isa 30:30; Ezek 1:4, 27-28; Acts 2:1-4).

presence looked like a blazing fire on top of the mountain. <sup>10</sup>Moses entered the cloud and went up the mountain. Moses stayed on the mountain for forty days and forty nights.

Gifts offered for the dwelling

25 The LORD said to Moses: <sup>2</sup>Tell the Israelites to collect gift offerings for me. Receive my gift offerings from everyone who freely wants to give. <sup>3</sup>These are the gift offerings that you should receive from them: gold, silver, and copper; <sup>4</sup>blue, purple, and deep red yarns; fine linen; goats' hair; <sup>5</sup>rams' skins dyed red; beaded leather; <sup>6</sup>acacia wood; <sup>6a</sup>oil for the lamps; spices for the anointing oil and for the sweet-smelling incense; <sup>7</sup>gemstones; and gems for setting in the priest's vest<sup>a</sup> and chest piece. <sup>8</sup>They should make me a sanctuary so I can be present among them. <sup>9</sup>You should follow the blueprints that I will show you for the dwelling and for all its equipment.

The Sabbath, Creation, and Building the Lord's Dwelling The instructions for building God's dwelling in Exodus 25:1-31:17 divide into seven sections (with the sections beginning at Exod 25:1; 30:11, 17, 22, 34; 31:1, 12, each marked by the phrase, "The LORD spoke/said to Moses"). The seventh, concluding section (Exod 31:12-17) ends with a command to rest on the Sabbath because God had also rested on the Sabbath at the end of the six days of creation. These seven sections for constructing God's wilderness dwelling are parallel to the seven days of God's creation of the world in Genesis 1:1-2:3. Creation stories from other cultures in the ancient world often ended with the building of a grand temple for the creator god, but the creation story in Genesis contains no such dwelling for the Lord. The building of God's tent dwelling in Exodus 25-31 in a sense continues the project of creation in Genesis 1:1-2:4. God explains that the ultimate purpose for bringing the Israelites out of Egypt and for building the mobile dwelling is "so I can be present among them" (Exod 25:8). In Exodus, God's presence with God's people is revealed as God's ultimate purpose from creation and the beginning of time (see John 1:1-4, 14).

24:18 forty days and forty nights: a customary length of time in biblical texts indicating a full cycle from beginning to end (Gen 7:17; Exod 34:28; Num 13:25; Deut 9:9, 11, 18; 10:10; 1 Sam 17:16; 1 Kgs 19:8; Ezek 4:6; Jon 3:4; Matt 4:2; Mark 1:13; Luke 4:2; Acts 1:3).

25:1-9 A major new section in Exodus begins here with God's instructions for building a mobile wilderness dwelling for God (Exod 25:1-31:18). The goal of the Israelites' construction project is so that the Lord can be present among them (25:8) as the Israelites travel through the wilderness to the promised land of Canaan (Exod 6:6-8; Num 10:11-28). God's presence will move from the distant top of Mount Sinai into the wilderness dwelling, which will be in the center of Israel's camp (Exod 40:34; Num 2:2, 17). The instructions for building the dwelling end in Exodus 31. The actual building of God's dwelling won't begin until Exodus 35. In the meantime, the crisis of the gold calf and its aftermath in Exodus 32-34 will dramatically interrupt the story's movement from instructions (Exod 25-31) to building (Exod 35-40).

25:2 The Lord instructs Moses to receive gift offerings from every Israelite who freely wants to give the materials to build God's sanctuary. This construction project contrasts sharply with the building projects for Pharaoh in Egypt. In Egypt, the Israelites were forced to work as slaves under harsh conditions (Exod 1:11-14). The building of God's dwelling is a voluntary effort in which the Israelites will be eager to participate (Exod 35:20-29; 36:2-7).

25:3 gold, silver, and copper: The Israelites were slaves in Egypt, and yet they have gold, silver, exotic fabrics, gemstones, and other rare items to contribute as offerings to building and furnishing God's dwelling in the wilderness. How did they obtain these items? Earlier in Exodus, the Israelites had received them from the Egyptians who encouraged them to leave Egypt (Exod 3:22; 11:1-2; 12:35-36). Gold is the most valuable of the three metals. On the one hand, some of the Israelites' gold will be used sinfully in the making of the gold calf. This violation of the first commandment against worshipping another god or idol (Exod 20:3-6) will threaten the whole covenant relationship with the Lord (Exod 32:1-6). On the other hand, the Israelites will in the end offer these valuable materials, including gold, for the building and furnishing of God's dwelling (Exod 35:20-29; 39:32-43).

25:4 blue, purple, and deep red: These colors along with fine linen are associated with positions of power and honor (Gen 41:42; Judg 8:26; Esth 1:6; 8:15; Dan 5:7, 29).

25:7 the priest's vest: a special piece of clothing with gemstones worn by the priest (Heb. ephod). It was often used to help receive an oracle or message from God (1 Sam 23:9-12).

25:10 an acacia-wood chest: This wooden container is them with gold. <sup>14</sup>Then put the poles into the rings on the chest's sides and use them to carry the chest. <sup>15</sup>The poles should stay in the chest's rings. They shouldn't be taken out of them.

Instructions for the table

Instructions for the lampstand

<sup>31</sup>Make a lampstand of pure hammered gold. The lampstand's base, branches, cups, flowers, and petals should all be attached to it. <sup>32</sup>It should have six branches growing out from its sides, three branches on one side of the lampstand and three branches on the other side the most important item in the dwelling that will be constructed. It has two main functions. One function is to be a container for the "covenant document" (Exod 25:16). The document includes the two stone tablets with the Ten Commandments (Exod 20:1-17) engraved by God (Exod 24:12; 31:18; 32:15-16; 40:20). It isn't clear that the "covenant scroll" written by Moses (Exod 24:4, 7) with the additional case laws (Exod 20:22-23:19) was placed into the chest. In Deuteronomy, the "Instruction scroll" written by Moses was put "next to the chest," not inside it (Deut 31:25). The second function of the acacia-wood chest is as a footstool or throne for God's presence. Some biblical traditions suggest a third function of the chest as a sign of God's power and presence that the Israelites took with them when they went to war against enemy armies (Num 10:33-36; 1 Sam 4:1-11, 5:1-7.2). This chest is sometimes called "the ark of the covenant" 25:15 The Levites will eventually move the chest with the poles . . . in the chest's rings so they don't touch the chest itself (cf. Exod 25:16, 21; 40:20; Num 3:31). Since the Lord engraved the stone tablets in the wooden chest (Exod 24:12; 31:18; 32:15-16), the tablets and chest were considered intensely holy, powerful, and even dangerous. Any human who touched the chest itself might die from contact with it (2 Sam 6:6-7).

25:17-22 See note on Exodus 25:10. God's presence will sit above the gold cover on top of the chest that contains the covenant document (25:21). From there, the Lord promises to continue to speak and deliver to you all that I command you (25:22). God had already spoken the Ten Commandments directly to the people from the top of Mount Sinai (Exod 20:1, 18-21). The Lord then wrote and engraved the commands on stone tablets (Exod 24:12; 31:18; 32:15-16) so they could be placed in the wooden chest. Along with them, however, God will continue to provide new instructions and interpretations of the expectations already given (Lev 1:1-2; Num 7:89; 27:1-11). In this way, God's Instruction will continue to develop, expand, and be interpreted in the face of new situations and contexts.

25:18 Figures like the two gold winged heavenly creatures frequently appear with the thrones of kings or gods in images from other cultures near ancient Israel. Similar images are used in the Bible of the Lord seated on a royal throne above the wooden chest and winged heavenly creatures (Num 7:89; 1 Sam 4:4; 2 Sam 6:2; 2 Kgs 19:15; 1 Chron 28:2; Pss 80:1; 99:1). These winged heavenly creatures (Heb. cherubim) were hybrid figures: wings attached to the body of a bull, lion, or other animal with a human head. Similar figures appear in the OT: in the Jerusalem temple (1 Kgs 6:23-28; Isa 6:1-3), in Ezekiel's vision (Ezek 1:5-12), and in the vision of a new future temple in Jerusalem (Ezek 41:18-20).

25:30 the bread of the presence: The bread is laid out on the table in front of the Lord's presence in the dwelling as an offering of hospitality, symbolically welcoming the Lord's presence among the people (Exod 39:36; Num 4:7). The Lord doesn't actually eat or drink, so the bread is set out each week on the Sabbath and then eaten by the priests (Lev 24:5-9; Num 4:7; 1 Sam 21:1-6; see Matt 12:4; Mark 2:26; Luke 6:4).

25:31-40 The solid gold lampstand had six branches along with the main stem, making seven lamps in all (25:37). Each evening a priest filled the lamps with olive oil, lit them, and let them burn until the morning (Exod 27:20-21). The lamp's light was a sign of hospitality for the Lord's presence and an aid to the priest's work at

of the lampstand. <sup>33</sup>One branch will have three cups shaped like almond blossoms, each with a flower and petals, and the next branch will also have three cups shaped like almond blossoms, each with a flower and petals. So it will be for the six branches that grow out of the lampstand. <sup>34</sup>In addition, on the lampstand itself there will be four cups shaped like almond blossoms, each with its flower and petals. <sup>35</sup>There will be a flower attached under the first pair of branches, a flower attached under the next pair of branches, and a flower attached under the last pair of branches. So it will be for the six branches that grow out of the lampstand. <sup>36</sup>Their flowers and their branches will be permanently attached to it. The whole lampstand should be one piece of pure hammered gold. <sup>37</sup>Make its seven lamps and set up its lamps so that they direct their light in front of the lampstand. <sup>38</sup>You should also make its tongs and fire pans out of pure gold. <sup>39</sup>All these items should be made from pure gold weighing one ekkar. <sup>40</sup>See to it that you make them according to the blueprint for them that you were shown on the mountain.

26 Make the dwelling with ten curtains of fine twisted linen and blue, purple, and deep red yarns. Work figures of winged heavenly creatures into their design. <sup>2</sup>Each curtain should be forty-two feet long and each curtain six feet wide. All the curtains should be the same size. <sup>3</sup>Five curtains will be joined to each other as one set, while the other five curtains will be joined together as a second set. <sup>4</sup>Make loops of blue thread on the edge of the outer curtain in the first set. Do the same on the edge of the outer curtain in the second set. <sup>5</sup>Make fifty loops on the one curtain in the first set and fifty loops on the edge of the curtain that is in the second set. The loops should be opposite each other. <sup>6</sup>Then make fifty gold clasps. Join the curtains to each other with the clasps so that the dwelling becomes one whole structure.

night (Exod 30:7-8; Lev 24:1-4; Num 8:1-3). The design of branches and almond blossoms suggests life and fertility, similar to the "tree of life" in the garden of Eden (Gen 2:9; 3:22). The almond blossoms may also refer to the uniqueness of Aaron and his descendants, who were specially chosen to serve as priests before the Lord (Num 17:1-13). Solomon's temple in Jerusalem was said to contain ten such lampstands (1 Kgs 7:48-49). The second temple built after the Babylonian exile and return had only one lampstand (2 Chron 13:11). It was this lampstand or "menorah" that became the central element in the Jewish Festival of Hanukkah. According to tradition, the lampstand miraculously kept burning in the temple without additional oil for eight days during the rededication of the Jerusalem temple at the time of the Maccabees in the second century BCE.

26:1-14 The dwelling containing God's presence has four layers of coverings to protect it: (1) the inner curtains made of fine linen and multicolored yarns with images of winged heavenly creatures on them (26:1-6); (2) a second layer of curtains made of goats' hair (26:7-13), (3) a third layer of red rams' skins (26:14), and (4) an outer layer of beaded leather (26:14).

26:1 fine twisted linen and blue, purple, and deep red: See note on Exodus 25:4. winged heavenly creatures: See notes on Exodus 25:10, 16.

their forty silver bases, two bases under the first board, two bases under the next board, and so on. <sup>22</sup>For the back of the dwelling on the west, make six boards. <sup>23</sup>Make two additional boards for the dwelling's rear corners. <sup>24</sup>They should be spread out at the bottom but joined together at the top with one ring. In this way, these two boards will form the two corners. <sup>25</sup>And so there will be eight boards with their sixteen silver bases, two bases under the first board, two bases under the next board, and so on.

Layout of the meeting tent and the courtyard

26:31-37 The veil covers the entrance to the inner room of the dwelling. This inner room is the holiest space (26:34-35). God's presence will be enthroned there above the chest that contains "the covenant document" (Exod 25:10-22; see note on Exod 25:10). Even the high priest Aaron will die if he enters this holiest space at any time, except on the annual Day of Reconciliation (Lev 16:2).

A second screen (26:36-37) covers the tent's entrance to the outside courtyard. This marks off a secondary holy space in the tent, although it is not as holy as the holiest space of the inner room.

26:31 blue, purple and deep red ... fine twisted linen: See note on Exodus 25:4. winged heavenly creatures: See notes on Exodus 25:10, 16.

Instructions for the altar

27 Make an acacia-wood altar. The altar should be square, seven and a half feet long and seven and a half feet wide. It should be four and a half feet high. <sup>2</sup>Make horns for the altar and attach them to it, one horn on each of its four corners. Cover it with copper. <sup>3</sup>Make pails for removing its ashes and its shovels, bowls, and trays. Make all its equipment out of copper. <sup>4</sup>Make for the altar a grate made of copper mesh. Make four copper rings for each of the four corners of the mesh. <sup>5</sup>Slide the mesh underneath the bottom edge of the altar and then extend the mesh halfway up to the middle of the altar. <sup>6</sup>Make acacia-wood poles for the altar and cover them with copper. <sup>7</sup>Put the poles through the rings so that the poles will be on the two sides of the altar when it is carried. <sup>8</sup>Make the altar with planks but hollow inside. All these should be made just as you were shown on the mountain.

Instructions for the dwelling's courtyard

Olive oil for the lampstand

<sup>20</sup>You must require the Israelites to bring you pure oil of crushed olives for the light so that the lamp may be set up to burn continually. <sup>21</sup>In the meeting tent, outside the veil that hangs in front of the covenant document, Aaron and his sons will tend the lamp from

27:1-8 Exodus describes two altars. One is overlaid with gold and used to burn incense near the holiest space (Exod 30:1-10; cf. Num 4:11). Here, however, the text describes the other altar, which was covered in copper and used to burn sacrifices in the dwelling's courtyard. The "entirely burned offerings" of grain and animals were to be sacrificed twice daily on this altar (Exod 29:38; 38:1). The altar was used for other kinds of sacrifices as well (Lev 1-7). These sacrifices to the Lord were ways of honoring God, expressing thanks, making persons or a community ritually clean, or forgiving sin. The sacrifices give off "a soothing smell" to the Lord (Exod 29:18, 25, 41; Lev 1:9; see Gen 8:21), an expression of the Lord's acceptance of the gift. Other ancient cultures in Mesopotamia had temples in which the gods were believed to eat or consume the sacrifices as actual food. The god's image was closed off in an inner room. Priests would daily enter the inner room and place food sacrifices from the altar on a table. A curtain or veil would be drawn during this daily ritual. In contrast, Israel's God didn't eat the sacrifices or drink the oil or wine offerings. There was no table in the inner room where God was present. The table in the dwelling was set in a second area, the court within the tent of meeting. The table was separated from God's presence by a veil (see note on Exod 25:30). Moreover, no priests could enter the holiest inner space where the Lord dwelled except for the high priest once a year (see note on Exod 26:31-37). The copper altar was located in a third area, the outer courtyard (Exod 27:9-19). The sacrifices to the Lord in Israel's worship life had several different functions, but none of them were believed to include actually feeding God on a daily basis.

27:2 horns for the altar: Each of the four corners of the altar was shaped like an animal horn, perhaps the horn of a bull, which was a common symbol of divine power in the ancient world (Exod 29:12; Num 23:22; 2 Sam 22:3; Ps 18:2; Isa 10:13; see 1 Kgs 1:50-53; 2:28-34). Modern archaeologists have uncovered a number of ancient Israelite altars with such horns at their corners. The protruding horns may have also served a practical purpose to hold up the grates above the fire on which animals were sacrificed and burned. Cover it with copper: Since the altar stood in the outer courtyard of the dwelling and not in the holiest space, it was covered not with gold but with copper. Copper was less valuable, a sign of the lower level of holiness in the outer courtyard area.

27:9-19 Four walls of drapes mark the rectangular outside boundary of the dwelling's courtyard. This courtyard has no roof and is open to the sky. This is in contrast to the meeting tent inside the courtyard, which is completely enclosed and contains the holiest space.

27:20-21 See note on Exodus 25:31-40. Throughout most of Exodus, the meeting tent (Exod 27:21; 28:43; 29:4, 44; 31:7; 39:32; 40:2, 34-35) or simply "the tent" (Exod 26:7, 9, 11-14; 26:36) refers to the inner tent within the larger

Instructions for the priests' clothing

28 Summon to you your brother Aaron and his sons from among the Israelites to serve me as priests—Aaron and Aaron's sons, Nadab and Abihu, and Eleazar and Ithamar. <sup>2</sup>Make holy clothing that will give honor and dignity to your brother Aaron. <sup>3</sup>Tell all who are skilled, to whom I have given special abilities, to make clothing for Aaron for his dedication to serve me as a priest. <sup>4</sup>These are the articles of clothing that they should make: a chest pendant, a vest, a robe, a woven tunic, a turban, and a sash. When they make this holy clothing for your brother Aaron and his sons to serve me as priests, <sup>5</sup>they should use gold, blue, purple, and deep red yarns and fine linen.

Priest's ornamental vest

<sup>6</sup>They should make the vest of gold, of blue, purple, and deep red yarns and of fine twisted linen with embroidered designs. <sup>7</sup>The vest will have two shoulder pieces attached to its two edges so that they may be joined together. <sup>8</sup>The vest's belt should be attached to it and made in the same way of gold, of blue, purple, and deep red yarns and fine twisted linen. <sup>9</sup>Take two gemstones and engrave on them the names of Israel's sons, <sup>10</sup>six names on one stone and the other six names on the other stone, in the order of their birth. <sup>11</sup>Like a gem cutter who engraves official seals, you will engrave the two stones with the names of Israel's sons. Mount them in gold settings. <sup>12</sup>Attach the two stones to the vest's shoulder pieces as stones of reminder for the Israelites. Aaron will carry into the LORD's presence their names on his two shoulders as a reminder. <sup>13</sup>Then make gold settings <sup>14</sup>along with two chains of pure gold, twisted like cords. Attach the corded chains to the gold settings.

Priest's chest pendant used for making decisions

"dwelling" (Exod 25:9; 26:1, 30; 27:9; 39:32; 40:2, 34-35; see also Lev 17:4; Num 3:25, 38; 4:25-26; 2 Sam 7:6). The meeting tent is enclosed with a roof. It contains both the holiest space of God's constant presence and the inner court with the table of the bread of the presence. Around the meeting tent was a courtyard that contained the sacrificial altar (Exod 27:1-8). The larger dwelling included both this courtyard and the meeting tent. It was intended to be located in the center of the Israelites' camp (Num 2:2, 17). For an alternate tradition of the meeting tent, see note on Exod 33:7-11.

28:1-43 The Lord gives instructions about making the holy clothing for Aaron and his sons, who will serve as priests. The clothing is to be worn only when the priests are serving in the holy spaces of the sanctuary (Lev 6:10; Ezek 42:14; 44:17-19). The focus is on clothing worn by the high priest, Aaron, when he serves in the dwelling (28:1-39). The items of special clothing give honor and dignity to the priest (28:2). They also protect the priest as he interacts with the powerful, dangerous and holy presence of God in the meeting tent and at the altar. The priests may misstep and bring guilt on themselves and die (Exod 28:35, 43; 30:20-21; see Lev 10:1-3).

28:1 Nadab and Abihu, and Eleazar and Ithamar: These are the four sons of Aaron (Exod 6:23; 24:1). The role of the priest in ancient Israel was hereditary and stayed within family lines.

28:3 to whom I have given special abilities: The Lord is the giver of extraordinary artistic skills, which allow the designers to make the priests' clothing. for his dedication: The clothing will be placed on Aaron for the first time during the ceremony celebrating his ordination as high priest (Exod 28:41; 29:1-29; Lev 8:7-9, 13; see Num 20:26, 28).

28:5 gold, blue, purple, and deep red . . . fine linen: See notes on Exod 25:3, 4.

28:6 the vest: The long linen vest (Heb. ephod) will be made of the same materials as the curtains (Exod 26:1) and screens (Exod 26:36; 27:16) of the dwelling. The vest was worn when an individual served in the place of worship (1 Sam 2:18; 2 Sam 6:14). The priestly vest could be misused as an idol that the Israelites worshipped (Judg 8:27; 17:3-6). At other times, the priestly vest was used to determine the Lord's will in making decisions (1 Sam 23:6-14; 30:7-10). This may reflect the close association of the priestly vest with the "chest pendant used for making decisions" (Exod 28:15). The priest's vest and "chest pendant" were physically attached to each other (Exod 28:28).

28:9 the names of Israel's sons: The names of the 12 tribes of Israel who were descended from the 12 sons of Jacob (Exod 1:1-5). Jacob was also known as Israel (Gen 32:28; 35:10).

28:10 in the order of their birth: For the order in which the 12 sons of Jacob/Israel were born, see Genesis 29:32-30:24; 35:16-18.

28:12 stones of reminder: One of the functions of the priest was to represent all the members of the 12 tribes of Israel before God, reminding the Lord of the covenant relationship between God and the people. The stones for each tribe functioned as a prayer for the Lord's blessing upon the tribe whenever the priest entered the sanctuary (see Moses' prayer of blessing for the 12 tribes in Deut 33:1-29).

28:15 chest pendant used for making decisions: See note on Exod 28:6. The pendant was a pouch about nine inches square (Exod 28:16), which contained the "Urim and Thummim" used for decision making (see Exod 28:30).

square and doubled, nine inches long and nine inches wide. <sup>17</sup>Set in it four rows of gemstone settings. The first row will be a row of carnelian, topaz, and emerald stones. <sup>18</sup>The second row will be a turquoise, a sapphire, and a moonstone. <sup>19</sup>The third row will be a jacinth, an agate, and an amethyst. <sup>20</sup>The fourth row will be a beryl, an onyx, and a jasper. Their settings will be made of decorative gold. <sup>21</sup>There will be twelve stones with names corresponding to the names of Israel's sons. They will be engraved like official seals, each with its name for the twelve tribes.

28:17-21 The 12 gemstones on the pendant correspond to the 12 tribes of Israel (Exod 28:29; see notes on Exod 28:9, 12). Several of the 12 gemstones are described by the prophet Ezekiel as part of "Eden, God's garden" (Ezek 28:13; see Gen 2:8, 12). The NT vision of the New Jerusalem includes several of these 12 gemstones built into the walls and foundations of the future city (Rev 21:19-20).

28:30 in the LORD's presence: The process of getting decisions from the Lord apparently happened in the sanctuary or dwelling where the priest served. the Urim and the Thummim: some combination of light and dark stones or dice that the priest would pour out of the pendant onto his lap (Prov 16:33). The particular combination of stones would determine God's answer to an important question that human leaders couldn't adequately answer for themselves. The range of decisions in need of divine guidance included military decisions in time of war (Num 27:21; Judg 20:18; 1 Sam 14:36-42; 2 Sam 5:23-24), the selection of leaders (1 Sam 10:20-22; Ezra 2:63), a verdict of guilt or innocence when evidence was inadequate (Exod 22:8; Josh 7:14-18), dividing up land among tribes (Judg 1:1-2), or deciding where to live (2 Sam 2:1). The answers usually came in one of three forms: yes, no, or inconclusive. See also the note on Leviticus 8:7-9.

28:31 the robe for the vest: The blue robe was worn under the vest and with the vest and pendant.

28:33-34 pomegranates...gold bells: The hem of the blue robe is lined with tassels shaped like pomegranates alternating with small gold bells. The pomegranate was a symbol of fertility and a decoration in Solomon's temple in Jerusalem (1 Kgs 7:42; 2 Kgs 25:17; Jer 52:23).

28:35 Its sound will be heard...so that he will not die: The small gold bells around the hem of the priest's robe will make noise as the priest enters the sanctuary. The bells apparently provide advance warning so that the Lord's powerful and holy presence doesn't unexpectedly erupt and cause the death of the priest as he enters the sanctuary. The sanctuary is a dangerous place, even for priests (Exod 28:43; 30:20-21, 33, 37; Lev 10:6, 9; 16:2, 13; Num 4:15, 19-20; 17:12-13; 18:3, 22; see Exod 19:21-22; see note on Exod 28:1-43).

28:36-38 The high priest Aaron wears a turban or head-dress of fabric wound up into a cone shape. A flower ornament with an inscription "Holy to the Lord" is attached to the turban with a blue cord. Archaeologists have uncovered ancient images of priests and even gods in Mesopotamia who wear flower-shaped ornaments tied to their foreheads by a blue cord. Their function seems to be as protection against attacks by evil spirits or other dangerous

Instructions for the priests' ordination

29 Now this is what you should do to make them holy in order to serve me as priests. <sup>1</sup>Take a young bull and two flawless rams. <sup>2</sup>Take unleavened bread, unleavened flat-bread made with oil, and unleavened wafers spread with oil. Make them out of high-quality wheat flour. <sup>3</sup>Put them all in one basket and present them in the basket along with the bull and the two rams. <sup>4</sup>Present Aaron and his sons at the entrance to the meeting tent and wash them with water. <sup>5</sup>Then take the priestly clothes and put them on Aaron: the tunic, the vest's robe, the vest itself, and the chest pendant. Put the vest on him with the vest's belt. <sup>6</sup>Set the turban on his head and place the holy crown on the turban. <sup>7</sup>Take the anointing oil and pour it on his head to anoint him. <sup>8</sup>Then present his sons and put the tunics on them. <sup>9</sup>Tighten the sashes on them, on both Aaron and his sons. Wrap the turbans on their heads. It will be a permanent regulation that the duties of priesthood belong to them. In this way, you will ordain Aaron and his sons.

divine powers. In the case of Aaron, the function of the forehead ornament is not so much to protect him. Rather, its purpose is to ensure that the Israelite people may be remembered favorably by the Lord, even when they have done something wrong when they offer sacrifices to the Lord. As high priest, Aaron will take on himself any guilt that the people have accumulated as a result of making improper sacrifices (Exod 28:38).

28:39 The embroidered sash is a sign of authority and office (Isa 22:21). It will be worn by both Aaron and his sons (Exod 29:9).

28:41 The priestly clothing will be worn when Aaron and his sons are made holy at their ordination to the priesthood (Exod 29:5-9; Lev 8:6-13). When priests, kings, or prophets were chosen by God, an official would pour or sprinkle olive oil upon their heads as a sign of their being dedicated by God to that role (Exod 29:7, 21; 30:22-24, 30; see 1 Sam 15:1; 16:12; 1 Kgs 1:34; 19:16).

28:42-43 undergarments: Priests had to be sure that they didn't risk death and accidentally expose their genitals before the Lord's presence (see note on Exod 28:35). Therefore, although it may have been optional elsewhere in the camp, the priests were required to wear underwear while working in the sanctuary (see note on Exod 20:26). approach the altar to minister as priests: The primary priestly duties included offering sacrifices of grain and animals upon the altar (see note on Exod 27:1-8; see also Exod 30:20; Ezek 44:15, 27; 1 Chron 23:13; 2 Chron 31:2).

29:1-37 The Lord gives instructions for the ceremony in which Aaron and his sons will be made holy and ordained to the priesthood. The ceremony has seven elements: (1) 29:2-3—gathering the breads and wafers into a basket along with the animals for the offerings on the altar (29:2-3); (2) 29:4—ritual washing and purifying of the bodies of the priestly candidate; (3) 29:5-9—putting on the priestly clothing of Aaron and his sons as a sign of their ordination as priests; (4) 29:10-18—the sacrificial offering of the bull and the first ram as a purification offering, which will cleanse the altar of any impurities caused by the donors of the materials or the builders of the altar; (5) 29:19-21—the sacrifice of the second ram and the anointing of Aaron and his sons with the holy oil and the blood of the ram; (6) 29:22-25—burning the fatty parts of the ram along with the breads and wafers as an uplifted offering and food gift for the Lord; and (7) 29:26-28—offering the breast of the ram and the thigh as the choice portions of the meat of the ram as an uplifted offering given to the priests by the Israelites to support them in their service to the Lord. The ceremony ordaining Aaron and his sons to the priesthood is actually carried out in Leviticus 8-9 (see Exod 40:12-15). 29:1 The Lord tells Moses (you) to take on the role of priest temporarily during the ordination ceremony for Aaron and his sons. At the end of the ceremony, Aaron and his sons will then take over as priests and Moses will step aside.

29:2 unleavened bread: No leavened bread containing yeast is allowed to be offered as a "burned" sacrifice on the altar of the Lord (Exod 29:23-25; see Lev 2:11).

29:4 wash them with water: Bathing the human body in water is a frequent part of ritual cleansing from a wide range of impurities (Lev 14-17; see Lev 16:4).

29:5-6 the priestly clothes: See Exodus 28:1-43.

29:7 the anointing oil: See note on Exodus 28:41. For the ingredients of the oil, see Exodus 30:22-33. pour it on his head: The act of pouring precious and sweet-smelling oil over someone's head was a gesture of luxury and honor (Pss 23:5; 133:2; Eccl 9:7-8).

29:10 lay their hands on the bull's head: This gesture indicates that the animal is owned and being donated entrance. <sup>12</sup>Take some of the bull's blood and smear it on the altar's horns with your finger. Pour out the rest of the blood at the altar's base. <sup>13</sup>Then take all the fat that covers the inner organs, the lobe of the liver, and the two kidneys along with the fat that is on them, and burn them up in smoke on the altar. <sup>14</sup>Burn the rest of the meat of the bull, its hide, and the intestines with their contents with a fire outside the camp. It is a purification offering.

by the one laying hands on the animal (in this case, the priests who are donating the bull). The gesture assures that the owners are the ones who will receive the purifying benefits of the animal offering (Lev 1:4; 4:4; see Num 8:10). Community leaders or elders may represent the whole community by laying their hands on an animal to be sacrificed. In that case, the sacrifice benefits the whole community, making reconciliation for sin (Lev 4:15). When someone lays both hands on an animal or person, something different is achieved. With two hands, sin or guilt may be transferred from one party to another. Thus, in Leviticus 16:21, Aaron as high priest represented all the people of Israel by laying both his hands on a live goat and transferring the sins of all Israel upon the goat (see also Lev 24:14).

29:12 The blood of the animal sacrifice was viewed as a powerful purifying agent (Gen 9:4; Lev 17:11). Smearing blood on the altar's horns at each of the four corners of the altar in effect cleansed the entire altar (see note on Exod 27:2; see also Ezek 43:20).

29:14 Since the animal's blood was used to purify the altar, its meat couldn't be eaten by the priests. Instead, it was burned outside the camp along with the hide and intestines (Lev 4:11-12; 6:30; 8:17; 16:27), purification offering: The instructions here follow the model for such offerings in Leviticus 4:1-2.

29:15 lay their hands: See note on Exodus 29:10.

29:16 Throwing the blood... against all the altar's sides in effect returns the blood and the animal's life back to God, to whom it belongs (Lev 17:6, 10-14; see also Gen 4:10; 9:4; Deut 12:23-25).

29:18 a soothing smell, a food gift for the Lord: See note on Exodus 27:1-8.

29:12 Ex 27:2; Lv 4:7, Lv 4:18, Lv 4:25, Lv 8:15

29:13 Lv 3:3-4, Lv 7:3; Is 43:24

29:14 Lv 4:11-12, Lv 4:21, Lv 16:27; Heb 13:11

29:22 Ex 29:13; Lv 8:25

29:19 lay their hands on the ram's head: See note on Exodus 29:10.

29:20 Smearing blood on the earlobes... thumbs and big toes of the priests' bodies purified their whole bodies in a way similar to doing so on the horns of the altar (see note on Exod 29:12; see also Lev 14:14). On throwing the rest of the blood against all the altar's sides, see note on Exodus 29:16.

29:21 Sprinkling the anointing oil and the blood on the priests makes them holy (cf. Exod 30:22-33). The blood makes things holy because it had touched the holy altar (Exod 29:37). Holiness is contagious by touch, according to this understanding (Lev 6:16-18).

29:22 The right thigh of the animal is normally set aside in other sacrifices and given to the priest (Lev 7:32-33). The ordination sacrifice is special, however, so the right thigh is also burned and offered as "a food gift for the Lord."

29:23 unleavened bread: See note on Exodus 29:2. See also Leviticus 6:19-23.

29:24 lift them as an uplifted offering: The gesture of lifting up the offering normally is performed by the one giving the offering along with the priest (Lev 7:28-31). The gesture indicates that the sacrifice is transferred from the giver to God through the priest. Here Aaron and his sons are the donors of the offering. They aren't yet officially priests until the conclusion of the ceremony. Thus it will be Moses who will take the priestly role of placing the offering in the hands of Aaron and his sons. Moses will also receive the priestly portions of the sacrifices (Exod 29:26). Once the priests are officially ordained, Moses will pass the priestly portions of the sacrifices on to Aaron and his sons, who alone will be allowed to eat them (Exod 29:27-28, 31-34; see also Lev 22:10-16).

<sup>26</sup>Take the breast of the ram for Aaron's ordination and lift it as an uplifted offering in the LORD's presence. It will be your portion. <sup>27</sup>Make holy the breast that was lifted for the uplifted offering and the thigh that was raised for the gift offering from the ram for the ordination. They belong to Aaron and his sons. <sup>28</sup>Those parts will be given to Aaron and his sons from the Israelites as a permanent provision, because they are a gift offering. They will be a gift offering from the Israelites, their gift offering to the LORD from their well-being sacrifices.

<sup>29</sup>Aaron's holy clothes should be passed on to his sons after him. His sons should be anointed in them and ordained in them. <sup>30</sup>The son who is priest in his place should wear them seven days when he comes into the meeting tent to minister in the sanctuary.

<sup>36</sup>Every day you should offer a bull as a purification offering for reconciliation. You should remove the sin from the altar through a ritual of reconciliation, and you should anoint the altar to make it holy. <sup>37</sup>Seven days you should perform the ritual of reconciliation for the altar and make it holy. In this way, the altar will become most holy, and whatever touches the altar will also become holy.

Instructions for daily entirely burned offerings

29:28 The instructions for the sacrifices of the ordination ceremony are similar (with small changes; see note on Lev 29:22) to those of the communal sacrifice of well-being in Leviticus 3:6-11; 7:11-34.

29:35-37 The sacrifices for purifying the altar and ordaining the priests are to be repeated for seven days. The number seven points to completeness or wholeness (Gen 1:1-23), so at the end of seven days the altar will become most holy (29:37; see 2 Chron 7:9; Ezek 43:25-26).

29:38-41 The instructions for the divine dwelling, all its equipment, and the ordination of the priests have all been given (Exod 25:1-29:37). Now the text gives the instructions for the entirely burned sacrifices that are required each day (see Num 28:3-8; Ezek 43:18-27; Dan 8:11). one lamb is to be sacrificed every morning, and another lamb is to be sacrificed every twilight (29:39). Each sacrifice also includes flour, olive oil, and wine. These items, along with the relatively inexpensive lamb meat, are the common things that ancient Israelites would eat and drink in their daily lives. The daily offering is intended as a small but sincere token of thanks as a gift offering for the LORD. The offering recognizes the many ordinary gifts given by God to sustain life.

29:42-45 The Lord promises to meet with the Israelites and speak to them from the meeting tent's entrance . . . in every generation (29:42-43). The meeting tent, the altar, and Aaron and his sons will all be made holy by the Lord's own glorious presence (29:43). The human activities performed by Moses and Aaron during the seven-day rituals of purification and ordination are important (Exod 29:35-37). They play a role in making the sanctuary, altar, and priests holy (Exod 29:21; 30:29-30). However, it is ultimately the Lord's glorious presence that makes the meeting tent, the altar, and the priests holy and set apart for their primary purpose (see Lev 21:15; 21:23; 22:9, 16). That primary purpose is so that the Lord will be at home among the Israelites and will be their God (29:45). The meeting tent and dwelling will allow the Lord's holy presence to move down from Mount Sinai and be close to the Israelites, traveling with them. In this way, God's people will be under God's care and protection as they make their way through the wilderness toward the promised land of Canaan (see note on Exod 25:1-9; see also Exod 6:6-8).

29:46 The Lord reveals here an additional part of God's name and character, which have been unfolding throughout the book of Exodus. The Lord has declared God's their God, who brought them out of the land of Egypt so that I could make a home among them. I am the LORD their God.

Instructions for the incense altar

30 Make an acacia-wood altar for burning incense. <sup>2</sup>The altar should be square, eighteen inches long and eighteen inches wide. It should be three feet high. Its horns should be permanently attached. <sup>3</sup>Cover the altar with pure gold, including its top, all its sides, and its horns. You should also make a gold molding all around it. <sup>4</sup>Make two gold rings and attach them under the molding on two opposite sides of the altar. They will house the poles used to carry the altar. <sup>5</sup>Make acacia-wood poles and cover them with gold. <sup>6</sup>Place the incense altar in front of the veil that hangs before the chest containing the covenant, in front of the cover that is on top of the covenant document where I will meet with you. <sup>7</sup>Aaron will burn sweet-smelling incense on the incense altar every morning when he takes care of the lamps. <sup>8</sup>And again when Aaron lights the lamps at twilight, he will burn incense. It should be a regular incense offering in the LORD's presence in every generation. <sup>9</sup>Don't offer the wrong incense on the altar or an entirely burned offering or a grain offering. Don't pour a drink offering on it. <sup>10</sup>Once a year Aaron should perform a ritual of reconciliation on its horns with the blood of the purification offering for reconciliation. Once a year in every generation he should perform a ritual of reconciliation at the altar. It is most holy to the LORD.

Census and compensation

expanding divine name in a series of "I am ..." statements: "I Am Who I Am" (Exod 3:14); "I am the LORD who heals you" (Exod 15:26); "I am the LORD ... who brought you out of Egypt" (Exod 20:2); "... am a passionate God ... I am loyal and gracious" (Exod 20:5-6); and "I'm about to send a messenger ... because I am [or my name is] with him" (Exod 23:20-21). The Lord now adds one more element to God's name: I am the LORD ... who brought them out of the land of Egypt so that I could make a home among them. God's ultimate desire and purpose has been to free the Israelites from Egypt in order that the Lord could live and travel in close relationship with God's people, Israel. Freedom from slavery isn't an end in itself but a step on the way to finding a home with God and living in covenant with the Lord. In a sense, the goal of the exodus will be achieved even before Israel's conquest of the land of Canaan happens (Josh 1-15). A good part of the mission of the exodus will be accomplished by the actual arrival of God's glorious presence into the wilderness dwelling (Exod 40:34). However, God's glorious presence will continue with Israel also in the Jerusalem temple on Mount Zion (see note on Exod 15:17). For future expansions of God's name and character, see notes on Exodus 33:19; 34:6-7.

30:1-31:17 In Exodus 25:1, instructions began that explained the building of the dwelling, the construction of its equipment, and the ordination of its priests. These instructions now conclude with various directions for items associated with the worship service within the dwelling: building an altar for burning incense (30:1-10), taking a census of the Israelites and collecting money to support the service of the meeting tent (30:11-16), setting up the copper basin for washing (30:17-21), listing the ingredients for the holy oil and the incense (30:22-38), selecting the construction leaders (31:1-11), and repeating the Sabbath commandment against working on the seventh day of the week (31:12-17).

30:1-10 The incense altar stood in front of the veil leading into the holiest place, where the Lord's glorious presence would dwell (30:6). The table (Exod 25:23-30) and the lampstand (Exod 25:31-40) stood on either side of the incense altar. All three items played a role in regular daily rituals. The table held the bread of the presence each day (Exod 25:30; Lev 24:5-9). The lampstand provided light for the sanctuary every night (Exod 27:20-21; 30:7-8; Lev 24:1-4). In the center, the altar held burning incense each morning and evening (30:7-8).

30:6 the chest containing the covenant: See note on Exodus 25:10.

30:9 Don't offer the wrong incense: The incense must contain only the ingredients mentioned in Exodus 30:34-36. For a dramatic example of wrong incense, see Leviticus 10:1-2. The instruction also commands that no meat, grain, or drink offerings be offered on the incense altar within the meeting tent. Burned food sacrifices were banned from the area closest to the Lord's presence. This suggests the sacrifices weren't meant as food or drink for God. Rather, sacrifices were made in the courtyard on a copper altar. They were gifts and tokens of thanks, purification, or reconciliation given by worshippers primarily for their benefit rather than God's benefit. See notes on Exodus 25:30; 27:1-8.

30:10 Once a year ... a ritual of reconciliation: presumably the Day of Reconciliation (also known as the Day of Atonement; see Lev 4:18; 16:16).

30:11-16 The Lord commands that when a census is taken to count the Israelites, a half shekel of silver should the poor shouldn't give less than the half shekel. <sup>16</sup>Take the compensation money from the Israelites and use it to support the service of the meeting tent. It will serve for the Israelites as a reminder in the LORD's presence of the compensation paid for your lives.

Instructions for the washbasin

Instructions for oil and incense

Construction leaders: Bezalel and Oholiab

31 The LORD spoke to Moses: <sup>2</sup>Look, I have chosen Bezalel, Uri's son and Hur's grandson from the tribe of Judah. <sup>3</sup>I have filled him with the divine spirit, with skill, ability, and knowledge for every kind of work. <sup>4</sup>He will be able to create designs; do metalwork in gold, silver, and copper; <sup>5</sup>cut stones for setting; carve wood; and do every kind of work. <sup>6</sup>I have also appointed with him Oholiab, Ahisamach's son from the tribe of Dan. To all who are skillful, I have given the skill to make everything that I have commanded you: <sup>7</sup>the meeting tent, the chest containing the covenant, the cover that is on top of it, all the tent's furnishings, be collected as compensation. In the biblical world, people believed that taking a census of a group could cause a plague or disaster (2 Sam 24:1-15; 2 Chron 21:1-14). It was believed that a payment of money would protect those being counted from such a disaster (Num 31:48-50, 54). The compensation would also help to provide the silver necessary for building the wilderness dwelling (Exod 30:16; 26:19, 21, 25; 27:10-11, 17; 38:25-28).

30:17-21 The washing by the priests is a ritual cleansing of their hands and their feet (30:19). These parts of their bodies will make contact with surfaces that are holy: the items and area inside the meeting tent, the altar, the sacrifices, and the ground around the altar. For the source of the copper for the basin for washing, see Exodus 38:8. so that they don't die: See note on Exodus 28:35.

30:22-33 This particular recipe for the holy anointing oil (30:25) was to be made only by the priests and to be used only in the sanctuary (Exod 30:32-33). Scented oils were used regularly for common health and cosmetic reasons by ancient people.

30:29 Whatever touches them will become holy: See note on Exodus 29:21.

30:33 cut off from the people: See note on Exodus 12:15.

30:34-38 The unique recipe for the holy incense is reserved only for the priests and for the incense altar in the meeting tent (Exod 30:1-10).

30:36 in front of the covenant document . . . where I will meet with you: See Exodus 30:6; 25:22; 29:42.

30:38 cut off from the people: See note on Exodus 12:15.

They will do just as I have commanded you.

Instructions for keeping the Sabbath

<sup>12</sup>The LORD said to Moses: <sup>13</sup>Tell the Israelites: “Be sure to keep my sabbaths, because the Sabbath is a sign between me and you in every generation so you will know that I am the LORD who makes you holy. <sup>14</sup>Keep the Sabbath, because it is holy for you. Everyone who violates the Sabbath will be put to death. Whoever does any work on the Sabbath, that person will be cut off from the people. <sup>15</sup>Do your work for six days. But the seventh day is a Sabbath of complete rest that is holy to the LORD. Whoever does any work on the Sabbath day will be put to death. <sup>16</sup>The Israelites should keep the Sabbath. They should observe the Sabbath in every generation as a covenant for all time. <sup>17</sup>It is a sign forever between me and the Israelites that in six days the LORD made the heavens and the earth, and on the seventh day the LORD rested and was refreshed.”

chief supervisor, Bezalel, is filled... with the divine spirit and is from the southern tribe of Judah. Oholiab is from the far northern tribe of Dan. Thus, both southern Judah and northern Israel are represented. The tribe of Judah will eventually lay claim to God’s presence in the temple in Jerusalem (1 Kgs 6; see note on Exod 15:17). The northern kingdom had a competing worship shrine in Dan (1 Kgs 12:25-30; see note on Exod 32:1-35). The supervisors begin their work constructing the dwelling in Exodus 35:30-36:1, after the gold calf incident in Exodus 32-34.

<sup>31:18</sup> two covenant tablets... written by God’s finger. See Exodus 24:12. The stone tablets contain the Ten Commandments and are the only instructions written by God. All the other teachings are given by the Lord through Moses (Exod 24:3-4, 7). This reminder of the precious and unique quality of the stone tablets will heighten the dramatic effect when Moses throws the tablets to the ground and breaks them (Exod 32:15-16, 19; see Exod 34:1, 27-28). <sup>32:1-34:35</sup> The Lord has just completed making a covenant of promises and obligations with the Israelites at Mount Sinai (see sidebar, “The Covenant” at Exod 19). The people have heard the Ten Commandments spoken directly by God to them (see note on Exod 20:18-21). The first and most important commandments in Israel’s covenant with the Lord prohibited the worship of other gods and the making of idols of any kind (Exod 20:1-5). The instructions that followed the Ten Commandments (Exod 20:22-23:19) begin with forbidding Israel from making “gods of silver or gold for yourselves” (Exod 20:23). These teachings end with a command not to “call on the names of other gods” (Exod 23:13). Three times the Israelites agree that they will surely obey “everything that the Lord has said” (Exod 19:8; 24:3, 7). The instructions for the building of God’s holy dwelling have all been given to Moses by the Lord (Exod 25:1-31:17). The reader’s expectation is that now the story will proceed to the actual construction of the dwelling that will provide a home for the Lord’s glorious presence. That, after all, was God’s ultimate desire and intention—that the Lord would “make a home” among the Israelites (see note on Exod 29:46). This scene of teaching and obedience, however, is suddenly and unexpectedly shattered. Israel breaks the most important commandment against worshipping other gods and against making idols of gold or silver. The Israelites make a gold calf at the foot of Mount Sinai and then worship it. Breaking this first and most important commandment means that the whole covenant between the Lord and the Israelites is broken. How will a sinful and disobedient Israel be able to go forward on its journey from here? How can a rebellious human community coexist with a holy and passionate God who punishes the guilty (Exod 20:5) and doesn’t forgive (Exod 32:21)? These are the central questions that hang over Exodus 32-34.

<sup>32:1-35</sup> The action in the chapter moves back and forth between the top of Mount Sinai and the foot of Mount Sinai. Aaron and the Israelites make and worship a gold calf at the foot of Mount Sinai (32:1-6). Moses and the Lord enter into a debate about the future of the people on top of Mount Sinai (32:7-14). Then Moses comes down and confronts the people and Aaron at the bottom of the mountain (32:15-29). Finally, Moses returns again us. As for this man Moses who brought us up out of the land of Egypt, we don't have a clue what has happened to him."

<sup>6</sup>When Aaron saw this, he built an altar in front of the calf. Then Aaron announced, "Tomorrow will be a festival to the LORD!"<sup>7</sup> They got up early the next day and offered up entirely burned offerings and brought well-being sacrifices. The people sat down to eat and drink and then got up to celebrate.

<sup>8</sup>The LORD spoke to Moses: "Hurry up and go down! Your people, whom you brought up out of the land of Egypt, are ruining everything! <sup>9</sup>They've already abandoned the path that I commanded. They have made a metal bull calf for themselves. They've bowed down to speak with God on the top of Mount Sinai (32:30-34). Moreover, the story sets up a contrast in leadership between Moses and Aaron. Moses takes full responsibility for the future of the people and pleads on behalf of the Israelites before God (32:11-14, 32). Aaron, on the other hand, blames the people for his own bad actions and refuses to accept responsibility as a leader (32:21-24; see also 32:2-4).

32:1 a long time: The reader knows that Moses will be on the mountain for a period of 40 days and 40 nights (Exod 24:18). The Israelites, however, haven't been told how long Moses will be away, and so they grow impatient. Aaron is a brother to Moses (Exod 6:20) and will eventually become the high priest who will lead Israel's worship of God in the wilderness dwelling (Exod 28:1, 41; 29:1-29; Lev 8:7-9, 13). Moses also put Aaron in charge while Moses went up to speak to God on top of the mountain (Exod 24:14). Thus the people turn to Aaron with their demand that he make a gold calf and lead them in bowing down to other gods. Make us gods: The Hebrew word for "gods" (elohim) can mean multiple gods or it can be a plural of majesty referring to one great god. In any case, the people demand that Aaron make an idol of one or more alternate gods to replace the Lord as the object of their worship and devotion. Moses: The people seek a new human leader to replace Moses, presumably Aaron. who brought us up out of the land of Egypt: Before this point, it is the Lord who is almost always named as the primary one responsible for bringing Israel out of slavery in Egypt, not Moses (Exod 3:17; 6:6-7; 18:1, 12; 20:2; 29:46; one exception is Exod 3:12). The people in effect deny the Lord by associating their deliverance with Moses instead.

The Gold Bull Calf In and around Israel, archaeologists have uncovered numerous statues and stone images of calves and bulls. They were used in worship, each serving either as an image of a god or as a throne on which a god would stand or sit. In Exodus 32, the gold bull calf could be understood in one of three ways. First, it could be an improper substitute for the Lord's throne on top of the chest containing the covenant document in the tent dwelling (Exod 25:17-22). Second, it could be an image of gods other than the Lord (Exod 32:1, 4—breaking the commandment against having other gods—Exod 20:3; see Ps 106:19-20). Third, it could be an idol and image of the Lord (Exod 32:5—breaking the commandment against making idols of any kind—Exod 20:4-5; see Neh 9:18). The story about the gold bull calf likely has some connection with King Jeroboam's two gold calves in Dan and Bethel in 1 Kings 12:25-30. Jeroboam set up two gold calves at Dan and Bethel as a rival to southern Judah's temple in Jerusalem. King Jeroboam made a proclamation that is almost identical to the people's proclamation in Exodus 32:4 (see 1 Kgs 12:28).

32:2 gold rings: The gold rings apparently were part of the silver and gold that the Egyptians gave to the Israelites as an encouragement for them to leave Egypt quickly (Exod 3:22; 11:2-3; 12:35-36). The Lord had originally intended the gold to be used for the construction of the Lord's sanctuary or dwelling (see note on Exod 25:3).

32:4 he made a metal image: Aaron disobeys the commandment against making an image of a god (Exod 20:4-5, 23). a bull calf: The image of a bull is frequently associated with gods in the ancient Near East, including Canaanite religious texts from Ugarit. Some traditions in northern Israel also connected the image of a bull calf with the worship of the Lord (1 Kgs 12:25-33). See sidebar, "The Gold Bull Calf" your gods, Israel, who brought you up: The phrase implies more than one god. The people now attach the deliverance from Egypt to these gods rather than to Moses (Exod 32:1) or to the Lord (Exod 20:2; 29:46).

32:5 a festival to the LORD: Aaron tries to redefine the people's worship of the gold bull calf. For Aaron, the gold calf isn't an idol of these other gods but an image of the LORD. Even so, bowing down to an idol that is identified with the Lord still violates the commandment against the making of any "idol" in Exodus 20:4-5, 23.

32:6 The scene here is strikingly similar to the original covenant the Israelites made with the Lord in Exodus 24:5-11. Both covenants are made with entirely burned offerings, well-being sacrifices, eating, drinking, and looking at the deity. In effect, the Israelites make their own new covenant with the idol.

32:7 The Lord spoke to Moses: The scene suddenly shifts from the foot of Mount Sinai to the top of the mountain.

to it and offered sacrifices to it and declared, "These are your gods, Israel, who brought you up out of the land of Egypt!" <sup>9</sup>The LORD said to Moses, "I've been watching these people, and I've seen how stubborn they are. <sup>10</sup>Now leave me alone! Let my fury burn and devour them. Then I'll make a great nation out of you."

<sup>15</sup>Moses then turned around and came down the mountain. He carried the two covenant tablets in his hands. The tablets were written on both sides, front and back. <sup>16</sup>The tablets were God's own work. What was written there was God's own writing inscribed on the tablets. <sup>17</sup>When Joshua heard the noise of the people as they shouted, he said to Moses, "It sounds like war in the camp."

"It isn't the sound of a victory song.

It isn't the sound of a song of defeat.

The sound of party songs is what I hear."

<sup>19</sup>When he got near the camp and saw the bull calf and the dancing, Moses was furious.

The LORD sees what has been happening among the Israelites with the gold calf and informs Moses (Exod 24:18; 32:1). Your people, whom you brought up out of the land of Egypt. Earlier throughout Exodus, the Israelites were always the Lord's people (Exod 3:10; 5:1, 16, 23; 6:7; 7:4, 16; 8:1, 20, 21, 22, 23; 9:1, 13, 17; 10:3, 4; 18:1; 19:5-6; 22:25). Here the Lord tells Moses that the Israelites are Your people, not the Lord's people. The Lord also transfers the responsibility of bringing the Israelites out of Egypt onto Moses (see note on Exod 32:1). The Lord effectively disowns the people of Israel because of their idolatry.

32:9-10 leave me alone... devour them: The Lord instructs Moses to step aside and allow God to destroy all the Israelites as a punishment for their sin of disobeying the commandments by worshipping the image of another god. The stubborn Israelites haven't even left Mount Sinai, and yet they have broken the covenant with God. I'll make a great nation out of you: God gives Moses the chance to abandon the Israelites and start all over. Moses can become a new Abraham, the father of a whole new and great nation (see Gen 12:2; 18:18; 22:17-18).

32:11 But Moses pleaded with the LORD: Moses denies himself the opportunity to become a new Abraham. Instead, Moses begins to make a strong case for why the Lord shouldn't destroy the Israelites but remain committed to them, even though they have disobeyed God's covenant. your own people... out of the land of Egypt: Moses begins by reminding the Lord that the Israelites are primarily God's own people, not Moses' people (Exod 19:3-6). Moreover, it was ultimately the Lord who rescued Israel out of the land of Egypt, not Moses (Exod 20:2; 29:46). The Lord has invested too much in Israel to abandon them now.

32:12 Why should the Egyptians say: Moses' second argument is that destroying Israel in the wilderness would hurt the Lord's international reputation among nations like Egypt. The argument has force. The Lord has consistently been interested in what the Egyptians believe about Israel's God (Exod 7:5; 11:7; 14:4, 18).

32:13 Remember Abraham, Isaac, and Israel: Moses' third argument is that God has made an enduring covenant and commitment to Israel's ancestors. God promised that they would have many descendants, and the Lord would bring them to the promised land of Canaan (Gen 12:1-3, 7; 13:14-16; 15:5, 15-18; 17:7-8; 22:17; Exod 3:16-17; 6:6-8). Moses appeals to God's faithfulness to keep the promises that God has made (Num 23:19; Ps 145:13).

32:14 Then the Lord changed his mind: Earlier in Exodus, Moses had argued with God and lost (Exod 3:11-4:17). God refused to change God's mind about Moses leading Israel out of Egypt. This time, however, Moses advocates not for himself but for the Israelites—and the human wins the argument. God changed God's mind. Elsewhere in the Bible, claims are made that God doesn't change God's mind as humans change their minds (e.g., 1 Sam 15:29). Ironically, in this case, God reverses course about destroying Israel in order avoid reversing earlier long-standing promises to bless Israel (see note on Exod 32:13). A similar argument between Moses and the Lord will occur at another crisis point when Israel arrives at Canaan's border in Numbers 14:1-25.

32:17 Joshua is Moses' assistant who had gone up the mountain with Moses (Exod 24:13).

32:19 Moses was furious: Moses had earlier defended Israel against the Lord's anger (Exod 32:11-14). As he sees the Israelites at the foot of Mount Sinai, Moses switches roles. Moses reflects the Lord's anger and condemns the Israelites. shattered them in pieces: Moses breaks the two precious stone tablets on which God had engraved the Ten Commandments (Exod 32:16). The dramatic act is a sign that the covenant between the Lord and the Israelites has been broken by Israel's actions. The actions violated the first and most important commandments against worshipping other gods and making an idol (Exod 20:3-5).

32:34 Ex 23:20

He hurled the tablets down and shattered them in pieces at the foot of the mountain. <sup>20</sup>He took the calf that they had made and burned it in a fire. Then he ground it down to crushed powder, scattered it on the water, and made the Israelites drink it.

<sup>21</sup>Moses said to Aaron, "What did these people do to you that you led them to commit such a terrible sin?"

<sup>22</sup>Aaron replied, "Don't get angry with me, sir. You know yourself that these people are out of control." <sup>23</sup>They said to me, 'Make us gods who can lead us. As for this man Moses who brought us up out of the land of Egypt, we don't have a clue what has happened to him.' <sup>24</sup>So I said to them, 'Whoever has gold, take it off! So they gave it to me, I threw it into the fire, and out came this bull calf!'

<sup>25</sup>Moses saw that the people were out of control because Aaron had let them get out of control, making them an easy target for their enemies. <sup>26</sup>So Moses stood at the camp's gate and said, "Whoever is on the LORD's side, come to me!" All the Levites gathered around him. <sup>27</sup>Moses said to them, "This is what the LORD, Israel's God, says: Each of you, strap on your sword! Go back and forth from one end of the camp to the other. Each of you, kill your brother, your friend, and your neighbor!" <sup>28</sup>The Levites did as Moses commanded. About three thousand people were killed that day. <sup>29</sup>Moses said, "Today you've been ordained to the LORD, each one of you at the cost of a son or a brother. Today you've gained a special blessing for yourselves."

<sup>30</sup>The next day Moses said to the people, "You've committed a terrible sin. So now I will go up to the LORD. Maybe I can arrange reconciliation on account of your sin." <sup>31</sup>So Moses went back to the LORD and said, "Oh, what a terrible sin these people have committed! They made for themselves gods<sup>7</sup> of gold. <sup>32</sup>But now, please forgive their sin! And if not, then wipe me out of your scroll that you've written."

<sup>33</sup>But the LORD said to Moses, "The ones I'll wipe out of my scroll are those who sinned against me. <sup>34</sup>Now go and lead the people to the place I described to you. My messenger here will go in front of you. When the day of reckoning comes, I'll count their sin against them."

32:20 burned it in a fire: Moses completely destroys the idol by first burning it and then grinding the gold to powder. That a human like Moses can so easily destroy this gold calf shows how powerless and empty the idol is. The people are forced to drink the powdered gold as a test of guilt and innocence. Those guilty of idolatry will become ill and die from the powder. Those who are innocent will be spared and live. A similar process occurs in the case of someone suspected of adultery in Numbers 5:11-31.

32:21 Moses demands an explanation from Aaron because Moses had put Aaron in charge during his absence (Exod 24:14).

32:22-24 As a leader, Moses had earlier denied his own interests and advocated for the Israelites before God (see note on Exod 32:11). Aaron presents a dramatic contrast to Moses. He takes no responsibility as a leader, blames the people, and lies about his active role in making the gold calf (cf. 32:24 with Exod 32:4; see Exod 32:35).

32:26-28 Moses is a Levite (Exod 2:1-10; 6:19-20). The Levites join Moses in punishing the guilty by killing 3,000 of their fellow Israelites by the sword. Elsewhere in the Bible, the tribe of Levi is associated with excessive violence (Gen 49:5-7; see Gen 34:25-31). Here Moses claims the Levites' violence is justified and commanded by God. The text is disturbing, but it serves to emphasize the severe nature of the people's sin and the disastrous consequences that flow from it. God had initially planned to kill all the Israelites before Moses changed God's mind (Exod 32:10, 14).

32:29 Today... ordained to the LORD: Moses ordains all members of the tribe of Levites into special service, presumably as priests to lead worship and offer sacrifices (see also Deut 10:8-9; 18:1-8; 33:8-10). Another tradition views the Levites not as full priests but as servants subordinate to the sole priestly line of Aaron and his descendants (Exod 28:1; 29:44; 38:21; Num 3:5-11; 8:5-22; Num 16-18).

32:31 Moses returns to the top of Mount Sinai to seek further reconciliation from the Lord. The Lord has not forgiven the Israelites but only allowed them to survive (Exod 32:14). Moses wants something more.

32:32 your scroll that you've written: This likely refers to "the scroll of life" (Ps 69:28; Isa 4:3) on which God lists the names of the faithful. Moses puts his own life and status on the line for the people and their forgiveness (see also Exod 32:10-11).

32:33 The Lord says no to Moses' offer to take his life for the people. The Lord also says no to forgiving those who sinned.

32:34 My messenger: The Lord commands Moses to lead the Israelites through the wilderness to the land of Canaan. The Lord won't go with him because of the people's sin. Instead, the Lord will send a divine messenger, a warrior who will be a substitute for God's presence among the Israelites. The divine messenger had been promised earlier (Exod 23:20-22). The original plan had been that the Lord and the messenger would travel with the Israelites to Canaan (Exod 29:44-46). Now only the messenger will accompany the Israelites. I'll count their sin against them: These words echo the Lord's earlier warning concerning <sup>35</sup>Then the LORD sent a plague on the people because of what they did with the bull calf that Aaron made.

33The LORD said to Moses, "Go and leave this place, you and the people whom you brought up out of the land of Egypt. Go to the land I promised to Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob when I said, 'I'll give it to your descendants.' I'll send a messenger before you. I'll drive out the Canaanites, the Amorites, the Hittites, the Perizzites, the Hivites, and the Jebusites. Go to this land full of milk and honey. But I won't go up with you because I would end up destroying you along the way since you are a stubborn people."

<sup>4</sup>When the people heard the bad news, they were sorry. No one put on any jewelry, <sup>5</sup>because the LORD had said to Moses, "Tell the Israelites, 'You are a stubborn people. If I were to go up with you even for a single moment, I would destroy you. So now take off your jewelry, while I figure out what to do with you.'" <sup>6</sup>So after leaving Mount Horeb the Israelites rid themselves of their jewelry.

Speaking with the LORD at the meeting tent

<sup>7</sup>Moses took the tent and pitched it outside the camp, far away from the camp. He called it the meeting tent. Everyone who wanted advice from the LORD would go out to the meeting tent outside the camp. <sup>8</sup>Whenever Moses went out to the tent, all the people would rise and stand at the entrance to their tents and watch Moses until he had gone into the tent. <sup>9</sup>When Moses entered the tent, the column of cloud would come down and stand at the tent's entrance while the LORD talked with Moses. <sup>10</sup>When all the people saw the column of cloud standing at the tent's entrance, they would all rise and then bow down at the entrances to their tents. <sup>11</sup>In this way the LORD used to speak to Moses face-to-face, like two people the messenger: "He won't forgive the things you do wrong" (Exod 23:21).

32:35 a plague on the people: The word for plague used here is from the same Hebrew root as the word used when God struck the Egyptians with plagues because they enslaved the Israelites (Exod 8:2; 12:13, 23, 27). God punishes Israel just as God punished Egypt. The plague may be the outcome of the test of guilt and innocence in Exodus 32:20. 33:1-23 Moses pleads with God a second time. Moses had managed to convince God to change plans about destroying Israel in the first round of arguing with God (Exod 32:10-14). Moses, however, is not satisfied with Israel's mere survival. Nor is Moses satisfied with only the divine messenger as they travel to Canaan. Moses insists that the Lord must go with us (33:16). The Lord ultimately gives in to Moses' demands, including a request that Moses be allowed to see a glimpse of the Lord's glorious presence (33:18). In doing so, Moses will see more deeply into the profound goodness of God's character and name (33:19).

33:1 The Lord continues to keep the Israelites at arm's length. The Lord tells Moses that these are the people whom you (not the Lord) brought up from Egypt (see note on Exod 32:7). the land I promised to Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob: See note on Exodus 32:13.

33:2 I'll send a messenger: See note on Exodus 32:34. the Canaanites . . . Jebusites: This is the traditional list of all the groups of people who live in the land of Canaan. The Lord promises that the divine messenger or warrior will drive them out (see note on Exod 23:23).

33:3 But I won't go up with you. The Lord's original plan and goal had been to make a home in the middle of the Israelite camp in the tent dwelling as the Israelites traveled to Canaan (see Exod 25-31, esp. 29:42-46). That entire plan is now on hold. because I would end up destroying you: God's glorious presence is holy, powerful, and dangerous, even for priests (see notes on Exod 28:1-43 and 28:35). Close contact with God's awesome holiness will destroy an unholy or sinful people. Although Israel was called to be a "kingdom of priests . . . and a holy nation" (Exod 19:6), the gold calf disaster has shown that they have not lived up to their calling. By the end of Exodus, however, the Lord's glorious presence will come down and fill the tent dwelling in the midst of the Israelites in spite of Israel's rebellion. How that becomes possible is the subject of Exodus 33-34.

33:4-6 As commanded, the people take off their jewelry. This gold and silver had been given to the Israelites as they left Egypt (see note on Exod 32:2). The Israelites have become like the Egyptians in several ways. They have become a stubborn people (33:5), similar to Pharaoh and the Egyptians (Exod 7:13, 14, 22; 8:15, 19, 32; 14:17). God punished Israel with a plague, as God did with the Egyptians (see note on Exod 32:35). The Israelites were compelled to give away their jewelry, just as the Egyptians did (Exod 12:35-36). Mount Horeb: The alternate name for Mount Sinai (see note on Exod 19:1-8).

33:7-11 Moses took the tent . . . outside the camp: In Exodus 25-31, the meeting tent is connected with a larger "dwelling" in the middle of the camp. Those chapters assume that the Lord is always present in the tent (Exod 29:46; see Num 2:2, 17), the priests are in charge, and daily sacrifices are offered there. However, here in Exodus 33, the holy presence of the Lord isn't able to be present in the middle of Israel's camp because of their great sin (Exod 33:3). In response, Moses moves the meeting tent to an area outside the boundaries of Israel's camp. This meeting tent provides a temporary place for Moses and the Lord to communicate while Joshua stands guard at the tent (33:7-11). After the brief communication, the Lord's presence in the column of cloud would leave the tent. Some texts in Numbers and Deuteronomy have more in common with the meeting tent in Exodus 33:7-11 than with the "dwelling" in Exodus 25-31 (Num 11:16-17, 24-30; 12:4-13; Deut 31:14-15). See note on Exodus 27:20-21.

talking to each other. Then Moses would come back to the camp. But his young assistant Joshua, Nun's son, wouldn't leave the tent.

Moses pleads with God

<sup>12</sup>Moses said to the LORD, "Look, you've been telling me, 'Lead these people forward.' But you haven't told me whom you will send with me. Yet you've assured me, 'I know you by name and think highly of you.' <sup>13</sup>Now if you do think highly of me, show me your ways so that I may know you and so that you may really approve of me. Remember too that this nation is your people."

<sup>15</sup>Moses replied, "If you won't go yourself, don't make us leave here. <sup>16</sup>Because how will anyone know that we have your special approval, both I and your people, unless you go with us? Only that distinguishes us, me and your people, from every other people on the earth."

<sup>17</sup>The LORD said to Moses, "I'll do exactly what you've asked because you have my special approval, and I know you by name."

<sup>19</sup>The LORD said, "I'll make all my goodness pass in front of you, and I'll proclaim before you the name, 'The LORD.' I will be kind to whomever I wish to be kind, and I will have phrase expresses the intimacy of communication between the Lord and Moses. The Bible elsewhere indicates that humans can't see God face-to-face without at least the threat of losing their lives (Exod 3:6; 24:11; 33:20, 23; Gen 32:30; Judg 6:22-23; 13:22-23; Isa 6:5). Moses is able to speak to God face-to-face but not see God face-to-face (Exod 33:20, 23). The column of cloud associated with the meeting tent (Exod 33:10) presumably veils God's physical appearance as God and Moses speak closely with each other.

33:12-23 Moses enters into an extended negotiation with the Lord about how the Lord will be present with the Israelites as they continue their journey. Moses had earlier persuaded God to change God's mind about destroying Israel in the wilderness (Exod 32:9-14). Moses now seeks to persuade God personally (not just God's "messenger"—Exod 33:2) to go with us to Canaan (33:16).

33:12 Moses notes that the Lord hasn't told him whom you will send with me as Moses leads the Israelites into Canaan. The Lord had promised to send an unnamed "messenger" (Exod 33:2; see note on Exod 32:34). It appears to the reader that perhaps Moses is asking for the messenger's name (Gen 32:29-30; Judg 13:17-18). Moses bases his request on both God's previous claims that God knows Moses by name (indicating a very close relationship) and God's high regard for Moses.

33:13 Moses presses the Lord further. It is clear that Moses wants most of all to know the Lord and the Lord's ways. Moses asks to know something deeper and more profound about the Lord's ways, that is, the Lord's character, name, and ways of dealing with human sin and disobedience. The Lord's ways will be revealed in Exodus 33:19 and Exodus 34:6-7 (see Ps 103:7-19). The ways of the Lord's promised messenger involved strict obedience and no possibility of forgiveness (Exod 23:21). Moses hopes that the Lord's ways may be something different. Moses appeals to his intimate relationship with the Lord to move the Lord to a deeper revealing of God's ways and character. Remember... this nation is your people: See note on Exodus 32:11.

33:14 I'll go myself: Surprisingly, the Lord appears moved by Moses' appeal and decides to do more than just send a messenger (Exod 33:2). The Lord promises to go to Canaan as well and help Israel in defeating the Canaanites. But what does that mean? Will the Lord go ahead of the Israelites? Alongside the Israelites? The Lord had earlier said that going "with you" in the midst of Israel's camp was not an option (Exod 33:3).

33:15-16 Moses insists that the Lord must indeed personally go to Canaan. If not, Israel should just remain in the wilderness (33:15). Moses makes two bold rhetorical moves in Exodus 33:16. First, Moses subtly expands the special approval that the Lord had affirmed for Moses alone to the whole people of Israel. Second, Moses insists that the Lord must go with us since the Lord's presence in the midst of the Israelites (with us) is the only thing that distinguishes Israel from every other people on the earth. Israel on its own has begun to look like Egypt (see note on Exod 33:4-6). Israel's only claim to uniqueness among the nations is that the Lord is with us. In effect, Moses is asking that the Lord find a way to reinstate the plans for building the tent dwelling in Exodus 25-31. The tent dwelling represents the Lord's presence permanently at home with us, which has been the Lord's desire all along (Exod 29:46). But how can a holy God live with a sinful people? It will have to be through God's somehow reaching deeper into God's own ways, character, and name. There God will find the resources that make reconciliation with a disobedient Israel possible.

33:17 The Lord assures Moses that his request for the Lord's presence with us will be fulfilled. The Lord has agreed because of the Lord's special relationship with Moses. No mention is made of the Lord's "special approval" of the people (Exod 33:15). But God's intimacy with Moses is sufficient for God to move forward.

33:18 Moses responds with one more request: "Please show me your glorious presence." This request is a deepening of Moses' earlier appeal to God to "show me your ways" (Exod 33:13). Moses wants to have a more profound experience and knowledge of God's mysterious and dazzling glorious presence. The Lord's glorious presence often has a visual dimension of intense light, lightning, or fire. It's often associated with divine holiness, purity, power, and beauty (Exod 3:1-5; 13:21-22; 19:18; 24:10, 17; 40:34-38; Ps 104:1-2; Isa 60:1-3, 19; Ezek 1:26-28; Hab 3:4). Its background lies in images of the powerful God of the storm (Ps 18:7-15). Humans typically react to the divine glorious presence with a mixture of fear, awe, and attraction. Moses seeks to be drawn further into a deeper experience of the Lord's presence in order to know more deeply the divine character.

33:19 Moses has asked the Lord to show him the Lord's compassion to whomever I wish to be compassionate. <sup>20</sup>But,” the LORD said, “you can’t see my face because no one can see me and live.” <sup>21</sup>The LORD said, “Here is a place near me where you will stand beside the rock. <sup>22</sup>As my glorious presence passes by, I’ll set you in a gap in the rock, and I’ll cover you with my hand until I’ve passed by. <sup>23</sup>Then I’ll take away my hand, and you will see my back, but my face won’t be visible.”

A deeper revealing of God’s character

34 The LORD said to Moses, “Cut two stone tablets like the first ones. I’ll write on these tablets the words that were on the first tablets, which you broke into pieces. <sup>2</sup>Get ready in the morning and come up to Mount Sinai. Stand there on top of the mountain in front of me. <sup>3</sup>No one else can come up with you. Don’t allow anyone even to be seen anywhere on the mountain. Don’t even let sheep and cattle graze in front of the mountain.” <sup>4</sup>So Moses cut two stone tablets like the first ones. He got up early in the morning and climbed up Mount Sinai, just as the LORD had commanded him. He carried the two stone tablets in his hands. <sup>5</sup>The LORD came down in the cloud and stood there with him, and proclaimed the name, “The LORD.” <sup>6</sup>The LORD passed in front of him and proclaimed:

“The LORD! The LORD!
a God who is compassionate and merciful,
very patient,
full of great loyalty and faithfulness,

“ways” (Exod 33:13) and the Lord’s “glorious presence” (Exod 33:18). In response, the Lord promises to parade the Lord’s goodness and proclaim the name, “The LORD,” in front of Moses. All of these descriptions set up the expectation that Moses is about to receive a unique experience of knowing God’s deeper character, name and presence. I will be kind . . . will have compassion to whomever I wish to be compassionate: The Lord gives Moses a preview of the fuller meaning of the divine name, “The LORD,” that he is about to receive. When God first called Moses to lead the Israelites, God revealed a special divine name. That name of God could be translated either as “I Am Who I Am” or “I Will Be Who I Will Be” (Exod 3:14). The fuller meaning of this divine name unfolds in stages across the chapters of the book of Exodus (see notes on Exod 15:26; 20:2, 5-6; 23:21; 29:46; 34:6-7). Now Moses learns of the foundational kindness and compassion undergirding the divine name and character. At the same time, God preserves the right to determine who will receive kindness and compassion.

33:20 But . . . you can’t see my face: Although Moses will be allowed to glimpse some part of God’s “glorious presence” (Exod 33:18), Moses won’t see God’s face. The face is the most revealing part, whether of humans or of God. Thus Moses will indeed come to know God more deeply. Yet profound mystery and lingering questions about God’s actions and character will remain even for Moses, Israel’s most trusted servant of God. no one can see me and live: See notes on Exodus 3:6; 24:10-11; 33:11.

33:21 The rock is apparently located at the top of Mount Sinai (Exod 34:2, 4).

33:22-23 my hand . . . my back . . . my face: The Lord is described as having a humanlike body (see Ezek 1:26-28). Ironically, some part of God’s body (my hand) will shield Moses from seeing another part of God’s body (my face). See note on Exodus 33:20.

34:1-9 These verses represent a key point in the book of Exodus. They are a gracious response to Moses’ urgent pleas in Exodus 33. Throughout Exodus, the Lord has unfolded new insights into the Lord’s character and name (see note on Exod 33:19). Now these verses provide a definitive revealing of who God truly is. God’s deep character is primarily compassionate and merciful . . . forgiving every kind of sin (34:6-7). It is God’s compassion, loyalty, and forgiveness that make possible the restoring of the broken covenant relationship between the Lord and Israel (Exod 34:10; see Exod 32). The people of Israel will surely continue to suffer the consequences of future disobedience (34:7). But the core of the relationship between God and Israel will rest on God’s mercy and faithfulness (34:6-7). In response, Moses requests that the Lord go along with us (34:9; see note on Exod 33:3). Moses is eager to resume the project of building the “tent dwelling” as the place of the Lord’s presence in the middle of Israel’s camp (see Exod 25-31; 35-40). Moses also requests that the Lord forgive the stubborn people and take them again as the Lord’s own possession (34:9). This forgiveness means restoring the broken covenant relationship first established in Exodus 19-24 (see note on Exod 19:5). The restoration, however, relies less on the people’s obedience and more on God’s mercy and loyalty to Israel.

34:1 two stone tablets like the first ones: See Exodus 24:3, 12; see note on Exodus 31:18. which you broke into pieces: See note on Exodus 32:19. In the first instance, the Lord had cut the two stone tablets and engraved them with the Ten Commandments (see Exod 24:12; 31:18; 32:15-16; see note on Exod 24:3). Moses had written the rest of God’s instruction on a “covenant scroll” (Exod 24:3-4, 7). On this second set of stone tablets in Exodus 34, Moses will apparently be the one who will cut and prepare the stone tablets (Exod 34:4). But who will write on them? The chapter begins and ends with two different answers, which appear to reflect different traditions (34:1—the Lord; Exod 34:27-28—Moses). It is also unclear whether it is the instructions of Exodus 34 or the Ten Commandments in Exodus 20:1-17 that will be engraved on the tablets (see note on Exod 34:27-28).

34:3 These restrictions are similar to those given when the Lord “came down” and settled on top of Mount Sinai the first time (see Exod 34:5; 19:12, 21-24).

34:5 proclaimed the name, “The LORD”: See notes on Exodus 3:13-15; 33:19.

<sup>7</sup>showing great loyalty to a thousand generations, forgiving every kind of sin and rebellion, yet by no means clearing the guilty, punishing for their parents' sins their children and their grandchildren, as well as the third and the fourth generation."

<sup>8</sup>At once Moses bowed to the ground and worshipped. <sup>9</sup>He said, "If you approve of me, my Lord, please go along with us." Although these are stubborn people, forgive our guilt and our sin and take us as your own possession."

Renewing the broken covenant

<sup>10</sup>The LORD said: I now make a covenant. In front of all your people, I'll perform dramatic displays of power that have never been done before anywhere on earth or in any nation. All the people who are around you will see what the LORD does, because I will do an awesome thing with you.

<sup>11</sup>Be sure to obey what I command you today. I'm about to drive out before you the Amorites, the Canaanites, the Hittites, the Perizzites, the Hivites, and the Jebusites. <sup>12</sup>Be careful that you don't make a covenant with the inhabitants of the land to which you are going, or it will become a dangerous trap for you. <sup>13</sup>You must tear down their altars, smash their sacred stone pillars, and cut down their sacred poles. <sup>14</sup>You must not bow down to another god, because the LORD is passionate: the LORD's name means "a passionate God." <sup>15</sup>Don't make important definitions of the character of God in the entire Bible. It is an intentional adaptation of an earlier list of God's qualities first given in the context of the Ten Commandments (Exod 20:5-6). The earlier version in Exodus 20:5-6 described God's character in two parts: first of all, as punishing all those "who hate me," and second, as being loyal and gracious to those "who love me and keep my commandments." In Exodus 34:6-7, the punishing of God is moved down to second place. The consequences for disobedience remain in place, but they are no longer the first word. The loyalty and graciousness of God are moved up to first place and greatly expanded in comparison to Exodus 20:5-6 ("loyal and gracious" in Exod 20:5-6 compared with compassionate and merciful, very patient, full of great loyalty and faithfulness, showing great loyalty in 34:6-7). The crucial quality of God's forgiveness was not present in Exodus 20:5-6 (see Exod 23:21), but forgiveness now appears prominently in 34:7: forgiving every kind of sin and rebellion. Finally, the condition or qualification in Exodus 20:5-6 that God would show loyalty and grace only to "those who love me and keep my commandments" disappears in 34:6-7. The Lord will be merciful, compassionate, and forgiving, even when the people disobey and don't love the Lord. It's only on the basis of this clear glimpse of the true character and name of the Lord that the journey of God and Israel can continue from Mount Sinai to the land of Canaan. Moses will appeal to this self-declaration of God's mercy at another crisis point in the wilderness journey (Num 14:17-19). See also Nehemiah 9:16-19; Psalm 25:4-11; 86:15; 103:8; Jonah 4:2; Joel 2:23; Nahum 1:2-3.

34:9 The Lord had previously thought it would be impossible to go along with Israel after the disaster with the gold calf (Exod 32). Such nearness to God's holiness would have destroyed the sinful Israelites (Exod 33:3). Moses refused to accept that reality and instead pressed God to reveal God's inner character ("show me your ways"—Exod 33:12-16). The Lord agreed, and now Moses asks again that the Lord go along with us. To do so was God's earlier goal and desire (see note on Exod 29:46). take us as your own possession: Moses urges the Lord to return to the special covenant relationship established when Israel first arrived at Mount Sinai (see note on Exod 19:5; see also Deut 4:20; 9:29).

34:10-28 The Lord formally announces the making of a new covenant relationship with Israel. The old covenant in Exodus 19-24 had been broken by Israel's worship with the gold calf (Exod 32; see notes on Exod 19:5; 32:19). The Lord expands several instructions regarding religious duties from the earlier expectations in Exodus 20:22-23:19 (the so-called covenant scroll—Exod 24:7). The instructions here come from a particular section of the earlier expectations, primarily from Exodus 23:13-33. Instruction restricting any kind of idolatry tops the list in Exodus 34 in light of the disaster with the gold calf (34:11-17, with parallels in Exod 20:23 and 23:20-33). The other instructions focus on proper practices of worship, festivals, and sacrifices that provide an alternative to the worship of idols (34:18-26, with parallels in Exod 23:12-19).

34:10 dramatic displays of power: The Lord promises to perform amazing acts of power for Israel's benefit in the future as it enters the land of Canaan, just as the Lord had done against Egypt (Exod 7:3; 9:14-16; 10:1-2).

34:11 the Amorites, the Canaanites... the Jebusites: See note on Exodus 33:2.

34:13 their sacred stone pillars: See note on Exodus 23:24. their sacred poles: wooden posts used in worship in Canaanite religion (Heb. asherah). The wooden poles may symbolize a tree and its fertility or nourishment, probably associated with worship of the Canaanite goddess Asherah (Deut 16:21; Judg 6:25-32; 2 Kgs 21:3, 7).

34:14 the LORD is passionate: See Exodus 20:5. the LORD's name means "a passionate God": The divine name (Heb. Yahweh) translated as "the LORD" can be read as a form of a verb (Heb. hwah) that means "desire" or "passion" (Prov 10:3). The Lord is passionate about Israel and desires Israel's total loyalty and love (Deut 6:4-15).

a covenant with those who live in the land. When they prostitute themselves with their gods and sacrifice to their gods, they may invite you and you may end up eating some of the sacrifice. <sup>16</sup>Then you might go and choose their daughters as wives for your sons. And their daughters who prostitute themselves with their gods might lead your sons to prostitute themselves with their gods.

<sup>18</sup>Observe the Festival of Unleavened Bread. You should eat unleavened bread for seven days, as I commanded you, at the set time in the month of Abib,<sup>a</sup> because it was in the month of Abib that you came out of Egypt.

<sup>19</sup>Every first offspring is mine. That includes all your male livestock, the oldest offspring of cows and sheep. <sup>20</sup>But a donkey's oldest offspring you may ransom with a sheep. Or if you don't ransom it, you must break its neck. You should ransom all of your oldest sons.

No one should appear before me empty-handed.

<sup>23</sup>All your males should appear three times a year before the LORD God, Israel's God. <sup>24</sup>I will drive out nations before you and extend your borders. No one will desire and try to take your land if you go up and appear before the LORD your God three times a year.

Don't boil a young goat in its mother's milk.

<sup>27</sup>The LORD said to Moses: "Write down these words because by these words I hereby make a covenant with you and with Israel." <sup>28</sup>Moses was there with the LORD forty days and forty nights. He didn't eat any bread or drink any water. He wrote on the tablets the words of the covenant, the ten words.

34:17 Don't make metal gods: This is the important instruction that the Israelites had violated in the incident with the gold calf in Exodus 32. Earlier versions of the instruction appeared in Exodus 20:4, 23.

34:18 See note on Exodus 23:14-15.

34:19-20 Every first offspring is mine: See notes on Exodus 11:5; 13:11-16. A related instruction also appears in Exodus 22:29. No one . . . empty-handed: See Exodus 23:15.

34:21 on the seventh day you should rest: The instruction to rest on the Sabbath is one of the Ten Commandments (Exod 20:8-11) and is repeated again in Exodus 23:12. Resting on the Sabbath ought to be a priority even at the busiest times, such as during plowing or harvesttime. It also applies while building the Lord's tent dwelling (Exod 31:12-17; 35:2-3).

34:23-24 three times a year: See note on Exodus 23:17.

34:25-26 See Exodus 12:6-11, 21-27; 23:18-19. Don't boil . . . mother's milk: See note on Exodus 23:19.

34:27-28 He wrote on the tablets the words of the covenant, the ten words: In light of Exodus 34:1 (see note there), it isn't completely clear who wrote what. The lack of clarity may be the result of two competing traditions that haven't been fully harmonized. If we understand that the Lord engraved the second set of tablets with the Ten Commandments (34:28), and Moses wrote down on a scroll the new instructions of 34:27, then this new covenant would have a form and authority equal to the first covenant (God's engraving the Ten Commandments—Exod 24:12; 31:18; 32:15-16; Moses writing other instructions on a scroll—Exod 24:3-4, 7). He didn't eat any bread or drink any water: When Moses made the first covenant with the Lord on Mount Sinai, eating and drinking were involved (see note on Exod 24:9-11). In this restoration of the covenant, Moses lives without bread or water for 40 days. His ability to survive this severe fast suggests three things. First, Moses' normal needs as a human being were superseded by the nourishment of this uniquely close encounter with God's presence (cf. Matt 4:2; Luke 4:2). Second, Moses' severe fast is a way of admitting before God the severity of Israel's sin in worshipping with the golden calf (1 Sam 7:6; Neh 1:4-7; Jon 3:5). Third, Moses' personal sacrifice of his own basic needs and interests played some role in making possible the reconciliation of a sinful Israel and the Lord (Deut 9:9, 18; for a pattern of Moses sacrificing his own interests for the sake of the community, see notes on Exod 32:10, 11, 32).

34:29 the skin of his face shone brightly: Moses comes close to the dazzling light of the Lord's "glorious presence" (see note on Exod 33:18). Some of the divine brilliance rubs off or reflects onto Moses. It shines through his face when he comes down from Mount Sinai. The radiance of Moses' face confirms his close relationship with the Lord. Early Christian writers interpreted Moses' radiant face in light of the story of Jesus' transformation (Matt 17:2; Mark because he had been talking with God. <sup>30</sup>When Aaron and all the Israelites saw the skin of Moses' face shining brightly, they were afraid to come near him. <sup>31</sup>But Moses called them closer. So Aaron and all the leaders of the community came back to him, and Moses spoke with them. <sup>32</sup>After that, all the Israelites came near as well, and Moses commanded them everything that the LORD had spoken with him on Mount Sinai. <sup>33</sup>When Moses finished speaking with them, he put a veil over his face. <sup>34</sup>Whenever Moses went into the LORD's presence to speak with him, Moses would take the veil off until he came out again. When Moses came out and told the Israelites what he had been commanded, <sup>35</sup>the Israelites would see that the skin of Moses' face was shining brightly. So Moses would put the veil on his face again until the next time he went in to speak with the LORD.

35 Moses gathered together the whole Israelite community and said to them: These are the things that the LORD has commanded you to do:

Instructions for the Sabbath

<sup>2</sup>Do your work for six days, but the seventh day should be holy to you, a Sabbath of complete rest for the LORD. Whoever does any work on the Sabbath will be put to death. <sup>3</sup>Don't start a fire in any of your homes on the Sabbath day.

Preparing to build the dwelling

<sup>10</sup>All of you who are skilled in crafts should come forward and make everything that the LORD has commanded: <sup>11</sup>the dwelling, its tent and its covering, its clasps, its boards, its bars, its posts, and its bases, <sup>12</sup>the chest with its poles and its cover, the veil for a screen,

35:1-40:38 Israel's rebellion against the Lord (Exod 32) with the gold calf threatened the entire exodus project. God's original plan was to free the Israelites from slavery in Egypt so that God "could make a home among them" (Exod 25-31; see note on Exod 29:46). Then the gold calf interrupted the story. God wanted to abandon hope of being present in the middle of Israel's camp (see note on Exod 33:3). Moses, however, refused to accept the seemingly hopeless situation. Moses urged the Lord to reveal more deeply the Lord's name and character, rooted less in punishment and more in divine mercy, forgiveness, and faithfulness. The Lord agreed and restored the relationship with the Israelites with a new covenant (Exod 33-34). It is only with this background in mind that readers can understand the lavish attention to the details of building the tent dwelling that follow in Exodus 35-40. Three aspects of these last chapters in Exodus are noteworthy. First of all, the description of the construction of the Lord's tent dwelling in Exodus 35-40 follows closely (with some minor abbreviations) the instructions for the tent dwelling in Exodus 25-31. The careful repetition conveys the remarkable care taken by the people to follow the Lord's instructions. Second, the text emphasizes repeatedly that the people did their work as the Lord had commanded Moses (Exod 39:1, 5, 7, 21, 26, 29, 31, 32, 42; 40:19, 21, 23, 25, 27, 29, 32). Earlier, the Israelites had committed to obey the Lord (Exod 19:8; 24:3, 7), but then they failed to keep their word in Exodus 32. Now, in building the tent dwelling, the Israelites actually do obey all the Lord's instructions. Their faithfulness offers hope for the journey forward. Third, the people of Israel are very generous in giving spontaneous gifts of silver, gold, precious fabrics, oils, and gems to support the building project for the Lord's tent dwelling (35:1-35). In fact, their overwhelming generosity contributed so much material that Moses was compelled to ask the people to stop giving their gifts (36:4-7).

35:2-3 Moses repeats the Lord's command to take a Sabbath rest from all work every seventh day. The reminder is appropriate since the Israelites are about to begin a large and complex work project with the building of the Lord's tent dwelling and all its intricate equipment. As the instructions for building the Lord's dwelling (Exod 25-31) ended with the Sabbath command (Exod 31:12-17), so the actual building of the tent dwelling begins here with the Sabbath command. Israel's endless work without rest during its slavery in Egypt forms an important background to the emphasis on sabbath rest throughout Exodus (Exod 16:23-29; 20:8-11; 23:12; 31:12-17; 34:21).

35:3 Don't start a fire: Cooking is prohibited on the Sabbath (Exod 16:23).

35:4-29 The list of materials here is roughly parallel to the list of materials in Exodus 25:1-9.

Gifts for building the dwelling

<sup>20</sup>The whole Israelite community left Moses. <sup>21</sup>Everyone who was excited and eager to participate brought the LORD's gift offerings to be used for building the meeting tent and all its furnishings and for the holy clothes. <sup>22</sup>Both men and women came forward. Everyone who was eager to participate brought pins, earrings, rings, and necklaces, all sorts of gold objects. Everyone raised an uplifted offering of gold to the LORD. <sup>23</sup>And everyone who had blue or purple or deep red yarn or fine linen or goats' hair or rams' skins dyed red or beaded leather brought them. <sup>24</sup>Everyone who could make a gift offering of silver or copper brought it as the LORD's gift offering. Everyone who had acacia wood that could be used in any kind of building work brought it. <sup>25</sup>All the skilled women spun cloth with their hands, and brought what they had spun in blue and purple and deep red yarns and fine linen. <sup>26</sup>All the women who were eager to use their skill spun the goats' hair. <sup>27</sup>The chiefs brought gemstones and gems to be set in the priest's vest and the chest pendant, <sup>28</sup>spices and oil for light and for the anointing oil, and for the sweet-smelling incense. <sup>29</sup>All the Israelite men and women who were eager to contribute something for the work that the LORD had commanded Moses to do brought it as a spontaneous gift to the LORD.

Moses introduces Bezalel and Oholiab

<sup>30</sup>Then Moses said to the Israelites: "Look, the LORD has chosen Bezalel, Uri's son and Hur's grandson from the tribe of Judah. <sup>31</sup>The LORD has filled him with the divine spirit that will give him skill, ability, and knowledge for every kind of work. <sup>32</sup>He will be able to create designs, do metalwork in gold, silver, and copper, <sup>33</sup>cut stones for setting, carve wood, do every kind of creative work, <sup>34</sup>and have the ability to teach others. Both he and Oholiab, Ahisamach's son from the tribe of Dan, <sup>35</sup>have been given the skill to do every kind of work done by a gem cutter or a designer or a needleworker in blue, purple, and deep red yarns and in fine linen or a weaver or anyone else doing work or creating designs.

36 "Let Bezalel, Oholiab, and every other skilled worker whom the LORD has given skill, ability, and knowledge for the work of building the sanctuary do all that the LORD has commanded."

<sup>2</sup>Moses then called together Bezalel, Oholiab, and every skilled person whom the LORD had given skill and who was eager to come and do the work. <sup>3</sup>Moses gave them all the gift offerings that the Israelites had contributed to the work on the sanctuary. They kept bringing him spontaneous gifts, morning after morning.

<sup>4</sup>Finally, all the skilled workers building the sanctuary left their work that they were doing one by one to come <sup>5</sup>and say to Moses, "The people are contributing way too much material for doing the work that the LORD has commanded us to do."

<sup>6</sup>So Moses issued a command that was proclaimed throughout the camp: "Every man and woman should stop making gift offerings for the sanctuary project." So the people stopped bringing anything more <sup>7</sup>because what they had already brought was more than enough to do all the work.

Construction of the dwelling

<sup>8</sup>All the skilled workers made the dwelling out of ten curtains of fine twisted linen and blue, purple, and deep red yarns, with figures of winged heavenly creatures worked into their design. <sup>9</sup>Each curtain was forty-two feet long and six feet wide. All the curtains were the same size.

35:22 all sorts of gold objects: The Israelites offer to Moses the gold that they had originally received from the Egyptians (Exod 3:22; 11:2-3; 12:35-36). This time they offer the gold in obedience to God (to help build the Lord's sanctuary), rather than in disobedience to make the gold idol in the shape of a calf (see notes on Exod 25:3; 32:2). 35:30-36:1 The naming of the two main construction supervisors, Bezalel and Oholiab, follows closely a similar section in Exodus 31:1-11. 36:8-38 See Exodus 26:1-37.

<sup>10</sup>They joined five of the curtains to each other and joined the other five curtains to each other. <sup>11</sup>They made loops of blue thread on the edge of the outer curtain of the first set. They did the same on the edge of the outer curtain of the second set. <sup>12</sup>They made fifty loops on the one curtain and fifty loops on the other curtain that was in the second set. The loops were opposite each other. <sup>13</sup>They also made fifty gold clasps, and they used the clasps to join the curtains to each other so that the dwelling was one whole structure.

Building the chest containing the covenant document

37Bezalel made the chest of acacia wood. It was forty-five inches long, twenty-seven inches wide, and twenty-seven inches high. <sup>2</sup>He covered the chest with pure gold inside and out, and made a gold molding all around it. <sup>3</sup>He cast four gold rings for it and put them on its four feet, two rings on one side and two rings on the other. <sup>4</sup>He made acacia-wood poles and covered them with gold. <sup>5</sup>He put the poles into the rings on the chest's sides to use to carry the chest. <sup>6</sup>He made a cover for the chest out of pure gold, forty-five inches long and twenty-seven inches wide. <sup>7</sup>He made two winged heavenly creatures of hammered gold for the two ends of the cover, <sup>8</sup>one winged heavenly creature at one end and one winged heavenly creature at the other. He placed the winged heavenly creatures at the cover's two ends. <sup>9</sup>The winged heavenly creatures spread out their wings above, shielding the cover with their wings. The winged heavenly creatures faced each other toward the cover's center.

Constructing the table and lampstand

<sup>10</sup>He also made the table of acacia wood, three feet long, eighteen inches wide, and twenty-seven inches high. <sup>11</sup>He covered it with pure gold and made a gold molding all around it. <sup>12</sup>He made a frame around it that was four inches wide and gold molding around the frame. <sup>13</sup>He made four gold rings for the table. He fastened the rings to the four corners at its four legs. <sup>14</sup>The rings that housed the poles used for carrying the table were close to the frame. <sup>15</sup>He made the poles used to carry the table out of acacia wood, and he covered them with gold.

17He also made the lampstand of pure, hammered gold. The lampstand's base, branches, cups, flowers, and petals were all attached to it. 18It had six branches growing out from its sides, three branches on one side of the lampstand and three branches on the other side of the lampstand. 19One branch had three cups shaped like almond blossoms, each with a flower and petals, and the next branch also had three cups shaped like almond blossoms, each with a flower and petals. A total of six branches grew out of the lampstand. 20In addition, on the lampstand itself there were four cups shaped like almond blossoms, each with its flower and petals. 21There was a flower attached under the first pair of branches, a flower attached under the next pair of branches, and a flower attached under the last pair of branches. 22Their flowers and their branches were attached to it. The whole lampstand was one piece of pure hammered gold. 23He made its seven lamps and its tongs and its fire pans out of pure gold. 24He made the lampstand and all its equipment from pure gold weighing one kikkar.

Making the incense altar, incense, and oil

25He made the incense altar out of acacia wood. The altar was square, eighteen inches long by eighteen inches wide. It was three feet high, and its horns were permanently attached. 26He covered it with pure gold, including its top, all its sides, and its horns. He also made a gold molding all around it. 27He made two gold rings, and he attached them under the molding on two opposite sides of the altar. They housed the poles used to carry it. 28He made the poles of acacia wood, and he covered them with gold.

29He also made the holy anointing oil and the pure sweet-smelling incense like a skilled perfume maker.

Making the altar for entirely burned offerings

38He made the altar for entirely burned offerings out of acacia wood. The altar was square, seven and a half feet long and seven and a half feet wide. It was four and a half feet high. 2He made horns for it, one horn on each of its four corners. Its horns were attached to the altar, and he covered it with copper. 3He made all the altar's equipment: the pails, the shovels, the bowls, the meat forks, and the trays. He made all its equipment out of copper. 4He made a grate for the altar of copper mesh underneath its bottom edge and extending halfway up to the middle of the altar. 5He made four rings for each of the four corners of the copper grate to house the poles. 6He made the poles out of acacia wood, and he covered them with copper. 7He put the poles through the rings so that the poles were on the two sides of the altar when it was carried. He made the altar with planks but hollow inside.

8He made the copper washbasin with its copper stand from the copper mirrors among the ranks of women assigned to the meeting tent's entrance.

Constructing the dwelling's plaza

9He also set up the courtyard. The courtyard's south side had drapes of fine twisted linen stretching one hundred fifty feet 10with twenty posts, twenty copper bases, and silver hooks and bands for the posts. 11Likewise the north side stretched one hundred fifty feet, with twenty posts, twenty copper bases, and silver hooks and bands for the posts. 12On the west side the drapes stretched seventy-five feet, with their ten posts, their ten bases, and silver hooks and bands for the posts. 13The front side facing east was seventy-five feet. 14There were twenty-two and a half feet of drapes on one side with three posts and three bases for them. 15Likewise, there were twenty-two and a half feet of drapes on the other side of the plaza's gate with three posts and three bases for them. 16All the drapes around the courtyard were made of fine twisted linen. 17The bases for the posts were made of copper, but the hooks for the posts and their bands were made of silver. The tops of the posts were covered with silver, and all the posts surrounding the courtyard had silver bands. 18The screen for the gate into the courtyard was made with blue, purple, and deep red yarns and fine twisted linen, decorated with needlework. It was thirty feet long and, along the width of it, seven and a half feet high, corresponding to the courtyard's drapes. 19It had four posts, their four copper

A listing of materials used

Making the priests' clothing

39 They used the blue, purple, and deep red yarns to make the woven clothing for those ministering as priests in the sanctuary. They made the holy clothes for Aaron as the LORD had commanded Moses.

<sup>8</sup>They made the embroidered chest pendant in the style of the vest, using gold, blue, purple, and deep red yarns, and fine twisted linen. <sup>9</sup>They made the chest pendant square and doubled, nine inches long and nine inches wide when doubled. <sup>10</sup>They set in it four rows of gemstones. The first row was a row of carnelian, topaz, and emerald stones. <sup>11</sup>The second row

38:21-31 These verses present a complete inventory of all the materials donated by the Israelites (cf. Exod 36:2-3). These verses have no parallel in Exodus 25-31. The donations were given in the context of a census of all Israelite men over 20 years of age, which totaled 603,550 men (38:26; see Exod 12:37; 30:11-16). This large number agrees with the censuses in Numbers (Num 1:46; 2:32). The census here in Exodus likely would have occurred before the building of the tent dwelling. Meanwhile, the census in Numbers 1 is dated to a month after the building of the tent dwelling (Exod 40:17; Num 1:1, 18). The weight of the various precious metals is enormous: roughly 2,000 pounds of gold, roughly 7,000 pounds of silver, and roughly 5,000 pounds of copper. The large quantities of the metals point to the abundant generosity of the Israelites in supporting the building project.

38:21 The Levites were in charge of the census and inventory of donations (see note on Exod 32:29). Ithamar is the fourth son of the high priest Aaron (Exod 6:23; 28:1) and a member of the Levite tribe.

38:23 Bezalel... Oholiab: See Exodus 31:1-11; 35:30-35.

38:30 the copper altar: See Exodus 27:1-8.

39:1-31 See Exodus 28:1-43. The refrain as the LORD had commanded Moses, occurs seven times marking the various steps in making the priestly garments (39:1, 5, 7, 21, 26, 29, 31). This structure is similar to the seven-day creation story in Genesis 1:1-2:4 with its seven repeated refrains, one at the end of each day. See sidebar, "The was a turquoise, a sapphire, and a moonstone. <sup>12</sup>The third row was a jacinth, an agate, and an amethyst. <sup>13</sup>The fourth row was a beryl, an onyx, and a jasper. The settings around them were decorative gold. <sup>14</sup>There were twelve stones with names corresponding to the names of Israel's sons. They were engraved like official seals, each with its name for the twelve tribes. <sup>15</sup>They made chains of pure gold, twisted like cords, for the chest pendant. <sup>16</sup>They made two gold settings and two gold rings. They attached the two rings to the two edges of the chest pendant. <sup>17</sup>They attached the two gold cords to the two rings at the edges of the chest pendant. <sup>18</sup>Then they fastened the two ends of the two cords to the two gold settings and attached them to the front of the vest's shoulder pieces. <sup>19</sup>They made two gold rings, and they attached them to the two edges of the chest pendant, on its inside edge facing the vest. <sup>20</sup>They made two gold rings and fastened them on the front of the lower part of the two shoulder pieces of the vest, at its seam just above the vest's belt. <sup>21</sup>The chest pendant was held in place by a blue cord binding its rings to the vest's rings so that the chest pendant rested on the vest's belt and didn't come loose from the vest, just as the LORD had commanded Moses.

<sup>30</sup>They made the flower ornament for the holy crown out of pure gold. Like the engraving on an official seal, they engraved on it the saying "Holy to the LORD." <sup>31</sup>They fastened to it a blue cord to tie it to the top of the turban, just as the LORD had commanded Moses.

Completion of dwelling construction

<sup>32</sup>In this way all the work of the meeting tent dwelling was finished. The Israelites did everything just exactly as the LORD had commanded Moses. <sup>33</sup>Then they brought to Moses the dwelling, the tent, and all its equipment:

its clasps, its boards, its bars, its posts, and its bases,

<sup>40</sup>the courtyard's drapes, its posts, and its bases, the screen for the plaza's gate, its cords, and its tent pegs, and all the other equipment for the service of the dwelling, for the meeting tent, <sup>41</sup>the woven clothes for ministering as priests in the sanctuary, the holy clothes for the priest Aaron and the clothes for his sons to serve as priests.

<sup>42</sup>The Israelites did all of the work just as the LORD had commanded Moses. <sup>43</sup>When Moses saw that they in fact had done all the work exactly as the LORD had commanded, Moses blessed them.

Moses sets up the dwelling

40 The LORD spoke to Moses: <sup>2</sup>Set up the meeting tent dwelling on the first day of the first month.<sup>3</sup> Place the chest containing the covenant inside the dwelling. Hide the chest from view with the veil. <sup>4</sup>Bring in the table and arrange its items. Bring in the lampstand and set up its lamps. <sup>5</sup>Place the gold altar for burning incense in front of the chest containing the covenant. Set up the screen at the dwelling's entrance. <sup>6</sup>Put the altar for entirely burned offerings in front of the entrance to the meeting tent dwelling. <sup>7</sup>Put the washbasin between the meeting tent and the altar and put water in it. <sup>8</sup>Set up the courtyard all around. Hang up the screen at the courtyard gate. <sup>9</sup>Then take the anointing oil and anoint the dwelling and everything in it. Make holy the dwelling and all its equipment, and it will be holy. <sup>10</sup>Anoint the altar for entirely burned offerings and all its equipment. Make the altar holy, and the altar will be most holy. <sup>11</sup>Anoint the washbasin with its stand and make it holy.

<sup>16</sup>Moses did everything exactly as the LORD had commanded him. <sup>17</sup>In the first month in the second year, on the first day of the month, the dwelling was set up. <sup>18</sup>Moses set up the dwelling. He laid out its bases. He set up its boards, inserted its bars, and raised up its posts. <sup>19</sup>He spread the tent out over the dwelling, and he put the covering of the tent over it, just as the LORD had commanded Moses. <sup>20</sup>He took the covenant document and placed it inside the chest. He put the poles on the chest, and he set the cover on top of the chest. <sup>21</sup>He brought the chest into the dwelling. He set up the veil as a screen to hide from view the chest containing the covenant, just as the LORD had commanded Moses. <sup>22</sup>He placed the table in the meeting tent, on the north side of the dwelling, outside the veil. <sup>23</sup>He set the bread in its proper place on the table in the LORD's presence, just as the LORD had commanded Moses. <sup>24</sup>He put the lampstand in the meeting tent, opposite the table on the south side of the dwelling. <sup>25</sup>He set up the lamps in the LORD's presence, just as the LORD had commanded Moses. <sup>26</sup>He put the gold altar in the meeting tent in front of the veil. <sup>27</sup>He burned sweet-smelling incense on it, just as the LORD had commanded Moses. <sup>28</sup>He also set up the screen at the entrance to the dwelling. <sup>29</sup>He placed the altar for entirely burned offerings at the entrance to the meeting tent dwelling. He offered the entirely burned offering and the grain offering on it, just as the LORD had commanded Moses. <sup>30</sup>He put the washbasin between the meeting tent and the altar, and put water in it for washing. <sup>31</sup>Moses, Aaron, and his sons used it to wash their hands and their feet. <sup>32</sup>Whenever they went into the meeting tent and tent dwelling as the Lord's sanctuary or home in the midst of Israel, see the sidebar, "The Sabbath, Creation, and Building the Lord's Dwelling" at Exodus 25.

40:1-15 The Lord tells Moses to carry out three major tasks: (1) to set up the tent dwelling and all its objects (40:2-8), (2) to anoint with oil and Make holy the tent dwelling and all its objects (40:9-11), and (3) to Anoint Aaron and his sons as priests (40:12-15). Moses will complete the first task in Exodus 40:17-33. Moses will accomplish the second and third tasks only later in Leviticus 8:1-13.

40:1-2 The Lord spoke to Moses: Set up the meeting tent dwelling: Moses is the only one who will set up the tent dwelling and all its objects since he alone received the instructions from the Lord (Exod 25:9). Aaron and his sons haven't yet been ordained as priests (Exod 29:1-37; Lev 8:1-9:24). Only Moses can do priestly tasks until their ordination (Exod 40:4, 23, 25, 27; see Exod 25:30; 30:7-8).

40:2 On the first day of the first month: In the ritual calendar of the Israelites, the beginning of the new year celebrates both the creation of the world and the setting up of the Lord's tent dwelling in the wilderness (see sidebar, "The Sabbath, Creation, and Building the Lord's Dwelling" at Exod 25).

40:9-11 See Exodus 30:25-29.

40:12-15 See Exodus 29:4-9; 30:30.

40:16-33 Moses obediently begins to set up the tent dwelling and all its equipment in obedience to the Lord's instructions in Exodus 40:2-8. The section begins with a general affirmation that Moses did everything exactly as the Lord had commanded him (40:16). A similar phrase occurs seven times as each section of the tent dwelling is completed (Exod 40:19, 21, 23, 25, 27, 29, 32). These seven refrains mirror the story of the seven-day creation with its refrains (Gen 1:1-2:3; see sidebar, "The Sabbath, Creation, and Building the Lord's Dwelling" at Exod 25; see note on Exod 39:1-31).

40:17 In the first month in the second year, on the first day: See note on Exodus 40:2. It has been one full year since Israel left the land of Egypt. The second year is about to begin (Exod 12:40-41). Thus Israel has been at Mount Sinai for a total of nine months (Exod 19:1).

40:27-29 Moses performs some duties here that are whenever they approached the altar, they washed themselves, just as the LORD had commanded Moses. <sup>33</sup>He set up the courtyard around the dwelling and the altar, and he hung up the screen at the courtyard's gate.

God's presence fills the dwelling!

When Moses had finished all the work, <sup>34</sup>the cloud covered the meeting tent and the LORD's glorious presence filled the dwelling. <sup>35</sup>Moses couldn't enter the meeting tent because the cloud had settled on it, and the LORD's glorious presence filled the dwelling. <sup>36</sup>Whenever the cloud rose from the dwelling, the Israelites would set out on their journeys. <sup>37</sup>But if the cloud didn't rise, then they didn't set out until the day it rose. <sup>38</sup>The LORD's cloud stayed over the dwelling during the day, with lightning in it at night, clearly visible to the whole household of Israel at every stage of their journey.

usually done only by priests (burning incense and offering sacrifices on the altar). See note on Exodus 40:1-2.

40:34-38 These final verses mark the climax of the story of the book of Exodus. The Lord's presence leaves the top of Mount Sinai (see note on Exod 29:42-45) and settles down on the newly constructed tent dwelling. The Lord adopts the dwelling as the Lord's home in the middle of the Israelites' camp. All is ready for God to move with the people to the promised land of Canaan. This moment represents the Lord's ultimate purpose and desire in rescuing Israel from the slavery in Egypt (see note on Exod 29:46). The rebellion with the gold calf (Exod 32) had threatened the entire tent dwelling project (see note on Exod 33:3). The revelation to Moses of the Lord's deep compassion and forgiveness allowed healing of the broken relationship between God and Israel. It made a new covenant possible (see notes on Exod 34:1-9, 34:10-28). The Lord will no longer communicate with Moses from Mount Sinai but rather from the meeting tent, beginning with Leviticus 1:1.

40:34 the cloud: See notes on Exodus 13:21-22; 24:15-16. the LORD's glorious presence: See note on Exodus 33:18.

40:36-38 Whenever the cloud rose: The Lord's presence in the cloud will travel with the Israelites' camp through the wilderness, guiding their path along the way (see Num 9:15-23; 10:17-21, 34). The official anointing of the tent dwelling and the ordination of Aaron and his sons as priests will occur later, in Leviticus 8-9. For now, the Lord is fully present, visible, and at home with God's people as they continue their journey to the promised land of Canaan.

LEVITICUS

Leviticus contains mostly instructions. The Lord speaks to Moses, telling him to repeat these instructions to the Israelites (Lev 1:2) or to the priests (Lev 6:9). Leviticus focuses first on rules for making offerings, then on purification procedures. The last third of the book contains rules for a wide variety of activities, including criminal acts, sexual conduct, social justice, priestly marriage, and annual festivals. It also continues to focus on proper worship of God.

Leviticus assumes that readers know the contents of Exodus and Numbers, that Israel came out of Egypt and camped at Mount Sinai. There God appeared to Moses on the mountain and told him to build the meeting tent (also called the “tabernacle”). Now God appears in the meeting tent to give Moses these instructions (Lev 1:1; cf. Lev 7:38). Afterward, Israel will break camp and travel toward the promised land, taking the meeting tent and its rituals with them (as instructed in Num 1–10).

That story explains why Israel should obey these rules in the book of Leviticus. The Lord rescued them from Egypt and promised to protect them in the new land. In return, Israel promised to obey the Lord as they would obey a king (Exod 24:7). These instructions explain what that obedience involves. They must bring offerings to God as they would pay taxes to a king. They must treat each other fairly and generously. Along with similar instructions in Exodus, Numbers, and Deuteronomy, these rules give the details of the covenant between God and Israel. They are the heart of the Torah, the “Instruction” or “Law,” that became Israel’s first scripture.

Because Leviticus consists mostly of instructions, many people find it hard to read. What makes it even harder to read is that the instructions involve things that most people don’t do anymore. Neither Jews nor Christians make offerings like those in Leviticus 1–7 (see sidebar, “Animal Offerings” at Lev 1). Many Jews follow the food rules of Leviticus 11 (see sidebar, “Meat” at Lev 11), and some also follow the purity rules of Leviticus 12 and 15 (see sidebar, “Clean/Unclean” at Lev 13). However, very few Christians do. Modern readers from both traditions find the rest of the book a confusing mix of inspiring moral teachings (such as the love commandments in Lev 19:18, 34), obscure regulations (such as the rule against mixtures in Lev 19:19), and laws whose application could lead to social upheaval (such as returning all real property every 50 years, Lev 25:10, 14-18; see sidebar, “Jubilee” at Lev 25).

Leviticus remains at the heart of Jewish and Christian scriptures because it preserves one of the original reasons for needing written scriptures. In the ancient Near East, the idea of needing to follow written instructions first developed around ritual instructions. Kings and priests would justify their religious practices by showing and reading old texts (e.g., 2 Kgs 22-23; Neh 8). Many believe that the Torah (Pentateuch) began to function as scripture for Jews after the Babylonian exile in the 6th or 5th century BCE when priests used it to justify how they were running the temple. Today, ritual rules in Leviticus still remind readers of scripture’s purpose: to teach obedience to God’s instructions.

The book’s Hebrew title, wayyiqra, which means “and he called,” comes from its first word. The ancient Greek Septuagint translation called it leuitikon, or “the Levitical book,” which led to the English title, Leviticus. Despite this title, Leviticus focuses on the priests, Aaron and his sons, not the larger tribe of Levites of which they were part. All but three of the book’s chapters consist of God speaking to Moses (sometimes with Aaron as well; e.g., Lev 11:1). Moses must repeat these instructions to the people and the priests. But God’s speeches do not focus on Moses. Instead, they call attention to how priests should help the people worship God. They also point out the priests’ roles in gaining forgiveness and purification for the people (Lev 4-5; 12-16), and in teaching them all the rules of Torah (Lev 10:10-11).

Though the book’s setting is in the time of the exodus from Egypt, its Hebrew language and style match that of other OT books, especially Ezekiel and 1 and 2 Chronicles. Therefore, most biblical scholars think it was written in the middle of the first millennium BCE, though it likely includes older traditions. That was when priests began to take over leadership in Judea and Samaria after kings disappeared along with their kingdoms. The priests’ support for placing Leviticus in the middle of the Pentateuch probably promoted Jewish commitment to monotheism, the Jerusalem temple, and the Torah.

The entirely burned offering

1:1-17 Leviticus begins with instructions for entirely burned offerings because they demonstrate completely selfless worship of God. Priests, and sometimes worshippers, get to eat most of the meat from other offerings, but because these animals are entirely burned on the altar, they provide no food for people. They model an ideal of worship as selfless service to God. Chapter 1 says that entirely burned offerings may consist of three kinds of domestic animals: bulls (1:3-9), sheep or goats (1:10-13), and doves or pigeons (1:14-17). Bulls were very expensive while birds were cheap. Well-being sacrifices (Lev 3) and purification offerings (Lev 5:7) also can consist of valuable or cheap animals (see sidebar, "Animal Offerings" at Lev 1). That way, people could worship God with offerings whether they were rich or poor.

1:1 Like Exodus and Numbers, Leviticus quotes the Lord speaking to Moses. Moses must repeat the instructions to the Israelites, but that isn't narrated here. Deuteronomy quotes Moses repeating God's commandments as he remembers them. Now that the meeting tent (also called the tabernacle) has been finished (Exod 40), all divine instructions come to Moses from there, rather than on Mount Sinai.

1:2 any of you: Leviticus places no limits on who may present offerings to God (cf. Lev 2:1, "anyone"). Later temples in Jerusalem segregated men from women and Israel from the nations by separate courtyards, but the meeting tent's instructions in Exodus don't mention these divisions. Exodus and Leviticus do separate laypeople from the more holy areas, such as the altar and the inner rooms. Only priests have access there.

1:3 entirely burned offering: The underlying Hebrew is "rising (offering)." The translation points out how this offering differed from the others: All of it must be burned on the altar (Lev 1:8-9; except the hide, Lev 7:8). flawless: Damaged goods do not make acceptable gifts for humans, much less for God (cf. Mal 1:8). male: reflects higher status in a patriarchal society, and also the custom of killing most male herd animals before they grow up so that a cattle herd contains only one (male) bull and many (female) cows.

1:4 You must press your hand on the head of every herd animal offering (see Lev 3:2; 4:4). This action probably doesn't substitute the animal for the worshipper, but rather identifies it as belonging to the worshipper. accepted for you: or "count in your favor" (cf. Lev 1:3). make reconciliation for you: often translated "atone for you" (see sidebar, "Reconciliation/Atonement" at Lev 16). The themes of "favor" and "reconciliation" that appear here foreshadow the book's emphasis on how priests present all the people's offerings and for their benefit.

1:5 you will slaughter the bull: doesn't say how, because that is common knowledge in herding cultures. The focus isn't on killing (unlike many modern discussions of "sacrifice") but rather on distributing the parts of the animal. The blood of all animal offerings must be poured or splashed on the sides of the altar (see note on Lev 3:17; see sidebar, "Blood" at Lev 4). Because the altar is holy, only priests can approach it. Aaron's sons: Only Aaron and his male descendants can be priests (Exod 28; Lev 8-10; Num 16-18).

1:7 Aaron the priest: See translation note a.

1:8 The distinguishing feature of the entirely burned offering is that priests must burn up everything but the animal's hide (Lev 7:8) on the altar, thus giving it to God. By contrast, the priests, and in one case the worshippers, must eat the meat of other offerings, from which only the animal's fat gets burned on the altar (Lev 3-7).

1:9 food gift: The underlying Hebrew is "fire (offering)," a term for all the altar offerings. soothing smell: While the OT does not show God eating offerings, this common formula (cf. Lev 1:13, 17; 2:2, 9, 16; 3:5, 11, 16) suggests that God likes the smell of grilled meat and burning incense (see also Lev 21:6). Other OT texts reject the idea that God depends on Israel's offerings (Ps 51:16; Isa 1:11-17; Mic 6:6-8).

1:10-13 Entirely burned offerings of sheep and goats are made just like the bull offerings that have already been described. So these instructions are shorter.

Animal Offerings Many ancient and traditional cultures gave animals as offerings to their gods. People treated their gods as they would guests by offering them elaborate meals. Often, meat was the most important part of these meals.

The custom of burning offerings in temple courtyards came from Syria in the second millennium BCE. From there it spread through Near Eastern and Mediterranean cultures, including Israel. Perhaps it became popular because it seems to deliver offerings up to heaven in the form of smoke.

Jews and Christians do not usually make animal offerings anymore. For Jews, that is because the Romans destroyed the temple in Jerusalem in 70 CE, and it has never been rebuilt. Since offerings can only be presented there (Lev 17:1-9), Jews stopped making animal offerings. They replaced them with prayer, study of Torah, and acts of charity to fulfill God's commandments. Christians stopped making animal offerings out of the belief that the death of Jesus Christ took the offerings' place. Hebrews 9:11-28 teaches that Jesus' sacrifice provides purification and forgiveness of sin, making other blood offerings unnecessary. Some Christians think that celebrating the Eucharist reproduces Christ's sacrifice, while others think it only recalls it.

on the wood that is on the altar fire, <sup>13</sup>but its insides and lower legs must be washed with water. Then the priest will present all of it and completely burn it on the altar. It is an entirely burned offering, a food gift of soothing smell to the LORD.

<sup>14</sup>If the offering for the LORD is an entirely burned offering from the birds, you can present your offering from the doves or pigeons. <sup>15</sup>The priest will bring it to the altar. He will tear off its head and completely burn it on the altar. Its blood will be drained against the side of the altar. <sup>16</sup>Then the priest will remove its throat along with its contents<sup>a</sup> and throw it by the east side of the altar, into the place for the ashes. <sup>17</sup>He will then tear the bird open by its wings, without splitting it. The priest will completely burn it on the altar, on the wood that is on the altar fire. It is an entirely burned offering, a food gift of soothing smell to the LORD.

The grain offering

2 When anyone presents a grain offering to the LORD, the offering must be of choice flour. They must pour oil on it and put frankincense on it, <sup>2</sup>then bring it to Aaron's sons, the priests. A priest will take a handful of its choice flour and oil, along with all of its frankincense, and will completely burn this token portion on the altar as a food gift of soothing smell to the LORD. <sup>3</sup>The rest of the grain offering belongs to Aaron and his sons as a most holy portion from the LORD's food gifts.

<sup>4</sup>When you present a grain offering baked in an oven, it must be of choice flour: unleavened flatbread mixed with oil or unleavened wafers spread with oil. <sup>5</sup>If your offering is grain prepared on a griddle, it must be of choice flour mixed with oil and it must be unleavened.

1:14-17 doves or pigeons were domesticated and raised for food in Israel and many of its neighbors. They provided the cheapest meat and so the most affordable animal offerings. Their small size and anatomy required different instructions.

1:16 throat and its contents: refers to the crop, a pouch in a bird's throat that contains partially digested food. The Hebrew is unclear and could mean instead "its anus and its (tail) feathers."

2:1-16 Vegetarian food offerings can consist of flour (2:1-3), bread (2:4-13), or roasted grain (2:14-16). The priests burn a token portion on the altar while eating the rest themselves (2:3, 10). Grain offerings therefore provided a major source of income for the priests. The chapter focuses on additives as much as on the grain itself. Olive oil, frankincense, and salt must accompany the offerings. But priests must never burn yeast or honey on the altar (2:11). 2:1 grain offering: The Hebrew word describes gifts (Gen 32:19-22), tribute (Judg 3:15), and offerings of all kinds (Gen 4:3-5). Leviticus uses it only for offerings of grain products. choice flour: semolina, which was more valuable than common flour or barley. frankincense: an expensive spice produced from the resin of a tree that grows in Somalia and the Sudan. It is a major ingredient in the incense (Exod 30:34-38) offered on the inner golden altar (Exod 30:1-10).

2:2 token portion: or "memorial." Leviticus does not explain who or what this ritual memorializes. The word also names the frankincense placed with bread on the table inside the tent (Lev 24:7). Israelites didn't eat frankincense, so here all of it must be burned on the altar as incense. It probably covered the smell of the burning grain.

2:3 most holy describes spaces, items, and foods set apart for the priests alone. food gifts: See note on Leviticus 1:9.

2:4-10 Three kinds of unleavened bread offerings: baked (2:4), cooked on a griddle (2:5), and cooked in a pan (2:7). The rules for bread offerings are the central trio in three nested trios of instructions: three kinds of bread offerings (2:4-10) at the center of three kinds of grain offerings (Lev 2) at the center of three kinds of "soothing smell" offerings (Lev 1-3). The Hebrew words describing how the breads should be made and what they look like are no longer clearly understood. But all of them should be offered in the same way (2:8-10).

<sup>6</sup>Crumble it into pieces and pour oil on it; it is a grain offering. <sup>7</sup>If your offering is grain prepared in a pan, it must be made of choice flour with oil. <sup>8</sup>You will bring the grain offering made in one of these ways to the LORD, presenting it to the priest, who will then bring it to the altar. <sup>9</sup>The priest will remove from the grain offering the token portion and completely burn it on the altar as a food gift of soothing smell to the LORD. <sup>10</sup>The rest of the grain offering belongs to Aaron and his sons as a most holy portion from the LORD's food gifts.

<sup>11</sup>No grain offering that you give to the LORD can be made with yeast. You must not completely burn any yeast or honey as a food gift for the LORD. <sup>12</sup>You can present those as first-choice offerings to the LORD, but they must not be entirely burned up on the altar as a soothing smell.

<sup>13</sup>You must season all your grain offerings with salt. Do not omit the salt of your God's covenant from your grain offering. You must offer salt with all your offerings.

<sup>14</sup>If you present a grain offering to the LORD from the first produce, you must make such an offering from the crushed heads of newly ripe grain, roasted with fire. <sup>15</sup>You must put oil and frankincense on it; it is a grain offering. <sup>16</sup>The priest will completely burn the token portion—some of the crushed new grain and oil along with all of the frankincense—as a food gift for the LORD.

The well-being sacrifice

3 If the offering is a communal sacrifice of well-being,<sup>d</sup> the one who offers the herd animal—whether it is male or female—must present a flawless specimen before the LORD. <sup>2</sup>You must press your hand on the head of the offering and slaughter it at the meeting tent's entrance. Aaron's sons the priests will toss the blood against every side of the altar. <sup>3</sup>Then you can offer a food gift to the LORD from the communal sacrifice of well-being: the fat that covers and surrounds the insides; <sup>4</sup>the two kidneys and the fat around them at the loins; and the lobe on the liver, which should be removed with the kidneys. <sup>5</sup>Aaron's sons will completely burn all of this on the altar—along with the entirely burned offering on the wood that is on the altar fire—as a food gift of soothing smell to the LORD.

<sup>6</sup>If the offering for a communal sacrifice of well-being for the LORD is from the flock—whether it is male or female—you must present a flawless specimen. <sup>7</sup>If you present a sheep as the offering, you must present it before the LORD. <sup>8</sup>You must press your hand on the head of the offering and slaughter it before the meeting tent. Aaron's sons will toss the blood against every side of the altar. <sup>9</sup>Then you may offer the fat from the communal sacrifice of 2:11-13 yeast (or "sourdough") and honey (or "syrup") must not be burned on the altar. That is why only "unleavened" bread may be offered (Lev 2:4, 5, but cf. Lev 7:13) and yeast must be avoided at Passover (Exod 16:15-20). Maybe Israelites associated yeast and honey with rotting food (though nothing in the OT suggests this), and so they emphasized preserving offerings with salt instead (2:13). But unburned offerings may contain leavened breads and honey (2:12), so negative associations are unlikely. salt of your God's covenant suggests instead that salt symbolized treaty commitments (cf. Num 18:19; 2 Chron 13:5) as in other ancient cultures. So adding salt probably showed worshippers' loyalty to their king, the Lord. 2:14-16 first produce: usually translated "firstfruits," but this is about wheat and barley, not fruit. Farmers must offer the first grain they harvest each year at the Festival of Unleavened Bread (Lev 23:9-14).

3:1-17 The most common offerings in ancient Israel were well-being sacrifices. They account for the largest number in lists of offerings (Num 7:12-88; 2 Chron 29:33-35). Well-being sacrifices provided food for priests (Lev 7:32-24) and people (Lev 7:15-27)—maybe the only beef or mutton that laypeople ate if they obeyed Lev 17:2-9 (but cf. Deut 12:15).

3:1 sacrifice of well-being consists of two Hebrew words:

the common term "slaughter" or "sacrifice" and a plural noun from the root meaning "peace, well-being." This plural noun already names a kind of offering in texts from Ugarit, a kingdom north of Israel that thrived in the second millennium BCE. So it was a traditional term for Israelites, who likely gave little thought to its connection with peace. The offering is communal because God, priests, and people share it as a communal meal. Food often serves as a basic element in religious services of all kinds. The communal sacrifice of well-being let Israelites engage with the Lord in the sanctuary like guests and hosts in a home. male or female: unlike all other offerings of herd animals (Lev 1:3, 10; 4:22, 27; 5:14), maybe because so many well-being sacrifices were offered that it wasn't practical to limit the sex of the animal. flawless: See Leviticus 1:3.

3:2 press your hand: See note on Leviticus 1:4. toss the blood: See note on Leviticus 1:5.

3:3-4 fat... kidneys... liver: Priests burn only the animal's fat and some internal organs on the altar. Fat here refers only to suet around internal organs that is easily removed. Priests and worshippers divide the meat between them (Lev 7:15-24).

3:5 See note on Leviticus 1:9.

3:6-16 Well-being sacrifices of sheep and goats must be offered just like cattle (Lev 1-5). Unlike cows, goats, and

All fat belongs to the LORD. <sup>17</sup>This is a permanent rule for your future generations, wherever you live: you must not eat any fat or blood.

The purification offering

4 The LORD said to Moses, <sup>2</sup>Say to the Israelites: Do the following whenever someone sins unintentionally against any of the LORD's commands, doing something that shouldn't be done:

<sup>3</sup>If it is the anointed priest who has sinned, making the people guilty of sin, he must present to the LORD a flawless bull from the herd as a purification offering* for the sin he has committed. <sup>4</sup>He will bring the bull before the LORD at the entrance to the meeting tent and press his hand on the bull's head. Then he will slaughter the bull before the LORD. <sup>5</sup>The anointed other kinds of sheep, Middle Eastern sheep have a distinctive fat tail (3:9) that must be burned on the altar with the other fats. So Leviticus 3:6-11 gives separate instructions for the sheep.

3:17 permanent rule... wherever you live: rules out any exceptions in time or space. This phrase is usually associated with rules allocating the priests' share of offerings (Lev 6:18, 22; 7:34, 36), but here it specifies what humans may not have. you must not eat any fat or blood summarizes the most basic of all food rules. Leviticus uses these prohibitions here to climax the rules for soothing-smell offerings in Leviticus 1-3 (see also Lev 7:23-27). God had already refused blood to Noah (see Gen 9:4) because it represents life (also Lev 17:10-14). Priests must splash the blood of offerings against the altar. Hunters must pour out the blood of wild game on the ground (Lev 17:13). Therefore, some people have concluded that non-Jews as well as Jews should refuse to eat blood (Acts 15:20, 29). But most Christian cultures have abandoned this prohibition (see 1 Cor 8 on good reasons for both observing and not observing food prohibitions, though without mentioning blood or fat). Animal fat, the suet around internal organs and the sheep's fat tail, cannot be eaten because it belongs only to God. Priests must burn the fat of all animal offerings on the altar (e.g., Lev 1:8; 3:3-5; 4:31). In the OT, "fat" is a symbol of the land's best produce (Gen 45:18; Pss 63:5; 147:14). So offering literal fat returns the best to God, who provided the land in the first place. Later Judaism limited the prohibition on eating fat, and Christian cultures usually ignore it altogether. (For more examples of instructions and rules that have been modified or ignored, see sidebars, "Animal Offerings" at Lev 1 and "The Love Commandment" at Lev 19.)
4:1-6:7 Leviticus 4-5 give instructions for purification and compensation offerings. Each set of rules begins by describing the sins that require one of these offerings. Usually they are described generally as breaking "any of the LORD's commandments," but lists of specific sins appear in 5:1-4; 6:1-7. These chapters emphasize mistakes (4:2, 13, 22), but make provision for dealing with some deliberate sins by confessing them and restoring what was damaged or stolen (5:5-6; 6:4-5). Almost every set of rules ends by declaring that the priest makes reconciliation for the offenders so that they will be forgiven.

4:3-5:13 The animal required for a purification offering depends on the status (4:3-26) or wealth (4:27-5:13) of the worshipper. The same Hebrew word translated "purification offering" can on other occasions refer to sin (as in 4:3). This word thus describes both the problem (sin) and its solution (offering). While some translators call this offering a "sin offering," the CEB translation points to the offering's function. Some interpreters think the offering purifies only the sanctuary, others only the worshipper, and some that it purifies both sanctuary and worshipper. This offering purifies for more than moral sins. It also purifies mothers after childbirth (Lev 12:6-8) and persons healed of skin diseases (Lev 14:19). The unusual feature of this ritual is how the priest handles the animal's blood (see sidebar, "Blood" at Lev 4).

4:3 anointed priest: the high priest who is installed in office by being anointed with oil (Exod 29:7; 8:12). Leviticus prefers this phrase (Lev 4:3, 5, 16; 6:15) to "great priest" or "high priest" used in other OT books. The Hebrew word for "anointed" is meshiach, from which we get the English word "messiah." Leviticus speaks of the institution of the high priesthood, not predictions about future anointed leaders. But its use of the word "messiah" led to expectations of a future high priest like the future messianic king. Christians combined both expectations to describe Jesus as "Christ," that is, Messiah (Heb 6:20-7:27; 9:1-10:18).

4:4 press his hand: See note on Leviticus 1:4.

4:5-7 Purification offerings for the high priest or the community require the high priest to bring blood into the meeting tent. There he must sprinkle it toward the curtain in front of the chest containing the covenant and rub it on the horns of the incense altar. This ritual demonstrates the high priest's unique status. He alone can perform this priest will take some of the bull's blood and take it into the meeting tent. <sup>6</sup>The priest will dip his finger into the blood and sprinkle some of it seven times before the LORD, toward the sanctuary's inner curtain. <sup>7</sup>Then the priest will put some of the blood on the horns of the altar of perfumed incense, which is in the meeting tent before the LORD. But he will pour out all the rest of the bull's blood at the base of the altar of entirely burned offerings, which is at the meeting tent's entrance. <sup>8</sup>Then he will remove all the fat from the bull for the purification offering: the fat that covers and surrounds the insides; <sup>9</sup>the two kidneys and the fat around them at the loins; and the lobe on the liver, which he will remove with the kidneys, <sup>10</sup>just as this is removed from the ox for the communal sacrifice of well-being. Then the priest will completely burn these on the altar of entirely burned offerings. <sup>11</sup>But the bull's hide and all of its flesh, along with its head, lower legs, entrails, and dung—<sup>12</sup>all that remains of the bull—will be taken to a clean location outside the camp, to the ash heap. It should be burned there at the ash heap on a wood fire.

<sup>13</sup>If it is the entire Israelite community that has done something wrong unintentionally and the deed escapes the assembly's notice—but they've done something that shouldn't be done in violation of the LORD's commands, becoming guilty of sin—<sup>14</sup>once the sin that they committed becomes known, the assembly must present a bull from the herd as a purification offering. They will bring it before the meeting tent. <sup>15</sup>The community elders will press their hands on the bull's head before the LORD and then slaughter it before the LORD. <sup>16</sup>The anointed priest will take some of the bull's blood into the meeting tent. <sup>17</sup>The priest will dip his finger into the blood and sprinkle it seven times before the LORD toward the inner curtain. <sup>18</sup>Then he will put some of the blood on the horns of the altar that is before the LORD in the meeting tent. But he will pour all the rest of the blood out at the base of the altar of entirely burned offerings that is at the meeting tent's entrance. <sup>19</sup>Then he will remove all the fat from it and completely burn it on the altar. <sup>20</sup>He will do the same with this bull as he did with the other bull for the purification offering; that is exactly what he must do. In this way, the priest will make reconciliation for them, and they will be forgiven. <sup>21</sup>Then the priest will take the bull outside the camp and burn it, just as the first bull was burned. It is the purification offering for the assembly.

<sup>22</sup>If a leader sins by unintentionally breaking any of the commands of the LORD his God, doing something that shouldn't be done, and becomes guilty of sin—<sup>23</sup>once the sin that he committed is made known to him—he must bring as his offering a flawless male goat. <sup>24</sup>He will press his hand on the goat's head. It will be slaughtered<sup>f</sup> at the place where an entirely burned offering would be slaughtered before the LORD. It is a purification offering. <sup>25</sup>The priest will take some of the blood from the purification offering and, using his finger, will put it on the horns of the altar of entirely burned offerings. But he will pour the rest of the blood out at the base of the altar of entirely burned offerings. <sup>26</sup>He will completely burn all of its fat on the altar just as the fat of the communal sacrifice of well-being is burned. In this way the priest will make reconciliation for the leader to remove his sin, and he will be forgiven.

ritual (cf. Lev 16) for his own sake and for the sake of the community (Lev 4:16-18).

4:6 the sanctuary's inner curtain: the veil that separates the holiest space (the Holy of Holies), where the chest containing the covenant was, from the outer room (Exod 26:31-35).

4:7 The meeting tent had two altars. Exodus 30:1-10 describes the altar of perfumed incense, which was inside the meeting tent, at the entry to the holiest space. Exodus 27:1-8 and 40:6 describe the altar of entirely burned offerings, which was just outside the meeting tent in its courtyard.

4:11-12 The meat from regular purification offerings goes to the priests to eat (Lev 6:26). But the carcass of the sin offerings for the high priest and community could not be eaten and had to be burned outside the camp. That is because it's not right for priests to benefit from offerings for their own individual or communal sins.

4:13-21 Since the sins of the entire Israelite community involve the high priest, too, this purification offering is identical to that for the high priest (Lev 4:3-12).

4:22-26 Unlike the high priest, a secular leader's purification offering must be conducted like that of any worshipper (Lev 4:27-13). But the leader must offer a more valuable animal, a male goat (or "ram"). On the sex of offering animals, see note on Leviticus 1:3.

4:24 It will be slaughtered: The subject of the Hebrew "he will slaughter" is indefinite. It could be the worshipper, but someone else could also slaughter the animal (cf. 2 Chron 30:17).

4:25 For regular purification offerings, the priest must rub blood on the horns of the altar in the courtyard (see note on Lev 4:7) and pour out the rest at the base of the altar. This is different from all the other offerings, because in other offerings the blood gets splashed against the sides of the altar (Lev 1:5; 3:3).

<sup>27</sup>If any ordinary person<sup>a</sup> sins unintentionally by breaking one of the LORD's commands, doing something that shouldn't be done, and becomes guilty of sin—<sup>28</sup>once the sin they committed is made known to them—they must bring as their offering a flawless female goat because of the sin that was committed. <sup>29</sup>They will press their hand on the head of the purification offering. ### Unintentional sin

by not providing information after hearing a public solemn pledge even though you are a witness, knowing something, or having seen something so that you become liable to punishment;

<sup>2</sup>or by touching some unclean thing—the dead body of an unclean wild animal, unclean livestock, or unclean swarming creature—but the fact goes unknown so that you become unclean and guilty of sin;

<sup>3</sup>or by touching human uncleanness—any uncleanness that makes one unclean—and the fact goes unknown, but you later learn of it and become guilty of sin;

<sup>4</sup>or by carelessly swearing to do something, whether bad or good—whatever one might swear carelessly—and the fact goes unknown, but you later learn of it and become guilty of sin concerning one of these things—

4:27–5:13 Regular worshippers may offer goats (4:27–31), sheep (4:32–35), birds (5:7–10), or flour (5:11–13) as purification offerings, depending on their ability to pay for them (5:7, 11).

4:27 ordinary person: The underlying Hebrew is “one of the people of the land.” This phrase means anyone (perhaps any landowner) besides the leaders already mentioned. The rules don't restrict who may bring offerings by nationality, gender, or age.

4:29 It will be slaughtered: See note on Leviticus 4:24.

5:1–6 Sins of omission and negligence (5:1–4) can be reconciled by confessing (5:5) and presenting a purification offering (5:6). Some of these offenses are minor (5:2–3). But failing to clean oneself could pollute other people or the sanctuary (Lev 7:19–21), which leads to major problems.

5:1 hearing a public solemn pledge: A victim of a crime would swear an oath asking for support from witnesses (cf. Prov 29:24). liable to punishment: doesn't specify how or by whom.

5:2 touching some unclean thing: See Leviticus 11.

5:3 human uncleanness: See Leviticus 12–13; 15.

5:4 carelessly swearing: without thinking whether you can or should do what you swear to do.

Blood Hittite, Israelite, and Greek rituals stood out from other ancient temple services because they involved splashing animal blood on the sides of altars and using blood to purify people and places. Leviticus requires special uses of blood in purification offerings and on the Day of Reconciliation. Priests smear the blood of purification offerings on the altar's horns (Lev 4:25, 30, 34) and sometimes bring the blood into the meeting tent's (i.e., the tabernacle's) holy area (Lev 4:5–7, 16–18). On the Day of Reconciliation, the high priest sprinkles it on the covenant document's cover (Lev 16:14–15). Only the high priest can do this.

While worshippers present and slaughter the animals, even eating much of the meat, only priests handle the blood. The distinctive blood rituals of the Day of Reconciliation, as well as some purification offerings, call attention to the high priest's status as Israel's top religious leader.

<sup>5</sup>at that point, when you have become guilty of sin in one of these ways, you must confess how you have sinned <sup>6</sup>and bring to the LORD as compensation for the sin that was committed a female from the flock, either a sheep or goat, as a purification offering. The priest will then make reconciliation for you, to remove your sin.

Alternative offerings

<sup>7</sup>If you can't afford an animal from the flock, you can bring to the LORD as compensation for your sin two doves or two pigeons, one as a purification offering and the other as an entirely burned offering. <sup>8</sup>You will bring them to the priest, who will first present the one for the purification offering. He will pinch off its head at the back of its neck without splitting it. <sup>9</sup>Then he will sprinkle some of the blood of the purification offering on the side of the altar. The rest of the blood will be drained out at the base of the altar. It is a purification offering. <sup>10</sup>Then, with the second bird, the priest will perform an entirely burned offering according to the regulation. In this way, the priest will make reconciliation for you because of the sin you committed, and you will be forgiven.

<sup>11</sup>If you cannot afford two doves or two pigeons, you can bring as the offering for your sin a tenth of an ephah<sup>1</sup> of choice flour as a purification offering. You must not put any oil on it, nor any frankincense, because it is a purification offering. <sup>12</sup>You will bring it to the priest, and the priest will take a handful from it—the token portion—and will burn it completely on the altar along with the food gifts for the LORD. It is a purification offering. <sup>13</sup>In this way, the priest will make reconciliation for you for whichever one of the sins you committed, and you will be forgiven. The rest of the offering will belong to the priest like the grain offering.

The compensation offering

<sup>14</sup>The LORD said to Moses, <sup>15</sup>Whenever you commit wrongdoing, unintentionally sinning against any of the LORD's holy things, you must bring to the LORD as your compensation a flawless ram from the flock, its value calculated in silver shekels according to the sanctuary's shekel, as a compensation offering. <sup>16</sup>You will make amends for the way you have sinned against the holy thing: you will add one-fifth to its value and give it to the priest. Then the priest will make reconciliation for you with the ram for the compensation offering, and you will be forgiven.

<sup>17</sup>If you sin by breaking any of the LORD's commands, but without realizing it, doing something that shouldn't be done, and then become guilty and liable to punishment, <sup>18</sup>you must bring a flawless ram from the flock, at the standard value, as a compensation offering to the priest. The priest will make reconciliation for you for the unintentional fault that you committed, even though you didn't realize it, and you will be forgiven. <sup>19</sup>It is a compensation offering. You have definitely become guilty before the LORD.

5:7 People in the ancient Near East raised doves and pigeons for food. They were much cheaper than cattle, sheep, or goats. Because they had little fat (cf. Lev 4:26, 31, 35), the priest burned one bird for the Lord as an entirely burned offering (see Lev 1:14-17), while he kept the other bird as his take from the purification offering (cf. Lev 6:26, 29). Mary and Joseph made bird offerings to complete her purification after the birth of Jesus (Luke 2:24; cf. Lev 12).
5:11 Even cheaper was a tenth of an ephah (two quarts) of choice flour (semolina), so poor Israelites could bring purification offerings when they needed to. Lack of oil and frankincense separates this purification offering from a regular grain offering (Lev 2:2).

5:14-6:7 Direct offenses against the Lord always require repayment plus 20 percent (5:16; 6:5) and an expensive compensation offering (or "guilt offering"); the underlying Heb. is the same word as "guilty" in 5:17). Like the "purification offering" (see note on Lev 4:3), it describes both the problem and its solution. The CEB translation points to its function to compensate for the sin. The rules for conducting the compensation offering appear in Leviticus 7:1-7. They resemble those for the well-being sacrifice,

5:15 sinning against any of the LORD's holy things: by stealing, ruining, or polluting sacred offerings, objects (e.g., temple tools, the priests' clothes), and spaces (the meeting tent or temple); or failing to fulfill oaths using the Lord's name (see Lev 5:1-4). a flawless ram: A male goat was a fairly expensive animal. It marks off this offering from purification offerings that require different flock animals (Lev 4:23, 28, 32). its value calculated: The priests assess the animal's value in weights of silver, or maybe people pay in silver to buy a ram at the sanctuary. Priests could adjust their assessment by people's ability to pay (Lev 27:8). the sanctuary's shekel: standardized weights kept in the sanctuary. One shekel would weigh about 0.4 oz.

5:16 make amends: repay the damaged or stolen goods plus 20 percent.

5:17 breaking any of the LORD's commands, but without realizing it: When people suspect they did something wrong but don't know what, they must bring a compensation offering instead of a purification offering because it could have involved "any of the LORD's holy things" (Lev 5:15).

<sup>3</sup>or, though you've found lost property, you lie about it;
or by swearing falsely about anything that someone might do and so sin, <sup>4</sup>at that point, once you have sinned and become guilty of sin, you must return the property you took by robbery or fraud, or the deposit that was left with you for safekeeping, or the lost property that you found, <sup>5</sup>or whatever it was that you swore falsely about. You must make amends for the principal amount and add one-fifth to it. You must give it to the owner on the day you become guilty. <sup>6</sup>You must bring to the priest as your compensation to the LORD a flawless ram from the flock at the standard value as a compensation offering. <sup>7</sup>The priest will make reconciliation for you before the LORD, and you will be forgiven for anything you may have done that made you guilty.

Priestly instructions

<sup>14</sup>This is the Instruction for the grain offering: Aaron's sons will present it before the LORD in front of the altar. <sup>15</sup>The priest will remove a handful of the choice flour and oil from the grain offering, and all of the frankincense that is on it, and burn this token portion completely on the altar as a soothing smell to the LORD. <sup>16</sup>Aaron and his sons will eat the rest of it. It must be eaten as unleavened bread in a holy place; the priests must eat it in the meeting tent's courtyard. <sup>17</sup>It must not be baked with leaven. I have made it the priests'

6:1-7 These seven verses begin chapter 6 in the Christian tradition of counting chapters and verses, but end chapter 5 in the Jewish count. swearing falsely (6:3) turns all these crimes into offenses against the Lord (6:2) because oaths used the divine name. They therefore require repayment (6:4-5), confession (Num 5:7) and a compensation offering instead of a purification offering (6:6).

6:8-7:36 Leviticus 6-7 revisits the offerings described in the first five chapters to focus on the portions that should go to priests. The rhetoric emphasizes careful performance of the rituals, with threats to "cut off" those who don't do them right (see note on Lev 7:20-21).

6:9 Command Aaron and his sons: God has addressed previous instructions to all Israelites (Lev 1:2; 4:2), but now intends these for the priests (Lev 6:25; but cf. Lev 7:22, 28) because they deal with priestly duties and incomes. Nevertheless, everyone overhears these instructions to priests since they appear in a book addressed to them all. This way, priests and non-priests can hold each other accountable. the Instruction: Hebrew Torah. The heading, "This is the torah for..." begins the instructions for each offering (Lev 6:9, 14, 25; 7:1, 11) and summarizes them all (Lev 7:37). The word frequently describes the teachings of priests in the OT (e.g., Deut 33:10; Hag 2:11; Mal 2:6-9).

Elsewhere, torah can refer to all the instructions God gave to Israel (e.g., Exod 16:8; 24:12; Lev 26:46; Ps 105:45). It became the name of books containing those laws (Deut 28:61; 31:26; 2 Kgs 22:8) and eventually the name of the entire Pentateuch (Neh 8:2).

6:10 dress in his linen robe: Whenever priests approach the holy altar, even just to take away the ashes, they must wear their robes (Exod 28:40-43; Lev 16:4) that have been made holy (Lev 8:30). But they must take them off before going outside (Lev 6:11) so they don't pollute the clothes. 6:13 continuous fire: Ancient people kept fires burning all night in cold weather so they didn't have to light them again in the morning. The continuous altar fire came to symbolize God's presence in the sanctuary. Priests also had to keep oil lamps lit through the night inside the meeting tent (Lev 24:2-4). 2 Maccabees 1:19-2:1 reports a legend that the altar fire miraculously survived the Babylonian exile in liquid form until revived by Nehemiah. The oracles at Delphi in Greece and the vestal virgins in Rome also tended continuous fires.

6:14-18 Rules for presenting the grain offering appear in Leviticus 2 (see note on Lev 2:2). This instruction makes clear that only priests may eat them and must do so in the meeting tent.

6:17 leaven: See Leviticus 2:11-13. most holy labels the three offerings that priests may eat but laypeople may not.

share from my food gifts. It is most holy like the purification offering and the compensation offering. <sup>18</sup>Only the males from Aaron's descendants can eat it as a permanent portion from the LORD's food gifts throughout your future generations. Anything that touches these food gifts will become holy.

6:18 Only the males: unlike the priests' portion of well-being sacrifices that they can share with everyone in their households (Lev 22:10-13), will become holy: or "must [already] be holy." Interpreters disagree over whether the writers of Leviticus thought that holiness was contagious or not. Compare with Ezekiel 44:19; 46:20; Haggai 2:11-13. permanent portion or "permanent rule" (Lev 3:17) emphasizes priestly incomes four times in chapters 6-7 (Lev 6:18, 22; 7:34, 36).

6:19-23 The regular grain offering of the priests has not been described before, so its ritual instructions appear here (cf. Lev 2). Unlike other grain offerings, priests cannot eat any of it because they should not get income from their own offerings. So it must be completely burned on the altar.

6:21 crumbled pieces: The Hebrew word's meaning is uncertain because it appears only here in the OT.

<sup>24</sup>The LORD said to Moses, <sup>25</sup>Say to Aaron and his sons: This is the Instruction for the purification offering: The purification offering must be slaughtered before the LORD at the same place the entirely burned offering is slaughtered; it is most holy. <sup>26</sup>The priest who offers it as a purification offering will eat it. It must be eaten in a holy place, in the meeting tent's courtyard. <sup>27</sup>Anything that touches the purification offering's flesh will become holy. If some of its blood splashes on a garment, you must wash the bloodied part in a holy place. <sup>28</sup>A pottery container in which the purification offering is cooked must be broken, but if it is cooked in a bronze container, that must be scrubbed and rinsed with water. <sup>29</sup>Any male priest can eat it; it is most holy. <sup>30</sup>But no purification offering can be eaten if blood from it is brought into the meeting tent to make reconciliation in the holy place; it must be burned with fire.

7This is the Instruction for the compensation offering: It is most holy. <sup>2</sup>The compensation offering must be slaughtered at the same place where the entirely burned offering is slaughtered, and its blood must be tossed against all sides of the altar. <sup>3</sup>All of its fat will be offered: the fat tail; the fat that covers the insides; <sup>4</sup>the two kidneys and the fat around them at the loins; and the lobe on the liver, which must be removed with the kidneys. <sup>5</sup>The priest must burn them completely on the altar as a food gift for the LORD; it is a compensation offering. <sup>6</sup>Any male priest can eat it. It must be eaten in a holy place; it is most holy.

<sup>15</sup>The flesh of your communal thanksgiving sacrifice of well-being must be eaten on the day you offer it; you cannot save any of it until morning. <sup>16</sup>But if your communal sacrifice of well-being is payment for a solemn promise or if it is a spontaneous gift, it may be eaten on the day you offer it as your communal sacrifice, and whatever is left over can be eaten the next day. <sup>17</sup>But whatever is left over of the flesh of the communal sacrifice on the third day must be burned with fire. <sup>18</sup>If any of it is eaten on the third day, it will not be accepted. It will not be credited to the one who offered it. It will be considered foul, and the person who eats of it will be liable to punishment.

6:24-30 Priests receive all the meat from the purification offering, unless it is offered for themselves (6:30; see Lev 4:3-21).

6:27-28 If blood or meat touches clothes or pots, they must be cleaned thoroughly. Interpreters disagree as to why. will become holy can also be translated "must (already) be holy" (see note on Lev 6:18).

7:1-7 Leviticus 5 did not give rules for presenting the compensation offering, so they appear here in 7:2-5 instead. It goes like a well-being sacrifice (Lev 3), except the priest gets all the meat, like a purification offering (7:7).

7:3 fat... fat tail: See notes on Leviticus 3:3-4 and 3:6-16.

7:8-10 Additional rules for entirely burned offerings and grain offerings appear here instead of in Leviticus 6:8-18. It turns out that entirely burned offerings are not entirely burned. The animal's hide belongs to the priest who presents it, as do baked or fried grain offerings. But all the priests share offerings of raw flour equally.

7:11-34 Worshipers and priests share the meat of well-being sacrifices. So these rules tell worshipers how to handle and eat it (7:12-30) before describing the priests' portion (7:31-34).

7:12-14 A well-being sacrifice must include bread as well as meat. These three kinds of bread can also be offered as a grain offering (Lev 2:5-7), but in that case the priest gets everything that isn't burned on the altar (Lev 2:10). Here the priest gets only one (loaf or cake) of each kind of unleavened bread as well as leavened flatbread. The worshiper eats the rest, just like the meat (Lev 7:15-16).

7:15-16 thanksgiving sacrifice... payment for a solemn promise... spontaneous gift name three different types of well-being sacrifices or three different reasons for presenting this offering, with different schedules for eating them.

7:18 foul: Rotten meat is no longer holy.

7:19-21 unclean: Humans and animals can be sources of uncleanness (see Lev 11-15), which was considered contagious by touch. Holy things that become unclean are no longer valid.

7:20-21 cut off from their people: This common threat (13 times in Leviticus-Numbers) doesn't make clear how and of well-being that belongs to the LORD while in an unclean state will be cut off from their people. <sup>21</sup>Whenever anyone touches any unclean thing—whether it is human uncleanness, an unclean animal, or any unclean and disgusting creature—and then eats the flesh of a communal sacrifice of well-being that belongs to the LORD, that person will be cut off from their people.

<sup>22</sup>The LORD said to Moses: <sup>23</sup>Tell the Israelites: You must not eat the fat of an ox, sheep, or goat. <sup>24</sup>The fat of an animal that has died naturally or the fat of an animal that was killed by another animal may be put to any use, but you must definitely not eat it. <sup>25</sup>If anyone eats the fat of an animal from which a food gift could be offered to the LORD, that person will be cut off from their people. <sup>26</sup>You must not consume any blood whatsoever—whether bird or animal blood—wherever you may live. <sup>27</sup>Any person who consumes any blood whatsoever will be cut off from their people.

<sup>28</sup>The LORD said to Moses: <sup>29</sup>Say to the Israelites: If you wish to offer a communal sacrifice of well-being to the LORD, you are allowed to bring your offering to the LORD as your communal sacrifice of well-being. <sup>30</sup>Your own hands must bring the LORD's food gifts. You will bring the fat with the breast so that the breast can be lifted as an uplifted offering before the LORD. <sup>31</sup>The priest will completely burn the fat on the altar, but the breast will go to Aaron and his sons. <sup>32</sup>You will give the right thigh of your communal sacrifice of well-being to the priest as a gift. <sup>33</sup>The right thigh will belong to the son of Aaron who offers the blood and fat of the well-being offering. <sup>34</sup>I have taken the breast of the uplifted offering and the thigh that is given by the Israelites from their communal sacrifices of well-being, and have given them to Aaron the priest and to his sons as a permanent portion from the Israelites.

Conclusion concerning offerings

<sup>37</sup>This concludes the Instructions for the entirely burned offering, the grain offering, the purification offering, the compensation offering, the ordination offering, and the communal sacrifice of well-being, <sup>38</sup>which the LORD commanded Moses at Mount Sinai on the day when he ordered the Israelites to present their offerings to the LORD, in the Sinai desert.

The priests' ordination

8 The LORD said to Moses, <sup>2</sup>Take Aaron and his sons with him, the basketly clothing, the anointing oil, a bull for the purification offering, two rams, and a basket of unleavened bread, <sup>3</sup>and assemble the whole community at the meeting tent's entrance.

by whom the penalty should be enforced. It may mean a death penalty, loss of family and descendants, or exclusion from the community. But the threatening tone is clear: Israelites should be very careful not to bring uncleanness into the sanctuary.

7:22-27 Warnings reach a climax in prohibitions on eating fat and blood (see Lev 3:17).

7:24 you must definitely not eat it: While the Israelites cannot eat the fat, they are permitted to eat the meat of some animals that die naturally or are killed by other animals (Lev 11:39-40; 17:15). fat... may be put to any use: maybe as lubricants, soaps, or lamp oil.

7:28-36 Priests (i.e., Aaron and his sons) receive income from well-being sacrifices. Worshipers must present the blood, fat, breast, and right thigh of this offering to the priest with their own hands. The blood and fat go on the altar. The priest keeps the breast and right thigh for himself.

7:30 lifted as an uplifted offering: probably a gesture dedicating it to God.

7:34-35 permanent portion: God grants the priests a permanent income from Israel's offerings (see Lev 6:18, 22).

8:1-10:20 This is the only long story in Leviticus. It tells of the inauguration of priests and worship in the meeting tent. It emphasizes 22 times that everything was done just as the LORD had commanded (8:4, 5, 9). Once it shows the disastrous results when priests did what the LORD had not commanded them (10:1). Then God tells Aaron that he and his sons have the authority to determine the right way to do the rituals and interpret God's instructions to Israel (10:10-11). So this story justifies Aaron's family in controlling the priesthood and temple. See sidebar, "Priests" at Leviticus 8.

8:2 Aaron and his sons: See Exodus 6:23.

Priests Throughout the ancient world, priests presided over offerings at temples. Priests had to protect the holiness of their temples by keeping themselves clean. In exchange for their work, they could eat some of the offerings. Priests were usually men, though sometimes women presided over offerings and temples dedicated to goddesses. Kings often put priests in office (e.g., 1 Kgs 2:26-27), but sometimes the role of priest rotated among leaders of a community.

Exodus, Leviticus, and Numbers mandate a hereditary priesthood for Israel. Only male descendants of Aaron can serve as priests. It is not clear whether this mandate was followed in the kingdoms of Israel and Judah. But starting in 535 BCE, after the exile, Aaron's descendants controlled the Jewish temple in Jerusalem and also the Samaritan temple on Mount Gerizim. In Jerusalem, two dynasties of priests controlled the high priesthood for 500 years. They were universally recognized as leaders of the Jews.

This was the same period when the Torah (the Pentateuch) first began to function widely as Jewish scripture. Priests taught the importance of obeying Torah, and the Torah justified the role of the priests, so the authority of priests and scripture grew together. But after the destruction of the Jerusalem temple in 70 CE, Jewish religious leadership shifted from hereditary priests to learned rabbis. Christians declared Jesus Christ the new high priest in a different priestly line (Heb 7). Denominations disagree over whether to call ministers "priests" or to use that term for all Christians (Exod 19:6; 1 Pet 2:9). However, a hereditary high priest still leads Samaritans to this day.

to do." <sup>6</sup>Then Moses brought Aaron and his sons forward and washed them in water. <sup>7</sup>Moses put the tunic on Aaron, tied the sash around him, and dressed him in the robe. Moses then put the priestly vest on Aaron, tied the woven waistband of the vest around him, and secured the vest to him with it. <sup>8</sup>Then Moses placed the chest piece on Aaron and set the Urim and Thummim into the chest piece. <sup>9</sup>Moses placed the turban on Aaron's head and put the gold flower ornament, the holy crown, on the turban's front, just as the LORD had commanded him.

<sup>10</sup>Moses then took the anointing oil and anointed the dwelling<sup>a</sup> and everything in it, making them holy by doing so. <sup>11</sup>He sprinkled some of the oil on the altar seven times, and anointed the altar and all its equipment, as well as the basin and its base, to make them holy. <sup>12</sup>He poured some of the anointing oil on Aaron's head, thereby anointing him to make him holy. <sup>13</sup>Then Moses brought Aaron's sons forward, dressed them in tunics, tied sashes around them, and wrapped headbands on them, just as the LORD had commanded him.

8:22-24 ram for ordination: See Exodus 29:19-28. Leviticus has no instructions for the ordination offering, though it mentions this offering in the list in Leviticus 7:37. The ritual imitates a well-being sacrifice (Lev 3) but also puts blood thumbs, and their right big toes. Moses tossed the rest of the blood against all of the altar's sides. <sup>25</sup>Then he took the fat—the fat tail, all the fat that was around the insides, the lobe of the liver, the two kidneys and their fat—as well as the right thigh. <sup>26</sup>From the basket of unleavened bread that was before the LORD, he took one loaf of unleavened flatbread, one loaf of flatbread made with oil, and one unleavened wafer, and he placed these on the fat pieces and on the right thigh. <sup>27</sup>Moses set all of this in Aaron's and his sons' hands, then lifted them as an uplifted offering before the LORD. <sup>28</sup>Next Moses took this out of their hands and completely burned it on the altar, along with the entirely burned offering. This was an ordination offering for a soothing smell; it was a food gift for the LORD. <sup>29</sup>Next Moses took the breast from the ram for the ordination offering and lifted it as an uplifted offering before the LORD. It belonged to Moses as his portion, just as the LORD had commanded him. <sup>30</sup>Moses took some of the anointing oil and some of the blood that was on the altar and sprinkled it on Aaron and his clothes, and on his sons and their clothes as well. In this way, Moses made holy Aaron, his clothing, and Aaron's sons and their clothing.

The priests' initiation

9On the eighth day, Moses called for Aaron, Aaron's sons, and Israel's elders. <sup>2</sup>He said to Aaron, "Take a young bull from the herd as a purification offering and a ram as an entirely burned offering, both flawless animals, and bring them before the LORD. <sup>3</sup>Then tell the Israelites, 'Take a male goat as a purification offering; a young bull and a sheep—both one-year-old flawless animals—as an entirely burned offering; <sup>4</sup>an ox and a ram as a well-being sacrifice before the LORD; and a grain offering mixed with oil, because today the LORD will appear to you.'

<sup>5</sup>They brought what Moses had commanded to the front of the meeting tent. Then the whole community came forward and stood before the LORD. <sup>6</sup>Moses said, "The LORD has ordered you to do this so that the LORD's glorious presence will appear to you." <sup>7</sup>Moses said to Aaron, "Come up to the altar and perform your purification offering and your entirely burned offering, making reconciliation for yourself and the people. Then perform the people's offering in order to make reconciliation for them, just as the LORD commanded."

<sup>8</sup>Aaron went to the altar and slaughtered the young bull for his purification offering. <sup>9</sup>Then Aaron's sons presented the blood to him, and he dipped his finger into the blood and put it on the altar's horns. He poured the rest of the blood out at the altar's base. <sup>10</sup>He completely burned on the altar the fat, kidneys, and lobe of the liver from the purification offering, just as the LORD commanded Moses. <sup>11</sup>But he burned the flesh and hide with fire outside the camp.

<sup>12</sup>Then Aaron slaughtered the entirely burned offering. Aaron's sons handed him the blood, and he tossed it against all sides of the altar. <sup>13</sup>They handed him the entirely burned offering in pieces, including the head, and he completely burned them on the altar. <sup>14</sup>Then he washed the insides and lower legs and completely burned them on the altar along with the rest of the entirely burned offering.

on the priests' ears, thumbs, and toes, just as Moses put blood on the altar's horns (Lev 8:15). The blood probably purifies the priests, while anointing them with oil (Lev 8:30) makes them holy.

8:27–29 uplifted offering: See note on Leviticus 7:30.

8:30 anointing oil: See Exodus 30:22–33; 37:29. The priests and their clothes both become holy (cf. Exod 10:7).

8:31 Cook the meat: Compare with Leviticus 7:14–33.

9:1–24 Now ordained, the priests take over the rituals from Moses. Aaron begins making the regular offerings as instructed in Leviticus 1–5, first for himself (9:8–14), then for the people (9:15–21).

9:1 eighth day: after seven days of ordination (Lev 8:33–35).

9:4 the Lord will appear to you: See Leviticus 9:6, 23–24.

9:6 the Lord's glorious presence appeared as a cloud (Exod 16:7–10; 24:16–17) that has already filled the meeting tent (Exod 40:34–38). This time, it will instead take the form of a fire bolt (Lev 9:24).

<sup>15</sup>Next, Aaron presented the people's offering. He took the male goat for the people's purification offering, slaughtered it, and offered it as a purification offering like the first purification offering. <sup>16</sup>He presented the entirely burned offering and did with it according to the regulation. <sup>17</sup>Then he presented the grain offering, took a handful from it, and completely burned it on the altar, in addition to the morning's entirely burned offering.

<sup>18</sup>Aaron then slaughtered the ox and the ram—the people's communal sacrifice of well-being. Aaron's sons handed him the blood, which he tossed against all sides of the altar, <sup>19</sup>and the fat pieces of the ox and ram—the fat tail, the covering fat, the kidneys, and the lobe of the liver. <sup>20</sup>They placed these fat pieces on the animals' breasts, and Aaron completely burned them on the altar. <sup>21</sup>But Aaron lifted up the breasts and the right thigh as an uplifted offering before the LORD, just as Moses had commanded.

<sup>22</sup>Aaron then raised his hands toward the people and blessed them. After performing the purification offering, the entirely burned offering, and the well-being sacrifice, he came down. <sup>23</sup>Moses and Aaron then entered the meeting tent. When they came out, they blessed the people, and the LORD's glorious presence appeared to all the people. <sup>24</sup>Fire flew out from before the LORD and devoured the entirely burned offering and the fat pieces on the altar. All the people saw it. They shouted for joy and fell facedown.

Nadab and Abihu

10 Now Nadab and Abihu, two of Aaron's sons, each took an incense pan. They put fire and incense on them and offered unauthorized fire before the LORD, which he had not commanded them. <sup>2</sup>Then fire flew out from before the LORD and devoured them, and they died before the LORD.

<sup>3</sup>Moses said to Aaron, "When the LORD said, 'I will show that I am holy among those near me, and before all the people I will manifest my glorious presence,' this is what he meant!" But Aaron was silent.

<sup>4</sup>Then Moses called Mishael and Elzaphan the sons of Uzziel, Aaron's uncle, and told them, "Go carry your relatives out from the front of the sanctuary to a place outside the camp." <sup>5</sup>So they went forward and carried Nadab and Abihu out by their tunics to a place outside the camp, just as Moses had ordered. <sup>6</sup>Moses then said to Aaron and his sons, Eleazar and Ithamar, "Don't dishevel your hair and don't rip your clothes into pieces, or you will die and bring anger upon the whole community. Your family—all of Israel's house—will mourn the burning the LORD has done. <sup>7</sup>But you must not leave the meeting tent, or you will die because the LORD's anointing oil is on you." So they did what Moses ordered.

Priestly drinking and eating

<sup>8</sup>The LORD said to Aaron: <sup>9</sup>Both you and your sons must not drink wine or beer when you enter the meeting tent so that you don't die—this is a permanent rule throughout your future generations—<sup>10</sup>so that you can distinguish between the holy and the common, and

9:21 uplifted offering: See note on Leviticus 7:30.

9:22 blessed them: probably with the words of the priestly blessing from Numbers 6:24-26.

9:24 from before the LORD: from out of the meeting tent. The Fire shows that God approves the offerings and those who presented them (as in 1 Kgs 18:38; 1 Chron 21:26; 2 Chron 7:1; cf. Judg 6:21).

10:1-20 Only once in Leviticus 8-10 do the priests do something that the LORD... had not commanded (10:1). As a result, two priests die. The rest of the chapter deals with the question of whether the priests have the authority to decide on correct ritual practice.

10:1 Nadab and Abihu: Aaron's oldest sons (Exod 6:23). Unauthorized fire doesn't explain exactly what they did wrong, only that they didn't follow God's instructions.

10:2 fire... from before the LORD is the same phrase as in Leviticus 9:24. But in this case, the fire shows God's judgment on those who don't follow instructions.

10:3 When the LORD said: This message is not recorded elsewhere. Interpreters have debated its meaning for thousands of years. Its moral, though, is clear: Priests risk death by coming close to God's presence. They must be very careful to do their jobs correctly.

10:4 Mishael and Elzaphan: the closest family members who were not priests and not required to stay in the sanctuary (Lev 10:7).

10:5 carried Nadab and Abihu out by their tunics: so Mishael and Elzaphan would not become unclean by touching the corpses.

10:6 Eleazar and Ithamar: Aaron's remaining sons (Exod 6:23). The priests must present the offerings, so they can't mourn in traditional ways by disheveling their hair (they must wear turbans; Exod 28:40), ripping their clothes (their clothes are holy; Exod 28:41; Lev 8:30), drinking alcohol (Lev 10:8), or fasting (Lev 10:13-18).

10:7 you must not leave the meeting tent: until they finish the day's offerings. Priests can and did leave the sanctuary. Their homes in the land were in scattered villages (Josh 21:4-19). But now they must stay in the sanctuary and not attend their brothers' funeral.

10:8 The LORD said to Aaron: God speaks directly to Aaron alone, rather than through or with Moses, only here and in Numbers 18. This emphasizes the message in Leviticus 10:9-11.

10:9-11 this is a permanent rule... so that you can distinguish... can teach: or "This is a permanent rule... : to between the unclean and the clean,<sup>11</sup> and so that you can teach the Israelites all the rules that the LORD spoke to them through Moses.

<sup>12</sup>Moses then told Aaron and his remaining sons, Eleazar and Ithamar, "Take the grain offering that is left over from the LORD's food gifts and eat it unleavened next to the altar, because it is most holy. <sup>13</sup>You must eat it in a holy place because it is your portion and your sons' portion from the LORD's food gifts, as I have been commanded. <sup>14</sup>You must eat the breast for the uplifted offering and the thigh for the gift offering in a clean place—both you and your sons and daughters. These things are designated as your portion and your children's portion from the Israelites' communal sacrifices of well-being. <sup>15</sup>The Israelites must bring the thigh for the gift and the breast for the uplifted offering along with the food gifts of the fat pieces, to be lifted up as an uplifted offering before the LORD. These will belong to both you and your children as a permanent portion, just as the LORD has commanded."

<sup>16</sup>Then Moses asked about the male goat for the purification offering, and discovered that it had already been burned. He was angry with Eleazar and Ithamar, Aaron's remaining sons, and asked, <sup>17</sup>"Why didn't you eat the purification offering in the holy area? It's most holy, and it was assigned to you for bearing the community's punishment by making reconciliation for them before the LORD. <sup>18</sup>Since its blood wasn't brought into the sanctuary's interior, you were to have eaten it in the sanctuary, just as I was commanded."

<sup>19</sup>"Look," Aaron said to Moses, "today they offered their purification offerings and their entirely burned offerings before the LORD, but these things still happened to me! Would the LORD have approved if I had eaten a purification offering today?" <sup>20</sup>When Moses heard that, he approved.†

Dietary rules

11 The LORD said to Moses and Aaron: <sup>2</sup>Say to the Israelites: These are the creatures that you are allowed to eat from the land animals: <sup>3</sup>You can eat any animal that has divided hoofs, completely split, and that rechews food. <sup>4</sup>But of animals that chew food and have divided hoofs you must not eat the following: the camel—though it rechews food, it does not have divided hoofs, so it is unclean for you; <sup>5</sup>the rock badger—though it rechews food, it does not have divided hoofs, so it is unclean for you; <sup>6</sup>the hare—though it rechews food, it does not have divided hoofs, so it is unclean for you; <sup>7</sup>the pig—though it has completely divided hoofs, it does not chew food, so it is unclean for you. <sup>8</sup>You must not eat the flesh of these animals or touch their dead bodies; they are unclean for you.

<sup>9</sup>You are allowed to eat the following from all water animals: You may eat anything in the water that has fins and scales, whether in sea or stream. <sup>10</sup>But anything in the seas or streams that does not have fins and scales—whether it be any of the swarming creatures in the water or any of the other living creatures in the water—is detestable to you <sup>11</sup>and must distinguish . . . to teach" (as in Lev 16:34). The priests have authority to decide correct ritual practice and teach all the rules of the Torah to Israel. Priests distinguish between the holy and the common, for example, by marking the limits of holy and most holy space in the meeting tent (Exod 26:33, 36) and by treating most holy and holy offerings correctly (Lev 7:27-30; 10:17). They must also stay clean themselves (Lev 21), diagnose (Lev 13-14) and purify uncleanliness (Lev 15:15) in others, and keep the unclean away from holy things (Lev 7:19-21).

10:9 Priests must abstain from wine and beer while presenting offerings so they can think clearly and don't make fatal mistakes.

10:12-15 The priests must eat their portion of the offerings on the same day in the courtyard of the meeting tent (Lev 6:16; 7:31-34). So they can't fast to mourn their sons or brothers.

10:16-18 The meat of the purification offering was supposed to be eaten by the priests (Lev 7:26-29), but it was burned outside the camp. Only purification offerings for the high priest and the community as a whole, whose blood is brought into the sanctuary's interior, should be burned outside the camp (Lev 4:5-12, 16-21; 7:30).

10:18 as I was commanded: or "as I commanded" (see translation note). Early Hebrew texts did not distinguish between active and passive verbs.

10:19 Aaron's argument is not clear, but involves what is the appropriate response to the deaths of his sons, Nadab and Abihu (these things still happened to me; see Lev 10:2).

10:20 Since God has now granted Aaron final authority to decide correct ritual practice (Lev 10:10), even Moses must approve or at least be satisfied by his decision.

11:1-47 These lists and principles for recognizing unclean animals set rules for what meat may or may not be eaten (see sidebar, "Meat" at Lev 11). A related list of edible animals appears in Deuteronomy 14.

11:3-8 divided hoofs . . . rechews food: includes cattle, sheep, goats, and deer. Israel's neighbors often ate the animals that are prohibited here.

11:9-12 Water animals without fins and scales include remain so. You must not eat their flesh, and you must detest their dead bodies. <sup>12</sup>Anything in the water that does not have fins or scales is detestable to you.

Unclean animals

<sup>39</sup>If one of the animals that you are allowed to eat dies naturally, anyone who touches its dead body will be unclean until evening. <sup>40</sup>Anyone who eats from the dead body must wash their clothes and will be unclean until evening. Anyone who carries such a dead body must wash their clothes and will be unclean until evening.

sharks, rays, octopuses, and all kinds of shellfish. detest/detestable strengthens the rule against touching dead animals. People should avoid them completely.

11:13-19 Many of these names of birds are rare and poorly understood (see translation note u). The clearer terms name predatory birds. Perhaps the whole list consists of meat-eating birds that do not keep to the vegetarian diet provided by God in Genesis 1:29-30.

11:20-23 Flying insects with four feet probably means “at least four feet,” unlike birds, which have only two. Among insects, only locusts, crickets, and grasshoppers may be eaten. After locusts destroyed crops, they were often one of the few food sources left to eat.

11:24-28 People who touch a dead land animal become unclean, but need only to wash and wait until evening before becoming clean again. They are not allowed to enter the sanctuary, but can behave normally elsewhere. They have not sinned.

11:26 Animals with paws do not have hooves (Lev 11:3). They also tend to be predators (bears, wild and domestic cats and dogs), like unclean birds (Lev 11:13-19).

11:29-30 These rodents and reptiles are unclean because they move close to the ground (cf. Lev 11:41-42).

11:32-38 People, pots, and water that touch corpses of land animals become unclean. The same is not said of unclean fish, bird, and insects. Otherwise, almost every water supply would be unclean. Those animals must simply not be eaten (Lev 11:10-12, 23, 42).

11:39-40 While some animals that die naturally can be eaten (Lev 17:15), their fat should not be (Lev 7:24).

Meat God first gave only vegetarian food to humans and animals, according to Genesis 1:29-30. After the flood, God allowed humans to eat meat so long as they avoided blood (Gen 9:2-5). Prohibitions on eating blood and animal fat are the most basic food laws (see Lev 3:17). Leviticus 11 distinguishes “unclean” and “detestable” animals from clean ones. Unclean animals can’t be eaten, though they may be used otherwise. Horses, donkeys, and camels, for example, have undivided hooves (Lev 11:3) and so can’t be eaten. That didn’t stop Israelites from using them as pack animals (Gen 12:16; 1 Kgs 10:29). The live animals don’t transmit uncleanness, but their corpses do (Lev 11:8, 24-28). Leviticus 11 gives principles for distinguishing clean animals (Lev 11:3, 20, 27) and then lists ambiguous cases for land animals (Lev 11:4-8) and insects (Lev 11:21-23). Leviticus simply gives a principle for water animals (Lev 11:9-12) and only lists of unclean birds (Lev 11:13-19) and ground animals (Lev 11:29-30). The rest of the chapter gives instructions on how to purify such uncleanness (Lev 11:31-40) and warns Israelites to avoid it (Lev 11:41-45).

Offering animals (oxen, sheep, goats, pigeons) form a subset of clean domestic animals. So Leviticus distinguishes three categories of animals: those that may be offered on the altar, those that may be eaten, and those that may not be eaten. Interpreters have long debated why Leviticus teaches these principles and bans these animals. Most likely, the lists reflect traditional ideas about edible and inedible meat. The principles in Leviticus 11:3, 21, and 27 generalize from two of the lists based on how the animal moves in its environment (land and water) and whether it preys on other animals. Jewish interpreters have often emphasized that food rules require daily obedience to God, and so train people in a devout lifestyle. Christian interpreters have often allegorized the principles and lists of animals as representing desirable and undesirable moral qualities in people. This difference comes from the fact that many Jews continue to follow these food (kosher) rules as interpreted in the Talmud. Most Christians, on the other hand, believe the NT allows them to set aside these rules for how they eat (Acts 10; 15; 1 Cor 8).

Conclusion concerning animals and diet

<sup>46</sup>This concludes the Instruction concerning animals, birds, all creatures that live in water, and all the creatures that swarm on the earth, <sup>47</sup>in order to distinguish between the unclean and the clean and between creatures that can be eaten and those that cannot.

Purification after childbirth

12 The LORD said to Moses: <sup>2</sup>Say to the Israelites: If a woman conceives a child and gives birth to a son, she will be unclean for seven days—just as she is during her menstrual period. <sup>3</sup>On the eighth day, the flesh of the boy’s foreskin must be circumcised.

11:41-42 swarm on the earth . . . moves on its belly; animals that move close to or under the ground (cf. Gen 1:21, 25). four or more feet: (cf. Lev 11:20) among the “swarmers,” not including large land animals.

11:44-45 I am the LORD your God: This refrain echoes through the second half of Leviticus (e.g., Lev 18:5, 6, 21, 30; 19:10). It reminds readers of their covenant relationship with God that obliges them to keep these commandments. holy means “set apart” be holy, because I am holy also appears frequently in the latter part of the book (e.g., Lev 19:2; 20:7; 21:15). The refrain announces a fundamental principle for ethics and religious practice: Imitate God’s holiness.

12:1-8 Ancient Israelites believed that mothers must purify themselves after giving birth. The Bible views childbirth as a very positive event that is endorsed by God (Gen 1:28; 21:1). But it causes genital bleeding and so makes the mother unclean, just as . . . during her menstrual period (see sidebar, “Clean/Unclean” at Lev 13). Many traditional cultures, including some Western ones through the 19th century, encouraged new mothers to seclude themselves for a period of time. Here mothers are unclean for one or two weeks, followed by a longer period for purifying them from the blood flow, for a total of 40 days after giving birth to a boy and 80 days after a girl. Leviticus does not explain the difference, and interpreters have not been able to agree on the reason. One factor was probably the lower status of females in traditional cultures. But the offerings required to complete the purification (12:6) are the same for “a son or a daughter,” which also shows that women as well as men could bring offerings to the sanctuary.

12:3 On the eighth day . . . must be circumcised: cut off the loose skin on the boy’s penis as a sign of God’s covenant with Israel (see Gen 17:10-14).

<sup>4</sup>For thirty-three days the mother will be in a state of blood purification. She must not touch anything holy or enter the sacred area until her time of purification is completed. <sup>5</sup>But if the woman gives birth to a daughter, she will be unclean for two weeks—just as she is during her menstrual period—and will be in a state of blood purification<sup>a</sup> for sixty-six days.

<sup>6</sup>When the time of purification is complete, whether for a son or a daughter, the mother must bring a one-year-old lamb as an entirely burned offering and a pigeon or turtledove as a purification offering to the priest at the meeting tent's entrance. <sup>7</sup>The priest will present it before the LORD and make reconciliation for her. She will then be cleansed from her blood flow. This is the instruction for any woman who has a child, male or female. <sup>8</sup>But if the mother cannot afford a sheep, she can bring two turtledoves or two pigeons—one for the entirely burned offering and the other for the purification offering. The priest will then make reconciliation for her, and she will be clean.

Diagnosis of skin disease

13 The LORD said to Moses and Aaron, <sup>2</sup>When a person has a swelling, a scab, or a shiny spot on their skin, and it becomes an infection of skin disease<sup>7</sup> on their skin, they will be brought to the priests, either to Aaron or one of his sons. <sup>3</sup>The priest will examine the infection on the skin. If hair in the infected area has turned white and the infection appears to be deeper than the skin, then it is an infection of skin disease. Once the priest sees this, he will declare the person unclean. <sup>4</sup>But if the shiny spot on the skin is white and does not appear to be deeper than the skin and the hair has not turned white, the priest will quarantine the infected person for seven days. <sup>5</sup>On the seventh day the priest will again examine the infection. If he sees that it has remained the same—the infection has not spread on the skin—the priest will quarantine the person for seven more days. <sup>6</sup>On the seventh day the priest will examine it again. If the infection has faded and has not spread over the skin, the priest will declare the person clean; it is just a rash. The person must wash their clothes, then they will be clean again. <sup>7</sup>But if the rash continues to spread over the skin after they appeared before the priest for purification, they must again show themselves to the priest. <sup>8</sup>If the priest sees that the rash has spread over the skin, the priest will declare the person unclean; it is a case of skin disease.

<sup>9</sup>Whenever someone has an infection of skin disease, they will be brought to the priest. <sup>10</sup>If the priest sees that there is a white swelling on the skin, it has turned the hair white, and there is a patch of raw flesh in the swelling, <sup>11</sup>then it is a case of chronic skin disease on their skin. The priest will declare the person unclean. The priest will not quarantine such persons, because they are already unclean. <sup>12</sup>But if the skin disease continues to break out so that the disease covers all of the infected person's skin from head to toe, as far as the priest can tell—<sup>13</sup>then the priest will make an examination. If the skin disease has covered the person's whole body, the priest will declare the infected person clean. The person has turned entirely white; he is clean. <sup>14</sup>But as soon as raw flesh appears in the swelling, they will be unclean. <sup>15</sup>When the priest sees the raw flesh, he will declare the person unclean. Raw flesh is unclean; it is a case of skin disease. <sup>16</sup>But if the raw flesh turns white again, the person will go back to the priest. <sup>17</sup>The priest will examine it. If the infection has turned white, the priest will declare the infected person clean; at that point, the person is clean.

12:6–7 Perhaps the entirely burned offering shows thankfulness for the safe birth. The purification offering (see Lev 4) here leads to reconciliation not for sins but to be cleansed (see sidebar, “Clean/Unclean” at Lev 13). Instruction: See note on Leviticus 6:9.

12:8 turtledoves or ... pigeons: See Leviticus 5:7-10.

13:1–14:57 These rules for purification treat unclean skin, houses, and clothes as similar to each other. Maybe Israelites thought that some skin diseases and mildew on walls or cloth looked like flesh that was decomposing (Lev 7:18; Num 12:10-12; see sidebar, “Clean/Unclean” at Lev 13).

13:2 skin disease: not “leprosy” (Hansen’s disease), more likely something like psoriasis. See translation note y.

13:3 The priest will examine: not to cure—priests were not doctors—but to declare clean or unclean (Lev 10:10).

13:4 quarantine: Priests must take time to make sure of ambiguous cases, because uncleanness due to skin disease is contagious and leads to banishment from the camp (Lev 13:46).

13:13 turned entirely white; he is clean: It is not the white scales, but rather the “raw flesh” (Lev 13:10,16) that makes someone unclean.

Clean/Unclean Humans have always separated clean from unclean, pure from polluted. But different cultures apply these labels differently. Leviticus 11–15 and many other verses in Leviticus show how ancient Israelites applied this distinction. They considered things unclean if they were dead or reminded them of death. Dead bodies of humans or animals made anyone unclean who touched them (Lev 11:8). Growths on skin, walls, and clothes that looked like decomposing meat made people, houses, and clothes unclean (Lev 13:3, 49; 14:37). Like many other ancient peoples, they probably thought that semen and menstrual blood were vital fluids. Losing them seemed death-like and so made people unclean (Lev 15:2, 19).

Being unclean kept Israelites from entering the sanctuary. Therefore they were to be careful to avoid uncleanness when possible. When it wasn't possible, they were required to clean themselves afterward, so they could worship God. Cleaning minor uncleanness required only washing and waiting until evening (Lev 11:39-40; 15:16). Cleansing major uncleanness required purification offerings and other rituals (Lev 12:6-8; 14:1-32; 15:13-15, 28-30). Purification offerings also provided forgiveness from sins (Lev 4:20), but Leviticus does not usually regard uncleanness as sinful. It was often necessary to become unclean, for example, to bury bodies (Lev 10:4-5). Sometimes, people became unclean because of very happy occasions, such as giving birth to children (Lev 12:1-8). So "unclean" did not mean "bad" or "immoral." It simply meant that people should be careful that they not make other people unclean and not bring uncleanness into the sanctuary.

<sup>24</sup>Whenever there is a burn on someone's skin, and the raw patch of the burn becomes a reddish-white or white shiny spot, <sup>25</sup>the priest will examine it. If the hair has turned white in the shiny spot, and it appears to be deeper than the skin, it is a case of skin disease that has broken out in the burn. The priest will declare the person unclean; it is an infection of skin disease. <sup>26</sup>But if the priest examines it, and there is no white hair in the shiny spot, it is not lower than the skin, and it is faded, the priest will quarantine the person seven days. <sup>27</sup>On the seventh day the priest will again examine it. If it has continued to spread over the skin, the priest will declare the person unclean; it is an infection of skin disease. <sup>28</sup>But if the shiny spot remains where it was, has not spread over the skin, and is faded, it is just swelling from the burn. The priest will declare the person clean, because it is just the scar from the burn.

<sup>29</sup>Whenever a man or woman has an infection, whether on the head or in the beard, <sup>30</sup>the priest will examine it. If it appears to be deeper than the skin, and there is thin yellow hair in it, the priest will declare the person unclean; it is a case of scabies—a skin disease of the head or beard. <sup>31</sup>When the priest examines the scabies infection, if it does not appear to be deeper than the skin, but there is no black hair in it, the priest will quarantine the person with the scabies infection for seven days. <sup>32</sup>On the seventh day the priest will examine the infection again. If the scabies has not spread, there is no yellow hair in it, and it does not appear to be deeper than the skin, <sup>33</sup>the person must shave the area, without shaving the scabies. The priest will then quarantine that person another seven days. <sup>34</sup>On the seventh day the priest will again examine the scabies. If it has not spread over the skin and does not appear to be deeper than the skin, the priest will declare the person clean. They must wash their clothes; then they will be clean again. <sup>35</sup>But if the scabies continues to spread over the skin after the person's purification, <sup>36</sup>the priest must examine it again. If the scabies has spread over the skin at all, the priest does not need to look for the yellow hair; the person is unclean. <sup>37</sup>But if the priest sees that the scabies has remained the same, and black hair has grown in it, the scabies has healed. The person is clean, and the priest will declare them to be so.

13:18-28 Skin disease may result from boils (13:18-23) or burns (13:24-28). The concern is infection, not the scar.

13:29-37 scabies in hair or beard may require shaving (13:33) to tell whether it is skin disease or not.

<sup>40</sup>If someone loses their hair, they are bald, but they are clean. <sup>41</sup>If the hair is lost at the sides of the forehead, the person has a receding hairline, but they are clean. <sup>42</sup>But whenever there is a reddish-white infection in the bald spot or in the receding hairline, it is a case of skin disease breaking out there. <sup>43</sup>The priest must examine it. If the swelling of the infection is reddish white in the bald spot or receding hairline and resembles skin disease on the body, <sup>44</sup>the person is afflicted with skin disease; they are unclean. The priest must declare them unclean on account of the head infection.

<sup>45</sup>Anyone with an infection of skin disease must wear torn clothes, dishevel their hair, cover their upper lip, and shout out, "Unclean! Unclean!" <sup>46</sup>They will be unclean as long as they are infected. They are unclean. They must live alone outside the camp.

Articles with skin disease

<sup>47</sup>Whenever there is an infection of skin disease on clothing—on wool or linen clothing, <sup>48</sup>in the weaving of the linen or wool, or on a skin or skin item—<sup>49</sup>and the infection is greenish or reddish on the clothing, the weaving, or the skin or skin item, it is an infection of skin disease. It must be shown to the priest. <sup>50</sup>The priest will examine the infection and quarantine the infected item seven days. <sup>51</sup>On the seventh day he will examine the infection again. If the infection has spread in the clothing, the weaving, or the skin, whatever it is used for, the infection is a case of infectious skin disease; the item is unclean. <sup>52</sup>The priest will burn the clothing, the weaving of the wool or linen, or whatever skin item in which the infection was found, because it is an infectious skin disease; it must be burned with fire.

<sup>53</sup>But if the priest sees that the infection has not spread in the clothing, the weaving, or on any skin item, <sup>54</sup>the priest will order that the infected piece be washed, and he will quarantine it for another seven days. <sup>55</sup>After it has been washed, if the priest sees that the infection has not changed its appearance, even though the infection has not spread, it is unclean. You must burn it with fire. It is a fungus,<sup>a</sup> whether it is on the inside or outside.

<sup>56</sup>But if, after it is washed, the priest sees that the infection has faded, he will tear the infected part out of the cloth, the weaving, or the skin. <sup>57</sup>If it appears again in the cloth, the weaving, or any item of skin, it is starting to break out. You must burn the infected item with fire. <sup>58</sup>But if the infection disappears from the cloth, the weaving, or any item of skin that you washed, it must be washed again. Then it will be clean.

<sup>59</sup>This concludes the Instruction about the infection of skin disease in a woolen or linen cloth, weaving, or any skin item, in order to declare whether it is clean or unclean.

Persons with skin disease

14 The LORD said to Moses, <sup>2</sup>This will be the Instruction for anyone with skin disease<sup>a</sup> at the time of purification: When it has been reported to the priest, <sup>3</sup>he will go outside the camp. If the priest sees that the person afflicted with skin disease has been healed of the infection, <sup>4</sup>the priest will order that two birds—wild<sup>b</sup> and clean—and cedarwood, crimson yarn, and hyssop be brought for the person who needs purification. <sup>5</sup>The priest will order that one bird be slaughtered over fresh water in a pottery jar. <sup>6</sup>He will then take the other

13:45-46 Because uncleanness is contagious, people with skin disease must warn others to stay away by how they look and what they say. They also have to live outside the camp. So a diagnosis of skin disease had terrible effects on people's lives (see Num 12:10-15; 2 Kgs 5; 2 Chron 26:16-23; Luke 17:11-19).

13:47-59 Leviticus uses the same Hebrew word (translated skin disease) for some kinds of mildew in cloth and on the walls of buildings (Lev 14:35-53), maybe because mildew can look like rotting meat (see sidebar, "Clean/Unclean" at Lev 13). The priests decide whether they are unclean or clean in the same way that they decide whether people have skin disease or not.

13:48 skin or skin item: leather.

13:55 burn: Cloth or houses (Lev 14:45) with persistent skin disease must be destroyed. fungus: The Hebrew word appears only here. Its meaning is unknown (see translation note z).

13:59; 14:2 Instruction: See note on Leviticus 6:9.

14:3-9 Unlike offerings that take place at the altar in the sanctuary, this unusual ritual takes place outside the camp (Lev 14:2; cf. Num 19) because people must become clean before they can enter the sanctuary. Leviticus does not explain why the priest must use cedarwood, crimson yarn, hyssop, and fresh water. The smell of cedar may replace holy incense that cannot be used outside the sanctuary wild bird, along with the cedarwood, crimson yarn, and hyssop, and will dip all of this into the blood of the bird that was slaughtered over the fresh water. <sup>7</sup>He will sprinkle the person who needs purification from skin disease seven times and declare that they are clean. Then the priest will release the wild bird into the countryside. <sup>8</sup>The person who needs purification will then wash their clothes, shave off all of their hair, and bathe in water; at that point, they will be clean. After that, they can return to the camp, but they must live outside their tent for seven days. <sup>9</sup>On the seventh day, the person must shave off all their hair again: head, beard, and eyebrows—everything. They must wash their clothes and bathe in water; then they will be clean again.

<sup>12</sup>The priest will take one of the male sheep and present it as a compensation offering, along with the log of oil, and will lift them as an uplifted offering before the LORD. <sup>13</sup>The priest will slaughter the sheep at the same place where the purification offering and the entirely burned offering are slaughtered: in the holy area. The compensation offering, like the purification offering, belongs to the priest; it is most holy. <sup>14</sup>The priest will take some of the blood from the compensation offering and will put it on the right earlobe, the right thumb, and the right big toe of the person needing purification. <sup>15</sup>Then the priest will take some of the log of oil and pour it into his left palm. <sup>16</sup>The priest will then dip his right finger into the oil and sprinkle some of it with his finger seven times before the LORD. <sup>17</sup>Then the priest will put some of the oil that is left in his hand on the right earlobe, the right thumb, and the right big toe of the person needing purification—this oil will be placed on top of the blood of the compensation offering. <sup>18</sup>The priest will put whatever is left of the oil in his hand on the head of the person needing purification. In this way, the priest will make reconciliation for the person before the LORD.

<sup>19</sup>The priest will then perform the purification offering and make reconciliation for the person needing purification from their uncleanness. After that, the entirely burned offering will be slaughtered. <sup>20</sup>The priest will offer up the entirely burned offering and the grain offering on the altar. In this way, the priest will make reconciliation for the person, and they will be clean again.

times before the LORD using his right finger. <sup>28</sup>The priest will then put some of the oil that is in his hand on the right earlobe, the right thumb, and the right big toe of the person needing purification—on top of the same places as the blood of the compensation offering. <sup>29</sup>The priest will put whatever is left of the oil in his hand on the head of the person needing purification, to make reconciliation for them before the LORD.

<sup>32</sup>This is the Instruction concerning those who have an infection of skin disease but who cannot afford the normal means of purification.

Houses with skin disease

<sup>33</sup>The LORD said to Moses and Aaron: <sup>34</sup>When you enter the land of Canaan, which I am giving to you as a possession, and I put an infection of skin disease on a house in the land you possess, <sup>35</sup>the homeowner must come and tell the priest, “I think some sort of infection is in my house.” <sup>36</sup>The priest will order that the house be emptied before he comes to examine it so that nothing else in the house will become unclean. After that, the priest will come to examine the house. <sup>37</sup>If he examines the infection, and the infection in the walls of the house consists of greenish or reddish depressions, which appear to be deeper than the surface of the wall, <sup>38</sup>the priest will exit the house, go to the front door, and quarantine the house for seven days. <sup>39</sup>On the seventh day, the priest will return. If he finds that the infection has spread over the walls of the house, <sup>40</sup>the priest will order the stones in which the infection is found to be pulled out and discarded outside the city in an unclean area. <sup>41</sup>The inside of the house will then be scraped on all sides, and the plaster that has been scraped off must be dumped outside the city in an unclean area. <sup>42</sup>Then different stones will be used in place of the first ones, and new coating will be used to replaster the house.

<sup>43</sup>If the infection breaks out again in the house after the stones have been pulled out and the house scraped and replastered, <sup>44</sup>the priest will return. If he finds that the infection has spread throughout the house, it is a case of infectious skin disease in the house; the house is unclean. <sup>45</sup>The house must be destroyed—its stones, wood, and all the plaster in the house. All of it must be taken outside the city to an unclean area. <sup>46</sup>Anyone who enters the house during the entire period when it is quarantined will be unclean until evening. <sup>47</sup>Anyone who lies down in the house must wash their clothes. Anyone who eats in the house must also wash their clothes.

<sup>48</sup>But if the priest arrives and finds that the infection has not spread after the house was replastered, the priest will declare the house clean because the infection has been healed. <sup>49</sup>To cleanse the house, the priest will take two birds, cedarwood, crimson yarn, and hyssop. <sup>50</sup>He will slaughter one bird over fresh water in a pottery jar. <sup>51</sup>He will then take the cedarwood, hyssop, and crimson yarn, along with the wild<sup>f</sup> bird, and will dip all of this into the fresh water and into the blood of the bird that was slaughtered. He will then sprinkle the house seven times. <sup>52</sup>In this way, the priest will cleanse the house with the blood of the bird, the fresh water, the wild bird, the cedarwood, the hyssop, and the crimson yarn. <sup>53</sup>Then he will release the wild bird outside the city into the countryside. In this way, he will make reconciliation for the house, and it will be clean.

Conclusion concerning skin disease

the compensation offering, which must always be a male sheep (Lev 14:21; 5:15).

14:32, 54, 57 Instruction: See note on Leviticus 6:9.

14:33-53 infection of skin disease: See note on Leviticus 13:47-59. Like infected cloth, infected buildings must be destroyed (14:45). If the infection does not spread, the house can be purified with a ritual (14:49-53) like that for people who recover from skin disease (Lev 14:2-9).

14:34 I put an infection of skin disease on a house presumes that God is behind every unexplained event, just as some people today call a natural disaster “an act of God.” Leviticus does not teach that uncleanness usually comes

Male genital emissions

15The LORD said to Moses and Aaron: <sup>2</sup>Speak to the Israelites and say to them: Whenever a man has a genital emission, that emission is unclean. <sup>3</sup>This is the nature of the uncleanness brought about by his emission: regardless of whether his genital organ allows his emission to flow or blocks the flow, it is unclean to him. <sup>4</sup>Any bed on which someone with an emission lies will be unclean, and any object on which that person sits will be unclean. <sup>5</sup>Anyone who touches such a bed must wash their clothes, bathe in water, and will be unclean until evening. <sup>6</sup>Anyone who sits on something that the one with the emission also sat on must wash their clothes, bathe in water, and will be unclean until evening. <sup>7</sup>Anyone who touches the body of the one with the emission must wash their clothes, bathe in water, and will be unclean until evening. <sup>8</sup>If the one with the emission spits on a clean person, the clean person must wash their clothes, bathe in water, and will be unclean until evening. <sup>9</sup>Every saddle on which the person with the emission rode will be unclean. <sup>10</sup>Anyone who touches anything that has been under such a person will be unclean until evening. Anyone who carries such items must wash their clothes, bathe in water, and will be unclean until evening. <sup>11</sup>If the one with the emission touches someone without first rinsing his hands with water, that person must wash their clothes, bathe in water, and will be unclean until evening. <sup>12</sup>Any pottery jar that the one with the emission touches must be broken, and any wooden tool must be rinsed with water.

<sup>13</sup>When the man with the emission is cleansed of his emission, he will count off seven days for his purification. He must wash his clothes and bathe his body in running water; then he will be clean again. <sup>14</sup>On the eighth day he will take two turtledoves or two pigeons and come before the LORD to the meeting tent's entrance and give these to the priest. <sup>15</sup>The priest will offer them, one as a purification offering and the other as an entirely burned offering. In this way, the priest will make reconciliation for him before the LORD because of his emission.

<sup>16</sup>If it is an emission of semen, the man must bathe his whole body in water and will be unclean until evening. <sup>17</sup>Any clothing or skin on which there is an emission of semen must be washed in water and will be unclean until evening. <sup>18</sup>If a man lies with a woman and has an emission of semen, both of them must bathe in water and will be unclean until evening.

Female genital emissions

<sup>19</sup>Whenever a woman has a discharge of blood that is her normal bodily discharge, she will be unclean due to her menstruation for seven days. Anyone who touches her will be unclean until evening. <sup>20</sup>Anything on which she lies or sits during her menstruation will be unclean. <sup>21</sup>Anyone who touches her bed must wash their clothes, bathe in water, and will be unclean until evening. <sup>22</sup>Anyone who touches anything on which she has sat must wash their clothes, bathe in water, and will be unclean until evening. <sup>23</sup>Whenever anyone touches something—whether it was on the bed or where she has been sitting—they will be unclean until evening. <sup>24</sup>If a man has sexual intercourse with her and her menstruation gets on him, he will be unclean for seven days. Any bed he lies on will be unclean.

<sup>25</sup>Whenever a woman has a bloody discharge for a long time, which is not during her menstrual period, or whenever she has a discharge beyond her menstrual period, the duration of her unclean discharge will be like the period of her menstruation; she will be unclean.

from God punishing people for sins (see sidebar, "Clean/Unclean" at Lev 13).

15:1-33 Both normal (15:16-24) and abnormal (15:3-15, 25-30) genital emissions of blood and semen make people unclean and contagious. Many interpreters think Israelites regarded genital fluids as vital to life, so their loss reminded them of death (see sidebar, "Clean/Unclean" at Lev 13). That is not as obvious in the case of genital emissions as in the cases of unclean infections of skin and mildew (Lev 13-14) and unclean animal corpses (Lev 11).

15:2 man... genital emission: of semen (Lev 15:16) or of fluids due to infection. Normal urine and feces do not make one ritually unclean.

15:3 flow or blocks the flow: probably due to sexually transmitted diseases or prostate problems.

15:4-12 Israelites considered uncleanness due to genital emissions to be highly contagious. Therefore, people must be careful not to infect others, because they might unknowingly infect the sanctuary (Lev 15:31).

15:13-15 Men healed of genital emissions must present bird offerings (see Lev 5:7-10).

15:16-18 Normal emission of semen, whether during sex (15:18) or not, makes someone unclean. This is a minor uncleanness that requires only washing and waiting until evening to be clean.

15:19-24 Normal menstruation makes women unclean for seven days and is contagious (Lev 18:19; 20:18). For why it is unclean, see sidebar, "Clean/Unclean" at Leviticus 13. This is also a minor uncleanness that requires only washing and letting time pass before being clean.

15:25-30 Women bleeding genitally for a long time or irregularly are unclean and contagious as long as it lasts.

They must wash their clothes, bathe in water, and will be unclean until evening.

<sup>28</sup>When the woman is cleansed of her discharge, she will count off seven days; after that, she will be clean again. <sup>29</sup>On the eighth day she will take two turtledoves or two pigeons and bring them to the priest at the meeting tent's entrance. <sup>30</sup>The priest will perform a purification offering with one and an entirely burned offering with the other. In this way, the priest will make reconciliation for her before the LORD because of her unclean discharge.

The Day of Reconciliation

16 After the death of Aaron's two sons, which happened when they approached the LORD and died, the LORD spoke to Moses: <sup>2</sup>Tell your brother Aaron that he cannot come whenever he wants into the holy area inside the inner curtain, to the front of the cover<sup>h</sup> that is on the chest, or else he will die, because I am present<sup>i</sup> in the cloud above the cover. <sup>3</sup>No, but Aaron must enter the holy area as follows: with a bull from the herd as a purification offering and a ram as an entirely burned offering. <sup>4</sup>Aaron must dress in a holy linen tunic and wear linen undergarments on his body. He must tie a linen sash around himself and wrap a linen turban around his head. These are holy clothes—Aaron will first bathe his body in water and then put them on. <sup>5</sup>He will take from the Israelite community two male goats for a purification offering and one ram for an entirely burned offering.

<sup>6</sup>Aaron will offer the bull as a purification offering to make reconciliation for himself and his household. <sup>7</sup>He will take the two male goats and place them before the LORD at the meeting tent's entrance. <sup>8</sup>Aaron will cast lots over the two goats: one lot labeled "the LORD's" and the other lot labeled "Azazel's."<sup>j</sup> <sup>9</sup>Aaron will present the goat selected by the LORD's lot and perform a purification offering with it. <sup>10</sup>But the goat selected by Azazel's lot will be left standing alive before the LORD in order to make reconciliation upon it<sup>k</sup> by sending it away into the wilderness to Azazel.

<sup>11</sup>Aaron will offer the bull for his purification offering to make reconciliation for himself and his household. He will slaughter the bull for his purification offering. <sup>12</sup>Then he will take an incense pan full of burning coals from the altar, from before the LORD, and two handfuls of finely ground perfumed incense and bring them inside the inner curtain. <sup>13</sup>He will put the

Once healed, they must present bird offerings like men healed of abnormal emissions (Lev 15:13-15; 5:7-10).

15:31 by making my dwelling unclean states the reason for the concern about uncleanness from genital emissions: the belief that God's holy sanctuary must not be infected by uncleanness (Lev 11:43-45). dwelling: See translation note g.

16:1-34 Instructions for the Day of Reconciliation climax and conclude the rules for rituals in Leviticus 1-16, just as the Day of Reconciliation climaxed Israel's annual religious calendar (Lev 23). The Day of Reconciliation, Hebrew Yom Kippur, is still the holiest day of the Jewish year, though the offerings described here have not been presented since the Romans destroyed the Jerusalem temple in 70 CE.

16:1 After the death of Aaron's two sons: See Leviticus 10:1-2. That story shows the kinds of sins and impurity from corpses that Yom Kippur needs to reconcile (Lev 16:16).

16:2 the holy area inside the inner curtain is often called "the Holy of Holies." Only on the Day of Reconciliation, once a year (Lev 16:29-31), may the high priest enter this inner room of the sanctuary where a cloud (Exod 40:35) shows God's presence. chest: See Exodus 25:10-22. cover: The Hebrew name of the chest's cover is related to the Hebrew verb meaning "reconcile, atone" (see translation note h).

16:3, 5 purification offering: See Leviticus 4. entirely burned offering: See Leviticus 1.

16:4 The high priest wears plain linen clothing, rather than his elaborate vestments (Lev 16:24; 6:10; Exod 28).

16:6 reconciliation: See sidebar, "Reconciliation/Atone-ment" at Leviticus 16.

16:8, 10 The word Azazel appears only in this chapter. It has been translated "scapegoat," as "a rocky place," or as the name of a demon. If a name, then interpreters have no good explanation for why it gets a legitimate offering, which otherwise should go to the Lord alone.

16:12 incense: See Exodus 30:1-10, 22-38.

Reconciliation/Atonement The Hebrew word kipper (“reconcile, reconciliation”) is often translated “atone, atonement.” Leviticus uses this word for the actions of priests who present offerings on behalf of people. Reconciliation through purification and compensation offerings is necessary for forgiving sins (Lev 4:20, 26, 31) and purifying uncleanness (Lev 12:8; 14:20; 16:16). Israel’s worship climaxes once every year in the offerings of the Day of Reconciliation, which reconcile all of the people’s remaining sins and uncleanness (Lev 16:16, 21–22).

Leviticus’ use of the word kipper (“reconcile, atone”) is its only indication of how the offerings work (e.g., in Lev 1:4; 17:11). Interpreters have therefore used atonement and reconciliation to explain the nature of Israel’s offerings and the nature of sacrifice in general. Christian theologians use atonement and reconciliation to explain Jesus’ death as a sacrifice for the forgiveness of sins (Rom 3:25; Heb 2:17; 1 John 2:9; 4:10). Leviticus provides the language and images for such theories, but does not itself explain how reconciliation/atonement works.

incense on the fire before the LORD so that the cloud of incense conceals the cover that is on top of the covenant document, or else he will die. <sup>14</sup>He will take some of the bull’s blood and sprinkle it with his finger on the cover from the east side. He will then sprinkle some of the blood with his finger seven times in front of the cover. <sup>15</sup>Then he will slaughter the goat for the people’s purification offering, bring the blood inside the inner curtain, and do with it as he did with the bull’s blood: he will sprinkle it on the cover and in front of the cover. <sup>16</sup>In this way, he will make reconciliation for the inner holy area because of the pollution of the Israelites and because of their rebellious sins, as well as for all their other sins.

Aaron must do the same for the meeting tent, which is with them among their pollution. <sup>17</sup>No one can be in the meeting tent from the time Aaron enters to make reconciliation in the inner holy area until the time he comes out. He will make reconciliation for himself, for his household, and for the whole assembly of Israel.

<sup>18</sup>Aaron will then go to the altar that is before the LORD and make reconciliation for it: He will take some of the bull’s blood and some of the goat’s blood and put it on each of the altar’s horns. <sup>19</sup>He will sprinkle some of the blood on the altar with his finger seven times. In this way, he will purify it and make it holy again from the Israelites’ pollution.

<sup>20</sup>When Aaron has finished reconciling the inner holy area, the rest of the meeting tent, and the altar, he will bring forward the live goat. <sup>21</sup>Aaron will press both his hands on its head and confess over it all the Israelites’ offenses and all their rebellious sins, as well as all their other sins, putting all these on the goat’s head. Then he will send it away into the wilderness with someone designated for the job. <sup>22</sup>The goat will carry on itself all their offenses to a desolate region, then the goat will be released into the wild.

<sup>23</sup>After this, Aaron will enter the meeting tent, take off the linen clothes he was wearing when he entered the inner holy area, and will leave them there. <sup>24</sup>He will bathe his body in water in a holy place and dress in his priestly clothing. Then he will go out and perform the entirely burned offerings for himself and for the people. In this way, he will make reconciliation for himself and for the people. <sup>25</sup>He will completely burn the fat of the purification offering on the altar. <sup>26</sup>The one who set the goat free for Azazel must wash their clothes and bathe their body in water; after that they can return to the camp. <sup>27</sup>The bull and the goat for the purification offerings, whose blood was brought in to make reconciliation in the inner holy area, will be taken outside the camp. Their hides, flesh, and dung will be burned with fire. <sup>28</sup>The person who burns them must wash their clothes and bathe their body in water; after that, they can return to the camp.

Conclusion concerning the Day of Reconciliation

<sup>32</sup>The priest who is anointed and ordained to serve as priest after his father will perform the reconciliation, wearing the holy linen clothes. <sup>33</sup>He will reconcile the holiest part of the sanctuary and will do the same for the meeting tent and the altar. He will make reconciliation for the priests and for all the people of the assembly. <sup>34</sup>This will be a permanent rule for you, in order to make reconciliation for the Israelites from all their sins once a year.

It was done just as the LORD commanded Moses.

Sacrifice at the sanctuary

17 The LORD said to Moses, <sup>2</sup>Say to Aaron, to his sons, and to all the Israelites: This is what the LORD has commanded: <sup>3</sup>Anyone from the house of Israel who slaughters an ox, sheep, or goat inside or outside the camp <sup>4</sup>but does not bring it to the meeting tent's entrance to present it as an offering to the LORD in front of the LORD's dwelling<sup>a</sup> will be considered guilty of bloodshed; they have spilled blood. They will be cut off from their people. <sup>5</sup>This will make the Israelites bring the communal sacrifices, which they are sacrificing in the countryside, to the LORD, to the priest at the meeting tent's entrance, and sacrifice them as communal sacrifices of well-being to the LORD. <sup>6</sup>The priest will toss the blood against the LORD's altar at the meeting tent's entrance and burn the fat completely as a soothing smell to the LORD. <sup>7</sup>The Israelites must no longer sacrifice their communal sacrifices to the goat demons that they follow so faithlessly. <sup>8</sup>This will be a permanent rule for them throughout their future generations. <sup>9</sup>You will also say to them: Anyone from Israel's house or from the immigrants who live with you who offers up an entirely burned offering or communal sacrifice <sup>9</sup>without bringing it to the meeting tent's entrance in order to offer it to the LORD will be cut off from their people.

Consuming blood forbidden

<sup>10</sup>I will oppose the person who consumes blood—whether they are from Israel's house or from the immigrants who live with you—and I will cut them off from their people. <sup>11</sup>A creature's life is in the blood. I have provided you the blood to make reconciliation for your lives on the altar, because the blood reconciles by means of the life.<sup>b</sup> <sup>12</sup>That is why I have told the Israelites: No one among you can consume blood, nor can the immigrant who lives with you consume blood.

autumn. The Festival of Booths follows five days later (Lev 23:33-36).

16:31 The Day of Reconciliation is a special day of rest, a Sabbath (Lev 23:26-32).

16:32 The priest who is anointed: the high priest (Lev 4:3; 8:12).

17:1-16 These rules for food and worship emphasize the place of offerings within the lives of Israelite people. They mark a change of emphasis from the first part of Leviticus, which focuses mostly on the actions of priests. The later chapters focus mostly on the actions of the people or of the priests outside the sanctuary. As a result, many interpreters think that most of Leviticus 1-16 comes from the "Priestly Code" or P source, while Leviticus 17-27 come from the "Holiness Code" or H source.

17:3-8 Before eating any domestic animal, it must first be presented as a communal well-being sacrifice at the sanctuary (Lev 3). Deuteronomy 12:15-25 allows secular slaughter of domestic animals, just like wild game (Lev 17:13). Here, the concern is to stop offerings in the countryside to goat demons (17:7: When this Hebrew word appears without any other description, it refers to wild goats or spirits, not to domesticated goats that may be sacrificed to the Lord).

17:4 bloodshed: murder. cut off: See notes on Leviticus 7:20-21 and 20:3.

17:6-7 toss the blood... burn the fat: See Leviticus 3:2-5. The worshippers and priests eat the meat of communal sacrifices (Lev 7:11-34).

17:8 the immigrants: This rule applies to anyone living in Israel's communities.

17:10-14 This most basic food law bans consuming blood (Gen 9:4; Lev 3:17; Deut 12:16; see sidebar, "Meat" at Lev 11). Only here is that rule explained and related to the blood of offerings.

17:11 A creature's life is in the blood: Like many ancient cultures, Israelites regarded blood as a vital force, the essence of life. That means priests can use it to reconcile for a worshipper's life on the altar (see sidebar, "Reconciliation/Atonement" at Lev 16). Many interpreters think this verse means that blood represents life or substitutes for life, but Leviticus does not make that clear (see note on Lev 1:4).

<sup>13</sup>Anyone who hunts any animal or bird that can be eaten—whether the hunter is an Israelite or an immigrant who lives with you—must drain its blood out and cover it with dirt. <sup>14</sup>Again: for every creature's life, its blood is its life. That is why I have told the Israelites: You must not consume any creature's blood because every creature's life is its blood. Anyone who consumes it will be cut off.

Eating meat

<sup>15</sup>Anyone, whether citizen or immigrant, who eats an animal that has died naturally or that was killed by another animal, must wash their clothes, bathe in water, and will be unclean until evening. At that time, they will be clean again. <sup>16</sup>If they do not wash or bathe their body, they will be liable to punishment.

Sexual conduct

18 The LORD said to Moses, <sup>2</sup>Speak to the Israelites and say to them: I am the LORD your God. <sup>3</sup>You must not do things like they are done in the land of Egypt, where you used to live. And you must not do things like they are done in the land of Canaan, where I am bringing you. You must not follow the practices<sup>q</sup> of those places. <sup>4</sup>No, my regulations and my rules are the ones you must keep by following them: I am the LORD your God. <sup>5</sup>You must keep my rules and my regulations; by doing them one will live; I am the LORD.

<sup>6</sup>No one is allowed to approach any blood relative for sexual contact.<sup>r</sup> I am the LORD. <sup>7</sup>You must not uncover your father's nakedness, which is your mother's nakedness. She is your mother; you must not have sexual contact with her. <sup>8</sup>You must not uncover the nakedness of your father's wife; it is your father's nakedness. <sup>9</sup>You must not have sexual contact with your sister—regardless of whether she is your father's daughter or your mother's daughter, whether born into the same household as you or outside it. <sup>10</sup>You must not have sexual contact with your son's daughter or your daughter's daughter, because their nakedness is your own nakedness.<sup>s</sup> <sup>11</sup>You must not have sexual contact with the daughter of your father's wife, who was born into your father's family; she is your sister. <sup>12</sup>You must not have sexual contact with your father's sister; she is your father's blood relative. <sup>13</sup>You must not have sexual contact with your mother's sister because she is your mother's blood relative. <sup>14</sup>You will not uncover the nakedness of your father's brother—that is, you will not approach his wife for sex; she is your aunt. <sup>15</sup>You must not have sexual contact with your daughter-in-law; she is your son's wife. You must not have sexual contact with her. <sup>16</sup>You will not uncover the nakedness of your brother's wife; it is your brother's nakedness.

What is clear is that this rule reserves animal blood exclusively for reconciliation at the altar, so people must not consume it.

17:13 Wild game cannot be offered in the sanctuary, where only domestic animals may be presented. So hunters must drain the blood before they can eat the meat.

17:15 Touching dead corpses makes people unclean (Lev 11:24-40; see sidebar, "Clean/Unclean" at Lev 13). See also Leviticus 7:24.

18:1-20:27 These instructions for holy living consist of two chapters mostly about sex (Lev 18; 20) that surround a chapter of more varied rules and exhortations (Lev 19). They are united by the refrain "I am the LORD (your God)" (24 times, mostly in Lev 19). The reason for these rules appears in 19:2: "You must be holy, because I, the LORD your God, am holy."

18:1-30 Leviticus 18 lists prohibited sexual relationships, while Leviticus 20 lists punishments for many of the same relationships. These rules reflect ancient Israel's concern with preserving traditional boundaries. They feared that irregular sex could disrupt relationships both between groups and within groups (see sidebar, "Sex"). You addresses a male and his relationships with women among his parents' generation (18:7-8, 12-14), his sisters (18:9, 11, 16), his daughters-in-law (18:15), and his granddaughters (18:10). The omission of his daughters puzzles interpreters, though they are probably assumed as blood relatives (18:6). Sex between first cousins is not mentioned here, which may imply it was permitted. This omission has fueled debates about modern incest laws that ban such marriages.

18:3 You must not do things like . . . Egypt . . . Canaan: These rules about sex mark ethnic and religious boundaries that distinguish Israel from other nations (see sidebar, "Sex" at Lev 18).

18:6-20 approach any blood relative: Rules against incest appear in almost every culture, but they define "incest" differently. The following prohibitions include more than just blood relatives (see 18:8, 15-18). uncover nakedness and sexual contact translate the same Hebrew phrase. It is a euphemism for sexual intercourse.

18:8 father's wife: stepmother.

18:9 whether . . . father's daughter or your mother's daughter: half sisters. Full sisters are included since they are daughters of both parents.

18:10 their nakedness is your own nakedness: or "See, it is your nakedness."

18:11 daughter of your father's wife: stepsister.

כַּרְמָא Cultures express their deep values by, among other things, making rules about who may and may not have sex with whom. For contemporary Western cultures, the worst sexual offenses involve adults molesting children or raping other adults. Laws against them express the culture's revulsion at anyone being forced into sex. Punishment for rape also appears among OT laws (Deut 22:25-27; but cf. Exod 22:16; Lev 19:20; Deut 21:10-14; 22:28-29). But like the rules of many other traditional cultures, they pay more attention to incest and intermarriage. Their overriding concern involves proper behavior between groups and within groups so that traditional boundaries don't get confused. OT writers express revulsion at sex between members of groups they think do not belong together: married women and other men (Exod 20:14; Lev 18:20; 20:10; Num 5:11-31; Deut 5:18; 22:22-24); parent-child relationships (Lev 18; 20; Deut 22:30; 27:20, 22-23); human-animal relationships (Lev 18:23; 20:15-16; Deut 27:21); same-sex relationships (Lev 18:22; 20:13); but also couples from different ethnic or religious groups (Gen 34; Exod 34:12-16; Num 25; Deut 7:3-4; Ezra 9-10) and even interbreeding different animal and plant species (Lev 19:19; Deut 22:9-11).

Jewish and Christian debates over sexual ethics therefore usually involve disagreements over which is more important: social tradition (authority), individual freedom (self-determination), or group identity (ethnicity). The psychology of human sexuality has recently influenced these debates too. As a result, political arguments about incest and about homosexuality frequently cite Leviticus 18 and 20. Contemporary nuclear families and pluralistic societies, however, don't resemble ancient Israel's families and society very much. That's why they rarely try to follow all of the laws in Leviticus 18-20 (e.g., Lev 19:9-10, 23-25). Applying these rules to other societies can distort their meaning and can harm vulnerable people rather than protecting them. Sometimes people have even cited Leviticus 20's harsh punishments to justify violent attacks on others (see note on Lev 20:9). Religious debates over sexual ethics must instead start with the fundamental biblical mandate to love others and protect the vulnerable (Lev 19:13-14, 18, 34; for the love commandment's fundamental status for Christians, see Matt 22:34-40; Mark 12:28-34; Luke 10:25-37; Gal 5:14; 1 John 3:22-24; 4:7-21; see sidebar "The Love Commandment" at Lev 19). From there, they can work out rules about who can have sex with whom.

<sup>21</sup>You must not give any of your children† to offer them over to Molech so that you do not defile your God's name: I am the LORD. <sup>22</sup>You must not have sexual intercourse with a man as you would with a woman; it is a detestable practice. <sup>23</sup>You will not have sexual relations with any animal, becoming unclean by it. Nor will a woman present herself before an animal to mate with it; it is a perversion.

18:17-18 Biblical laws do not prohibit marrying several women (polygamy; e.g., 1 Sam 1:2), as long as the wives are not blood relatives with each other (levirate marriage is an exception; Deut 25:5-10).

18:19 menstrual uncleanness is considered contagious; see Leviticus 15:19-24.

18:20-21 unclean... defile: As noted in the sidebar, "Clean/Unclean" at Leviticus 13, Leviticus does not regard most uncleanness as sinful. So people became unclean through normal activities like giving birth or burying the dead. Many interpreters distinguish such "ritual uncleanness" or "ceremonial impurity," from which people can clean themselves from the uncleanness of adultery and child sacrifice, which can contaminate the land and lead to being expelled from it (Lev 18:24-30). Leviticus offers hope for cleansing and forgiveness (Lev 16:16) and also threatens expulsion for some sins and uncleanness.

18:20 wife of your fellow Israelite defines adultery as an offense against a woman's husband. On sex with unmarried women, see Exodus 22:16; Leviticus 19:20; Deuteronomy 21:10-14; 22:28-29.

18:21 give any of your children: refers to child sacrifice or, possibly, a child dedication ritual (see Lev 20:1-5). Many OT texts condemn practices associated with the Canaanite deity Molech (e.g., 2 Kgs 23:10; Jer 32:35). This prohibition probably appears among the prohibited sexual relations because biblical authors blamed both practices on Canaanite influence (Lev 18:3, 24-30).

18:22 with a man as... with a woman: male homosexual acts. Like most other ancient texts, it does not recognize the modern idea that sexual identity may differ among people of the same sex. detestable distinguishes it from any emission of semen that always pollutes (Lev 15:16-18).

18:23 a perversion: or "a confusion"; see sidebar, "Sex."

Warning against uncleanness and moral pollution

<sup>24</sup>Do not make yourselves unclean in any of these ways because that is how the nations that I am throwing out before you became unclean. <sup>25</sup>That is also how the land became unclean, and I held it liable for punishment, and the land vomited out its inhabitants. <sup>26</sup>But all of you must keep my rules and my regulations. You must not do any of these detestable things, neither citizen nor immigrant who lives with you (<sup>27</sup>because the people who had the land before you did all of these detestable things and the land became unclean), <sup>28</sup>so that the land does not vomit you out because you have made it unclean, just as it vomited out the nations that were before you. <sup>29</sup>Anyone who does any of these detestable things will be cut off from their people. <sup>30</sup>You must keep my requirement of not doing any of the detestable practices<sup>a</sup> that were done before you arrived so that you don't make yourselves unclean by them; I am the LORD your God.

Living as holy people

19 The LORD said to Moses, <sup>2</sup>Say to the whole community of the Israelites: You must be holy, because I, the LORD your God, am holy. <sup>3</sup>Each of you must respect your mother and father, and you must keep my sabbaths; I am the LORD your God. <sup>4</sup>Do not turn to idols or make gods of cast metal for yourselves; I am the LORD your God. <sup>5</sup>When you sacrifice a communal sacrifice of well-being to the LORD, offer it so that it will be accepted on your account. <sup>6</sup>It must be eaten on the day of your sacrifice or the following day; whatever is left over on the third day must be burned with fire. <sup>7</sup>If any of it is eaten on the third day, it is foul; it will not be accepted. <sup>8</sup>Anyone who eats it will be liable to punishment, because they defiled what is holy to the LORD. That person will be cut off from their people. <sup>9</sup>When you harvest your land's produce, you must not harvest all the way to the edge of your field; and don't gather up every remaining bit of your harvest. <sup>10</sup>Also do not pick your vineyard clean or gather up all the grapes that have fallen there. Leave these items for the poor and the immigrant; I am the LORD your God.

<sup>11</sup>You must not steal nor deceive nor lie to each other. <sup>12</sup>You must not swear falsely by my name, desecrating your God's name in doing so; I am the LORD. <sup>13</sup>You must not oppress your neighbors or rob them. Do not withhold a hired laborer's pay overnight. <sup>14</sup>You must not insult a deaf person or put some obstacle in front of a blind person that would cause them to trip. Instead, fear your God; I am the LORD.

<sup>15</sup>You must not act unjustly in a legal case. Do not show favoritism to the poor or deference to the great; you must judge your fellow Israelites fairly. <sup>16</sup>Do not go around slandering

<sup>a</sup>Or rules or customs

18:24-30 The covenant between God and Israel includes these rules. This covenant granted Israel its land. Leviticus urges obeying these rules to avoid losing the land like the Canaanites did (Lev 20:22-24; 26:27-39). For readers after Assyrians and Babylonians destroyed Israel and Judah, this threat would already have come to pass.

18:29 cut off: See note on Leviticus 7:20-21.

19:1-37 These instructions for holy living (19:2) cover a wide variety of issues. Their themes and style resemble the Ten Commandments (Exod 20:2-17; Deut 5:6-21).

19:2 be holy, because I, the Lord your God, am holy: This refrain echoes through the second half of Leviticus (e.g., Lev 19:2; 20:7; 21:15). holy means "set apart." The Lord is "set apart," that is, utterly different or other than humans and the world (Isa 6). Following these rules distinguishes Israel as "set apart," that is, as belonging to God (Exod 19:5-6). The refrain reminds readers of their covenant relationship with God that obliges them to keep these commandments. It announces a fundamental principle for ethics and religious practice: Imitate God (cf. Matt 5:48).

19:3 respect your mother and father: Exodus 20:12 and Deuteronomy 5:16 say "honor" and list the father first. respect (often translated "fear") more often takes God as the object (Lev 19:14, 21). keep my sabbaths: Every seventh day must be a day of rest, as are some annual holidays (see Exod 20:8-9; Deut 5:12-15; Lev 23).

19:4 turn to: worship instead of the Lord. idols or... gods of cast metal: See Exodus 20:4; Deuteronomy 5:8. Avoiding divine images distinguished Israel from other ancient cultures.

19:5-8 sacrifice of well-being: See Leviticus 7:15-18. not be accepted: Lack of care in eating the offering meat will defile what is holy and so fail to gain God's favor (cf. Lev 1:4). cut off: See note on Leviticus 7:20-21.

19:9-10 Farmers should not take everything for themselves, but leave some grain and fruit for the poor and the immigrant (i.e., people without means or family to support them; Deut 24:19-22).

19:11-14 These rules prohibit taking advantage of other people for one's own benefit by stealing (19:11, 13), lying (19:11-12), lawsuits (19:12), failing to pay workers (19:13), and making fun of people with disabilities (19:14). All such actions fail to respect the Lord (19:14).

19:11 steal: See Exodus 20:13; Deuteronomy 5:17.

19:12 swear falsely: See Exodus 20:7; Deuteronomy 5:11. The false oath differs from a lie (Lev 19:11) because it uses God's name to deceive and so desecrates it.

The Love Commandment Many Jews and Christians have identified “Love your neighbor as yourself” as the essence and summary of all moral rules. Jesus paired it with the command to love God (Deut 6:5) as the most important laws (Mark 12:29-31) and extended its application to enemies (Matt 5:43-48). Pointing to Jesus’ words, Christians often have based ethics on general principles rather than rules about specific situations. Many even argue that the love commandment should determine whether and how one observes particular rules. But it is not always clear what “loving your neighbor” requires. Jesus’ so-called “Golden Rule” provides one key for figuring that out: “Treat people in the same way that you want people to treat you” (Matt 7:12). It laid the basis for a long tradition of ethical thought that includes Immanuel Kant’s “Categorical Imperative” never to treat other people just as means to an end, but always as ends themselves.

As a result, many people who accept the Bible as scripture do not follow all of its rules. They use the love commandment and other principles to reason that some rules should be ignored and others can be improved. Thus, most Christians ignore laws that permit slavery and that deprive women of equal rights with men (e.g., Lev 25:39-55; Num 5:11-31; 30:3-15). Meanwhile, they follow rules against deception, murder, and oppressing the poor and foreigners (e.g., Lev 19:9-16). Other rules remain hotly debated, such as those banning homosexual activity (e.g., Lev 18:22) and permitting the death penalty (e.g., Lev 20). However, most Christians and Jews involved in these debates agree that the love commandment must play an important role in deciding them.

your people.<sup>v</sup> Do not stand by while your neighbor’s blood is shed;<sup>w</sup> I am the LORD. <sup>17</sup>You must not hate your fellow Israelite in your heart. Rebuke your fellow Israelite strongly, so you don’t become responsible for his sin.<sup>x</sup> <sup>18</sup>You must not take revenge nor hold a grudge against any of your people; instead, you must love your neighbor as yourself; I am the LORD.

<sup>19</sup>You must keep my rules. Do not crossbreed your livestock, do not plant your field with two kinds of seed, and do not wear clothes made from two kinds of material. <sup>20</sup>If a man has sexual relations with a woman who is a slave engaged to another man, who hasn’t yet been released or given her freedom, there must be a punishment.<sup>y</sup> But they will not be put to death because she had not yet been freed. <sup>21</sup>The man must bring as his compensation to the LORD at the meeting tent’s entrance a ram for a compensation offering. <sup>22</sup>The priest will use the ram for the compensation offering to make reconciliation for him before the LORD on account of the sin he committed. Then he will be forgiven of the sin that he committed.

<sup>23</sup>When you enter the land and plant any fruit tree, you must consider its fruit off-limits.<sup>z</sup> For three years it will be off-limits to you;<sup>a</sup> it must not be eaten. <sup>24</sup>In the fourth year, all of the tree’s fruit will be holy, a celebration for the LORD. <sup>25</sup>In the fifth year you can eat the fruit. This is so as to increase its produce for you; I am the LORD your God.

<sup>26</sup>You must not eat anything with its blood. You must not participate in divination or fortune-telling. <sup>27</sup>You must not cut off the hair on your forehead or clip the ends of your

(see Exod 20:16; Deut 5:20) include showing bias against the rich or the poor, slandering or spreading false rumors about someone, and failing to testify against violence. Do not stand by while your neighbor’s blood is shed also can be translated, “Do not stand on your neighbor’s blood.”

19:17-18 These rules for relationships start with You must not hate and end with you must love. They apply to your fellow Israelite and your neighbor, but Leviticus 19:34 extends them to include everyone in the community.

19:17 hate...in your heart: You must not nurse grudges but instead rebuke your fellow (i.e., confront the issue openly). don’t become responsible for his sin by failing to confront and resolve the problem.

19:18 love your neighbor as yourself: See sidebar, “The Love Commandment.” neighbor: This rule gets extended to immigrants in Leviticus 19:34, to enemies in Matthew 5:43-48, and to anyone in need in Luke 10:25-37.

19:19 The writers believed that mixtures of animal and plant species, and even cloths, risked confusing categories that should be kept distinct (see sidebar, “Sex” at Lev 18).

19:20-22 sexual relations does not say whether the slave engaged to another man consented or was raped. It is concerned instead with the loss to that other man (cf. Deut 21:10-14). punishment or “an inquiry” will require compensating him before a compensation offering can be presented (Lev 5:14-19; 6:4-7). For the same situation involving a free woman, see Deuteronomy 22:22-29.

19:23-25 Israelites must leave fruit “uncircumcised” (i.e., uncut [off-limits]) for three years. They must dedicate all the fruit of the fourth year as holy. In this way, they admit that the Lord owns their land.

19:26 The prohibition against eating blood is the most basic food law (see note on Lev 3:17; see sidebar, “Meat” at Lev 11). divination or fortune-telling probably means communicating with ghosts (Lev 19:31) or other spirits. Israel may ask for information and help from the Lord only with prayers or through priests (Num 27:21) or prophets (Deut 18:15-22).

19:27-28 cut off the hair...cut your bodies...put marks on yourselves probably all refer to mourning rituals for beard. <sup>28</sup>Do not cut your bodies for the dead<sup>b</sup> or put marks on<sup>c</sup> yourselves; I am the LORD. <sup>29</sup>Do not defile your daughter by making her sexually promiscuous or else the land will become promiscuous<sup>d</sup> and full of shame. <sup>30</sup>You must keep my sabbaths and treat my sanctuary with respect; I am the LORD. <sup>31</sup>Do not resort to dead spirits or inquire of spirits of divination—you will be made unclean by them; I am the LORD your God. <sup>32</sup>You must rise in the presence of an old person and respect the elderly. You must fear your God; I am the LORD.

<sup>33</sup>When immigrants live in your land with you, you must not cheat them. <sup>34</sup>Any immigrant who lives with you must be treated as if they were one of your citizens. You must love them as yourself, because you were immigrants in the land of Egypt; I am the LORD your God. <sup>35</sup>You must not act unjustly in a legal case involving measures of length, weight, or volume. <sup>36</sup>You must have accurate scales and accurate weights, an accurate ephah<sup>e</sup> and an accurate hin.<sup>f</sup> I am the LORD your God, who brought you out of the land of Egypt. <sup>37</sup>You must keep all my rules and all my regulations, and do them; I am the LORD.

Worship of Molech forbidden

20 The LORD said to Moses, <sup>2</sup>You will also say to the Israelites: Any Israelite or any immigrant living in Israel who gives their children to Molech must be executed. The common people will stone such a person. <sup>3</sup>Moreover, I will set my own face against such a person, cutting them off from their people, because they gave their children to Molech, making my sanctuary unclean and degrading my holy name by doing so. <sup>4</sup>But if the common people choose to look the other way when someone gives their children to Molech and do not execute such a person, <sup>5</sup>I will set my own face against such a person and their extended family, cutting off from their people—both the guilty party and anyone with them who faithlessly followed Molech. <sup>6</sup>I will also oppose anyone who resorts to dead spirits or spirits of divination and faithlessly follows those things. I will cut such an individual off from their people.

Sexual prohibitions

<sup>7</sup>You must be holy and keep yourselves holy because I am the LORD your God. <sup>8</sup>You will keep my rules and do them; I am the LORD, who makes you holy. <sup>9</sup>If anyone curses their father or mother, they must be executed. They have cursed their own father and mother; that person's blood is on their own heads. <sup>10</sup>If a man commits adultery with a married woman, committing adultery with a neighbor's wife, both the adulterer and the adulteress

the dead (a phrase that can also be translated "for a life" or "for a spirit"). Israelites may show their grief by tearing or changing their clothes and putting ashes on themselves (e.g., Gen 37:34; Jer 6:26), but not by disfiguring themselves.

19:29 making her sexually promiscuous: or "prostituting her." Leviticus and other OT books give sexual promiscuity as one reason why the Canaanites lost their land. Therefore, it threatens Israel's place in the land too (Lev 18:24-30).

19:30 sabbaths: See note on Leviticus 19:3. treat my sanctuary with respect: See note on Leviticus 5:14-6:7.

19:31 dead spirits . . . divination: See note on Leviticus 19:26. 19:33-34 immigrants must be treated just like natives and "neighbors" (Lev 19:16; see sidebar, "The Love Commandment" at Lev 19).

19:35-36 Right relationships include honest business deals and fair legal decisions. ephah . . . hin: See translation notes e and f.

20:1-27 Leviticus 20 lists punishments (20:7-21) for many of the sexual relationships prohibited in Leviticus 18. It reflects the fear that irregular sex can disrupt distinctions between groups and relationships within groups (see sidebar, "Sex" at Lev 18). The chapter begins and ends by urging Israel to distinguish itself from the religious and sexual practices of other nations.

20:2, 4 common people: See note on "ordinary person" at Leviticus 4:27, where the underlying Hebrew is similar.

20:2 gives their children to Molech: refers to child sacrifice or, possibly, a child dedication ritual (see Lev 18:21). Many OT texts condemn this practice (e.g., 2 Kgs 23:10; Jer 32:35). This penalty introduces the punishments for prohibited sexual relations here because biblical authors blamed both on Canaanite influence (cf. Lev 20:23-26). stone such a person: Most Jews and Christians reject the severe penalties in this chapter as incompatible with Leviticus 19:18 (see sidebar, "The Love Commandment" at Lev 19).

20:3 cutting them off from their people: without descendants. See note on Leviticus 7:20-21.

20:6 dead spirits . . . divination: See note on Leviticus 19:26.

20:7 be holy: See note on Leviticus 11:45.

20:9 curses their father or mother: Compare with Leviticus 19:3. Ancient Israelites took oaths and curses very seriously because they used God's name, Yahweh, which appears here as "the LORD" (see Lev 19:12). that person's blood is on their own heads here and in following verses means no guilt comes from just executions carried out by an official court (see Exod 18:13-26; Deut 17:2-12). It does not permit private people to use these offenses as an excuse for killing someone, which is murder (see Exod 20:13; cf. John 8:1-11). 20:10 adultery: See Leviticus 18:20.

must be executed. <sup>11</sup>If a man has sexual intercourse with his father's wife, he has uncovered his father's nakedness. Both of them must be executed; their blood is on their own heads. <sup>12</sup>If a man has sexual intercourse with his daughter-in-law, both of them must be executed. They have acted perversely; their blood is on their own heads. <sup>13</sup>If a man has sexual intercourse with a man as he would with a woman, the two of them have done something detestable. They must be executed; their blood is on their own heads. <sup>14</sup>If a man marries a woman and her mother as well, it is shameful. They will be burned with fire—the man and the two women—so that no such shameful thing will be found among you. <sup>15</sup>If a man has sexual relations with an animal, he must be executed and you must kill the animal. <sup>16</sup>If a woman approaches any kind of animal to mate with it, you must kill the woman and the animal. They must be executed; their blood is on their own heads. <sup>17</sup>If a man marries his sister—his father's daughter or his mother's daughter—and they have sexual contact with each other, it is a disgrace. They will be cut off in the sight of their people. Such a man has had sexual contact with his sister; he will be liable to punishment. <sup>18</sup>If a man sleeps with a woman during her menstrual period and has sexual contact with her, he has exposed the source of her blood flow and she has uncovered the same. Both of them will be cut off from their people. <sup>19</sup>You must not have sexual contact with your mother's sister or your father's sister, because that exposes your own close relative; both of you will be liable to punishment. <sup>20</sup>If a man has sexual intercourse with his aunt, he has uncovered his uncle's nakedness. The man and the aunt will be liable to punishment; they will die childless. <sup>21</sup>If a man marries his brother's wife, it is indecent. He has uncovered his brother's nakedness; the man and the woman will be childless.

Conclusion concerning conduct

<sup>22</sup>You must keep all my rules and all my regulations, and do them so that the land I am bringing you to, where you will live, won't vomit you out. <sup>23</sup>You must not follow the practices<sup>a</sup> of the nations that I am throwing out before you, because they did all these things and I was disgusted with them. <sup>24</sup>But I have told you, "You will certainly possess their fertile land; I am giving it to you to possess. It is a land full of milk and honey." I am the LORD your God, who has separated you from all other peoples. <sup>25</sup>So you must separate between clean and unclean animals, and between clean and unclean birds. Do not become detestable through some animal, bird, or anything that moves on the fertile ground that I have separated from you as unclean. <sup>26</sup>You must be holy to me, because I the LORD am holy, and I have separated you from all other peoples to be my own. <sup>27</sup>If someone, whether male or female, is a medium with the dead or a diviner,<sup>b</sup> they must be executed. They will be stoned; their blood is on their own head.

Rules for priests

21 The LORD said to Moses, Say to the priests, Aaron's sons: None of you are allowed to make yourselves unclean by any dead person among your community <sup>2</sup>except for your closest relatives: for your mother, father, son, daughter, brother; <sup>3</sup>also for your unmarried sister, who is close to you because she isn't married—you may be polluted for her sake. <sup>4</sup>You must not make yourself unclean for in-laws, defiling yourself by doing so.

20:22-27 Like Leviticus 18, this chapter explains that observing these rules will prevent Israel from losing its land as the Canaanites did (the nations that I am throwing out before you, 20:23). The sex rules function to preserve Israel's distinct identity (see sidebar, "Sex" at Lev 18).

20:24 I have told you: Exodus 3:8.

20:25 Israel expresses its separate identity (Lev 20:24) by following food rules (Lev 11) as well as the sexual rules of this chapter.

20:27 medium . . . or a diviner: See Leviticus 19:26.

21:1-22:23 Instructions for priests require them to stay clean and fit for duty. Priests must observe the rules for purification and marriage more strictly than other Israelites, and the high priest most of all. Because they work in the sanctuary, their uncleanness would more likely come into contact with holy places and things.

21:1-4 Touching dead bodies makes people unclean and contagious. Priests should not attend funerals except for <sup>5</sup>Priests must not shave bald patches on their heads or cut off the ends of their beards or make gashes in their bodies. <sup>6</sup>They must be holy to their God so that they do not make their God's name impure. They must be holy because they offer the LORD's food gifts, their God's food. <sup>7</sup>Priests must not marry a woman who is promiscuous and defiled, nor can they marry a woman divorced from her husband, because priests must be<sup>1</sup> holy to their God. <sup>8</sup>You will treat the priests as holy, because they offer your God's food. The priests will be holy to you, because I am the holy LORD, who makes you holy. <sup>9</sup>If the daughter of a priest defiles herself by being promiscuous, she defiles her father. She must be burned with fire.

<sup>10</sup>The high priest<sup>j</sup>—the one whose head has been anointed with the anointing oil and who is ordained to dress in the priestly clothing—must not dishevel his hair or tear his clothing. <sup>11</sup>He must not go near any dead bodies and cannot make himself unclean even for his father or mother. <sup>12</sup>He must not exit the sanctuary, making his God's sanctuary impure by doing so, because his God's anointing oil, which separates,<sup>k</sup> is upon him; I am the LORD. <sup>13</sup>The high priest must marry a woman who is a virgin. <sup>14</sup>He cannot marry a widow, a divorced woman, or a woman defiled by promiscuity. He can only marry a virgin from his own people <sup>15</sup>so that he doesn't make his children impure among his people, because I am the LORD, who makes him holy.

<sup>16</sup>The LORD said to Moses, <sup>17</sup>Say to Aaron: None of your future descendants who have some kind of imperfection are allowed to offer their God's food. <sup>18</sup>No one who has an imperfection will be allowed to make an offering: this includes anyone who is blind, crippled, disfigured, or deformed; <sup>19</sup>anyone who has a broken foot or hand; <sup>20</sup>anyone who is a hunchback or too small; anyone who has an eye disease, a rash, scabs, or a crushed testicle.<sup>1</sup> <sup>21</sup>No descendant of Aaron the priest who has an imperfection will be allowed to offer the LORD's food gifts; since he has an imperfection, he will not be allowed to offer his God's food. <sup>22</sup>He may, of course, eat of his God's most holy or holy food, <sup>23</sup>but since he has an imperfection, he cannot enter toward the inner curtain or officiate at the altar, making these parts of my sanctuary impure by doing so. I am the LORD, who makes them holy.

Priestly uncleanness

22 The LORD said to Moses: <sup>2</sup>Tell Aaron and his sons to be very careful how they treat the holy things that the Israelites devote to me so that they do not make my holy name impure: I am the LORD. <sup>3</sup>Say to them: If any descendant of yours should ever come near the holy things that the Israelites have dedicated to the LORD while he is in an unclean state, he will be cut off from before me; I am the LORD. <sup>4</sup>Any descendant of Aaron who is afflicted with skin disease<sup>m</sup> or has a discharge cannot eat of the holy things until he is clean. Anyone who

21:4 for in-laws: or, "as a husband among his people."

21:5 shave... cut: See note on Leviticus 19:27-28.

21:6 Priests offer the LORD's food gifts, their God's food, not because they are more holy by nature but because they have been ordained (Lev 8:30).

21:7 Priests have more limited marriage options than other Israelites (Lev 18) to preserve their cleanliness.

21:8 treat the priests as holy: See note on Leviticus 21:6.

21:9 daughter of a priest: Compare with Leviticus 20 and the sidebar, "Sex" at Leviticus 18.

21:10-15 The high priest: or, "the priest who is greater than his brothers." See Leviticus 8 for his anointing and dressing, and Leviticus 10:5-8, 12-20 for limits on his mourning.

21:12 must not exit: in order to mourn when he should be making offerings. Priests and high priests did leave the sanctuary at other times (see note on Lev 10:7), anointing oil which separates: or "which consecrates" or "which is a crown."

21:14 a virgin from his own people could mean another priest's daughter, a Levite woman, or an Israelite (see Ezek 44:22).

21:16-23 Priests who have physical imperfections cannot serve, just as animals for offerings must be "flawless" (Lev 22:17-25). Ancient Israel's ideas about appropriate bodies in appropriate relationships shape Leviticus' rules for offerings (Lev 1-7), uncleanness (Lev 11-15), sex (Lev 18, 20), and priests' fitness for duty. Many Jews and Christians reject this demeaning view of people's bodies that do not look "normal" because it fails the standard of the love commandment (Lev 19:18; see sidebar, "The Love Commandment" at Lev 19).

21:22-23 Priests with physical imperfections retain their right to eat meat and bread from offerings (Lev 6:14-7:36; unlike the unclean in Lev 22:4-6), but they may not approach the altar and present offerings.

22:1-9 Priests must stay especially clean because they come near the holy things inside the meeting tent: the offerings, the altar, and other holy furnishings (22:3). The touches anything made unclean by a dead body, or who has an emission of semen,<sup>5</sup> or who touches any swarming creature or another person who makes him unclean—whatever the uncleanness might be—the person who touches these things will be unclean until evening. He must not eat of the holy things unless he has bathed his body in water.<sup>7</sup> Once the sun has set and he has become clean again, he may eat of the holy things, for that is his food.<sup>8</sup> He must not eat an animal that has died naturally or that was killed by another animal, becoming unclean by doing so; I am the LORD.<sup>9</sup> The priests must keep my requirement so that they don't become liable to punishment and die for having made it impure.<sup>10</sup> I am the LORD, who makes them holy.

Unauthorized eating

<sup>10</sup>No layperson is allowed to eat the holy offerings. No foreign guest or hired laborer of a priest can eat it. <sup>11</sup>But if a priest purchases a servant, that person can eat it, and servants born into the priest's household can also eat his food. <sup>12</sup>If a priest's daughter marries a layman, she is not allowed to eat the holy offerings. <sup>13</sup>But if a priest's daughter is a widow or divorced and has no children and so returns to her father's household as when she was young, she can eat her father's food. But, again, no layperson is allowed to eat it. <sup>14</sup>If someone eats a holy offering unintentionally, they must provide the priest with an equal item, plus one-fifth. <sup>15</sup>The Israelites must not make the holy offerings impure that they offer up to the LORD <sup>16</sup>or make themselves liable to punishment requiring compensation by eating their own holy offerings. I am the LORD, who makes them holy.

Unacceptable animal offerings

<sup>17</sup>The LORD said to Moses: <sup>18</sup>Tell Aaron, his sons, and all the Israelites: Whenever someone from Israel's house or from the immigrants in Israel presents their offering to the LORD as an entirely burned offering—whether it is payment for a solemn promise or a spontaneous gift—<sup>19</sup>for it to be acceptable on your behalf, it must be a flawless male from the herd, the sheep, or the goats. <sup>20</sup>You must not present anything that has an imperfection, because it will not be acceptable on your behalf. <sup>21</sup>Whenever someone presents a communal sacrifice of well-being to the LORD from the herd or flock—whether it is payment for a solemn promise or a spontaneous gift—it must be flawless to be acceptable; it must not have any imperfection. <sup>22</sup>You must not present to the LORD anything that is blind or that has an injury, mutilation, warts, a rash, or scabs. You must not put any such animal on the altar as a food gift for the LORD. <sup>23</sup>You can, however, offer an ox or sheep that is deformed or stunted as a spontaneous gift, but it will not be acceptable as payment for a solemn promise. <sup>24</sup>You must not offer to the LORD anything with bruised, crushed, torn, or cut-off testicles. You must not do that in your land. <sup>25</sup>You are not allowed to offer such animals as your God's food even if they come from a foreigner. Because these animals have blemishes and imperfections in them, they will not be acceptable on your behalf.

Additional rules for sacrifice

<sup>26</sup>The LORD said to Moses: <sup>27</sup>When an ox or sheep or goat is born, it must remain with its mother for seven days. From the eighth day on it will be acceptable as an offering, a food gift for the LORD. <sup>28</sup>But you will not slaughter an ox or sheep and its offspring on the same day.

same things make priests unclean as other people (22:4-8): skin disease (Lev 13-14), genital discharges (Lev 15:1-18), touching a dead body or swarming animal (Lev 11:39-43), or touching someone who is unclean (Lev 15:21-27). They clean themselves in the same way, too, but can't serve in the temple or eat the holy food until they do. The penalties for not doing so are severe (22:9).

22:10-16 Priests get paid for their work by getting a share of the offerings. Purification, compensation, and grain offerings must be eaten only by priests in the sanctuary (Lev 6:14-7:10). But a priest's portions of the most common offering, communal sacrifices of well-being (Lev 7:31-34), can be shared with everyone in his household (22:11-13), though not with a layperson from outside the household.

22:14 an equal item, plus one-fifth: Compare with Leviticus 5:16.

22:17-25 Animals must be physically flawless to serve as offerings (Lev 1:3). Verses 22-24 list blemishes and imperfections (22:25) that disqualify animals from the altar. Similar things disqualify priests from serving at the altar (Lev 21:16-23).

22:18 payment for a solemn promise or a spontaneous gift: See note on Leviticus 7:15-16.

22:27 must remain with its mother for seven days: maybe to make sure the young animal is healthy (see Lev 22:17-25) or to get the mother animal's milk started.

22:28 This rule against slaughtering mother animals with their offspring also appears in Deuteronomy 22:6-7.

<sup>29</sup>When you sacrifice a communal sacrifice of thanksgiving for the LORD, you must sacrifice it so that it will be acceptable on your behalf. <sup>30</sup>It must be eaten on the same day; you must not leave any of it until morning; I am the LORD. <sup>31</sup>You must keep my commands and do them; I am the LORD. <sup>32</sup>You must not make my holy name impure so that I will be treated as holy by the Israelites. I am the LORD—the one who makes you holy <sup>33</sup>and who is bringing you out of the land of Egypt to be your God; I am the LORD.

Sacred times

23 The LORD said to Moses: <sup>2</sup>Speak to the Israelites and say to them: These are my appointed times, the LORD's appointed times, which you will declare to be holy occasions: <sup>3</sup>Work can be done for six days, but the seventh day is a Sabbath of special rest, a holy occasion. You must not do any work on it; wherever you live, it is a Sabbath to the LORD. <sup>4</sup>These are the LORD's appointed times, holy occasions, which you will celebrate at their appointed times:

<sup>5</sup>The LORD's Passover is on the fourteenth day of the first month* at twilight. <sup>6</sup>The LORD's Festival of Unleavened Bread is on the fifteenth day of the same month. You must eat unleavened bread for seven days. <sup>7</sup>On the first day you will hold a holy occasion and must not do any job-related work. <sup>8</sup>You will offer food gifts to the LORD for seven days. The seventh day will be a holy occasion; you must not do any job-related work.

<sup>9</sup>The LORD said to Moses: <sup>10</sup>Speak to the Israelites and say to them: When you enter the land that I am giving you and harvest its produce, you must bring the first bundle of your harvest to the priest. <sup>11</sup>The priest will lift up the bundle before the LORD so that it will be acceptable on your behalf. The priest will do this on the day after the Sabbath. <sup>12</sup>On the day the bundle is lifted up for you, you must offer a flawless one-year-old lamb as an entirely burned offering to the LORD. <sup>13</sup>The accompanying grain offering must be two-tenths of an ephah† of choice flour mixed with oil, as a food gift for the LORD, a soothing smell. The accompanying drink offering must be a quarter of a hin of wine. <sup>14</sup>You must not eat any bread, roasted grain, or fresh grain until the exact day when you bring your God's offering. This is a permanent rule throughout your future generations, wherever you live.

<sup>15</sup>You must count off seven weeks starting with the day after the Sabbath, the day you bring the bundle for the uplifted offering; these must be complete. <sup>16</sup>You will count off fifty days until the day after the seventh Sabbath. Then you must present a new grain offering to the LORD. <sup>17</sup>From wherever you live, you will bring two loaves of bread as an uplifted offering. These must be made of two-tenths of an ephah of choice flour, baked with leaven, as early produce‡ to the LORD. <sup>18</sup>Along with the bread you must present seven flawless one-year-old lambs, one bull from the herd, and two rams. These will be an entirely burned offering to the LORD, along with their grain offerings and drink offerings, as a food gift of soothing smell to the LORD. <sup>19</sup>You must also offer one male goat as a purification offering and two one-year-old lambs as a communal sacrifice of well-being. <sup>20</sup>The priest will lift up the two sheep, Compare with the rule against boiling the meat of an animal in its mother's milk (Exod 23:19; 34:26; Deut 14:21). Both reflect ancient Israelites' unease with relationships that are too close, like some of the sexual rules (Lev 18:17; 20:14).

22:30 eaten on the same day: See Leviticus 7:15.

23:1–44 Two chapters of Leviticus describe calendars for holy occasions (23:4) in weekly, annual (Lev 23), and multi-year cycles (Lev 25). Shorter calendars of holidays also appear in Exodus 23:10–19; 34:18–24; and Deuteronomy 16:1–17. They emphasize that everyone should come to the sanctuary for three pilgrimage festivals each year. Numbers 28–29 lists the offerings for each festival. Leviticus 23 emphasizes that every festival is a special Sabbath. People must rest from work on these days no matter where they are. (See sidebar, "Festivals" at Lev 23.)

23:3 Twelve times the Pentateuch commands resting on the seventh day, the Sabbath (which means "cease, rest"). Doing so imitates God's rest after creation (Gen 2:1–3; on imitating God, see note on Lev 19:2). Sabbath rest became a typical feature of Jewish practice. Christians usually observe the Sabbath on Sunday, the first day of the week, because on that day Christ rose from the dead (Mark 16:2). 23:5–9 Passover and the Festival of Unleavened Bread commemorate God's rescue of Israel from Egypt (Exod 12–13) with seven days of offerings (see Num 28:16–25).

23:9–14 During or after the Festival of Unleavened Bread, the first harvested grain must be offered to God before anyone can eat it (23:14).

23:11 lift up the bundle: See Leviticus 2:14–16. It is not clear which day is meant by the day after the Sabbath.

23:15–22 The Festival of Weeks commemorates the harvest of new grain. The Hebrew and Greek names for this festival come from its timing of seven weeks (Shavuot) or fifty days (Pentecost) after the end of the Festival of Unleavened Bread.

23:17–19 For the kinds of offerings, see Numbers 28:26–31.

along with the bread of the early produce, as an uplifted offering before the LORD. These will be holy to the LORD and will belong to the priest. <sup>21</sup>On that very same day you must make a proclamation; it will be a holy occasion for you. You must not do any job-related work. This is a permanent rule wherever you live throughout your future generations. <sup>22</sup>When you harvest your land's produce, you must not harvest all the way to the edge of your field; and don't gather every remaining bit of your harvest. Leave these items for the poor and the immigrant; I am the LORD your God.

<sup>23</sup>The LORD said to Moses: <sup>24</sup>Say to the Israelites: On the first day of the seventh month,<sup>a</sup> you will have a special rest, a holy occasion marked by a trumpet signal. <sup>25</sup>You must not do any job-related work, and you must offer a food gift to the LORD.

<sup>26</sup>The LORD said to Moses: <sup>27</sup>Note that the tenth day of this seventh month is the Day of Reconciliation. It will be a holy occasion for you. You must deny yourselves and offer a food gift to the LORD. <sup>28</sup>You must not do any work that day because it is a Day of Reconciliation to make reconciliation for you before the LORD your God. <sup>29</sup>Anyone who does not deny themselves on that day will be cut off from their people. <sup>30</sup>Moreover, I will destroy from their people anyone who does any work on that day. <sup>31</sup>You must not do any work! This is a permanent rule throughout your future generations wherever you live. <sup>32</sup>This is a Sabbath of special rest for you, and you must deny yourselves. You will observe your Sabbath on the ninth day of the month from evening to the following evening.

<sup>33</sup>The LORD said to Moses: <sup>34</sup>Say to the Israelites: The Festival of Booths to the LORD will start on the fifteenth day of the seventh month and will last for seven days. <sup>35</sup>The first day is a holy occasion. You must not do any job-related work. <sup>36</sup>For seven days you will offer food gifts to the LORD. On the eighth day you will have a holy occasion and must offer a food gift to the LORD. It is a holiday: you must not do any job-related work.

<sup>37</sup>These are the LORD's appointed times that you will proclaim as holy occasions, offering food gifts to the LORD: entirely burned offerings, grain offerings, communal sacrifices, and drink offerings—each on its proper day. <sup>38</sup>This is in addition to the LORD's sabbaths and in addition to your presents, all the payments for solemn promises, and all the spontaneous gifts that you give to the LORD.

<sup>39</sup>Note that on the fifteenth day of the seventh month, when you have gathered the land's crops, you will celebrate the LORD's festival for seven days. The first day and the eighth day are days of special rest. <sup>40</sup>On the first day you must take fruit from majestic trees,<sup>b</sup> palm branches, branches of leafy trees,<sup>c</sup> and willows of the streams, and rejoice before the LORD your God for seven days. <sup>41</sup>You will celebrate this festival to the LORD for seven days each year; this is a permanent rule throughout your future generations. You will celebrate it in the seventh month. <sup>42</sup>For seven days you must live in huts. Every citizen of Israel must live in

Festivals Though neither Jews nor Christians make offerings as Leviticus requires, they do observe annual holy days and festivals. The Israelite calendar of three to five festivals appears five times in the Pentateuch (Exod 23; 34; Lev 23; Num 28–29; Deut 16). It is based on harvesttimes in the agricultural cycle of ancient Palestine. Harvests produce the material for making offerings at the sanctuary. Unlike the other calendars, however, Leviticus 23 emphasizes not offerings but rather observing the festivals by resting from all work. These special Sabbaths were not affected by the temple's destruction, and they continue to shape the Jewish year. Christians replaced this calendar of holy days with a liturgical year based on the life of Christ.

23:22 On leaving some of the harvest for the poor and the immigrant, see note on Leviticus 19:9-10.

23:23-25 the seventh month (Tishrei) includes the Day of Reconciliation (Lev 23:26-32) and the Festival of Booths (Lev 23:34-36). A Sabbath on its first day alerts people to the holy days to come. See Numbers 29:1-6 for the day's special offerings. Jews now observe this day as the beginning of the new year (Heb. Rosh Hashanah).

23:26-32 For the offering rituals of the Day of Reconciliation, see Leviticus 16. Here the emphasis falls on everyone resting from work on this most holy occasion of the year.

23:27 deny yourselves: Fast from food. food gift: See Leviticus 16 and Numbers 29:7-11.

23:34-43 The Festival of Booths (Heb. Sukkot) commemorates Israel's camping in the wilderness (23:42-43).

23:36 food gifts: See Numbers 29:12-38 for the festival's offerings.

huts <sup>43</sup>so that your future generations will know that I made the Israelites live in huts when I brought them out of the land of Egypt; I am the LORD your God.

The sanctuary's lamp and bread

24 The LORD said to Moses: <sup>2</sup>Command the Israelites to bring pure, pressed olive oil to you for the lamp, to keep a light burning constantly. <sup>3</sup>Aaron will tend the lamp, which will be inside the meeting tent but outside the inner curtain of the covenant document, from evening until morning before the LORD. This is a permanent rule throughout your future generations. <sup>4</sup>Aaron must continually tend the lights on the pure lampstand<sup>a</sup> before the LORD.

Assault and blasphemy

<sup>10</sup>The son of an Israelite mother and an Egyptian father came out among the Israelites. A fight broke out between this half-Israelite<sup>e</sup> and another Israelite man in the camp, <sup>11</sup>during which the half-Israelite blasphemed the Lord's name and cursed. So he was brought to Moses. (His mother's name was Shelomith, Dibri's daughter from the tribe of Dan.) <sup>12</sup>He was put under guard until they could determine the LORD's verdict.

<sup>13</sup>Then the LORD said to Moses: <sup>14</sup>Take the one who cursed outside the camp. All who heard him will press their hands on his head. Then the whole community will stone him. <sup>15</sup>Tell the Israelites: Anyone who curses God will be liable to punishment. <sup>16</sup>And anyone who blasphemes the LORD's name must be executed. The whole community will stone that person. Immigrant and citizen alike: whenever someone blasphemes the Lord's name, that person will be executed.

24:1-9 The priests must tend the lampstand and table inside the meeting tent (see Exod 25:23-40). These rituals represent Israel's constant service to the Lord in the place closest to the chest of the covenant document. This chest is sometimes called "the ark of the covenant," and it shows God's presence with Israel. Priests also had to keep the fire burning all night on the main altar in the courtyard (Lev 6:12).

24:2-4 Seven oil lamps (Heb. menorah, 24:4) sat on branches of the lampstand. They must be filled and lit every night. Aaron is expanded to "Aaron and his sons" (i.e., the priests) in Exodus 27:20-21. pure lampstand: or, "pure gold" lampstand (Exod 25:31).

24:5-9 twelve loaves of flatbread sit on the gold table with frankincense. They must be replaced with fresh bread every week. They are sometimes called "the bread of the presence" or "the showbread." See note on Numbers 4:7.

24:6 pure table: covered in "pure gold" (Exod 25:24).

24:7 token portion: See note on Leviticus 2:2. food gift: See note on Leviticus 1:9.

24:10-23 This is the only story in Leviticus except for the story of the inauguration of the meeting tent and priests in Leviticus 8-10. Interpreters disagree over why it appears here. Maybe, like the story of Nadab and Abihu (Lev 10:1-3), it shows what happens when the Lord is not served well. In that way, it emphasizes the importance of obeying the surrounding rules (cf. the story of the golden calf in Exod 32-34).

24:10 half-Israelite: The emphasis on his mixed parentage in Leviticus 24:10-11 shows that the blasphemy rule applies to everyone (Lev 24:16).

24:12 until... the LORD's verdict as to whether the rule against blasphemy applies to a half-Israelite (Lev 24:16, 22).

24:13-16 On the death penalty for blasphemy, see Leviticus 6:1-7; 19:12.

24:17-22 The rule that the punishment should match the crime appears here with examples, illustrating that the same laws apply to immigrant or citizen alike (24:22).

24:20 an eye for an eye, a tooth for a tooth: This famous line appears three times in the Pentateuch (Exod 21:24; Lev 24:20; Deut 19:21). It expresses the legal principle that punishment must equal the crime. There is no evidence that ancient Israelites applied these examples literally. They allowed compensation for damages in the form of executed. <sup>22</sup>There is but one law on this matter for you, immigrant or citizen alike, because I am the LORD your God.

<sup>23</sup>Moses told this to the Israelites. So they took the one who had cursed outside the camp and stoned him. The Israelites did just as the LORD commanded Moses.

The sabbatical year

25 The LORD said to Moses on Mount Sinai, <sup>25</sup>Speak to the Israelites and say to them: Once you enter the land that I am giving you, the land must celebrate a sabbath rest to the LORD. <sup>3</sup>You will plant your fields for six years, and prune your vineyards and gather their crops for six years. <sup>4</sup>But in the seventh year the land will have a special sabbath rest, a Sabbath to the LORD: You must not plant your fields or prune your vineyards. <sup>5</sup>You must not harvest the secondary growth of your produce or gather the grapes of your freely growing vines. It will be a year of special rest for the land. <sup>6</sup>Whatever the land produces during its sabbath will be your food—for you, for your male and female servants, and for your hired laborers and foreign guests who live with you, <sup>7</sup>as well as for your livestock and for the wild animals in your land. All of the land's produce can be eaten.

The Jubilee year

<sup>8</sup>Count off seven weeks of years—that is, seven times seven—so that the seven weeks of years totals forty-nine years. <sup>9</sup>Then have the trumpet<sup>a</sup> blown on the tenth day of the seventh month. <sup>10</sup>Have the trumpet blown throughout your land on the Day of Reconciliation. <sup>10</sup>You will make the fiftieth year holy, proclaiming freedom throughout the land to all its inhabitants. It will be a Jubilee year<sup>b</sup> for you: each of you must return to your family property and to your extended family. <sup>11</sup>The fiftieth year will be a Jubilee year for you. Do not plant, do not harvest the secondary growth, and do not gather from the freely growing vines <sup>12</sup>because it is a Jubilee: it will be holy to you. You can eat only the produce directly out of the field. <sup>13</sup>Each of you must return to your family property in this year of Jubilee.

<sup>14</sup>When you sell something to or buy something from your fellow citizen, you must not cheat each other. <sup>15</sup>You will buy from your fellow citizen according to the number of years

Jubilee Leviticus describes the Jubilee year as a time for restoring people and land to their original state after Israel settled the land of Canaan. People must return to their original homes (Lev 25:10, 13), slaves must be freed (Lev 25:35-55), land must be restored to its original owners (Lev 25:14-16, 23-34), and farmland must not be planted or harvested (Lev 25:11-12, 19-22). Deuteronomy 15:1-18 lets slaves go free every seven years during the sabbatical year, when debts are also forgiven. (People often became slaves in the ancient world because they could not pay back their debts.) These rules have the effect of keeping someone from buying land or a fellow Israelite outright. Instead, they can only rent the land or the person's labor for a set period of time, until the Jubilee or sabbatical year. These rules emphasize that both land and people belong to the Lord ("the land is mine," Lev 25:23; "the Israelites belong to me," Lev 25:55), and so they cannot be bought and sold permanently.

The Jubilee expresses the wish that Israel remain just as it was in the time of Joshua. These rules were hard to keep through the changing fortunes of history. There is no record in the Bible or other ancient texts of Israelites actually observing the Jubilee. But the ideal of the Jubilee has stimulated many later attempts to reform society for the better by, for example, banning slavery and reducing debts.

money or other goods (Exod 21:26-36), except in cases of murder (cf. Lev 24:21; Num 35:31-34; Gen 9:6; Exod 21:12-14).

25:1-55 Sabbatical and Jubilee years extend the calendar of weekly and annual holy days (Lev 23) to cycles of 7 and 50 years.

25:2-7 No planting or harvesting in the seventh year means that people must eat whatever grows by itself.

25:9 trumpet: Hebrew shofar, a ram's horn used like a trumpet. Day of Reconciliation: See Leviticus 16:1-34; 23:27-32.

25:10 The fiftieth year follows a sabbatical year (the forty-ninth year). Jubilee: The Hebrew yobel refers to a ram's horn in Exodus 19:13 but may also mean "bring home." It is not related to Latin jubilare, "shout for joy" (English "jubilation"), though later traditions link the words.

25:12 eat... directly out of the field for the second year in a row, since the Jubilee follows a sabbatical year (Lev 25:8, 10).

25:13 family property: See Joshua 13–21.

since the Jubilee; he will sell to you according to the number of years left for harvests. <sup>16</sup>You will raise the price if there are more years, or lower the price if there are less years because it is the number of harvests that are being sold to you. <sup>17</sup>You must not cheat each other but fear your God because I am the LORD your God. <sup>18</sup>You will observe my rules, and you will keep my regulations and do them so that you can live securely on the land.

Food during fallow years

<sup>19</sup>The land will give its fruit so that you can eat your fill and live securely on it. <sup>20</sup>Suppose you ask, "What will we eat in the seventh year if we don't plant or gather our crops then?" <sup>21</sup>I will send my blessing on you in the sixth year so that it will make enough produce for three years. <sup>22</sup>You can plant again in the eighth year and eat food from the previous year's produce until the ninth year. Until its produce comes, you will eat the food from the previous year.

Buying back family property

<sup>23</sup>The land must not be permanently sold because the land is mine. You are just immigrants and foreign guests of mine.

<sup>24</sup>Throughout the whole land that you possess, you must allow for the land to be bought back. <sup>25</sup>When one of your fellow Israelites faces financial difficulty and must sell part of their family property, the closest relative<sup>c</sup> will come and buy back what their fellow Israelite has sold. <sup>26</sup>If the person doesn't have someone to buy it back, but then manages to afford buying it back, <sup>27</sup>they must calculate the years since its sale and refund the balance to the person to whom they sold it. Then it will go back to the family property.<sup>d</sup> <sup>28</sup>If they cannot afford to make a refund to the buyer, whatever was sold will remain in the possession of the buyer until the Jubilee year. It will be released in the Jubilee year, at which point it will return to the family property.

<sup>29</sup>When a person sells a home in a walled city, it may be bought back until a year after its sale. The period for buying it back will be one year. <sup>30</sup>If it is not bought back before a full year has passed, the house in the walled city will belong to the buyer permanently and their descendants forever. It will not be released at the Jubilee. <sup>31</sup>But houses in settlements that are unwallled will be considered as if they were country fields. They can be bought back, and they must be released at the Jubilee.

Poor Israelites and slavery

<sup>35</sup>If one of your fellow Israelites faces financial difficulty and is in a shaky situation with you,<sup>e</sup> you must assist them as you would an immigrant or foreign guest so that they can survive among you. <sup>36</sup>Do not take interest from them, or any kind of profit from interest, but

<sup>c</sup>Or next of kin; traditionally redeemer <sup>d</sup>Or they will go back to their family property; also in 25:28. <sup>e</sup>Heb uncertain

25:23 the land is mine: This principle is basic not just to Sabbath and Jubilee rules, but to all the rules for offerings and tithes. Israelites are tenant farmers who must pay the divine landlord rent in all these ways to keep their right to work and live on the land.

25:25 faces financial difficulty and must sell presumes that the only good reason to sell land given by God would be to pay debts. Selling such land for profit would reject God's gift. The closest relative or "redeemer" should try to keep the land in the family to whom God gave it in the first place. They may also buy back family members who have become slaves (Lev 25:47-55). The role of redeemer can elsewhere be used to describe God's justification or rescue of someone (Exod 6:6; 15:13; Isa 43:1; Ps 19:14; Job 19:25). 25:29 a home in a walled city is not considered part of the land divided among the tribes and clans. It can be sold outright, with a one year buyback option.

25:32 homes in the levitical cities are part of God's gift to the Levites (Josh 21), so there is an eternal buyback option. They must be treated like the villages and farmland of other tribes.

25:34 The Levites' pastureland can never be sold, which ensures they always have the means to serve in the sanctuary.

25:35-37 Concern for the poor must extend beyond land rights.

25:35 shaky situation with you: or "dependent on you" or "under your authority."

25:36 Do not take interest: because interest makes it harder for poor people to pay their debts (Exod 22:25; Deut 23:19-20). Jews and Christians have in previous centuries often followed this rule by prohibiting interest on loans between people within each religious community. Such prohibitions are rare today.

fear your God so that your fellow Israelite can survive among you. <sup>37</sup>Do not lend a poor Israelite money with interest or lend food at a profit. <sup>38</sup>I am the LORD your God, who brought you out from the land of Egypt to give you Canaan's land and to be your God.

<sup>39</sup>If one of your fellow Israelites faces financial difficulty with you and sells themselves to you, you must not make him work as a slave. <sup>40</sup>Instead, they will be like a hired laborer or foreign guest to you. They will work for you until the Jubilee year, <sup>41</sup>at which point the poor Israelite along with their children will be released from you. They can return to their extended family and to their family property. <sup>42</sup>You must do this because these people are my servants—I brought them out of Egypt's land. They must not be sold as slaves. <sup>43</sup>You will not harshly rule over them but must fear your God.

<sup>44</sup>Regarding male or female slaves that you are allowed to have: You can buy a male or a female slave from the nations that are around you. <sup>45</sup>You can also buy them from the foreign guests who live with you and from their extended families that are with you, who were born in your land. These can belong to you as property. <sup>46</sup>You can pass them on to your work as inheritance that they can own as permanent property. You can make these people work as slaves, but you must not rule harshly over your own people, the Israelites.

<sup>47</sup>If an immigrant or foreign guest prospers financially among you, but your fellow Israelite faces financial difficulty and so sells themselves to the immigrant or foreign guest, or to a descendant of a foreigner, <sup>48</sup>the Israelite will have the right to be bought back after they sold themselves. One of their relatives can buy them back: <sup>49</sup>their uncle or cousin can buy them back; one of their blood relatives from their family can buy them back; or they may be able to afford their own purchase. <sup>50</sup>The Israelite will calculate with their owner the time from the year they were sold until the Jubilee year. The price of their release will be based on the number of years they were with the owner, as in the case of a hired laborer. <sup>51</sup>If there are many years left before the Jubilee, the Israelite will pay for their purchase in proportion to their purchase price. <sup>52</sup>If only a few years are left, they will calculate that and pay for their purchase according to the years of service. <sup>53</sup>Regardless, the Israelite will be to the buyer like a yearly laborer; the buyer must not harshly rule over them in your sight. <sup>54</sup>If the Israelite is not bought back in one of these ways, they and their children must be released in the Jubilee year <sup>55</sup>because the Israelites belong to me as servants. They are my servants—I brought them out of Egypt's land; I am the LORD your God.

Covenant blessings

26 You must not make any idols, and do not set up any divine image or sacred pillar. You must not place any carved<sup>f</sup> stone in your land, bowing down to it, because I am the LORD your God. <sup>2</sup>You must keep my sabbaths and respect my sanctuary; I am the LORD.

<sup>3</sup>If you live according to my rules, keep my commands, and do them, <sup>4</sup>I will give you rain at the proper time, the land will produce its yield, and the trees of the field will produce their fruit. <sup>5</sup>Your threshing season will last until the grape harvest, and the grape harvest will last until planting time. 25:39 sells themselves to you: either to pay off debts or to obtain food and support.

25:40 Like the land, Israelite slaves must be freed in the fiftieth year. See sidebar, "Jubilee" at Leviticus 25.

25:42 servants and slaves come from the same Hebrew word. The Lord owns the people and the land, so neither can be sold outright, only leased for a time.

25:43 your God: the true owner of people and land.

25:44-46 slave from the nations: Non-Israelite slaves do not go free at the Jubilee. Later interpretations of the Jubilee ideal reversed this distinction in order to abolish all slavery.

25:47-55 Israelite slaves have the right to release in the Jubilee whether their owners were Israelites or not. Just as relatives can buy back family land (Lev 25:25), they also have the right to buy back family members who have sold themselves (25:48-52). The price depends on how long until the Jubilee, when Israelite slaves must be let go without payment (25:54).

25:55 God's rescue of the Israelites from Egypt gives the Lord a special claim to own this people (see Exod 19:4-6).

26:1-46 Threats and promises usually appear at the end of law collections (see sidebar, "Blessings and Curses" at Lev 26). This chapter brings together many of Leviticus' themes to motivate readers to follow its rules and commandments.

26:1-2 Faithfulness to the Lord involves banning idols, divine images, and carved stones (Exod 20:4, 23; see note on Lev 19:4); observing sabbaths (Lev 19:3; 23:3-4); and worshipping at the sanctuary (Lev 7:20-21; 15:31; 22:3).

26:3-13 Blessings for obedience include good harvests (26:4-5, 10), victory and peace (26:6-8), a growing

Blessings and Curses Lists of promises and threats appear at the end of collections of rules in the Pentateuch (Exod 23; Lev 26; Deut 27–30). They complete the rhetoric of instruction by showing what will happen if the people obey the teaching and if they don't. In these speeches, the Lord doesn't determine the future. Instead, God forecasts two different futures depending on what the people of Israel do. If the people keep the covenantal instruction, they will live peaceful and prosperous lives in the land. If they do not, they will suffer famine, plague, invasion, and eventually lose the land. The message is that the people are responsible for their own fate.

In Leviticus 26:44–46, God promises to preserve the covenant no matter what. For those in exile who lost their land (see 2 Kgs 25), this message provided hope for restoration. The post-exilic community vowed to keep the Instruction as their ancestors had not (Neh 9–10). They believed that in this way they could turn the tide of history. This hope has sustained Jews through many exiles since.

Covenant curses

<sup>14</sup>But if you do not obey me and do not carry out all these commands—<sup>15</sup>if you reject my rules and despise my regulations, not doing all my commands and breaking my covenant—<sup>16</sup>then I will do the following to you:

I will bring horrific things:<sup>b</sup> wasting diseases and fevers that make the eyes fail and drain life away.

You will plant seed for no reason because your enemies will eat the food.

<sup>17</sup>I will turn my face against you: you will be defeated by your enemies; those who hate you will rule over you; and you will run away even when no one is chasing you.

<sup>18</sup>If, despite all that, you still do not obey me, I will punish you for your sins seven more times: <sup>19</sup>I will destroy your prideful power. I will turn your sky to iron and your land to bronze <sup>20</sup>so that your strength will be spent for no reason: your land will not produce its yield, and the trees of the land won't produce their fruit.

<sup>21</sup>If you continue to oppose me and are unwilling to obey me, I will strike you for your sins seven more times: <sup>22</sup>I will send wild animals against you, and they will kill your children and destroy your livestock. They will make you so few in number that your roads will seem deserted.

<sup>23</sup>If, despite these things, you still do not accept my discipline and continue to oppose me, <sup>24</sup>then I will continue to oppose you. I will strike you for your sins seven more times: <sup>25</sup>I will bring the sword against you, avenging the breaking of the covenant. <sup>1</sup>If you retreat into your cities, I will send a plague on you, and you will be handed over to the enemy. <sup>26</sup>When I destroy your food supply, ten women will bake bread in a single oven, and they will ration out bread by weight. You will eat but will never get full.

<sup>27</sup>If, despite all this, you still do not obey me and continue to oppose me, <sup>28</sup>then I will continue to oppose you—with anger! I will punish you for your sins seven more times: <sup>29</sup>You will population (26:9), and God's presence in the dwelling with the people (26:11–13).

26:14–39 Punishments for disobedience reverse all these blessings and add more distress.

26:16 The Hebrew words translated horrific things: wasting diseases and fevers... drain are rare and not well understood.

26:19 turn your sky to iron and your land to bronze: a long drought.

26:25 the breaking of the covenant: See translation note i.

26:26 ten women... single oven: Refugees crowded into cities (Lev 26:25) must share kitchens and food.

26:27–33 The horrors of defeat, destruction, and exile deliver the final punishment for breaking the covenant.

I will despise you. <sup>31</sup>I will turn your cities into ruins, I will devastate your sanctuaries, and I will not smell the soothing smells of your offerings. <sup>32</sup>I will personally devastate the land so much that your enemies who resettled it will be astonished by it. <sup>33</sup>I will scatter you among the nations. I will unsheathe my sword against you. Your land will be devastated and your cities will be ruins.

<sup>34</sup>At that time, while it is devastated and you are in enemy territory, the land will enjoy its sabbaths. At that time, the land will rest and enjoy its sabbaths. <sup>35</sup>During the whole time it is devastated, it will have the rest it didn't have during the sabbaths you lived in it.

<sup>36</sup>I will bring despair into the hearts of those of you who survive in enemy territory. Just the sound of a windblown leaf will put them to running, and they will run scared as if running from a sword! They will fall even when no one is chasing them! <sup>37</sup>They will stumble over each other as they would before a sword, even though no one is chasing them! You will have no power to stand before your enemies. <sup>38</sup>You will disappear among the nations—the land of your enemies will devour you. <sup>39</sup>Any of you who do survive will rot in enemy territory on account of their guilty deeds. And they will rot too on account of their ancestors' guilty deeds.

Covenant and restoration

<sup>40</sup>But if they confess their and their ancestors' guilt for the wrongdoing they did to me, and for their continued opposition to me—<sup>41</sup>which made me oppose them, so I took them into enemy territory—or if their uncircumcised hearts are humbled and they make up for their guilt, <sup>42</sup>then I will remember my covenant with Jacob. I will also remember my covenant with Isaac. And my covenant with Abraham. And I will remember the land. <sup>43</sup>The land will be absent of them and will be enjoying its sabbaths while it lies devastated, free of them. They will be making up for their guilty deeds for no other reason than the fact that they rejected my regulations and despised my rules. <sup>44</sup>But despite all that, when they are in enemy territory, I will not reject them or despise them to the point of totally destroying them, breaking my covenant with them by doing so, because I am the LORD their God. <sup>45</sup>But for their sake I will remember the covenant with the first generation, the ones I brought out of Egypt's land in the sight of all the nations, in order to be their God; I am the LORD.

<sup>46</sup>These are the rules, regulations, and instructions between the LORD and the Israelites that he gave through Moses on Mount Sinai.

Dedications

27The LORD said to Moses, <sup>2</sup>Speak to the Israelites and say to them: When a person makes a solemn promise to the LORD involving the value of a person, <sup>3</sup>if it is the value for a male between 20 and 60 years old, his value is fifty silver shekels according to the sanctuary's shekel. <sup>4</sup>If the person is a female, her value is thirty shekels. <sup>5</sup>If the age of the person is between 5 and 20 years, the value for a male is twenty shekels, for a female ten shekels. <sup>6</sup>If the age of the person is between one month and 5 years, the value for a male is five silver shekels, for a female three silver shekels. <sup>7</sup>If the age of the person is 60 years or more, the value is fifteen shekels if the person is male, ten shekels for a female. <sup>8</sup>But if financial difficulty prevents the promise maker from giving the full value, they must set the person before the priest. The priest will assign the person a value according to what the promise maker can afford.

Survivors lose their families (26:29), their places of worship (26:30–31), and the land God gave them (26:33).

26:34–35 the land will rest and enjoy its sabbaths: as it should have been allowed to do before (Lev 25:1–7, 19–22).
26:36–39 Exile will not end the punishment for those who survive.

26:40–45 The covenant between God and Israel does not stop with loss of the land. The Lord promises to keep the covenant with those in exile who confess their... guilt. When exile did occur, later generations confessed their ancestors' guilt to claim this promise and restore Judea (see Neh 9–10).

27:1–34 Leviticus 27 looks like an appendix containing rules and instructions about payments.

27:2–25 A solemn promise (or vow) pledged people, animals, houses, or land to God in return for help. This chapter sets prices for paying those vows in silver weights (shekels) instead.

27:2–8 The value of a person is based on their strength for labor. A shekel is about 0.4 oz., so the weights listed in these verses range from 1.2 oz. (for a female under five years old) to 20 oz. (for a male between 20 and 60 years old). Priests can adjust the amount based on what someone can afford (27:8).

<sup>9</sup>If a solemn promise involves livestock that can be offered to the LORD, any such animal given to the LORD will be considered holy. <sup>10</sup>The promise maker cannot replace or substitute for it, either good for bad or bad for good. But if one should substitute one animal for another, both it and the substitute will be holy. <sup>11</sup>If the solemn promise involves any kind of unclean animal that cannot be offered to the LORD, the promise maker must set the animal before the priest. <sup>12</sup>The priest will assign it a value, whether high or low.<sup>j</sup> Its value will be what the priest says. <sup>13</sup>If the promise maker wishes to buy it back, they must add one-fifth to its value.

<sup>14</sup>When someone dedicates their house to the LORD as holy, the priest will assign a value to it, whether high or low. The value is fixed, whatever value the priest assigns to it. <sup>15</sup>If the one who dedicates the house wishes to buy it back, they must add one-fifth to its valued price, and it will be theirs again.

<sup>16</sup>If a person dedicates part of the land from their family property to the LORD, the value will be set according to the seed needed to plant it: fifty silver shekels per homer of barley seed. <sup>17</sup>If the person dedicates the piece of land during the Jubilee year, its value will stay fixed. <sup>18</sup>But if the person dedicates the piece after the Jubilee year, the priest will calculate the price according to the years that are left until the next Jubilee year, and the value will be reduced. <sup>19</sup>If the one who dedicates the land wishes to buy it back, they must add one-fifth to its valued price, and it will be theirs again. <sup>20</sup>But if they do not buy it back or if it was sold to someone else, it is no longer able to be bought back. <sup>21</sup>When the piece of land is released in the Jubilee year, it will be holy to the LORD like a piece of devoted land; it will be the priest's property. <sup>22</sup>If the person dedicates land they purchased to the LORD—land that is not part of their family property—<sup>23</sup>the priest will calculate the amount of its value until the Jubilee year. The person must pay the value on that day as a holy donation to the LORD. <sup>24</sup>In the Jubilee year the piece of land will return to the seller, to the one who is the original owner of the family property. <sup>25</sup>Every value will be according to the sanctuary's shekel. The shekel will be twenty gerahs.

<sup>26</sup>But note that a person cannot dedicate any oldest offspring from livestock, which already belongs to the LORD because it is the oldest. Whether ox or sheep, it belongs to the LORD. <sup>27</sup>If it is an unclean animal, it may be bought back at its value plus twenty percent. If it is not bought back, it will be sold at its set value.

<sup>28</sup>Also note that everything someone devotes<sup>k</sup> to the LORD from their possessions—whether humans, animals, or pieces of land from their family property—cannot be sold or bought back. Every devoted thing is most holy to the LORD. <sup>29</sup>No human beings that have been devoted can be bought back; they must be executed.

<sup>j</sup>Or good or bad; also in 27:14. <sup>k</sup>Or places under the ban (also in 27:29), a technique of holy war, in which all is dedicated to the deity who helps in the battle; it often involved total destruction. <sup>l</sup>Or tithes

27:9-13 If animals can be offered, they must be. Silver can be paid only in place of unclean animals.

27:12, 14 whether high or low, or "good or bad." The priest's decision is final.

27:14 dedicates means "make holy," that is, "set apart" for God.

27:16-24 Land falls under the Jubilee rules (Lev 25; see sidebar, "Jubilee" at Lev 25). If people give God their own inherited land, it belongs to the priests even after Jubilee (27:21). But if they buy land from someone else and give it to God, it goes back to its original owners in the Jubilee (27:24).

27:26-29 Things and people that already belong to God cannot be vowed again. This includes any oldest offspring from livestock (see Exod 34:19-20) and anything and anyone devoted to the LORD (or "put to the ban"; see Josh 6:17-18; 7:1-15; not the same as vowing something to God, Lev 27:2-24).

27:30-33 tenth-part gifts or "tithes": Ten percent of all crops and herds belong to the LORD. They provide income for Levites who serve in the sanctuary (Num 18:21-32; Deut 26:12-15).

NUMBERS

Numbers contains a wide range of dramatic stories. A wife suspected of adultery suffers humiliation to satisfy her jealous husband. A man is stoned to death for gathering sticks on the Sabbath. The earth swallows up rebellious Levites. A foreign diviner talks with a donkey and turns curses into blessings for Israel.

The book also contains different types of literature: lists, case laws, ritual instructions, rebellion stories, battle reports, travel plans, poetic prophecies, popular songs, and a religious calendar.

The assorted material at first seems to lack structure or organization. Events don't always have a clear relationship to what precedes or follows. Numbers appears to be a hodgepodge only loosely connected by a movement from the Sinai desert to the plains of Moab.

This complex narrative reflects a long, complicated history of its becoming a book within the Pentateuch. It appears to have been handed down through centuries and woven together by different traditions.

However, Numbers' lack of organization raises questions about the integrity of the book. If no literary pattern or order is detected, is the book a mere collection of random materials with no unifying intention or meaning? Two titles associated with the book provide preliminary answers.

The title "Numbers" originated through the Latin Vulgate translation of the Greek Septuagint. It points to the importance of the two censuses in chapters 1 and 26. Their location in the book divides it into two parts. The first 25 chapters describe the fate of the exodus generation, who die in the wilderness because of their repeated disobedience. The last 11 chapters point to a potential future for a new generation ready to enter the promised land.

In this light, the title "Numbers" highlights God's faithfulness in keeping the promise of land. When the exodus generation rejects this promise, they are punished by God and excluded from entering the promised land. Nevertheless, God not only declares the power of this promise; God also carries it out by raising another generation in the wilderness.

The other title, "In the Wilderness," is taken from the fifth Hebrew word in the first chapter. Focusing on the wilderness lets us divide Numbers into three parts: preparation for the journey (Num 1:1–10:10); the journey itself from Sinai to the plains of Moab (Num 10:11–21:35); and ending the journey by preparing to enter Canaan (Num 22:1–36:13).

Theologically, the stress here is on God's guidance of Israel through the wilderness. God prepares and leads their march, endures rebellions along the journey, and affirms that they will eventually enter the land. No doubt these themes are present in other books of the Pentateuch, but they take a distinctive accent in Numbers, where readers see God's visual, active, and intimate presence in Israel's midst.

In a larger narrative context of Exodus to Deuteronomy, Numbers presents a new beginning for Israel. After the first generation's failure, the people display greater faithfulness and enjoy more success. The Israelites no longer wander in the wilderness. They are now organized and marching toward the promised land as God's congregation.

First census

1 The LORD spoke to Moses in the Sinai desert in the meeting tent on the first day of the second month,* in the second year after they left the land of Egypt: 2Take a census of the entire Israelite community by their clans and their households, recording the name of every male, 320 years old and above, who is eligible for military service in Israel. These you and Aaron will enlist in their military units. 4Take with you one man from each tribe who is the head of his household. 5These are the names of the men who will assist you:

- 6from Reuben, Elizur, Shedeur's son;
- 7from Simeon, Shelumiel, Zurishaddai's son;
- 8from Judah, Nahshon, Amminadab's son;
- 9from Issachar, Nethanel, Zuar's son;
- 10from Zebulun, Eliab, Helon's son;
- 11from Joseph's sons:
from Ephraim, Elishama, Ammihud's son;
from Manasseh, Gamaliel, Pedahzur's son;
- 12from Benjamin, Abidan, Gideon's son;
- 13from Dan, Ahiezer, Ammishaddai's son;
- 14from Asher, Pagiel, Ochran's son;
- 15from Gad, Eliasaph, Deuel's son;
- 16from Naphtali, Ahira, Enan's son.

16These are the ones appointed from the community, chiefs of their ancestral tribes and leaders of the divisions of Israel.

17Moses and Aaron took these men who were selected by name 18and they assembled the entire community on the first day of the second month. They registered them by their clans and their households, recording the name of each male 20 years old and above. 19Moses enlisted them in the Sinai desert just as the LORD commanded him.

20There were the descendants of Reuben, Israel's oldest, registered by their clans and their households. Every man 20 years old and above eligible for military service was individually recorded by name. 21Those enlisted from the tribe of Reuben were 46,500.

22There were the descendants of Simeon, registered by their clans and their households. Every male 20 years old and above eligible for military service was individually recorded by name. 23Those enlisted from the tribe of Simeon were 59,300.

*April–May, Iyar

1:1–47 The purpose of the census is to determine the numbers of Israelites eligible for military duty.

1:1 The LORD spoke: This phrase is repeated many times in Numbers. What follows is the will of God, and so complete obedience is required. In Numbers, God speaks to Moses alone 30 times and to Moses and Aaron together 6 times, which indicates that Moses is God's chief representative. in the Sinai desert: connects the census to the larger story. The Israelites stay at this place from their arrival in Exodus 19:1 until Numbers 10:11–12. meeting tent: understood as a shrine, God's short-term residence. This term and "dwelling" were used in the description of building the sanctuary (Exod 25–40). The two terms refer to the same structure (Num 3:38), which is sometimes called the "tabernacle." on the first day of the second month, in the second year: This date is based on the exodus event (Exod 12; cf. Num 33:3) and is one of three complete dates in Numbers, listing day, month, and year (Num 10:11; 33:38). It indicates that the Israelites have been in the Sinai desert 11 months (see Exod 19:1). They spend another 19 days there before setting out (Num 1:1–10:10). second month: called Iyar on the Hebrew calendar. As its meaning ("blossom") suggests, it is a spring month. Lasting 29 days, it usually overlaps with April and May on the Christian calendar.

1:2–3 Not all Israelites are counted, but only those who are males 20 years and older and eligible for military service.

Tribes can be divided into clans, and clans can be divided into households. recording the name of every male: stresses the name of each individual, suggesting a complete census.

1:4–16 God appoints one person from each tribe to assist Moses and Aaron with counting. They are described as appointed, chiefs, and leaders (1:16). Later, they play both military (Num 2:3–31; 10:14–28) and economic roles (Num 7:1–89). The phrase These are the names of can introduce families (Num 3:2–3; cf. Num 3:18; 27:1) or people with a special assignment (Num 13:16; 34:17; cf. Num 13:4). The leaders are listed according to their origins from the 12 sons of Jacob (Gen 29:31–30:24; 35:22–26): the sons of Leah (Reuben, Simeon, Judah, Issachar, Zebulun); the (grand) sons of Rachel (Ephraim, Manasseh, Benjamin); and the sons of Zilpah and Bilhah, the handmaidens of Leah and Rachel (Dan, Asher, Gad, Naphtali). Levi isn't mentioned (see Num 1:48–53). Instead, Joseph's sons Ephraim and Manasseh appear in his place so that the number of tribes remains at 12.

1:18 on the first day of the second month: The census is completed on the same day it's commanded.

1:20–43 Each tribe's report has the same elements: the tribe's name, who they are, how they were selected, and the total number. The pattern indicates equal treatment of all 12 tribes, regardless of the number of soldiers enlisted

The Levites' exclusion from the census

<sup>48</sup>The LORD spoke to Moses: <sup>49</sup>You must not enlist the tribe of Levi, nor should you take their census along with the Israelites. <sup>50</sup>Rather, assign the Levites to the covenant dwelling, to all its equipment, and to everything that belongs to it. They will carry the dwelling and all its equipment, perform its religious ceremonies, and camp around the dwelling. <sup>51</sup>When it's time to break camp, the Levites will take down the dwelling; and when it's time to make camp, the Levites will set up the dwelling. Any other person who approaches will be put to death. <sup>52</sup>The Israelites will camp each in their own place under the banner of their own from each tribe. At the same time, the precise number of the soldiers from each tribe points to which tribes had the most military strength.

1:24 Gad was listed eleventh in naming the tribe's leaders (Num 1:14). This shift to third place creates a four-group structure that relates to the mother of each tribe: two Leah groups, one Rachel group, and one handmaidens group. This structure is used for the marching order (Num 2:3-31). 1:46 603,550: the total number of fighting men recorded in the census. It's similar to the number of people who came out from Egypt, "about six hundred thousand men on foot, besides children" (Exod 12:37); and to the number of militia counted after 40 years in the wilderness: "601,730" (Num 26:51). These numbers are unrealistically high in the historical context. Scholars have made different suggestions, such as the numbers being literary exaggerations or scribal errors. However, the issue hasn't been completely resolved.

1:48-54 The text explains why the Levites aren't included in the census. Instead of military service, they perform different tasks, guarding and working at the covenant dwelling. Their duties are elaborated (Num 3:5-4:49; 8:5-26) after the organization of Israel's militia (Num 1:1-2:34).

1:50 the covenant dwelling: the same place as the "meeting tent" in Numbers 1:1 and the "covenant tent" (Num 9:15; 17:8; 18:2). Some translations call it the "tabernacle." 1:51 the dwelling is a tent that can be moved. God is mobile.

1:52 the banner designates each tribe. It may have been a flag with one of the colors of the 12 stones in the high priest's chest pendant (Exod 28:15-21). Or it could have military unit. <sup>53</sup>But the Levites will camp around the covenant dwelling so that God's anger will not strike the Israelite community. The Levites will guard the covenant dwelling.

The wilderness camp's arrangement

2The LORD spoke to Moses and Aaron: <sup>2</sup>The Israelites will camp each under the banner with the symbol of their household. They will camp around the meeting tent some distance from it.

The camp's east side

<sup>3</sup>On the east side toward the sunrise will be the banner of Judah's camp with its military units. The chief of the people of Judah is Nahshon, Amminadab's son. <sup>4</sup>His military unit and those enlisted in it are 74,600. <sup>5</sup>Those camping on one side of him are the tribe of Issachar. The chief of the people of Issachar is Nethanel, Zuar's son. <sup>6</sup>His military unit and those enlisted in it are 54,400. <sup>7</sup>On the other side, the tribe of Zebulun: the chief of the people of Zebulun is Eliab, Helon's son. <sup>8</sup>His military unit and those enlisted in it are 57,400. <sup>9</sup>All those enlisted in Judah's camp with their military units are 186,400. They will march first.

The camp's south side

<sup>10</sup>On the south side will be the banner of Reuben's camp with its military units. The chief of the people of Reuben is Elizur, Shedeur's son. <sup>11</sup>His military unit and those enlisted in it are 46,500. <sup>12</sup>Those camping on one side of him are the tribe of Simeon. The chief of the people of Simeon is Shelumiel, Zurishaddai's son. <sup>13</sup>His military unit and those enlisted in it are 59,300. <sup>14</sup>On the other side, the tribe of Gad: the chief of the people of Gad is Eliasaph, Reuel's son. <sup>15</sup>His military unit and those enlisted in it are 45,650. <sup>16</sup>All those enlisted in Reuben's camp with their military units are 151,450. They will march second.

The camp's center

<sup>17</sup>The meeting tent and the Levites' camp will march in the center of the camps. They will march in the same order as they camp: each in position under his banner.

Characteristics of Israel's March Israel's march has three defining marks. First and most obviously, it involves moving. The cycle of breaking and making camp is found throughout the book (Num 1-2; 9:17-23; 21:10-20; 33:1-49). Words like "march" and "camp" appear more than 130 times.

Second, Israel's march is a military campaign. The census determines who can fight (Num 1:2-3; cf. Num 26:1-3). The march itself is an offensive movement, with the flanks and rear of the camp well-protected (Num 2:1-34; cf. Num 10:11-36). Battle reports pop up repeatedly (Num 14:39-45; 21:1-3, 21-31, 32-35; 31:1-12).

Third, Israel's march is sacred. Religious leaders play key roles throughout the book and in the march itself (for example, Num 3-4). Religious symbols are literally at the center of the march and camp. The meeting tent plays a key role when on the move and when stationary.

been decorated with symbols of the tribes (such as a lion for Judah, Gen 49:3-27).

1:53 Besides taking care of the covenant dwelling and performing ceremonies, the Levites must guard it from any non-Levite trying to approach it. In this way, they protect the camp from the wrath of God.

1:54 The Israelites did everything exactly: Emphasis is on the whole of Israel and complete compliance: God commands, Moses and Aaron supervise, leaders from each tribe execute, and individual recruits comply while the Levites and other people obey, all according to God's instructions.

2:1-34 Three tribes are positioned on each side of the meeting tent. One of the three is dominant and in the middle of that side. That tribe's banner functions for all three. On the east is Judah between two related tribes, Issachar and Zebulun; on the south is Reuben between Simeon and Gad; on the west is Ephraim between Manasseh and Benjamin; and on the north is Dan between Asher and Naphtali. East is the favored side. It has the largest number of troops, and it will be the first to move (Num 2:9; 10:14). East is also the direction of the meeting tent's opening and the direction of the rising sun (2:3). Judah is the dominant tribe on the east, which points to the tribe's importance, as predicted by his father (Gen 49:8-12). This marching order is designed for offense, with 186,400 troops on the side that marches first.

2:2 The banner. See Numbers 1:52. the symbol: Within a tribe, each family had its own sign.

2:3-9 The literary pattern found here is also used for the south (Num 2:10-16); west (Num 2:18-24); and north (Num 2:25-31) sides of the camp. The dominant tribe is mentioned (in this case, Judah). Next, the tribes on each side of the dominant one are given (here, Issachar and Zebulun). A summary sentence concludes the section, mentioning total numbers and marching orders (2:9).

2:17 The location of this verse in the chapter corresponds with its content: The mobile sanctuary is in the middle of

<sup>18</sup>On the west will be the banner of Ephraim's camp with its military units. The chief of the people of Ephraim is Elishama, Ammihud's son. <sup>19</sup>His military unit and those enlisted in it are 40,500. <sup>20</sup>On one side of him is the tribe of Manasseh. The chief of the people of Manasseh is Gamaliel, Pedahzur's son. <sup>21</sup>His military unit and those enlisted in it are 32,200. <sup>22</sup>On the other side, the tribe of Benjamin: the chief of the people of Benjamin is Abidan, Gideon's son. <sup>23</sup>His military unit and those enlisted in it are 35,400. <sup>24</sup>All those enlisted in Ephraim's camp with their military units are 108,100. They will march third.

the camp, and the tribe protecting it is mentioned in the middle of the marching order, after the second of the four divisions of Israel's camp.

Aaron's sons

3 These are the descendants of Aaron and Moses at the time when the LORD spoke with Moses on Mount Sinai. 2 These are the names of Aaron's sons: Nadab the oldest, and Abihu, Eleazar, and Ithamar. 3 These are the names of Aaron's sons, who are the anointed priests and ordained to the priesthood. 4 Nadab and Abihu died before the LORD when they made an unauthorized offering to the LORD in the Sinai desert. They didn't have any sons. Eleazar and Ithamar served as priests during the lifetime of their father Aaron.

The Levites' first census

5 The LORD spoke to Moses: 6 Bring near the tribe of Levi and place them before Aaron the priest. They will assist him. 7 They will perform duties for him and for the entire community before the meeting tent, doing the work of the dwelling. 8 They will be responsible for all the equipment of the meeting tent and the duties on behalf of the Israelites when they do the work of the dwelling. 9 You will give the Levites to Aaron and his sons. They have been assigned as a gift to him from the Israelites. 10 You will appoint Aaron and his sons to be responsible for the priesthood. Any other person who approaches will be put to death.

11 The LORD spoke to Moses: 12 I claim the Levites from the Israelites in place of all the oldest males who open an Israelite womb. The Levites are mine 13 because all the oldest males are mine. When I killed all the oldest males in the land of Egypt, I reserved for myself all the oldest males in Israel, both humans and animals. They are mine; I am the LORD.

14 The LORD spoke to Moses in the Sinai desert: 15 Enroll the Levites by their households and their clans. You will enroll all the males over one month old. 16 Moses enrolled them according to the LORD's word as he was commanded. 17 These were Levi's sons by name: Gershon, Kohath, and Merari. 18 These were the names of Gershon's sons by their clans: Libni and Shimei. 19 Kohath's sons by their clans: Amram, Izhar, Hebron, and Uzziel. 20 Merari's sons by their clans: Mahli and Mushi. These were the clans of Levi by their households.

21 To Gershon belonged the clans of Libni and Shimei. These were the clans of the Gershonites. 22 Their enrollment, according to the number of males over one month old, was 7,500. 23 The clans of the Gershonites were to camp behind the dwelling on the west side. 24 The chief of the household of the Gershonites was Eliasaph, Lael's son. 25 In the dwelling, the Gershonites were responsible for the meeting tent, the tent with its covering, the screen for the entrance of the meeting tent, 26 the curtains of the courtyard, the screen for the entrance of the courtyard surrounding the meeting tent and the altar, and its cords—all these structures.

27 To Kohath belonged the clans of the Amramites, Izharites, Hebronites, and Uzzielites. These were the clans of the Kohathites. 28 The number of males over one month old, who would perform duties for the sanctuary, was 8,600. 29 The clans of the Kohathites were to camp on the south side of the dwelling. 30 The chief of the household representing the clans of the Kohathites was Elizaphan, Uzziel's son. 31 They were responsible for the chest, the table, the lampstand, the altars, the equipment of the sanctuary with which they would minister, and the screen—all these furnishings. 32 The head chief over the chiefs of the Levites was Eleazar the son of Aaron the priest. He was supervisor over those performing the duties of the sanctuary.

33 To Merari belonged the clans of Mahli and Mushi. These were the clans of the Merarites. 34 Their enrollment, according to the number of males over one month old, was 6,200. 35 The

3:1-4 The first sanctuary workers mentioned are the descendants of Aaron (3:1). They are priests whom the Levites assist.

3:1 the LORD spoke: God approves of the special status of Aaron and his descendants.

3:3 priests were anointed: See Exodus 29; Leviticus 8-9. ordained: or "filled the hand," referring to transferring authority from one person to another.

3:4 an unauthorized offering: See Leviticus 10:1-5.

3:5-4:49 The focus shifts from the priests to their assistants, the Levites.

3:5-10 This introductory paragraph describes the Levites as a gift to [Aaron], whom they assist.

3:11-13 Exodus says that the oldest child must be dedicated or given to the Lord (Exod 13:2, 11-16; 22:29-30; 34:19-20). Here and in Numbers 8:16-18, the text says that Levites can serve in their place. in the land of Egypt:

See Exodus 11-13. The common expression I am the LORD emphasizes God's holiness and authority.

3:14-39 The text lists the numbers and duties of the three levitical houses.

3:17 Gershon, Kohath, and Merari represent clans rather than particular individuals. Despite being mentioned second, the Kohathites play the most important roles, preceding the Gershonites (Num 4:1-45; cf. 1 Chron 15:5-7; 2 Chron 29:12).

3:21-37 A fixed sequence is used for describing each house—Gershon (3:21-26); Kohath (3:27-32); Merari (3:33-37): (1) the house and its clans; (2) the total number of males older than one month; (3) the location of its camp in reference to the meeting tent; (4) the name of the chieftain; and (5) the objects that it is responsible to guard.

3:28 sanctuary: designates the entire tabernacle complex, including the meeting tent.

3:31 chest: traditionally called the "ark" of the covenant.

chief of the household representing the clans of the Merarites was Zuriel, Abihail's son. They were to camp on the north side of the dwelling.<sup>36</sup>The Merarites were assigned responsibility for the frames of the dwelling, its bars, pillars, bases, and all its equipment—all these items<sup>37</sup>and the pillars of the courtyard all around, their bases, pegs, and cords.

<sup>38</sup>Those camping in front of the dwelling eastward (that is, before the meeting tent on the east side) were Moses, Aaron, and his sons, who performed the duties of the sanctuary as service for the Israelites. Anyone else who approached would be put to death.<sup>39</sup>The total enrollment of the Levites, all the males over one month old whom Moses and Aaron enrolled by orders from the LORD, according to their clans, was 22,000.

Levites rescue the oldest male Israelites

<sup>40</sup>The LORD said to Moses: Enroll all the oldest males of the Israelites over one month of age and record their names.<sup>41</sup>Take the Levites for me, in place of all the oldest sons of the Israelites, for I am the LORD, and the cattle of the Levites in place of all the oldest cattle of the Israelites.<sup>42</sup>Moses enrolled all the oldest males of the Israelites as the LORD commanded.<sup>43</sup>All the oldest males over one month old, recorded by name according to their enrollment, were 22,273.

Second census and the Levites' duties

The Kohathites' duties

4 The LORD spoke to Moses and Aaron:<sup>2</sup>Take a census of the Kohathites from among the Levites by their clans and their households,<sup>3</sup>from 30 to 50 years old, all who are eligible for service to do the work of the meeting tent.<sup>4</sup>These are the responsibilities of the Kohathites in the meeting tent: the most holy things.

<sup>5</sup>When it's time to break camp, Aaron and his sons will enter and take down the screening curtain, and they will cover the chest containing the covenant with it.<sup>6</sup>Then they will place a

3:38-39 The Gershonites, the Kohathites, and the Merarites camp to the west, south, and north of the meeting tent, respectively. The priests occupy the most honored position, the east, facing its entrance. The total enrollment... was 22,000: This figure doesn't match the total of the three sums given in Numbers 3:22, 28, and 34 (22,300). A scribe copying ancient manuscripts may have mistakenly written 8,600 in Numbers 3:28 instead of 8,300. The Hebrew words for those numbers are similar.

3:40-51 Take the Levites for me, in place of all the oldest sons: See note on Numbers 3:11-13.

3:46 To rescue: means "to redeem, buy back." The term points to a situation in which an owner would be paid for releasing a servant from bondage.

3:47 A shekel weighed about two-fifths of an ounce, and a gerah weighed one-twentieth of a shekel. So five shekels would be two ounces.

3:50 1,365 shekels: about 34 pounds.

4:1-49 The first census in Numbers 3 determines the number of firstborn levitical males over one month in age. This second census determines the number of Levites ages 30 to 50 years. Except for 4:17-20, God's commands follow the same literary pattern for each levitical house: taking the census (4:1-3, 21-23, 29-30); detailing duties (4:4-15, 24-28a, 31-33a); and indicating supervision by the priests

(4:16, 28b, 33b). The Kohathites are now listed first. Their instructions are more elaborate. Their tasks are more dangerous (4:17-20). They carry the most holy vessels.

4:3-4 from 30 to 50 years old: occurs seven times in this chapter (Num 4:3, 23, 30, 35, 39, 43, 47), reflecting an established tradition (see, however, Num 8:24). the most holy things: See Numbers 3:31.

4:5-15 Aaron and his sons are priests, the only persons who touch the holiest things in order to wrap them. They must do this in the order of holiness associated with the furnishings and vessels: beginning with the chest containing the covenant (located in the holiest place) and moving outward to the utensils of the altar of entirely burned offerings (in the courtyard outside the dwelling). The priests are to prepare them for transport by covering them and either inserting poles or placing them on carrying frames. This way, the Kohathites don't touch the sacred objects themselves.

4:5 When it's time to break camp: Levitical tasks are preparation for departure from Sinai. screening curtain: See Exodus 26:31; 35:12; 39:34; 40:21; Leviticus 4:6; 24:3. the chest containing the covenant: See Exodus 25:10-22.

4:6 fine leather: possibly leather dyed a yellow-orange color. It may also refer to dolphin skin (see translation note b), which played roles in ancient Near Eastern rituals. Dolphins were plentiful in the Red Sea and Gulf of Aqaba covering of fine leather<sup>b</sup> on it. They will spread a whole cloth of blue over it, and they will set its poles in place. <sup>7</sup>They will spread a blue cloth on the presentation table and place on it the plates, the dishes, the bowls, and the container for the drink offering. The usual bread will be on it. <sup>8</sup>They will spread on them a red cloth, cover it with fine leather, and set its poles in place. <sup>9</sup>They will take a blue cloth and cover the lampstand used for light, its lamps, its extinguishers, its trays, and all the containers for oil that are used in its service. <sup>10</sup>They will place it and its equipment in a covering of fine leather, and then place it on the carrying frame. <sup>11</sup>They will spread a blue cloth on the gold altar and cover it with fine leather. <sup>12</sup>They will take all the service equipment used in the sanctuary, place it in a blue cloth, and cover it with fine leather. Then they will place it on the carrying frame. <sup>13</sup>They will remove the ashes from the altar and spread a purple cloth on it. <sup>14</sup>They will place on it all the equipment used for servicing it, the censers, the meat fork, the shovels, the bowls, all the equipment of the altar. They will spread a covering of fine leather over it and then set its poles in place.

<sup>15</sup>Aaron and his sons will finish covering the sanctuary and all the equipment of the sanctuary when it is time to break camp. After that the Kohathites will enter to carry it, but they will not touch the sanctuary, lest they die. These are the objects in the dwelling that the Kohathites are to carry. <sup>16</sup>But Eleazar son of Aaron the priest will have oversight of the oil for lighting, the fragrant incense, the regular grain offering, and the anointing oil, as well as oversight of the entire dwelling and everything in it related to the sanctuary and its equipment.

<sup>17</sup>The LORD spoke to Moses and Aaron: <sup>18</sup>You must not let the tribe of the Kohathite clans be eliminated from the Levites. <sup>19</sup>This is what you must do for them so that they stay alive and don't die when they approach the most holy things. Aaron and his sons will enter and assign each of them his work and his load. <sup>20</sup>But they may not enter to look at the sanctuary even for a moment, lest they die.

The Gershonites' duties

<sup>27</sup>All the duties of the Gershonites for carrying their load and for their work will be at the command of Aaron and his sons. You will assign to them the responsibility to carry their load. <sup>28</sup>This is the work of the Gershonite clans in the dwelling. Their responsibility will be under Ithamar son of Aaron the priest.

<sup>b</sup>Or dolphin skin; see also 4:8, 10-12.

(east of the Sinai Peninsula). its poles: handles for carrying the chest without touching it. See 2 Samuel 6:3-8 for the deadly consequences of contact with it.

4:7 The usual bread: refers to the bread that is always present before God (Exod 25:30), sometimes called "the bread of the presence" or "showbread." Leviticus 24:5-9 gives basic instructions about it. See also Exodus 35:13; 39:36; 1 Samuel 21:7; 1 Kings 7:48; 2 Chronicles 4:19; Matthew 12:4; Mark 2:26; Luke 6:4; Hebrews 9:2. The bread may designate fellowship with, dependence on, commitment to, or provision by God. It's displayed on the presentation table located in the north side of the meeting tent (Exod 25:23-30).

4:9-10 the lampstand: See Exodus 25:31-40.

4:11 The gold altar is located in front of the screen outside the most holy place. It's also called the incense altar (Exod 30:1-10). It's different from the copper altar for animal sacrifices that is mentioned in Numbers 4:13-14.

4:13-14 the altar: located in the courtyard outside the dwelling and called the altar of entirely burned offerings (Exod 27:1-8).

4:16 Eleazar is the older of Aaron's two surviving sons. He has oversight of the special ingredients used in the meeting tent's rituals: the oil for lighting (Exod 27:20-21); the fragrant incense (Exod 30:34-38); the regular grain offering (see Lev 2:1-16; 6:14-18); and the anointing oil (Exod 30:22-33).

4:21-28 the Gershonites pack and carry the fabric and leather items that cover the meeting tent's structure and the courtyard enclosure. They will receive two wagons and four oxen (Numbers 7:7) for transporting these items. 4:25-27 Materials are described in Exodus: the fabric of the dwelling (Exod 26:1-14); the screen for the entrance of the meeting tent (Exod 26:36-37); the curtains of the courtyard (Exod 27:9-15); and the screen of the entrance at the gate of the courtyard (Exod 27:16).

The Merarites' duties

<sup>29</sup>You will enroll the Merarites by their clans and their households. <sup>30</sup>You will enroll those from 30 to 50 years old, all who are eligible for service to do work in the meeting tent. <sup>31</sup>This is what they are responsible to carry as their work in the meeting tent: the frames of the meeting tent, its bars, pillars, and bases; <sup>32</sup>the pillars of the courtyard all around, with their bases, pegs, cords, and all the equipment used with them. You will list by name the objects they are required to carry. <sup>33</sup>This is the duty of the Merarite clans for all their work in the meeting tent under the supervision of Ithamar son of Aaron the priest.

Summary of the census

Instructions about purity in the camp

5 The LORD spoke to Moses: <sup>2</sup>Command the Israelites to send out from the camp anyone with a skin disease, an oozing discharge, or who has become unclean from contact with a corpse. <sup>3</sup>You must send out both male and female. You must send them outside the camp so that they will not make their camp, where I live among them, unclean.

<sup>4</sup>The Israelites did so and sent them outside the camp. The Israelites did just what the LORD said to Moses.

<sup>5</sup>The LORD spoke to Moses: <sup>6</sup>Tell the Israelites: When a man or a woman commits any sin against anyone else, thus breaking faith with the LORD, that person becomes guilty. <sup>7</sup>Such persons will confess the sin they have done. Each will make payment for his guilt, add one-fifth more, and give it to the injured party. <sup>8</sup>If the person has no close relative to whom the payment can be made, then the compensation payment will go to the LORD for the priest. This is in addition to the ram of reconciliation by which the guilty party himself is reconciled. <sup>9</sup>Any gift offering from all the sacred donations that the Israelites offer will be the property of the priest. <sup>10</sup>The sacred donations belong to each person alone; whatever anyone gives to the priest will be his.

4:29-33 The Merarites pack and carry the framework of the meeting tent and the courtyard. They will receive four wagons and eight oxen to transport these items (Num 7:8); the frames of the meeting tent are described in Exodus 26:15-25; and the pillars of the courtyard in Exodus 27:9-19. 4:34-49 Summarizes the census and emphasizes completely obeying God's commands.

5:1-4 The three kinds of unclean persons are sent out from the camp for a time. The text presupposes: (1) The cases listed in 5:2 make a person ritually unclean; (2) the person's impurity is contagious; (3) the camp is where God dwells among the people; (4) God can't dwell in a contaminated camp; and (5) God's presence demands the expulsion of any unclean person from the camp.

5:2 a skin disease: See Leviticus 13. an oozing discharge: from the genitals (see Lev 15). unclean from contact with a corpse: See Numbers 19:11-22 (cf. Lev 21:1-3, 11; Num 6:6-12).

5:5-10 An instruction regarding a generalized sin against others (cf. Exod 22:7-15; Lev 6:1-7). It doesn't specify the nature of crime. The text emphasizes that (1) crimes against others must be resolved under any circumstance; (2) the priests both oversee the sin offering and receive restitution; and (3) by reconciling with the one wronged and with God, the culprit can become part of the community again.

5:8 the ram of reconciliation: The forgiveness process includes a sacrifice of a ram or its equivalent (Lev 6:6b-7a), in addition to compensation for the damage.

Zec 8:13A woman accused of adultery

<sup>11</sup>The LORD spoke to Moses: <sup>12</sup>Speak to the Israelites and say to them: A man may suspect that his wife has had an affair<sup>c</sup> and has broken faith with him, <sup>13</sup>that a man has had intercourse with her unknown to her husband and that she has defiled herself in secret—even though there are no witnesses and she isn't caught. <sup>14</sup>If jealousy overcomes him and he is jealous of his wife who has defiled herself, or if jealousy overcomes him and he is jealous of his wife who hasn't defiled herself, <sup>15</sup>then the man will bring his wife to the priest. He will bring the offering required for her, one-tenth of an ephah<sup>d</sup> of barley flour. He will not pour oil on it, nor offer frankincense with it, because it is a grain offering for jealousy, a grain offering for recognition in order to recognize guilt. <sup>16</sup>The priest will bring her close and make her stand before the LORD <sup>17</sup>The priest will take holy water in a clay jar, and taking dust from the floor of the dwelling, the priest will place it in the water. <sup>18</sup>The priest will make the woman stand before the LORD, let the hair of the woman hang down, and place the grain offering for recognition, that is, the grain offering for jealousy, in her hands. The water of bitterness that brings the curse will be in the hands of the priest.

<sup>19</sup>Then the priest will make her swear a solemn pledge, saying to the woman, "If no man has slept with you and if you haven't had an affair, becoming defiled while married to your husband, then be immune from the water of bitterness that brings these curses. <sup>20</sup>But if you have had an affair while married to your husband, if you have defiled yourself, and a man other than your husband has had intercourse with you"—<sup>21</sup>then the priest must make the woman utter the curse and say to the woman, "May the LORD make you a curse and a harmful pledge among your people, when the LORD induces a miscarriage and your womb discharges. <sup>22</sup>And may the water that brings these curses enter your stomach and make your womb discharge and make you miscarry."

And the woman will say, "I agree, I agree."

<sup>23</sup>The priest will write these curses in the scroll and wipe them off into the water of bitterness. <sup>24</sup>Then he will make the woman drink the water of bitterness that brings the curse. And the water that brings the curse will enter her, causing bitterness. <sup>25</sup>The priest will take the grain offering for jealousy from the woman's hands, elevate the grain offering before the LORD, and bring it to the altar. <sup>26</sup>The priest will take a handful of the grain offering as a token part of it and turn it into smoke on the altar. And afterward he will make the woman drink the water. <sup>27</sup>When he has made her drink the water, if she has defiled herself and has broken faith with her husband, then the water that brings the curse will enter her, causing bitterness, and her womb will discharge and she will miscarry. The woman will be a curse among her people. <sup>28</sup>But if the woman hasn't defiled herself and she is pure, then she will be immune and able to conceive.

5:11-31 An instruction regarding a husband's jealousy about the possible adultery of his wife. This case can't be resolved in a civil court. However intrusive the instructions for determining the wife's innocence may be, they must be followed judiciously because the purity of the community is at stake. Also, in this way the suspected wife can be acquitted from false accusations and protected from her husband's impulsive revenge. Even if the accusations are accurate, the punishment is less severe than in Leviticus 20:10 and Deuteronomy 22:22. Nevertheless, the passage ends with a statement that the husband is free from guilt regardless of the outcome (5:31). The husband suffers no punishment, even if he has unjustly accused his wife and forced her to go through this ordeal.

5:12-14 has had an affair: straying away from the true path, especially in terms of sexual behavior (Prov 7:25). has broken faith: The same phrase is used in Numbers 5:6b, indicating a sacred dimension to her act. The prohibition of adultery is stated in the Ten Commandments (Exod 20:14; Deut 5:18), the foundation of Israel's covenant with God.

5:15 one-tenth of an ephah: approximately one-half gallon. grain offering: See Leviticus 2:1-16; 6:14-18.

5:17 holy water: See Exodus 30:17-21.

5:18 let the hair of the woman hang down: may indicate a state of uncleanness (Lev 13:45) or mourning (Lev 10:6; 21:10).

5:26b-28 Her ability to conceive is the verdict.

Instructions for the nazirite

6The LORD spoke to Moses: <sup>2</sup>Speak to the Israelites and say to them: If a man or a woman makes a binding promise to be a nazirite in order to be dedicated to the LORD, <sup>3</sup>that person must refrain from wine and brandy. He or she may not drink wine vinegar or brandy vinegar, nor drink any grape juice or eat grapes, whether fresh or dried. <sup>4</sup>While a nazirite, the person may not eat anything produced from the grapevine, not even its seeds or skin.

<sup>5</sup>For the term of the nazirite promise, no razor may be used on the head until the period of dedication to the LORD is fulfilled. The person is to be holy, letting his or her hair grow untrimmed. <sup>6</sup>The period of dedication to the LORD also requires that the person not go near a corpse, <sup>7</sup>whether father, mother, brother, or sister. Nazirites should not defile themselves because of the death of these people, because they bear the sign of their dedication to God on their heads.

<sup>8</sup>While a nazirite, the person is holy to the LORD. <sup>9</sup>If someone suddenly dies nearby, defiling the head of the nazirite, he or she will shave the head on the day of cleansing; they will shave it on the seventh day. <sup>10</sup>On the eighth day the person will bring two turtledoves or two young doves to the priest at the entrance of the meeting tent. <sup>11</sup>The priest will offer one for a purification offering and the other as an entirely burned offering. He will seek reconciliation for the person on account of the guilt acquired from the corpse, and he will make the head holy again on that same day. <sup>12</sup>The person will be rededicated to the LORD as a nazirite and bring a one-year-old male lamb for a compensation offering. The previous period will be invalid, because the nazirite promise was defiled.

<sup>13</sup>This is the Instruction for the nazirite. When the term as a nazirite is completed, the person will be brought to the entrance of the meeting tent <sup>14</sup>and offer a gift to the LORD, consisting of a flawless one-year-old male lamb as an entirely burned offering, a flawless one-year-old female lamb as a purification offering, one flawless ram as a well-being sacrifice, <sup>15</sup>and a basket of loaves of unleavened bread made with fine flour and mixed with oil, and unleavened wafers spread with oil, along with their grain offering and their drink offering. <sup>16</sup>The priest will come close to the LORD and offer the purification and entirely burned offerings. <sup>17</sup>The ram he will offer as a well-being sacrifice to the LORD with the basket of unleavened bread; then the priest will offer the grain offering and the drink offering. <sup>18</sup>The nazirite will shave his ordained head at the meeting tent's entrance, take the hair from his ordained head, and put it in the fire under the well-being sacrifice. <sup>19</sup>The priest will take the shoulder from the ram after it is boiled, one piece of unleavened bread from the basket, and one unleavened wafer, and place them in the hands of the nazirite after the ordained head is shaved. <sup>20</sup>Then the priest will raise them as an uplifted offering before the LORD; they are holy to the priest, with the breast of the uplifted offering and the thigh of the gift offering. After this the nazirite may drink wine.

6:1-21 The word "nazirite" means "one who is set apart." At first the nazirites were sacred persons who received divine power for a specific task for their whole lives, such as Samson (Judg 13-16) and Samuel (1 Sam 1:21-28). Later in the history of Israel, any person who made a solemn promise to observe a set of specific regulations could become a nazirite for a temporary period. Thus, a nazirite is not an ethnic designation but a special category for a person who has vowed to perform a sacred duty. For this reason, the CEB does not capitalize the word, though some translations do. This text stresses the voluntary and temporary nature of being a nazirite. It also stresses the responsibility of the priests in supervising nazirites.

6:2 a man or a woman: a layperson, not a priest. makes a binding promise: no specific purpose for the pledge is given.

6:9-12 Deals with accidental contamination by a corpse, which requires the same purification as that for people who have become unclean from physical disorders (Lev 12-15).

6:11 purification offering: See Leviticus 4:1-5:13; Numbers 15:22-31. This offering traditionally was called a "sin offering" in English, but "purification" is more accurate because it cleanses the sanctuary. Since a nazirite is separated to

God by promising to keep a specific pattern of conduct, her or his breaking the solemn promise causes a contamination to God's dwelling. Because a holy God can't dwell in a contaminated place, the priest must purge the contaminated dwelling. In so doing, the reconciliation between the nazirite and God can be achieved. (See also the sidebar, "Reconciliation/Atonement" at Lev 16.) entirely burned offering: must be dedicated to God alone to invoke God's presence. See Leviticus 1:3-17; 6:8-13.

6:12 compensation offering: See Leviticus 7:1-6. This offering was traditionally called a "guilt offering" in English, but "compensation" is more accurate. Here, it repays God for the nazirites' inability to perform their duties due to uncleanness.

6:13-20 Describes the process for ending one's time as a nazirite (that is, becoming an ordinary layperson again).

6:14 entirely burned offering and purification offering: See note on Numbers 6:11. well-being sacrifice: See Leviticus 3:1-17; 7:11-36.

6:15 grain offering: See Leviticus 2:1-16; 6:14-18. drink offering: See Numbers 15:1-21.

6:20 uplifted offering . . . gift offering: See Exodus 29:26-28; Leviticus 7:30-34; 10:14-15.

<sup>21</sup>This is the instruction for the nazirite who takes the solemn promise. That person's offering to the LORD will be in accordance with the nazirite promise, in addition to whatever else the person may have offered. The person must do just as they have promised, in adherence with the nazirite promise.

Priestly blessing

<sup>24</sup>The LORD bless you and protect you.

<sup>27</sup>They will place my name on the Israelites, and I will bless them.

The dwelling's dedication

7On the day when Moses finished setting up the dwelling, he anointed and made it holy. All its equipment, as well as the altar and all its equipment, he also anointed and made holy. <sup>2</sup>The chiefs of Israel, the leaders of their households, made their presentations. They were the tribal chiefs and those who were in charge of the enlistment. <sup>3</sup>They brought their offerings before the LORD: six covered wagons and twelve oxen—a wagon for every two chiefs, and an ox for every chief. They brought them near before the dwelling.

<sup>4</sup>The LORD said to Moses: <sup>5</sup>Take these from them and use them for service in the meeting tent. Give them to the Levites according to their duties.

<sup>11</sup>The LORD said to Moses: One chief per day will present their offering for the dedication of the altar.

6:22-27 The blessings are organized as a series of three sentences of three, five, and seven Hebrew words respectively, suggesting a rhythmical oral performance. If the name of God isn't counted, the total word count is 12, which may signify the 12 tribes of Israel. Though short, these sentences cover the complete life of Israel in six acts of God: bless, keep, make his face shine, be gracious, lift up his face, grant . . . peace. These blessings look to the future. God's blessings will materialize as the people live out their lives with God's name on them.

6:24 bless: relates to concrete and physical gifts, including descendants and prosperity. protect: means "guard, watch over" from all forms of evil (cf. Ps 121:7-8).

6:25 make his face shine: refers to the loving presence of God, in contrast to hiding his face, which conveys anger.

6:26 lift up his face: can involve answering requests, as in Genesis 19:21, which uses the same Hebrew words. grant you peace: provides well-being in all areas of life.

6:27 The blessings are a consequence of invoking God's name, which is the source of all blessings. They will place

my name on the Israelites: Through the priest's benediction, God's name functions as a protection from all harm. More deeply, it means that God owns Israel. The Israelites belong to God.

7:1-89 This text's context is Exodus 40, where the dwelling is set up. The chiefs and leaders give wagons and oxen so the Levites can move it (7:2-9). They also give bowls and animals for sacrifice (7:10-88). Each tribe, regardless of its size, brings the same offering. The wealth of the total offering is enormous. Such gifts may come from the materials that God provided for the Israelites from the Egyptians at the beginning of their journey in the wilderness (Exod 12:35-36).

7:1 On the day: one month before the start of Numbers (cf. Exod 40:17 and Num 1:1), so we have a flashback. However, prior material in Numbers prepares for this chapter: the names of leaders (Num 1:5b-15); the order of tribes (Num 2); and the assignments of the levitical houses (Num 4:1-33). 7:10-89 Describes the gifts that the 12 leaders individually bring on 12 consecutive days. The description of each leader's gift is identical. The day and name of the leader

This was the offering of Elizur, Shedeur's son.

This was the offering of Shelumiel, Zurishaddai's son.

This was the offering of Pagiel, Ochrans son.

<sup>84</sup>This is what the Israelite chiefs provided for the dedication of the altar on the day it was anointed: twelve silver dishes, twelve silver basins, and twelve gold bowls; <sup>85</sup>each silver dish weighing one hundred thirty shekels and each basin seventy shekels—all the silver equipment weighed two thousand four hundred shekels according to the sanctuary shekel; <sup>86</sup>the twelve gold bowls full of incense weighing ten shekels each according to the sanctuary shekel—all the gold of the bowls weighed one hundred twenty shekels; <sup>87</sup>all the animals for the entirely burned offering were twelve bulls, twelve rams, twelve male lambs a year old, with their grain offering; twelve male goats for the purification offering; <sup>88</sup>and all the animals for the well-being sacrifice were twenty-four bulls, sixty rams, sixty male goats, and sixty male lambs a year old. This was the dedication offering for the altar after it was anointed.

Moses in the dwelling

<sup>89</sup>When Moses entered the meeting tent to speak with the LORD, <sup>90</sup>he would hear the voice speaking to him from above the cover<sup>f</sup> that was on the chest containing the covenant, from between the two winged creatures. In this way he spoke to Moses.

The lampstand

OThe LORD spoke to Moses: <sup>2</sup>Speak to Aaron and say to him: When you set them up, the seven lamps will give light in front of the lampstand.

<sup>3</sup>Aaron did so. He set up its lamps in front of the lampstand as the LORD commanded Moses. <sup>4</sup>This is how the lampstand was made: it was hammered gold; from its base to its flower it was hammered. Moses made the lampstand according to the vision that the LORD had shown Moses.

7:89 The verse is difficult to translate for several reasons. For example, the underlying Hebrew uses the word "him," and it isn't entirely clear whether that word refers to Moses or the Lord (see translation note e). Our translation is based on reading the verse in its larger c context. cover: See translation note f. chest containing the covenant: See Exodus 25:17-22. 8:2 Aaron sets up the lamps. Earlier materials (Exod 27:20-21; Lev 24:2-4) state that Aaron (and his sons) is responsible for taking care of the lamps, but they don't specify who will set them up in the first place. lamps . . . give light in front of the lampstand: This is more precise than previous instructions (Exod 25:37). The Hebrew word for lampstand is menorah, and it plays an important role in the Jewish Festival of Hanukkah.

8:4 how the lampstand was made: See Exodus 25:31-40; 37:17-24. The seven lamps and their flowery design may symbolize the tree of life (Gen 3:22, 24). See also Zechariah 4:1-7.

Dedication of the Levites

<sup>13</sup>You will have the Levites stand before Aaron and his sons and you will present them as an uplifted offering to the LORD. <sup>14</sup>You will separate the Levites from the Israelites, and the Levites will be mine. <sup>15</sup>The Levites will enter to serve the meeting tent, after you have cleansed them and presented them as an uplifted offering. <sup>16</sup>They are given over to me from the Israelites in place of all the newborn, the oldest of all the Israelites. I take them for myself. <sup>17</sup>Every oldest male among the Israelites is mine, whether human or animal. When I killed all the oldest males in the land of Egypt, I dedicated them to myself. <sup>18</sup>I have taken the Levites in place of all the oldest among the Israelites. <sup>19</sup>I have selected the Levites from the Israelites for Aaron and his sons to perform the service of the Israelites in the meeting tent and to seek reconciliation for the Israelites so that there will not be a plague when the Israelites approach the sanctuary.

8:6 cleanse: another term for "purify." There are two reasons for purification of the Levites. First, they could defile the sanctuary, which would endanger the entire community with God's wrath (Num 1:53). Second, they are an offering to God in place of the oldest male Israelites (Num 3:12, 41, 45-46; 8:18).

8:7 water of purification: This exact phrase occurs only here in the OT, but a similar expression appears in other places (Num 19:9, 13, 20; 31:23). The source of the water isn't stated. It could be either the water mixed with the ashes of the red cow used in cleansing those contaminated by touching the dead (Num 19) or the water mentioned in the case of a woman accused of adultery (Num 5:17). Both of these waters are used for the same purpose: removing impurity or sinfulness. shave their bodies: The reason for this ritual is unclear, but it is mentioned in connection with cleansing persons with skin disease (Lev 14:8-9). The nazirites must shave their heads when they defile themselves by being near the dead (Num 6:9) and when completing a term of dedication (Num 6:18), but obviously not during the period of dedication to God (Num 6:5).

8:8-13 In some ways, the Levites are treated like animals to be sacrificed. lay their hands symbolizes identification or a substitution. The impurity of the Israelites is transferred to the bulls via the Levites. The Levites are an offering to God on behalf of the Israelites.

8:8 grain offering: See Leviticus 2:1-16; 6:14-18. purification offering: See Leviticus 4:1-5:13; Numbers 15:22-31.

8:11 uplifted offering: See Exodus 29:26-28; Leviticus 7:30-34; 10:14-15.

8:12 entirely burned offering: See Leviticus 1:3-17; 6:8-13. reconciliation for the Levites: Aaron the priest will give an entirely burned offering to God on behalf of the Levites so that they will be protected from God's wrath (Num 8:21). They themselves need to be redeemed or reconciled with God in order to work in the meeting tent, since anyone who approaches the holy God may incur God's wrath. 8:17 See Exodus 11.

8:19 Aaron and his sons: another phrase for "priests." A plague is the outcome of unlawful contact with the sanctuary (see also Num 16:46-50; 25:9, 18).

8:23-26 Changes the age for becoming a Levite to 25 years old (cf. 30 years in Num 4:3, 23, 30, 35, 39, 43, 47). This change might be because there aren't enough Levites, or because of a need for additional physical strength in taking down, carrying, and reassembling the sanctuary structures.

Passover

9The LORD spoke to Moses in the Sinai desert in the first month<sup>a</sup> of the second year after they had left the land of Egypt: 2Let the Israelites keep the Passover at its appointed time. 3On the fourteenth day of this month at twilight you will keep it at its appointed time. Keep it according to all its regulations and its customary practices.

4Moses instructed the Israelites to keep the Passover. 5At twilight on the fourteenth day of the first month<sup>1</sup> they kept the Passover in the Sinai desert. The Israelites did everything just as the LORD commanded Moses.

6But there were persons who were unclean from contact with a human corpse, and they were unable to keep the Passover on that day. They approached Moses and Aaron that day. 7These persons said to him, "Although we are unclean from contact with a human corpse, why must we be prohibited from presenting the LORD's offering at its appointed time with the rest of the Israelites?"

8Moses said to them, "Wait while I listen for what the LORD will command concerning you."

9The LORD spoke to Moses: 10Tell the Israelites: When any of you or your descendants are unclean from contact with a corpse or are on a long trip, they may still keep the Passover to the LORD. 11They will keep it at twilight on the fourteenth day of the second month.<sup>1</sup> They will eat the Passover lamb with unleavened bread and bitter herbs. 12They must not leave any of it until morning, nor break any of its bones. They will keep the Passover according to all its regulations. 13But any persons who are clean and not on a trip, yet don't keep the Passover, those persons will be cut off from their people, because they didn't present the LORD's offering at its appointed time. Those persons will bear their sin. 14If an immigrant resides among you and wishes to keep the Passover to the LORD, that one also will keep it according to its regulations and its customary practices. There will be one set of regulations for both of you, for the immigrant and for the native of the land.

Cloud over the dwelling

15On the day the dwelling was erected, the cloud covered the dwelling, the covenant tent. At night until morning, the cloud appeared with lightning over the dwelling. 16It was always there. The cloud covered it by day,<sup>a</sup> appearing with lightning at night. 17Whenever the cloud ascended from the tent, the Israelites would march. And the Israelites would camp wherever the cloud settled. 18At the LORD's command, the Israelites would march, and at the LORD's command they would camp. As long as the cloud settled on the dwelling, they would camp. 19When the cloud lingered on the meeting tent for many days, the Israelites would observe the LORD's direction and they wouldn't march. 20Sometimes the cloud would be over the dwelling for a number of days, so they would camp at the LORD's command, marching again only at the LORD's command. 21Sometimes the cloud would settle only overnight, and they would march when the cloud ascended in the morning. Whether it was day or night, they would march when the cloud ascended. 22Whether it was two days, or a month, or a long time, the Israelites would camp so long as the cloud lingered on the dwelling and settled on it. They wouldn't march. But when it ascended, they would march. 23They camped at the LORD's command and they marched at the LORD's command. They followed the LORD's direction according to the LORD's command through Moses.

9:1–14 The text supplements the Passover regulations in Exodus 12, explaining what to do if ceremonially unclean, traveling, or an immigrant.

9:1–5 in the first month of the second year: continues the flashback begun at Numbers 7:1, referring to the month before the date in Numbers 1:1. at its appointed time: divinely selected time (Lev 23:2, 4, 37). kept the Passover: In Exodus 12–13, the Passover took place before the people traveled. The same is true here (Num 10:12).

9:6 Anyone unclean must be separated from the camp so as not to defile the rest of the community (Num 5:1–4; 6:6; 19:1–22).

9:12 nor break any of its bones: also stated in Exodus 12:46.

9:13 cut off: This punishment can involve death or being kept out of the community.

9:14 an immigrant: distinguished from the foreigner, temporary resident, and day laborer, all of whom are forbidden to eat the lamb (Exod 12:43, 45). They need to be circumcised to observe Passover (Exod 12:48).

9:15–23 the cloud: a symbol of God's presence. Its fiery appearance at night agrees with that of Exodus 13:21–22. lightning: See Exodus 19:16; 20:18.

Trumpets

10 The LORD spoke to Moses: <sup>2</sup>Make two silver trumpets and make them from hammered metalwork. Use them for summoning the community and for breaking camp. <sup>3</sup>When both are blown, the entire community will meet you at the entrance of the meeting tent. <sup>4</sup>When one is blown, the chiefs, the leaders of Israel's divisions, will meet you. <sup>5</sup>When you blow a series of short blasts, the camp on the east side will march. <sup>6</sup>And when you blow a second series of short blasts, the camp on the south side will march. You will blow a series of short blasts to announce their march.

<sup>7</sup>To gather the assembly, blow a long blast, not a series of short blasts. <sup>8</sup>Aaron's sons the priests will blow the trumpets. This will be a permanent regulation for you throughout time.

<sup>9</sup>When you go to war in your land against an enemy who is attacking you, you will blow short blasts with the trumpets so that you may be remembered by the LORD your God and be saved from your enemies.

<sup>10</sup>On your festival days, your appointed feasts, and at the beginning of your months, you will blow the trumpets over your entirely burned offerings and your well-being sacrifices. They will serve as a reminder of you to your God. I am the LORD your God.

<sup>29</sup>Moses said to Hobab the Midianite, Reuel's son and Moses' father-in-law, "We're marching to the place about which the LORD has said, 'I'll give it to you.' Come with us and we'll treat you well, for the LORD has promised to treat Israel well."

times, emphasizing God's direction and the people's obedience.

10:2 The trumpets are different from the ram's horn (called a shofar) mentioned in Exodus 19:13-19.

10:5-6 east... south: The reason for mentioning only the eastern and the southern camps is not given. The Greek version of the Hebrew Bible added the departure of the western and the northern camps, using similar wording.

10:8 a permanent regulation for you throughout time: The priest's calling God's people was to be an ongoing practice. However, no meeting tent or temple has stood since the destruction of the temple in 70 CE.

10:9 a reminder of you to your God: In the context of battle, Israel suffers defeat if God "forgets" (cf. Ps 44:24). Blowing the trumpets functions like prayer, reminding God about the covenant that God made with Israel. (See also Num 10:10, 2 Chron 13:12-16.)

10:10 On your festival days: See the religious calendar in Numbers 28-29.

10:11-36 As a freed (Exod 1-18); covenantal (Exod 19-40); holy (Leviticus); and organized (Num 1:1-10:10) community, they now set out toward the promised land. The same Hebrew verb lies behind set out and march, making 14 appearances in these verses.

10:11 the twentieth day... second year: a precise date related to the exodus event (Exod 12). It's 19 days after the census of Israel's militia (Num 1:1-3) and 11 months after Israel's arrival at Sinai (Exod 19:1). The time marks a fundamental shift from staying at one particular place to moving on.

10:12 the Paran desert: territory north of Mount Sinai (1 Kgs 11:18; cf. Gen 14:6; 21:21; Deut 33:2) between Egypt and Canaan.

10:13-28 The marching order reflects Numbers 2:3-31, where the 12 tribes were divided into four groups. See also Numbers 1:5b-15; 7:20-83. The Levites march in their midst (Num 10:17, 21).

<sup>30</sup>Hobab said to him, "I won't go; I'd rather go to my land and to my folk."

<sup>31</sup>Moses said, "Please don't abandon us, for you know where we can camp in the desert, and you can be our eyes. <sup>32</sup>If you go with us, whatever good the LORD does for us, we'll do for you."

<sup>34</sup>Now the LORD's cloud was over them by day when they marched from the camp. <sup>35</sup>When the chest set out, Moses would say, "Arise, LORD, let your enemies scatter, and those who hate you flee." <sup>36</sup>When it rested, he would say, "Return, LORD of the ten thousand thousands of Israel."

Complaint at Taberah

11 When the people complained intensely in the LORD's hearing, the LORD heard and became angry. Then the LORD's fire burned them and consumed the edges of the camp.

Complaint over the lack of meat

<sup>4</sup>The riffraff among them had a strong craving. Even the Israelites cried again and said, "Who will give us meat to eat? <sup>5</sup>We remember the fish we ate in Egypt for free, the cucumbers, the melons, the leeks, the onions, and the garlic. <sup>6</sup>Now our lives are wasting away. There is nothing but manna in front of us."

<sup>7</sup>The manna was like coriander seed and its color was like resin. <sup>8</sup>The people would roam around and collect it and grind it with millstones or pound it in a mortar. Then they would boil it in pots and make it into cakes. It tasted like cakes baked in olive oil. <sup>9</sup>When the dew fell on the camp during the night, the manna would fall with it.

Moses' complaint about leadership

<sup>10</sup>Moses heard the people crying throughout their clans, each at his tent's entrance. The LORD was outraged, and Moses was upset. <sup>11</sup>Moses said to the LORD, "Why have you treated your servant so badly? And why haven't I found favor in your eyes, for you have placed the burden of all these people on me? <sup>12</sup>Did I conceive all these people? Did I give birth to them, that you would say to me, 'Carry them at the breast, as a nurse carries an unweaned child,' to the fertile land that you promised their ancestors? <sup>13</sup>Where am I to get meat for all these people? They are crying before me and saying, 'Give us meat, so we can eat.' <sup>14</sup>I can't bear this people on my own. They're too heavy for me. <sup>15</sup>If you're going to treat me like this, please kill me. If I've found favor in your eyes, then don't let me endure this wretched situation."

the cloud is insufficient. Or the text may be showing the importance of human and divine powers working cooperatively.

10:29 Moses' father-in-law is called not only Hobab (Judg 4:11), but also Jethro (Exod 3:1; 4:18; 18:1-12) and Reuel (Exod 2:18).

10:33 They may refer to Hobab and Moses, suggesting the father-in-law eventually agrees to Moses' persistent request. marched ahead of them: The order is different from Numbers 10:21, where the Kohathites, presumably carrying the chest, march in the middle. for three days: appears twice in this verse. The second appearance may be a scribal error.

10:34-36 The cloud and chest are symbols of God's commitment and presence. The Lord is portrayed as a warrior who gives victory (cf. Exod 15:3; 1 Sam 4-6; Ps 132:8).

11:1-3 This is the first rebellion story in the book of Numbers. The text highlights the sharp contrast between what precedes (the perfect preparation and ideal departure from Sinai) and what follows (constant complaints). It provides a pattern found in later stories: complaining, punishment, a cry for help, intercession, and removal of punishment. Eventually, this generation will fail to conquer the promised land from the south (Num 13-14).

11:1 complained intensely: What they complained about is unknown. the LORD... became angry: A similar expression occurs in other places as well (Num 11:10, 33; 12:9; 16:46; 22:22; 25:3, 4; 32:10, 13-14; see sidebar, "Divine Anger").

11:2 fire is sometimes connected with anger in the OT (e.g., Deut 32:22). Here, it may refer to lightning (Exod 9:23-24).

11:3 Taberah: As is often the case (cf. Num 11:34), a place is given a name that relates to an event that happened there (see translation note I).

11:4-34 These verses share the pattern of Numbers 11:1-3, but focus on leadership. The event is recounted in Psalm 78:26-31.

11:4 The riffraff: may refer to non-Israelites who went along with the Israelites from Egypt (Exod 12:38).

11:7-9 This description of the manna counters Numbers 11:6. The divine gift of manna was tasty and substantial, and it was provided daily (Exod 16:14-21, 31) until the Israelites came to the promised land (Exod 16:35; Josh 5:12).

11:10-15 Moses complains about his own responsibility by using a maternal metaphor. He portrays God as having conceived and given birth to the Israelites, but neglecting to nurse these suckling children (cf. Deut 32:18; Isa 40:11). Moses is not rejecting responsibility altogether, but complaining of caring for the Israelites alone.

Divine Anger God's anger appears frequently in the book of Numbers (Num 1:53; 11:1, 10, 33; 12:9; 14:18; 16:22, 46; 18:5; 22:22; 25:3-4, 11; 32:10, 13-14). Divine anger is both similar to and different from human anger.

Both God and humans become upset over wrongdoings. In Numbers, God's wrath arises over the people yearning to return to Egypt (Num 11:10, 33; 12:9); wanting to worship other gods (Num 25:3-4); and refusing to enter the promised land (Num 32:10, 13-14).

Both divine and human anger can be frightening. Certainly, that is the case with God's anger here in Numbers, as it frequently results in disaster and death (e.g., Num 11:1, 33).

However, unlike some forms of human anger, God's anger is not an unpredictable outburst. It stems from God's opposition to evil and wickedness. It reflects God's love for those who have wrongfully suffered.

Many biblical texts emphasize that God is slow to anger. Unlike many humans, "The LORD is very patient and absolutely loyal, forgiving wrongs and disloyalty" (Num 14:18; see also Exod 34:6; Ps 103:8; Jon 4:2). People today tend to assume either that God does not get angry—displaying only love—or that God becomes instantly angry over the smallest wrongdoing. Neither assumption matches what the Bible teaches: God's wrath can come, but only after exhausting God's patience.

<sup>16</sup>The LORD said to Moses, "Gather before me seventy men from Israel's elders, whom you know as elders and officers of the people. Take them to the meeting tent, and let them stand there with you. <sup>17</sup>Then I'll descend and speak with you there. I'll take some of the spirit that is on you and place it on them. Then they will carry the burden of the people with you so that you won't bear it alone. <sup>18</sup>To the people you will say, 'Make yourselves holy for tomorrow; then you will eat meat, for you've cried in the LORD's hearing, "Who will give us meat to eat? It was better for us in Egypt.'" The LORD will give you meat, and you will eat. <sup>19</sup>You won't eat for just one day, or two days, or five days, or ten days, or twenty days, <sup>20</sup>but for a whole month until it comes out of your nostrils and nauseates you. You've rejected the LORD who's been with you and you have cried before him, saying, "Why did we leave Egypt?"'"

<sup>21</sup>Moses said, "The people I'm with are six hundred thousand on foot and you're saying, 'I will give them meat, and they will eat for a month.' <sup>22</sup>Can flocks and herds be found and slaughtered for them? Or can all the fish in the sea be found and caught for them?"

<sup>23</sup>The LORD said to Moses, "Is the LORD's power too weak? Now you will see whether my word will come true for you or not."

<sup>24</sup>So Moses went out and told the people the LORD's words. He assembled seventy men from the people's elders and placed them around the tent. <sup>25</sup>The LORD descended in a cloud, spoke to him, and took some of the spirit that was on him and placed it on the seventy elders. When the spirit rested on them, they prophesied, but only this once. <sup>26</sup>Two men had remained in the camp, one named Eldad and the second named Medad, and the spirit rested on them. They were among those registered, but they hadn't gone out to the tent, so they prophesied in the camp. <sup>27</sup>A young man ran and told Moses, "Eldad and Medad are prophesying in the camp."

<sup>29</sup>Moses said to him, "Are you jealous for my sake? If only all the LORD's people were prophets with the LORD placing his spirit on them!"

Quail from the sea

<sup>30</sup>Moses and Israel's elders were assembled in the camp. <sup>31</sup>A wind from the LORD blew up and brought quails from the sea. It let them fall by the camp, about a day's journey all around the camp and about three feet deep on the ground. <sup>32</sup>Then the people arose and gathered the quail all that day, all night, and all the next day. The least collected was ten homers,<sup>m</sup> and

11:16 The elders are different from the leaders selected in Exodus 18:25-26.
 11:20 The phrase out of your nostrils sounds like You've rejected in Hebrew, suggesting their punishment fits their rejection.
 11:25 the spirit that was on him: The elders receive a portion of the spirit given to Moses. God's spirit also comes upon Balaam (Num 24:2) and various judges (e.g., Judg 3:10).

 11:31 a wind: In Hebrew this is the same as the word for "spirit" used in Numbers 11:25.
 11:32 ten homers: about 500 gallons.

they laid them out around the camp. <sup>33</sup>While the meat was still between their teeth and not yet consumed, the LORD's anger blazed against the people. The LORD struck the people with a very great punishment. <sup>34</sup>The name of that place was called Kibroth-hattaavah,<sup>a</sup> because there they buried the people who had the craving.

Miriam and Aaron challenge Moses

<sup>35</sup>From Kibroth-hattaavah the people marched to Hazeroth. 12 When they were in Hazeroth, Miriam and Aaron criticized Moses on account of the Cushite woman whom he had married—for he had married a Cushite woman. <sup>2</sup>They said, “Has the LORD spoken only through Moses? Hasn't he also spoken through us?” The LORD heard it. <sup>3</sup>Now the man Moses was humble, more so than anyone on earth.

The LORD defends Moses

<sup>4</sup>Immediately, the LORD said to Moses, Aaron, and Miriam, “You three go out to the meeting tent.” So the three of them went out. <sup>5</sup>Then the LORD descended in a column of cloud, stood at the entrance of the tent, and called to Aaron and Miriam. The two of them came forward. <sup>6</sup>He said, “Listen to my words: If there is a prophet of the LORD among you,<sup>o</sup> I make myself known to him in visions. I speak to him in dreams. <sup>7</sup>But not with my servant Moses. He has proved to be reliable with all my household. <sup>8</sup>I speak with him face-to-face, visibly, not in riddles. He sees the LORD's form. So why aren't you afraid to criticize my servant Moses?” <sup>9</sup>The LORD's anger blazed against them, and they went back.

The LORD punishes Miriam

<sup>13</sup>So Moses cried to the LORD, “God, please heal her!”

<sup>14</sup>The LORD said to Moses, “If her father had spit in her face, would she not be shamed for seven days? Let her be shut out of the camp for seven days, and afterward she will be brought back.” <sup>15</sup>So they shut Miriam out of the camp seven days. And the people didn't march until Miriam was brought back. <sup>16</sup>Afterward the people marched from Hazeroth, and they camped in the Paran desert.

Leaders explore the land of Canaan

from the tribe of Reuben, Shammua, Zaccur's son;

11:34 Kibroth-hattaavah: As is often the case (cf. Num 11:3), a place is named in a way that matches biblical events (see translation note n). This location is mentioned in Numbers 33:16-17.

11:35 Hazeroth: See Numbers 33:17-18.

12:1 the Cushite woman: might be Zipporah (Exod 2:15-22), since Cush appears in tandem with Midian (Hab 3:7). However, she could be another woman from Ethiopia.

12:3 humble: doesn't mean submissive or lacking courage, but having an unassuming integrity.

12:6-8 Some prophets receive God's word in visions, dreams, and riddles. However, God speaks to Moses face-to-face, visibly (see Exod 33:7-11; 34:6-7; Deut 34:10).

12:10 a skin disease flaky like snow: The precise nature of this disease is unknown (also mentioned in Exod 4:6; Lev 13:44-45; 14:2-3; 22:4; Num 5:2; 2 Kgs 5:27). While Miriam alone is mentioned as contracting this disease, Aaron fears similar punishment (Num 12:11).

12:14-15 spit in her face: a sign of contempt (Deut 25:9) and insult (Isa 50:6). shut out of the camp for seven days: prescribed in Leviticus 13:4 and 14:3. didn't march: Miriam is a leader, called a “prophet” in Exodus 15:20.

13:1-2 The Lord spoke: See Deuteronomy 1:19-46, where the people approached Moses and requested that he send out spies. which I'm giving to the Israelites: recalls God's promise to Israel's ancestors (Gen 23:2; Lev 14:34; 18:3; 25:38; Num 32:30).

13:3-16 The leaders aren't the same people as in Numbers 1:5-15. Except Hoshea (Joshua) and Caleb, none of the leaders are mentioned in the Bible again. The order of from the tribe of Manasseh, Gaddi, Susi's son;

<sup>17</sup>When Moses sent them out to explore the land of Canaan, he said to them, "Go up there into the arid southern plain and into the mountains. <sup>18</sup>You must inspect the land. What is it like? Are the people who live in it strong or weak, few or many? <sup>19</sup>Is the land in which they live good or bad? Are the towns in which they live camps or fortresses? <sup>20</sup>Is the land rich or poor? Are there trees in it or not? Be courageous and bring back the land's fruit." It was the season of the first ripe grapes.

Report about the land of Canaan

<sup>25</sup>They returned from exploring the land after forty days. <sup>26</sup>They went directly to Moses, Aaron, and the entire Israelite community in the Paran desert at Kadesh. They brought back a report to them and to the entire community and showed them the land's fruit. <sup>27</sup>Then they gave their report: "We entered the land to which you sent us. It's actually full of milk and honey, and this is its fruit. <sup>28</sup>There are, however, powerful people who live in the land. The cities have huge fortifications. And we even saw the descendants of the Anakites there. <sup>29</sup>The Amalekites live in the land of the arid southern plain; the Hittites, Jebusites, and Amorites live in the mountains; and the Canaanites live by the sea and along the Jordan."

<sup>30</sup>Now Caleb calmed the people before Moses and said, "We must go up and take possession of it, because we are more than able to do it."

<sup>31</sup>But the men who went up with him said, "We can't go up against the people because they are stronger than we." <sup>32</sup>They started a rumor about the land that they had explored, telling the Israelites, "The land that we crossed over to explore is a land that devours its residents. All the people we saw in it are huge men. <sup>33</sup>We saw there the Nephilim (the descendants of Anak come from the Nephilim). We saw ourselves as grasshoppers, and that's how we appeared to them."

The Israelites' complaint

14 The entire community raised their voice and the people wept that night. <sup>2</sup>All the Israelites criticized Moses and Aaron. The entire community said to them, "If only we had died in the land of Egypt or if only we had died in this desert! <sup>3</sup>Why is the LORD bringing us the tribes begins with Reuben (as in Num 1: 26; but unlike Num 2: 7; 10; 34). Hoshea means "he saved" (cf. Deut 32:44). Joshua means "the LORD saves." Joshua and Caleb, the two spies who don't fall under God's judgment, lead Ephraim and Judah, two of the most important tribes in the Bible. Ephraim will later be used as a name for the northern kingdom of Israel (Jer 31:9); and Judah becomes the southern kingdom that includes Jerusalem.

13:29 the mountains: located in the central region between the sea to the west and the Jordan to the east.

to this land to fall by the sword? Our wives and our children will be taken by force. Wouldn't it be better for us to return to Egypt?" <sup>4</sup>So they said to each other, "Let's pick a leader and let's go back to Egypt."

<sup>5</sup>Then Moses and Aaron fell on their faces before the assembled Israelite community. <sup>6</sup>But Joshua, Nun's son, and Caleb, Jephunneh's son, from those who had explored the land, tore their clothes <sup>7</sup>and said to the entire Israelite community, "The land we crossed through to explore is an exceptionally good land. <sup>8</sup>If the LORD is pleased with us, he'll bring us into this land and give it to us. It's a land that's full of milk and honey. <sup>9</sup>Only don't rebel against the LORD and don't be afraid of the people of the land. They are our prey.<sup>9</sup> Their defense has deserted them, but the LORD is with us. So don't be afraid of them." <sup>10</sup>But the entire community intended to stone them.

The LORD's anger and Moses' intercession

Then the LORD's glory appeared in the meeting tent to all the Israelites. <sup>11</sup>The LORD said to Moses, "How long will these people disrespect me? And how long will they doubt me after all the signs that I performed among them? <sup>12</sup>I'll strike them down with a plague and disown them. Then I'll make you into a great nation, stronger than they."

<sup>13</sup>Moses said to the LORD, "The Egyptians will hear, for with your power you brought these people up from among them. <sup>14</sup>They'll tell the inhabitants of this land. They've heard that you, LORD, are with this people. You, LORD, appear to them face-to-face. Your cloud stands over them. You go before them in a column of cloud by day and in a column of lightning by night. <sup>15</sup>If you kill these people, every last one of them, the nations who heard about you will say, <sup>16</sup>'The LORD wasn't able to bring these people to the land that he solemnly promised to give them. So he slaughtered them in the desert.'<sup>17</sup> Now let my master's power be as great as you declared when you said, <sup>18</sup>'The LORD is very patient and absolutely loyal, forgiving wrongs and disloyalty. Yet he doesn't forgo all punishment, disciplining the grandchildren and great-grandchildren for their ancestors' wrongs.'<sup>19</sup> Please forgive the wrongs of these people because of your absolute loyalty, just as you've forgiven these people from their time in Egypt until now."

<sup>20</sup>Then the LORD said, "I will forgive as you requested. <sup>21</sup>But as I live and as the LORD's glory fills the entire earth, <sup>22</sup>none of the men who saw my glory and the signs I did in Egypt and in the desert, but tested me these ten times and haven't listened to my voice, <sup>23</sup>will see the land I promised to their ancestors. All who disrespected me won't see it. <sup>24</sup>But I'll bring my servant Caleb into the land that he explored, and his descendants will possess it because he has a different spirit, and he has remained true to me. <sup>25</sup>Since the Amalekites and the Canaanites live in the valley, tomorrow turn and march into the desert by the route of the Reed Sea."<sup>26</sup>

The Israelites' punishment

<sup>26</sup>The LORD spoke to Moses and Aaron: <sup>27</sup>How long will this wicked community complain against me? I've heard the Israelites' dissent as they continue to complain against me. <sup>28</sup>Say to them, "As I live," says the LORD, "just as I've heard you say, so I'll do to you. <sup>29</sup>Your dead bodies will fall in this desert. None of you who were enlisted and were registered from 20 years old and above, who complained against me, <sup>30</sup>will enter the land in which I promised<sup>d</sup> to settle you, with the exception of Caleb, Jephunneh's son, and Joshua, Nun's son. <sup>31</sup>But your children, whom you said would be taken by force, I'll bring them in and they will know

14:5 fell on their faces: more than expressing fear of the angry mob, this action prepares Moses and Aaron for the imminent appearance of God (Num 14:10b).

14:6 tore their clothes: a sign of distress.

14:9 They are our prey: See translation note r. This statement contrasts with Numbers 13:32, where the land devours its residents; and Numbers 13:33, where the Israelites are mere grasshoppers.

14:10 the LORD's glory appeared: likely in a cloud (as in Exod 16:10; Num 9:15-23).

14:14 face-to-face: The Hebrew idiom here is "eye-to-eye." In Numbers 12:8, the Hebrew idiom is "mouth-to-mouth."

14:21 as I live: marks the beginning of a solemn pledge.

14:22 ten times: a figure of speech meaning "frequently," as in Genesis 31:7.

14:28 just as I've heard you say, so I'll do to you: Their desire for death in the desert (Num 14:2) is granted (Num 14:29, 32-33). Their perception that they will fall by the sword (Num 14:3) comes true (Num 14:43). Their plot to go back to Egypt (Num 14:3-4) is at least partially successful, as they march away from the promised land (Num 14:25). The spies' 40 days of scouting the promised land the land that you rejected. <sup>32</sup>Your bodies, however, will fall in this desert, <sup>33</sup>and your children will be shepherds in the desert for forty years. They will suffer for your unfaithfulness, until the last of your bodies fall in the desert. <sup>34</sup>For as many days as you explored the land, that is, forty days, just as many years you'll bear your guilt, that is, forty years. This is how you will understand my frustration." <sup>35</sup>[The LORD have spoken. I will do this to the entire wicked community who gathered against me. They will die in this desert. There they'll meet their end.

<sup>36</sup>The men whom Moses sent out to explore the land had returned and caused the entire community to complain against him by starting a rumor about the land. <sup>37</sup>These men died by a plague in the LORD's presence on account of their false rumor. <sup>38</sup>But Joshua, Nun's son, and Caleb, Jephunneh's son, survived from those men who went to explore the land.

<sup>39</sup>Moses spoke these words to all the Israelites, and the people mourned bitterly. <sup>40</sup>They rose early in the morning and went up to the top of the mountain range, saying, "Let's go up to the place the LORD told us to, for we have sinned."

<sup>41</sup>But Moses said, "Why do you disobey the LORD's command? It won't succeed. <sup>42</sup>Don't go up, for the LORD isn't with you. Don't be struck down before your enemies. <sup>43</sup>The Amalekites and the Canaanites will be there in front of you and you will fall by the sword because you turned away from the LORD, and the LORD is no longer with you." <sup>44</sup>Yet they recklessly<sup>a</sup> ascended toward the top of the mountains, even though Moses and the LORD's chest containing the covenant didn't depart from the camp. <sup>45</sup>Then the Amalekites and the Canaanites, who lived in those mountains, descended, struck them down, and beat them all the way to Hormah.

Immigrants in the land of Canaan

15 The LORD spoke to Moses: <sup>2</sup>Speak to the Israelites and say to them: When you enter the land where you will live, which I am giving you, <sup>3</sup>and you make a food gift<sup>b</sup> to the LORD as a soothing smell for the LORD from the herd or the flock—whether an entirely burned offering, or a sacrifice to fulfill a solemn promise, or a spontaneous gift, or at your sacred seasons—<sup>4</sup>the one presenting the offering to the LORD will bring a grain offering of one-tenth of fine flour mixed with one-fourth of a hin<sup>c</sup> of oil. <sup>5</sup>You will also offer one-fourth of a hin of wine as a drink offering with either the entirely burned offering or the sacrifice, for each lamb. <sup>6</sup>For a ram you will offer a grain offering of two-tenths of a measure of fine flour mixed with one-third of a hin of oil. You will also present one-third of a hin of wine for a drink offering as a soothing smell for the LORD. <sup>8</sup>When you offer a bull for an entirely burned offering, or a sacrifice to fulfill a solemn promise, or a well-being sacrifice to the LORD, <sup>9</sup>you will present<sup>d</sup> with the bull a grain offering of three-tenths of a measure of fine flour mixed with a half hin of oil. <sup>10</sup>You will present a half hin of wine for a drink offering as a food gift that is a soothing smell to the LORD. <sup>11</sup>So will it be done with each ox, each ram, or for any sheep or goat. <sup>12</sup>However many you offer, you will do the same for each one.

<sup>13</sup>Every citizen will perform these rituals in bringing a food gift that is a soothing smell to the LORD. <sup>14</sup>If an immigrant lives with you or has settled among you for many years and would also like to offer a food gift that is a soothing smell to the LORD, that person must do just as you do. <sup>15</sup>The assembly will have the same regulation for you and for the immigrant. The regulation will be permanent for all time. You and the immigrant will be the same in the LORD's presence. <sup>16</sup>There will be one set of instructions and one legal norm for the immigrant and for you.

14:33 forty years: the length of time usually associated with one generation (e.g., Judg 3:11).

14:44 the LORD's chest... didn't depart: The Israelites deviate from the pattern in Numbers 10:33-36 with deadly consequences.

14:45 Hormah means "utter destruction." This city reappears in Numbers 21:1-3, where the new generation begins their march by utterly destroying the Canaanites.

15:1-19:22 The regulations in these chapters show that God has not given up on the people. Two regulations are for when they enter the promised land (15:1-16, 17-31). Three assume settlement there (15:37-41; 18:1-32; 19:1-22).

15:3 a food gift: can be translated "an offering by fire" (see translation note v). This refers to various sacrifices that were burned on the altar (see Lev 1:9). an entirely burned offering: See Leviticus 1:3-17; 6:8-13. a sacrifice to fulfill a solemn promise: See Leviticus 22:21. a spontaneous gift: See Leviticus 7:16-17. at your sacred seasons: See Numbers 28-29.

15:4-12 Bigger animals require bigger grain and drink offerings. A measure is approximately five gallons, and a hin is about one gallon.

Offerings for accidental sin

<sup>22</sup>If by accident you don't obey all these commands that the LORD spoke to Moses, <sup>23</sup>or everything that the LORD commanded you through Moses from the day of the LORD's command onward for all time, <sup>24</sup>then if it was done unintentionally without the knowledge of the community, the entire community must offer one bull from the herd as an entirely burned offering, a soothing smell to the LORD, with its grain and drink offering according to the specific instruction, and one male goat for a purification offering. <sup>25</sup>The priest will seek reconciliation for the entire Israelite community. They will be forgiven, because it was unintentional and because they brought their food gift to the LORD, along with their purification offering in the LORD's presence for their accidental error. <sup>26</sup>The entire Israelite community and the immigrant residing among them will be forgiven, because all the people acted unintentionally.

<sup>27</sup>If an individual sins unintentionally, that person must present a one-year-old female goat for a purification offering. <sup>28</sup>The priest will seek reconciliation in the LORD's presence for the person who sinned unintentionally, when the sin is an accident, seeking reconciliation so that person will be forgiven. <sup>29</sup>There will be one set of instructions for the Israelite citizen and the immigrant residing with you for anyone who commits an unintentional sin.

Punishment for intentional sin

<sup>30</sup>But the person who acts deliberately,<sup>7</sup> whether a citizen or an immigrant, and insults the LORD, that person will be cut off from the people <sup>31</sup>for despising the LORD's word and breaking his commands. That person will be completely cut off and bear the guilt.

Instructions for Sabbath observance

<sup>32</sup>When the Israelites were in the desert, they found a man gathering wood on the Sabbath day. <sup>33</sup>Those who found him gathering wood brought him to Moses, Aaron, and the entire community. <sup>34</sup>They placed him in custody, because it wasn't clear what should be done to him. <sup>35</sup>Then the LORD said to Moses: The man should be put to death. The entire community should stone him outside the camp. <sup>36</sup>The entire community took him outside the camp and stoned him. He died as the LORD had commanded Moses.

Fringes on garments

<sup>37</sup>The LORD said to Moses: <sup>38</sup>Speak to the Israelites and say to them: Make fringes on the edges of your clothing for all time. Have them put blue cords on the fringe on the edges. <sup>39</sup>This will be your fringe. You will see it and remember all the LORD's commands and do them. Then you won't go exploring the lusts of your own heart or your eyes. <sup>40</sup>In this way you'll remember to do all my commands. Then you will be holy to your God. <sup>41</sup>I am the LORD your God, who brought you out of the land of Egypt to be your God. I am the LORD your God.

15:17-21 the first bread: the first in quality as well as in baking sequence (see also Lev 23:9-14). the threshing floor: a place where the grain is separated from the chaff (also mentioned in Num 18:27).

15:22-29 an entirely burned offering: See Leviticus 1:3-17; 6:8-13. purification offering: See Leviticus 4:1-5; 13. reconciliation: between God and either the community (15:25) or the individual (15:28).

15:30-31 acts deliberately: in contrast to accidental sin in Numbers 15:22-29. In Leviticus 5:1-6, even intentional sins can be redeemed when persons confess publicly how they have sinned. This option isn't available here, perhaps because of the severe sins of Numbers 11-14. cut off: This punishment can involve death or being kept out of the community.

15:32-36 This text provides an example of the deliberate sin described in the previous verses. Unlike the previous and the following texts, this one retells a past event, rather than recounting God's speech. It follows the pattern of Leviticus 24:10-16, which involves blasphemy: The case is defined, the offender is detained, Moses waits for God's direction, and the entire community executes God's verdict. put to death: as in Exodus 31:14-15; 35:2-3.

15:37-41 blue cords: reminders to keep God's commandments (see Deut 22:12). exploring the lusts: not only in the physical sense of committing an improper sexual act, but also in the metaphorical sense of disregarding God to chase after idols. holy: godly, set apart, distinct, dedicated, pure, and belonging to God (see Exod 19:6; Lev 19:2).

A challenge to the priesthood

16 Korah—Izhar's son, Kohath's grandson, and Levi's great-grandson—with Dathan and Abiram, Eliab's sons, and On, Peleth's son, descendants of Reuben, <sup>2</sup>rose up against Moses, along with two hundred fifty Israelite men, leaders of the community, chosen by the assembly, men of reputation. <sup>3</sup>They assembled against Moses and Aaron and said to them, "You've gone too far, because the entire community is holy, every last one of them, and the LORD is with them. Why then do you exalt yourselves above the LORD's assembly?"

<sup>4</sup>When Moses heard this, he fell on his face. <sup>5</sup>He spoke to Korah and all his community, "In the morning the LORD will make known who is his, who is holy, and who is able to approach him. The one he chooses for himself is the one who will be able to approach him. <sup>6</sup>This is what must be done. Korah and your entire community: Take censers for yourselves. <sup>7</sup>Tomorrow put fire in them and place incense on them in the LORD's presence. The man whom the LORD chooses, that one is holy. You Levites have gone too far!" <sup>8</sup>Moses said to Korah, "Listen, you Levites, <sup>9</sup>isn't it enough for you that Israel's God has separated you from the Israelite community to allow you to approach him, to perform the service of the LORD's dwelling, and to serve before the community by ministering for them? <sup>10</sup>He has allowed you and all your fellow Levites with you to approach him. Yet you also seek the priesthood? <sup>11</sup>Thus you and your entire community have assembled against the LORD. But Aaron, what is he that you complain about him?"

Test of priesthood

<sup>12</sup>Moses sent for Dathan and Abiram, Eliab's sons. But they said, "We won't come up! <sup>13</sup>Isn't it enough that you've brought us up from a land full of milk and honey to kill us in the desert so that you'd also dominate us? <sup>14</sup>Moreover, you haven't brought us to a land full of milk and honey, nor given us the inheritance of field and vineyard. Would you also gouge out the eyes of these men? We won't come up!"

<sup>15</sup>Moses became very angry and he said to the LORD, "Pay no attention to their offering. I haven't taken a single donkey from them, nor have I wronged any one of them."

<sup>16</sup>Moses said to Korah, "You and your entire community should appear before the LORD tomorrow, you, they, and Aaron. <sup>17</sup>Every person should take his censer, place incense on it, and present it before the LORD. Each person will carry his censer, two hundred fifty censers in all, including you and Aaron." <sup>18</sup>Then every person took his censer, placed fire on it, put incense on it, and stood at the entrance of the meeting tent with Moses and Aaron. <sup>19</sup>Korah gathered the entire community with them to the entrance of the meeting tent.

Then the LORD's glory appeared to the entire community. <sup>20</sup>The LORD spoke to Moses and Aaron, <sup>21</sup>"Separate yourselves from this community so that I may consume them in a moment."

<sup>22</sup>They fell on their faces and said, "God, the God of all living things. If one person sins, should you become angry with the entire community?"

<sup>23</sup>The LORD said to Moses, <sup>24</sup>"Speak to the community and say, 'Withdraw from around the dwellings of Korah, Dathan, and Abiram.'"

<sup>25</sup>Moses rose and went to Dathan and Abiram. Israel's elders followed him. <sup>26</sup>He spoke to the community: "Move away from the tents of these wicked men and don't touch anything of theirs, lest you too be wiped out for all their sins." <sup>27</sup>They withdrew from around the dwellings of Korah, Dathan, and Abiram. Then Dathan and Abiram came out and stood at the entrance of their tents with their wives, children, and little ones. <sup>28</sup>Moses said, "By this you will know that the LORD sent me to do these deeds and that it wasn't my own desire. <sup>29</sup>If all these people die a natural death, or if their fate be that of all humans, then the LORD hasn't sent me. <sup>30</sup>But if the LORD performs an act of creation, and the ground opens its mouth and swallows them and everything that belongs to them, so that they descend alive to their graves, then you'll know that these men disrespected the LORD."

The rebels' punishment

<sup>31</sup>As soon as he finished speaking these words, the ground under them split open. <sup>32</sup>The earth opened its mouth and swallowed them and their households, including every human that belonged to Korah and all their possessions. <sup>33</sup>They along with all their possessions descended alive to their graves, and the earth closed over them. They perished in the middle of the assembly. <sup>34</sup>All the Israelites who were around them fled at their cry, for they said, "The earth may swallow us." <sup>35</sup>Then fire went out from the LORD and consumed the two hundred fifty men offering incense.

The reminder of the censers

<sup>39</sup>Eleazar the priest took the bronze censers presented by those who had been consumed by fire and hammered them into a covering for the altar, <sup>40</sup>just as the LORD instructed him through Moses. This was a reminder for the Israelites that no outsider who isn't one of Aaron's descendants should approach to burn incense in the LORD's presence, so as not to be like Korah and his community.

<sup>41</sup>On the next day the entire Israelite community complained to Moses and Aaron, "You killed the LORD's people." <sup>42</sup>When the community assembled against Moses and Aaron, they turned toward the meeting tent. At that moment the cloud covered it, and the LORD's glory appeared. <sup>43</sup>Moses and Aaron came to the front of the meeting tent, <sup>44</sup>and the LORD spoke to Moses: <sup>45</sup>Get away from this community, so that I may consume them in an instant.

They fell on their faces, <sup>46</sup>and Moses said to Aaron, "Take the censer, put fire from the altar on it, place incense on it, go quickly to the community, and seek reconciliation for them. Indeed, the LORD's anger has gone out. The plague has begun." <sup>47</sup>Aaron took it as Moses said and ran into the middle of the assembly, for the plague had already begun among the people. He burned incense and sought reconciliation for the people. <sup>48</sup>He stood between the dead and the living, and the plague stopped. <sup>49</sup>Those who died from the plague were fourteen thousand seven hundred, in addition to those who died because of Korah. <sup>50</sup>Aaron returned to Moses at the entrance of the meeting tent once the plague stopped.

Aaron's budding staff

16:35 fire: See Numbers 11:1.

16:36-40 holy: God's rejection of the person bringing the offering doesn't automatically mean God rejects the substance of the offering. Accordingly, the censers of the 250 leaders are gathered from the fire and made into plates, metal sheets that covered the altar.

16:42 the LORD's glory appeared: See Exodus 16:10; Numbers 9:15-23.

16:46-50 Aaron represents the legitimate priests. Unlike the incense brought by the 250 leaders wanting to be priests, Aaron's incense stops punishment.

17:1-13 Unlike previous texts, which focus on the authority of both Moses and Aaron among other Levites, this text concentrates on Aaron as representing the whole tribe of Levi, not the priesthood. staff: same word as "tribe" in Hebrew. See also Exodus 7:8-13.

17:4 meeting tent: See note on Numbers 1:1. chest containing the covenant: See note on Numbers 4:5.

17:5, 10 The Hebrew word for complaints doesn't appear again in Numbers. However, the people continue to engage in similar behavior (e.g., Num 21:5).

blossoms, and bore almonds. <sup>9</sup>Moses brought out all the staffs from the LORD's presence to the Israelites. They saw what happened, and each person took back his staff.

<sup>10</sup>Then the LORD said to Moses, "Return Aaron's staff in front of the chest containing the covenant to serve as a sign to the rebels so that their complaints against me end and they don't die." <sup>11</sup>Moses did exactly as the LORD commanded him.

<sup>12</sup>The Israelites said to Moses, "We are perishing. We are being destroyed. All of us are being destroyed. <sup>13</sup>Anyone who approaches the LORD's dwelling will die. Are we doomed to perish?"

The priests' and Levites' duties

18 The LORD said to Aaron: You, your sons, and your household will bear the guilt of offenses connected with the sanctuary. You and your sons will bear the guilt of offenses connected with your priesthood. <sup>2</sup>Bring with you your brothers from the tribe of Levi, your father's tribe, so that they can assist you and serve you and your sons before the covenant tent. <sup>3</sup>They will perform their duties for you and the service for the entire tent. But they will not approach the holy equipment of the sanctuary or the altar, lest both they and you die. <sup>4</sup>They will assist you and they will perform the duties of the meeting tent with regard to all the work of the tent. But no outsider may accompany you. <sup>5</sup>You will perform the duties of the sanctuary and the altar. Then there will no longer be any anger against the Israelites. <sup>6</sup>I have taken your brothers, the Levites, from the Israelites. They are a gift to you, dedicated to the LORD to perform the service of the meeting tent. <sup>7</sup>You and your sons must perform the duties of your priesthood for all the matters of the altar and the area behind the curtain. I give you your priestly service as a gift. But an outsider who approaches will die.

The priests' compensation

<sup>8</sup>The LORD spoke to Aaron: I now place you in charge of my gifts, including all the Israelites' sacred offerings. I have given them to you and your sons as an allowance. This is a permanent regulation. <sup>9</sup>This is what belongs to you from the most holy offerings, from the offerings by fire: all their offerings, including their grain offerings, their purification offerings, and their compensation offerings. The most holy offerings that they bring to me will be yours and your sons'. <sup>10</sup>You will eat it as a most holy thing. Every male may eat it. It will be holy to you. <sup>11</sup>This will also belong to you, your sons, and your daughters: I'm giving you the gift offerings and all the Israelites' uplifted offerings. This is a permanent regulation. Anyone who is clean in your household may eat it. <sup>12</sup>All the choice oil, new wine, and the grain's first harvest that they give to the LORD, I'm giving to you. <sup>13</sup>The early produce of everything in their land, which they bring to the LORD, will be yours. Anyone who is clean in 17:13 Are we doomed to perish?: Biblical stories can end in questions for readers to consider (as in Jon 4:11).

18:1-7 The terms "sanctuary," "covenant tent," and "meeting tent" essentially mean the same thing. See notes on Numbers 1:1, 50; 3:28.

18:1 The LORD said to Aaron: a rare occurrence of God's speaking to Aaron alone (Lev 10:8). bear the guilt: face the consequences—divine punishment—for allowing the sanctuary to become unclean.

18:2 your brothers from the tribe of Levi: Levites' duties are to assist and serve the priests before the covenant tent, perform physical labor related to all the work of the tent, and guard the sanctuary from trespassing by other Levites and laypeople (Num 1:50-53; 3:5-10; 4:1-33; 8:14-19). They are defined by their association with the priests. They are subordinate and given to the priests as a gift. They have access only to the outer areas of the sanctuary and must not touch the sacred objects or altar.

18:5 anger: recalls divine anger in Numbers 1:53; 11:1, 33; 12:9; 14:1-25; 16:22, 46.

18:7 the area behind the curtain: the most sacred part of the meeting tent, home to the chest containing the covenant. Only one person, the high priest, could enter it once a year on the Day of Reconciliation (also called "the Day of Atonement.") It's called "the holiest space" in Exodus 26:33-34; "the inner holy area" in Leviticus 16; and "the holy of holies" in Hebrews 9:3.

18:8-32 Similar instructions are found in Leviticus 6:8-7:36; 10:12-15.

18:9-10 the most holy offerings: Three of these are mentioned (grain, purification, compensation). from the offerings by fire: Part of the sacrifice (usually the fat, see Lev 4:8-10) was burned in fire as an offering to God, but other parts went to the priests. grain offerings: See Leviticus 2:1-16; 6:14-18. purification offerings: See Leviticus 4:1-5:13; Numbers 15:22-31. compensation offerings: See Leviticus 5:14-6:7; Leviticus 7:1-6. You will eat it as a most holy thing: could indicate they should eat it in a holy place (see Lev 10:13).

18:11 gift offerings... uplifted offerings: See Exodus 29:26-28; Leviticus 7:30-34; 10:14-15.

18:12-13 All the choice... first... The early produce: the best, the foremost. Before the people enjoy the produce of the land, they should offer various kinds of early produce and the first yield of grain to God, who in turn gives them to the priests. clean: instructions for being ritually clean and pure can be found in Leviticus 12-15; 21; Numbers 19.

your household may eat it. <sup>14</sup>Everything that is devoted to the LORD in Israel will be yours. <sup>15</sup>Any oldest male from the womb of any living thing that is presented to the LORD, whether human or animal, will be yours. However, you will redeem the oldest males of humans and of unclean animals. <sup>16</sup>Their redemption price from one month of age you will calculate at five shekels of silver according to the sanctuary shekel, which is twenty gerahs. <sup>17</sup>But the oldest offspring of a cow, sheep, or goat you may not redeem. They are holy. You must dash their blood on the altar and turn their fat into smoke for a soothing smell to the LORD. <sup>18</sup>But their meat is yours. It will be yours just as the breast of the uplifted offering and the right thigh are yours. <sup>19</sup>All the holy gift offerings that the Israelites raise to the LORD I have given to you, your sons, and your daughters. This is a permanent regulation. It is a covenant of salt forever in the LORD's presence, for you and your descendants.

<sup>20</sup>The LORD said to Aaron: You will have no inheritance in their land, nor will you have a share among them. I am your share and your inheritance among the Israelites.

The Levites' compensation

<sup>21</sup>I have given all the one-tenth portions in Israel to the Levites as an inheritance. They are a reward for performing their service in the meeting tent. <sup>22</sup>The Israelites will no longer be able to approach the meeting tent, or they will be responsible for their sin and die. <sup>23</sup>The Levites will perform the service of the meeting tent, and they will be responsible for their own sins. This is a permanent regulation for all time. But they will not inherit land among the Israelites <sup>24</sup>because I've given the Israelites' one-tenth portion, which they have raised to the LORD as a gift offering, as an inheritance to the Levites. Therefore, I've said to them, "They won't inherit land among the Israelites."

<sup>25</sup>The LORD spoke to Moses: <sup>26</sup>Speak to the Levites and say to them: When you receive from the Israelites the one-tenth portion that I have given you from them as your inheritance, you also must present a gift offering to the LORD from it, a tenth from the one-tenth portion. <sup>27</sup>It will be considered your gift offering, like the grain of the threshing floor and what fills the winepress. <sup>28</sup>In this way you will also present a gift offering to the LORD from all the one-tenth portions that you take from the Israelites. You will provide from it a gift offering to the LORD for Aaron the priest. <sup>29</sup>You will present each gift offering to the LORD from all your gifts, from its best portions and its holiest parts.

<sup>30</sup>You will say to them: When you have presented the best portion, it will be considered for the Levites equivalent to the produce of the grain and the produce of the winepress. <sup>31</sup>You and your household may eat it anywhere, because it is payment for your service in the meeting tent. <sup>32</sup>You will not bear guilt after you have presented the best portion. But you must not make the sacred gifts of the Israelites impure, on penalty of death.

Instructions about the red cow and the water of purification

19 The LORD spoke to Moses and Aaron: <sup>2</sup>This is the regulation in the Instruction that the LORD commanded. Tell the Israelites that they must bring you a red cow without 18:14 Everything that is devoted: See Leviticus 27:28, including translation note k.

18:15-16 See Exodus 13:2, 11-16; 22:29-30; 34:19-20; Numbers 3:12, 47-48. redeem: to receive the redemption price. unclean animals: explained in Leviticus 11; Deuteronomy 14. shekels: See note on Numbers 3:47.

18:17-18 The offering of the oldest offspring of these clean animals is similar to the peace offering (Lev 3:1-17; 7:11-36). The key difference is that here the unburned meat is given to the priests, not divided between priests and offerer. uplifted offering: See note on Numbers 18:11.

18:19 salt: played important roles in rituals. It made in-cense pure and holy (Exod 30:35) and was offered with all sacrifices (Lev 2:13). See also 2 Chronicles 13:5.

18:20 A similar statement is made in Deuteronomy 18:1-2. 18:21 all the one-tenth portions: may refer to both agricultural produce and animals (cf. Neh 10:36-38; 13:5). See also Leviticus 27:30-33; Deuteronomy 12:6-18; 14:22-29;

26:12-15. reward: in the sense of a wage or salary in exchange for labor related to the tent.

18:23-24 they will not inherit land: No territory is given to the Levites, except 48 cities for them to live in (Num 35:1-8).

18:25-32 The tenth the Levites receive from the Israelites (18:26) is considered sacred gifts (18:32). They must bring a tenth from the one-tenth portion to God. When they do so, the remaining nine-tenths becomes equivalent to the produce (18:30), that is, no longer holy, but ordinary wages for the Levites' work. At that point, they can eat the nine-tenths anywhere (18:31). Prior to that time, however, it's sacred and set apart. Treating it as ordinary food before giving God the best portion (18:30) is how the sacred gifts are made impure (18:32).

19:2 Instruction: The Hebrew word is Torah, a term that sometimes refers to the first five books of the Old Testament. (See also Exod 12:49; 16:4.) red: symbolizes blood. without defect, which is flawless: See Leviticus 22:20; defect, which is flawless and on which no yoke has been laid. <sup>3</sup>You will give it to Eleazar the priest, and he will take it outside the camp and slaughter it in front of him. <sup>4</sup>Eleazar the priest will take some of its blood with his finger and sprinkle it seven times in front of the meeting tent. <sup>5</sup>Then he will burn the cow in front of him, its skin, flesh, and blood, with its dung. <sup>6</sup>The priest will take cedarwood, hyssop, and crimson cloth and throw them into the fire where the cow is burning. <sup>7</sup>Then the priest will wash his clothes and bathe his body in water. Afterward the priest will enter the camp, but he will be unclean until evening. <sup>8</sup>The one who burned the cow will wash his clothes in water and bathe his body in water, but he will be unclean until evening. <sup>9</sup>A person who is clean will gather the ashes of the cow and place them outside the camp in a clean place. They will be kept for the water of purification for the Israelite community as a purification offering. <sup>10</sup>The one who gathers the ashes of the cow will wash his clothes but will be unclean until evening. This will be a permanent regulation for the Israelites and for the immigrant who lives among them.

Contact with a dead body

<sup>11</sup>The person who touches the dead body of any human will be unclean for seven days. <sup>12</sup>That person must be cleansed with water on the third and seventh days to be clean. If he fails to be cleansed with water on the third and seventh days, he will not be clean. <sup>13</sup>Anyone who touches the body of a human who has died and doesn't cleanse himself defiles the LORD's dwelling. Such persons must be cut off from Israel because the water of purification wasn't sprinkled on them. They remain unclean.

<sup>14</sup>This is the instruction: When anyone dies in a tent, all who go into the tent and all who are in the tent are unclean for seven days. <sup>15</sup>Any open jar without a sealed cover on it is unclean. <sup>16</sup>Anyone in the open field who touches a person slain by the sword, or who died naturally, or a human bone or a grave, will be unclean for seven days. <sup>17</sup>For the unclean person, they will take some of the ashes of the purification offering and place fresh water with it in a jar. <sup>18</sup>Then a clean person will take hyssop, dip it into the water, and sprinkle it on the tent, on all the jars, on the people who were there, and on anyone who touched bone, the slain, the dead, or the grave. <sup>19</sup>On the third day and the seventh day the clean person will sprinkle it on the unclean, so that he will have purified him on the seventh day. He will then wash his clothes, bathe in water, and be clean at evening. <sup>20</sup>Any person who is unclean and didn't cleanse himself will be cut off from the assembly, because he has defiled the LORD's sanctuary. He didn't have the water of purification sprinkled on him. He is unclean. <sup>21</sup>This will be a permanent regulation for them. The one who sprinkles the water of purification will wash his own clothes. Anyone who touches the water of purification will be unclean until evening. <sup>22</sup>Whoever the unclean person touches will be unclean, and the one who touches the unclean will be unclean until evening.

Deuteronomy 17:1. on which no yoke had been laid: never used for physical work (Deut 21:3).

19:3 Eleazar the priest: Aaron's son and eventual successor. He's chosen for this procedure either to prevent the high priest from dealing with a dead body (Lev 21:11); to prevent the high priest from becoming unclean (Num 19:7); or to emphasize the permanent status of this regulation (Num 19:10, 21). Sacrifices usually occur in the meeting tent. However, ashes—the focus of this sacrifice—go outside the camp (e.g., Lev 4:12).

19:4 sprinkle it seven times in front of the meeting tent: similar to the practice of the purification offering (Lev 4:6, 17; 16:14-15; Num 8:7), except that the blood is sprinkled in front of the meeting tent, not before the veil.

19:5 Usually blood isn't burned as part of the offering. However, blood is the primary agent for purification, and burning it means its cleansing power is in the ashes (which are used for cleansing in Num 19:17-19).

19:6 Three items used to purify persons with skin disease (Lev 14:4-6, 49-52) are also used here. cedarwood is well known for its pleasing aroma. hyssop is connected with removing impurity (Ps 51:9). crimson cloth symbolizes blood.

19:7-10 Unlike most sacrifices, this one makes the priest and helpers unclean. (See sidebar, "Clean/Unclean" at Lev 13.)

19:9 water of purification: necessary for cleansing those who touch a dead body, as explained in Numbers 19:11-22.

19:11-22 The purpose of the ritual in Numbers 19:1-10 is to produce the water of purification, which allows those who touch a dead body to be cleansed.

19:13, 20 cut off: See note on Numbers 9:13.

19:21 Anyone who touches the water of purification will be unclean: See Numbers 19:7-10.

for the community, and they assembled against Moses and Aaron. <sup>3</sup>Then the people confronted Moses and said to him, "If only we too had died when our brothers perished in the LORD's presence! <sup>4</sup>Why have you brought the LORD's assembly into this desert to kill us and our animals here? <sup>5</sup>Why have you led us up from Egypt to bring us to this evil place without grain, figs, vines, or pomegranates? And there's no water to drink!"

<sup>6</sup>Moses and Aaron went away from the assembly to the entrance of the meeting tent and they fell on their faces. Then the LORD's glory appeared to them. <sup>7</sup>The LORD spoke to Moses: <sup>8</sup>"You and Aaron your brother, take the staff and assemble the community. In their presence, tell the rock to provide water. You will produce water from the rock for them and allow the community and their animals to drink."

<sup>9</sup>Moses took the staff from the LORD's presence, as the LORD had commanded him. <sup>10</sup>Moses and Aaron gathered the assembly before the rock. He said to them, "Listen, you rebels! Should we produce water from the rock for you?" <sup>11</sup>Then Moses raised his hand and struck the rock with his staff twice. Out flooded water so that the community and their animals could drink.

<sup>12</sup>The LORD said to Moses and Aaron, "Because you didn't trust me to show my holiness before the Israelites, you will not bring this assembly into the land that I am giving them."

<sup>13</sup>These were the waters of Meribah,<sup>c</sup> where the Israelites confronted the LORD with controversy and he showed his holiness to them.

The Israelites confront Edom

<sup>14</sup>Moses sent messengers from Kadesh to the king of Edom: "This is what your brother Israel says: 'You know all the adversity that has happened to us. <sup>15</sup>How our ancestors went down to Egypt and lived in Egypt for a long time. The Egyptians oppressed us as they had our ancestors, <sup>16</sup>and we cried out to the LORD. He heard our voice, sent a messenger, and brought us out of Egypt. Now here we are in Kadesh, a city on the edge of your border. <sup>17</sup>Please let us cross through your land. We won't pass through any field or vineyard, or drink water from any well. We will walk on the King's Highway and not turn to the right or to the left until we have crossed your border.'"

<sup>18</sup>Edom said to him, "You won't cross through, or I will come out against you with a sword."

<sup>19</sup>The Israelites said to him, "We'll go up by the road. If we drink from your water, either we or our livestock, we'll pay for it. It's a small matter. We would only ask to cross on foot."

(Num 14:26). Now they come back to the same place after many years of wandering in the wilderness. The name of the place sounds like the Hebrew word for "holiness," which appears in Numbers 20:12-13.

20:2 no water: appears here and in Numbers 20:5, suggesting the Israelites have a legitimate concern.

20:3 confronted: The Hebrew can mean "make a case against" and is often used in disputes (see title above Num 20:1). It's related to "Meribah," the name given to the site in Numbers 20:13. If only we too had died when our brothers perished: recalls Korah's rebellion and what followed (Num 17:12-13).

20:5 The Hebrew word translated here as evil can also mean "bad" or "threatening."

20:6 fell on their faces: See Numbers 14:5; 16:4, 22, 45. the LORD's glory appeared: See note on Numbers 14:10.

20:8 the staff: Aaron's budding staff that was placed in the meeting tent. It subdued rebellion before (Num 17:2-11). tell the rock to provide water: God gives Moses step-by-step instructions for producing water. No evidence of God's displeasure or anger is reported, in contrast to previous rebellions (Num 11:1, 20, 33; 12:9; 14:11-12; 16:46).

20:9-11 Moses and Aaron take the staff and gather the assembly as instructed (20:9-10a). However, Moses speaks to the people instead of to the rock (20:10b). By calling the people rebels, Moses misjudges them (20:10b). The people confronted, but didn't rebel, as seen in God's lack of anger.

In fact, God later uses the word "rebelled" to label Moses and Aaron's transgression (Num 20:24; 27:14). Should we produce water from the rock for you?: Moses knows he should. God just commanded him to do so. Moses raised his hand and struck... twice: contrasts with God's instruction to speak to the rock.

20:12-13 It isn't entirely clear how the Lord showed his holiness or how Moses and Aaron failed to trust that God would do so. However, failing to trust (or doubting) the Lord is the same sin the first generation committed in Numbers 14:11. Now Moses and Aaron must share their fate.

20:14-16 A similar short history of early Israel is found in Deuteronomy 26:5-8.

20:14 your brother Israel: Moses uses diplomatic language that may also appeal to a family relationship between Israel and Edom, as in the stories of Jacob (Israel) and Esau (Edom) in Genesis 25:19-33:20.

20:16 messenger: See Exodus 3:2; 14:19.

20:17 Please let us cross through your land: Marching through Edom is the best route for entering Canaan from the east. (Entering from the south failed in Num 14:44-45.) the King's Highway: an ancient north-south roadway on the east side of the Jordan River, connecting Damascus and the Gulf of Aqaba. The name implies a wide and guarded road for soldiers, merchants, and their animals.

20:18 Edom said to him... against you with a sword: Edom's

<sup>20</sup>But he said, "You won't cross." Then Edom came out against them with a powerful army and a strong hand. <sup>21</sup>Edom refused to allow Israel to cross his border. And Israel turned away from him. <sup>22</sup>They marched from Kadesh.

Aaron's death at Mount Hor

The entire Israelite community came to Mount Hor. <sup>23</sup>The LORD said to Moses and Aaron at Mount Hor on the border of the land of Edom: <sup>24</sup>Aaron will join his ancestors, for he may not enter the land that I've given to the Israelites, because you rebelled against my command at the waters of Meribah. <sup>25</sup>Take Aaron and his son Eleazar, and bring them up Mount Hor. <sup>26</sup>Strip Aaron of his clothes and put them on Eleazar his son. Then Aaron will die there.

<sup>27</sup>Moses did as the LORD commanded. They went up Mount Hor in the sight of the entire community. <sup>28</sup>Moses stripped Aaron of his clothes and put them on Eleazar his son. Aaron died there at the top of the mountain. Then Moses and Eleazar descended from the mountain. <sup>29</sup>When the entire community saw that Aaron had died, the entire household of Israel wept thirty days for Aaron.

Defeat of the Canaanite king of Arad

21 When the Canaanite king of Arad, who ruled in the arid southern plain, heard that the Israelites were coming on the Atharim road, he fought against Israel and took some of them captive. <sup>2</sup>Then Israel made a solemn promise to the LORD and said, "If you give this people into our hands, we will completely destroy their city." <sup>3</sup>The LORD heard the voice of Israel and handed the Canaanites over. They completely destroyed them and their cities, so the name of the place is called Hormah. <sup>4</sup>

The bronze snake's healing power

<sup>4</sup>They marched from Mount Hor on the Reed Sea* road around the land of Edom. The people became impatient on the road. <sup>5</sup>The people spoke against God and Moses: "Why did you bring us up from Egypt to kill us in the desert, where there is no food or water. And we detest this miserable bread!" <sup>6</sup>So the LORD sent poisonous<sup>f</sup> snakes among the people and they bit the people. Many of the Israelites died.

<sup>7</sup>The people went to Moses and said, "We've sinned, for we spoke against the LORD and you. Pray to the LORD so that he will send the snakes away from us." So Moses prayed for the people.

refusal and show of force in Numbers 20:20 may be what is severely criticized in Amos 1:11.

20:22b-29 Aaron's death begins to fulfill the Lord's word in Numbers 20:12. The text is very similar to the account of Moses' death in Deuteronomy 34:1-9. Both die on a mountain (20:22-23; Deut 34:1). Neither enters the promised land (20:24; Deut 34:4b). Their leadership transfers to the designated persons (20:25-26; Deut 34:9). The people mourn their deaths for 30 days (20:29; Deut 34:8). Aaron's death, together with the deaths of Miriam (Num 20:1); Korah; and the 250 leaders (Num 16:31-50), signals the end of the generation who came out of Egypt (Num 14:26-35). 20:22b Mount Hor. The precise location is unknown.

20:24 Aaron will join his ancestors: a figure of speech referring to death (Abraham [Gen 25:8]; Isaac [Gen 35:29]; Jacob [Gen 49:33]; and Moses [Num 27:13; Deut 32:50]), because you rebelled: See note on Numbers 20:9-11.

20:26 Strip Aaron of his clothes and put them on Eleazar his son: similar to Elijah and Elisha (2 Kgs 2:1-18). Aaron's clothes: his priestly vestments, described in Exodus 28 and Leviticus 8:7-9.

20:29 wept thirty days: exceeds the normal period for mourning (seven days) because of Aaron's importance.

21:1-3 Arad: south of Hebron in the arid southern plain (Josh 12:14). on the Atharim road: location unknown.

completely destroy: translates a technical term for a holy war, totally destroying the enemy and dedicating their lives and the spoils to God (Deut 7:1-2; Josh 6:17; see sidebar, "Holy War"). Hormah: derived from the Hebrew word for "completely destroy." It's the same place where the Israelites were completely defeated at the beginning of their campaign (Num 14:45). This victory signals an appropriate beginning for the new generation.

21:4-25:18 Characterizes the double nature of the new generation. Unlike the exodus generation, they confidently carry out God's plan for claiming the promised land (21:21-31, 32, 33-35). On the other hand, they behave like the exodus generation by complaining of hardships (21:4-9) and following other gods (25:1-18). Despite their ambivalent character, God intends to bring them into the promised land. God is faithful to keep the promise of land to Abraham (Gen 12:2; 15:7). God fulfills it not because of the obedience of the new generation but because of God's own faithfulness to the promise.

21:4 Mount Hor. See note on Numbers 20:22.

21:5 The contents of their complaint are similar to those of earlier events (Exod 17:2-3; Num 11:4-35; 16:13-14; 20:4-5).

21:6 poisonous: The Hebrew can also mean "burning," perhaps describing the effect of the poison.

21:7 The Israelites admit their sin honestly for the first time.

March around Moab

<sup>10</sup>Then the Israelites marched and they camped at Oboth. <sup>11</sup>They marched from Oboth and camped at Iye-abarim in the desert on the border of Moab toward the east. <sup>12</sup>From there they marched and camped in the Zered ravine. <sup>13</sup>From there they marched and camped across the Arnon in the desert that extends from the border of the Amorites, for the Arnon was the border of Moab, between Moab and the Amorites. <sup>14</sup>For this reason the scroll of the LORD's wars says:

Waheb in Suphah and the ravines.
The Arnon <sup>15</sup>and the ravines that extend to the settlement of Ar and lie along the border of Moab.

<sup>16</sup>From there they marched to Beer, the well where the LORD said to Moses, "Gather the people, and I'll give them water." <sup>17</sup>Then the Israelites sang this song:

"Well, flow up!
Sing about it!

<sup>18</sup>The well that the officials dug, that the officials of the people hollowed out with the ruler's scepter and their staffs."

They marched from the desert to Mattanah; <sup>19</sup>from Mattanah to Nahaliel; from Nahaliel to Bamoth; <sup>20</sup>from Bamoth to the valley in the Moabite countryside, to the top of Pisgah overlooking Jeshimon.<sup>8</sup>

Wars against Sihon and Og

<sup>21</sup>Then the Israelites sent messengers to Sihon the Amorite king: <sup>22</sup>"Let us pass through your land. We won't turn aside into a field or vineyard. We won't drink water from a well. We will walk on the King's Highway until we cross your border."

<sup>23</sup>But Sihon wouldn't allow the Israelites to cross his border. Sihon gathered all his people and went out to meet the Israelites in the desert. When he came to Jahaz, he attacked the Israelites. <sup>24</sup>The Israelites struck him down with their swords and took possession of his land from the Arnon to the Jabbok, as far as the Ammonites, for the border of the Ammonites was fortified. <sup>25</sup>The Israelites took all these cities. Then the Israelites settled in all the cities of the Amorites, in Heshbon and all its villages.

<sup>26</sup>Now Heshbon was the city of Sihon the Amorite king who had fought against the former king of Moab. He had taken all his land from him as far as the Arnon. <sup>27</sup>Therefore, the poets say:

"Come to Heshbon, let it be built.
Let the city of Sihon be established.

21:9 The bronze snake . . . on a pole is later placed in the temple and treated as an object of worship. Hezekiah finally removes it from the temple (2 Kgs 18:4). Jesus mentions this episode in John 3:14.

21:10-20 A summary of Israel's journey from Mount Hor to the top of Pisgah in Moab. Israel marches to nine stations in this journey, which takes them around Edom and Moab while skirting Amorite territory. The exact locations of these stations are uncertain, and their sequence doesn't correspond to the itinerary in Numbers 33:41-49.

21:14 the scroll of the Lord's wars: an unknown book. It points to the nature of Israel's warfare: God fights for the Israelites.

21:16-18a Beer: unknown site, meaning "well." The Song of the Well (21:17-18a) describes what workers would sing while digging a well. After digging, they would sing it again as an official (or chieftain) touched the well with a ceremonial staff to begin drawing water. It's used here to highlight God's provision of water.

21:20 Pisgah: near Mount Nebo, where Moses dies. Jeshimon: the wasteland north of the Dead Sea (see translation note g).

21:21-31 Recalls Israel's encounter with Edom.

21:21 Sihon the Amorite king: sometimes called "Heshbon's king" (Deut 2:26; Josh 12:5), he is ruler of the territory extending from the Jabbok River on the north to the Arnon River on the south and the Ammonite territory on the east.

21:23-25 as far as the Ammonites, for the border of the Ammonites was fortified: Deuteronomy 2:19 provides another reason Israel refrains from attacking the Ammonites. Heshbon: probably located about 47 miles east of Jerusalem; it is later given to the Levites (Josh 21:39).

21:26-30 Heshbon first belonged to Moab, but fell to Holy War The root meaning of the Hebrew word herem is “to devote” or “to destroy.” In the context of war, it refers to the total destruction of enemies and their belongings. No survivors were left. The population and the animals were slaughtered, while the city and plundered goods were burned. The word herem also refers to removing something from the sphere of the ordinary and setting it apart for God (Lev 27:21, 28; Deut 2:34; 3:2; Josh 6:17-18). When Joshua pronounced herem over Jericho, he made it clear that the gold, silver, and vessels of bronze and iron were holy to God and were therefore to be put into God’s treasury (Josh 6:19). The aspects of war and the sacred overlap in our text, where herem is undertaken in consequence of a solemn pledge. With a solemn pledge, Israel destroyed enemies and their properties as a sacrifice to God. Christians often wrestle with how to understand texts like this one in light of Jesus’ commands to love enemies (Matt 5:43-48).

- <sup>28</sup> Fire went out from Heshbon, flame from Sihon’s city.
It consumed Ar of Moab and swallowed up the shrines of the Arnon.
- <sup>29</sup> You are doomed, Moab!
You are destroyed, people of Chemosh!
He gave his sons as fugitives, and his daughters as captives to the Amorite king Sihon.
- <sup>30</sup> Yet we have thrown them down, destroying them<sup>b</sup> from Heshbon to Dibon.
We brought ruin until Nophah, which is by Medeba.”

<sup>31</sup> Israel settled in the land of the Amorites. <sup>32</sup> Moses sent spies to Jazer. They captured its villages and took possession of the Amorites who were there. <sup>33</sup> Then they turned and ascended the road of Bashan. Og, Bashan’s king, came out at Edrei to meet them in battle, he and all his people. <sup>34</sup> The LORD said to Moses: Don’t be afraid of him, for I have handed over all his people and his land. Do to him as you did to Sihon the Amorite king who ruled in Heshbon.

<sup>35</sup> They slaughtered Og, his sons, and all his people until there were no survivors. Then they took possession of his land.

Balak summons Balaam to curse the Israelites

22 The Israelites marched and camped in the plains of Moab across the Jordan from Jericho. <sup>2</sup> Balak, Zippor’s son, saw everything that the Israelites did to the Amorites. <sup>3</sup> The Moabites greatly feared the people, for they were so numerous. The Moabites were terrified of the Israelites. <sup>4</sup> The Moabites said to the elders of Midian, “Now this assembly will devour everything around us, as an ox eats up the grass in the field.”

Balak, Zippor’s son, was king of Moab at that time. <sup>5</sup> He sent messengers to Balaam, Beor’s son, at Pethor, which is by the river in the land of his people,<sup>1</sup> to summon him: “A people has

Sihon. Its fall was memorialized in the song in 21:27-30. Now the Israelites displace the Amorites.

21:32 Jazer: located on the Ammonite border (Num 33:34-36).

21:33-35 Similar to Deuteronomy 3:1-3. The text as a whole focuses on God and Israel, rather than Moses.

21:34 The command Don’t be afraid is similar to Numbers 14:9, but this time the people obey.

21:35 until there were no survivors: warfare of complete destruction (as in Num 21:2-3).

22:1-24:25 Balak’s failed plan to curse Israel takes place without Israel’s involvement. No Israelites are present in the story. Moses, God’s chief representative, isn’t mentioned. God works behind the scenes to turn a dangerous situation into a marvelous blessing without the Israelites’ knowledge.

22:1 the plains of Moab: a territory about six miles wide, northeast of the Dead Sea, where the second census takes place (Num 26:3, 63) and where Moses speaks his final words before dying on Mount Nebo (Deut 34:1, 8). It’s the last region they inhabit before crossing the Jordan River (Num 33:49; Josh 3:1). It’s assigned to the tribes of Reuben, Gad, and half of Manasseh (Josh 13:32).

22:2-3 Balak means “crusher”; yet his people greatly feared. 22:4 While Midian is some distance south of Moab (on the other side of Edom, east side of the Gulf of Aqaba), the Midianites were nomadic, going west into the Sinai Peninsula and north into Canaan and the Transjordan. Their appearance here (along with Num 25:6-9) anticipates Israel’s war with them in Numbers 31.

22:5 An archaeological discovery at Tell Deir ‘Alla in Jordan mentions a diviner, Balaam, the son of Beor. It dates to the 8th century BCE. According to Numbers, Balaam, Beor’s son, might have come from the Transjordan area, particularly Edom (see Gen 36:32). If so, the land of his people could be interpreted as the land of the Ammonites.

come out of Egypt, and they have now covered the land. They have settled next to me. <sup>6</sup>Now please come and curse this people for me because they are stronger than I am. Perhaps I'll be able to destroy them and drive them from the land, for I know that whomever you bless is blessed and whomever you curse is cursed."

<sup>7</sup>So the elders of Moab and Midian went with the payment for divination in their hands. They came to Balaam and told him Balak's words. <sup>8</sup>He said to them, "Spend the night here and I'll bring back to you a word exactly as the LORD speaks to me." So the officials of Moab stayed with Balaam.

<sup>9</sup>God came to Balaam and said, "Who are these men with you?"

<sup>10</sup>Balaam said to God, "Moab's King Balak, Zippor's son, sent them to me with the message, 'A people has come out of Egypt and covered the land. Now come and curse them for me. Perhaps I'll be able to fight against them and drive them out.'"

<sup>12</sup>God said to Balaam, "Don't go with them. Don't curse the people, because they are blessed."

<sup>13</sup>Then Balaam arose in the morning and said to Balak's officials, "Go to your land, for the LORD has refused to allow me to go with you."

<sup>14</sup>The officials of Moab arose, they went to Balak, and they said, "Balaam refused to come with us."

<sup>15</sup>Balak continued to send other officials more numerous and important than these. <sup>16</sup>They came to Balaam and said to him, "This is what Balak, Zippor's son, says: 'Please let nothing hold you back from coming to me, '17for I'll greatly honor you and I'll do anything you ask of me. Please come and curse this people for me.'"

<sup>18</sup>Balaam answered and said to Balak's servants, "If Balak were to give me his house full of silver and gold, I wouldn't be able to do anything, small or great, to break the command of the LORD my God. <sup>19</sup>Now you also must remain the night here so that I may know what else the LORD may say to me."

<sup>20</sup>God came to Balaam in the night and said to him, "If the men have come to summon you, arise and go with them. But you must do only what I tell you to do." <sup>21</sup>So Balaam arose in the morning, saddled his donkey, and went with the officials of Moab.

Balaam and the LORD's messenger

<sup>22</sup>Then God became angry because he went. So while he was riding on his donkey accompanied by his two servants, the LORD's messenger stood in the road as his adversary. <sup>23</sup>The donkey saw the LORD's messenger standing in the road with his sword drawn in his hand, so the donkey turned from the road and went into the field. Balaam struck the donkey in order to turn him back onto the road. <sup>24</sup>Then the LORD's messenger stood in the narrow path between vineyards with a stone wall on each side. <sup>25</sup>When the donkey saw the LORD's messenger, it leaned against the wall and squeezed Balaam's foot against the wall, so he continued to beat it. <sup>26</sup>The LORD's messenger persisted and crossed over and stood in a narrow place, where it wasn't possible to turn either right or left. <sup>27</sup>The donkey saw the LORD's messenger and lay down underneath Balaam. Balaam became angry and beat the donkey with the rod. <sup>28</sup>Then the LORD opened the donkey's mouth and it said to Balaam, "What have I done to you that you've beaten me these three times?"

Or, he might have been from northeastern Syria (see Num 23:7). Pethor, which is by the river, may refer to a well-known site on the Euphrates (Deut 23:4). If so, the distance between Pethor and the plains of Moab would be well over 370 miles, requiring the delegates to journey more than 20 days each way to Balaam. A people . . . now covered the land: recalls the plague of locusts brought upon Egypt (Exod 15:5, 15).

22:6 whomever you bless is blessed and whomever you curse is cursed: reflects performative speech associated with curses on enemies in ancient warfare. The act of speaking the curse becomes part of the battle itself. Balaam's curse is intended to weaken Israel, whose militia are too numerous to face.

22:8, 18 Although Balaam isn't an Israelite, he consults the LORD, that is, Israel's God.

22:22-35 This fable seems awkwardly connected with what precedes and follows. The fable paints a negative portrait of Balaam: The respected diviner is of lower character than his donkey. Balaam ironically can't see the Lord's messenger, whereas his donkey sees him clearly. His behavior in beating his donkey is beastly, while the donkey argues persuasively (22:30). This fable matches the negative pictures of Balaam found in other biblical texts (Num 31:16; Deut 23:4-7; Neh 13:1-2; 2 Pet 2:15-16; Jude 11); although there are also positive (Mic 6:3-5) and neutral (Josh 24:9-10) views of him. Perhaps the fable is God's way of testing that Balaam speaks only God's word (22:35). There are similar tests for Abraham (Gen 22:1-19); Jacob (Gen 32:22-32); and Moses (Exod 4:24-26). Balaam admits throughout the story that he is dependent on God (Num 22:8, 18, 35, 38; 23:3, 5, 8, 12, 16, 20, 26; 24:13).

22:22 the LORD's messenger: See Exodus 3:2; 14:19.

22:28, 30: On a few occasions, especially in metaphorical

<sup>29</sup>Balaam said to the donkey, "Because you've tormented me. If I had a sword in my hand, I'd kill you now."

<sup>30</sup>The donkey said to Balaam, "Am I not your donkey, on whom you've often ridden to this day? Have I been in the habit of doing this to you?"

Balaam said, "No."

<sup>31</sup>Then the LORD uncovered Balaam's eyes, and Balaam saw the LORD's messenger standing in the road with his sword drawn in his hand. Then he bowed low and worshipped. <sup>32</sup>The LORD's messenger said to him, "Why have you beaten your donkey these three times? I've come out here as an adversary, because you took the road recklessly in front of me. <sup>33</sup>The donkey saw me and turned away from me these three times. If it hadn't turned away from me, I would just now have killed you and let it live."

<sup>34</sup>Balaam said to the LORD's messenger, "I've sinned, because I didn't know that you were standing against me in the road. Now, if you think it's wrong, I'll go back."

<sup>35</sup>The LORD's messenger said to Balaam, "Go with the men. But don't say anything. Say only that which I tell you." So Balaam went with Balak's officials.

Balaam and Balak meet

<sup>36</sup>When Balak heard that Balaam was coming, he went out to meet him at Ir-moab, which is on the border of the Arnon at the farthest point of the border. <sup>37</sup>Balak said to Balaam, "Didn't I send urgently and summon you? Why didn't you come to me? Am I really not able to honor you?"

<sup>38</sup>Balaam said to Balak, "I've now come to you. But I'm only able to speak whatever word God gives me to say. That is what I will speak."

Balaam's first blessing of the Israelites

<sup>39</sup>Then Balaam went with Balak and they came to Kiriath-huzoth. <sup>40</sup>Balak sacrificed oxen and sheep and sent them to Balaam and the officials who were with him. <sup>41</sup>In the morning Balak took Balaam and brought him up to Bamoth-baal, where he could see part of the people.

23 Balaam said to Balak, "Build me seven altars here and prepare for me seven bulls and seven rams." <sup>2</sup>Balak did as Balaam had said. Then Balak and Balaam offered a bull and a ram on each altar. <sup>3</sup>Balaam said to Balak, "Stay by your entirely burned offering. I will go and perhaps the LORD will grant me an appearance and speak. Whatever he shows me, I will tell you." Then he went off to a high outlook.

<sup>4</sup>God granted Balaam an appearance. Balaam said to him, "I have arranged seven altars and I have sacrificed a bull and a ram on each altar."

<sup>5</sup>The LORD gave Balaam something to say, and said to him, "Return to Balak and say this."

<sup>6</sup>Balaam returned to him, while he and all the officials of Moab were standing next to his entirely burned offering. <sup>7</sup>Then he raised his voice and made his address:

"From Aram Balak led me, the king of Moab, from the eastern mountains.

Come, curse Jacob for me; come, denounce Israel.

<sup>8</sup>How can I curse whom God hasn't cursed?

How can I denounce whom God hasn't denounced?

or symbolic literature, nonhumans speak in the Bible: Genesis 3; Judges 9:7-20; Luke 19:40.

22:36-38 Balak shows his determination to have Israel cursed by traveling to the border to greet the famous seer and assure him of a handsome benefit for his service. Ir-moab: The underlying Hebrew is "the town of Moab" (see the possibly related "Ar" in Num 21:15, 28).

22:39-24:24 Balak's three attempts to curse Israel follow the same pattern: Balak takes Balaam to a place where seven altars and sacrifices are made. Balaam usually separates, has a revelation, and returns. Balaam speaks God's word, and Balak responds with dismay.

22:39 Kiriath-huzoth: an unknown site. The Hebrew means "the town of markets," which suggests abundant materials for a feast.

22:41 Bamoth-baal: north of Arnon, a site associated with the Moabite countryside (Num 21:20) and Heshbon (Josh 13:17). The Hebrew means "high places of Baal." From there, Balaam can see part of the people, meaning the far end of the people.

23:1 seven: a sacred number for perfection or completeness (cf. Gen 1:1-2:4a).

23:3-5 Balak's sacrifice is called an entirely burned offering, which is part of Israel's sacrificial system (Lev 1:3-17; 6:8-13), so it seems odd for a non-Israelite king. This identification stresses the fact that everything of the animal is burned to create a soothing aroma for God, which Balak hopes will persuade God to grant his wishes. I will go . . . he went off: God's appearance to Balaam is separated from Balak's offering. The LORD gave Balaam something to say: or "the Lord put a word in Balaam's mouth," an idiomatic expression used for the prophets of Israel (Deut 18:18). It's consistent with the portrayal of Balaam, who is obligated to speak only the word that God gives.

23:7-10 He raised his voice and made his address: occurs in all Balaam's oracles (Num 23:7, 18; 24:3, 15, 20-21, 23).

But now you've blessed him."

<sup>12</sup>He answered and said, "Don't I have to take care to speak whatever the LORD gives me to say?"

Balaam's second blessing of the Israelites

<sup>13</sup>Then Balak said to Balaam, "Come with me, please, to another place where you'll see them. You'll see only part of them. You won't see all of them. Then curse them for me from there." <sup>14</sup>He took him to the field of Zophim, to the top of Pisgah. He built seven altars and offered a bull and a ram on each altar.

<sup>15</sup>Then Balaam said to Balak, "Stand here by your entirely burned offering, while I seek an appearance over there."

<sup>16</sup>The LORD granted Balaam an appearance and gave him a message. He said, "Return to Balak and say this."

<sup>17</sup>Balaam approached Balak, who was standing by his entirely burned offering with the officials of Moab. Balak said to him, "What did the LORD say?"

<sup>18</sup>Then Balaam raised his voice and made his address:

"Arise, Balak, and listen;
hear me out, Zippor's son.

<sup>19</sup>God isn't a man that he would lie, or a human being that he would change his mind.
Has he ever spoken and not done it, or promised and not fulfilled it?

<sup>20</sup>I received a blessing, and he blessed.
I can't take it back.

<sup>21</sup>He hasn't envisioned misfortune for Jacob, nor has he seen trouble for Israel.
The LORD his God is with him, proclaimed as his king.

<sup>22</sup>God, who brought them out of Egypt, is like a magnificent wild bull for him.

<sup>23</sup>There is no omen against Jacob, no divination against Israel.
Instantly it is told to Jacob, and to Israel, what God performs.

As is often the case with Hebrew poetry, there is repetition and parallelism (e.g., 23:8). As in Numbers 22:8, 18, 35, 38; 23:3, 5, Balaam acknowledges his inability to curse Israel if it isn't God's will.

23:7 Aram: modern Syria. Jacob is another name for Israel.

23:9 The phrase Here is a people living alone doesn't point to Israel's solitary situation, but to its special status of being singled out among the nations. it doesn't consider itself among the nations: refers to its unique relationship with God.

23:10 the dust of Jacob: an immeasurable quantity, similar to "the stars in the sky and . . . the grains of sand on the seashore" (Gen 22:17).

23:11-12 Balak understands Balaam to be a sorcerer who attempts primarily to manipulate the future, whereas Balaam declares that he is a diviner who conveys divine will.

23:14 the field of Zophim: location unknown. Pisgah: See note on Numbers 21:20.

23:17 Balak said to him, "What did the LORD say?": Balak begins to recognize that Balaam must communicate only what God says.

23:18-24 Focuses more on God than Numbers 23:7-10. Balak, who wants to change the future through sorcery, must learn that God will not be manipulated to lie, change his mind, or break promises (23:19). For more on the idea of God "changing his mind," see 1 Samuel 15:11, 29, 35.

23:20 I can't take it back: Balaam's inability to reverse a divine pronouncement, grounded in God's determination to carry out what God had promised (cf. Isa 45:23; 55:11; Amos 1:3). By now, Balak should acknowledge that Israel's future is so secure that "no divination" could harm them (Num 23:23).

23:22 While God is like a magnificent wild bull (also in

like a lion it stands up.
It doesn't lie down until it eats the prey and drinks the blood of the slain."

<sup>25</sup>Then Balak said to Balaam, "Don't curse them or bless them."

<sup>26</sup>But Balaam answered and said to Balak, "Didn't I say to you, 'I'll do whatever the LORD tells me to?'"

Balaam's third blessing of the Israelites

<sup>27</sup>Balak said to Balaam, "Please come and I'll take you to another place. Perhaps God will prefer it, so that you could curse him for me from there."

<sup>28</sup>So Balak took Balaam to the top of Peor, which overlooks Jeshimon.<sup>1</sup> <sup>29</sup>Balaam said to Balak, "Build me seven altars here and prepare for me seven bulls and seven rams." <sup>30</sup>Balak did just as Balaam said. He offered a bull and a ram on each altar.

24 Balaam saw that it pleased the LORD to bless the Israelites, so he didn't go as the other times to seek omens. Instead, he turned toward the desert. <sup>2</sup>Balaam looked up and saw Israel camping by tribes. Then God's spirit came on him. <sup>3</sup>He raised his voice and made his address:

"The oracle of Balaam, Beor's son;
the oracle of a man whose eye is open.<sup>k</sup>

<sup>4</sup>The oracle of one who hears God's speech, who perceives the Almighty's<sup>l</sup> visions, who falls down with eyes uncovered.

<sup>5</sup>How beautiful are your tents, Jacob, your camps, Israel!

<sup>6</sup>Like palm groves that stretch out, like gardens next to a river,
like eaglewood trees that the LORD has planted, like cedar trees next to water.

<sup>7</sup>Water will drip from his branches;
his seed will have plenty of water;
his king will be higher than Agag,
and his kingdom will be lifted up.

<sup>8</sup>God, who brought him from Egypt,
is like a magnificent wild bull for him.
He will devour enemy nations and break their bones;
he will strike with his arrows.

<sup>9</sup>He crouched and lay down like a lion;
like a lioness, who can make her rise?
The one blessing you will be blessed, and the one cursing you will be cursed."

Num 24:8; Deut 33:17), this metaphor was taken too far by those who pursued idolatry with images of cows (Exod 32; Hos 8:5-6; 10:5).

23:27-24:24 Balak's third and final attempt differs from the first two. Balaam doesn't seek omens as he did previously (24:1). Instead, Balaam receives God's spirit (24:2) and predicts the fates of Israel (24:3-9); Moab (24:15-17); Edom (24:18-19); Amalek (24:20); the Kenites (24:21-22); and an unnamed nation (24:23-24).

23:28 Peor: See Numbers 25:3, 5, 18; 31:16. Jeshimon: a wasteland east of the Jordan Valley (see Num 21:20).

24:2 God's spirit came on him: Such an event can precede prophecy, as in 1 Samuel 19:20.

24:3-4 Balaam's oracle begins with his self-understanding as a divine seer with exceptional receptiveness to God's revelations. This description differs from the previous oracles and is the opposite of the description in Numbers 22:22-35.

24:4 falls down: Saul experiences similar prophetic behavior in 1 Samuel 19:24. the Almighty's: The Hebrew is Shaddai (see translation note l); and a similar term is used to describe divine beings in the Tell Deir 'Alla inscription (see note on Num 22:5).

24:5-7 The images in these verses stress Israel's prosperity and abundance. The emphasis on fertile land and water contrasts with the desert wilderness, where food and drink were scarce. In 1 Samuel 15:8, Agag is an Amalekite king, defeated by Saul.

24:10 pounded his fists: The Hebrew idiom is "clapped his hands," which in the Bible is a sign not of applause but of scorn (see Lam 2:15).

24:15-24 Many prophetic writings contain similar words, sometimes called "oracles against the nations" (Isa 13-23; Jer 46-51; Ezek 25-32; Amos 1:3-2:3).

24:17 star: likely refers to a victorious king (as in Isa 14:12, where the Babylonian king is called a "morning star"). Many candidates for this victorious king have been proposed in later interpretations, including David, who defeated the Moabites (2 Sam 8:2, 13-14); and the risen Jesus, who is called the bright morning star (Rev 22:16). a scepter: the distinguishing mark of royal office (Ps 45:6). the head of all the Sethites: may refer to the descendants of Seth (Gen 4:25-26). The Moabites originated from Seth through Lot, Abraham's nephew.

24:18-19 Edom and Seir can refer to the same land (Gen 32:3). Israel acts powerfully: in contrast to Israel's previous retreat from Edom (Num 20:14-21). This prophecy may be related to David's victory over Edom (2 Sam 8:2, 13-14; 1 Kgs 11:15-16). Ir: can mean "city" (see note on Num 22:36-38) and perhaps refers to Edom's capital.

24:20 Amalek: a powerful enemy against Israel (Exod 17:8-16; Num 14:25), later defeated by Saul (1 Sam 15:1-3) and David (1 Sam 30:1-31).

24:21 Kenites: possibly descendants from Cain (Gen 4:1-15). They enjoyed a friendly relationship with Israel (Judg 1:16; 1 Sam 15:4-9), but are also associated with the Amalekites.

24:22 Kain: likely refers to the Kenites or their possessions (though the Hebrew is the same as for "Cain" in Gen 4:1-15). Asshur: another name for Assyria, one of the superpowers in biblical times.

<sup>23</sup>He raised his voice and made his address:

"How terrible!

Who will live when God does this?

<sup>24</sup>Ships from Kittim will attack Asshur;
they will attack Eber,
and even he will perish forever."

<sup>25</sup>Then Balaam arose, set out, and returned home. Balak also went on his way.

Israelites and Moabites intermarry

25When the Israelites lived at Shittim, the people made themselves impure by having illicit sex with Moabite women. <sup>2</sup>The Moabite women invited the people to the sacrifices for their god. So the people ate a meal, and they worshipped their god. <sup>3</sup>Israel became attached to the Baal of Peor, and the LORD was angry at the Israelites. <sup>4</sup>The LORD said to Moses: Take all the leaders of the people and kill them on behalf of the LORD in broad daylight, so that the LORD's anger turns away from Israel.

<sup>5</sup>Then Moses said to Israel's officials, "Each of you: kill your men who are attached to the Baal of Peor."

Israelites and Midianites intermarry

<sup>6</sup>An Israelite man brought a Midianite woman to his brothers in the sight of Moses and the entire Israelite community, who were weeping at the entrance of the meeting tent. <sup>7</sup>When Phinehas (Eleazar's son and Aaron the priest's grandson) saw this, he arose in the middle of the community, took a spear in his hand, <sup>8</sup>went after the Israelite man into the chamber, and stabbed the two of them, the Israelite man and the woman, through the stomach. Then the plague stopped spreading among the Israelites. <sup>9</sup>Yet those who died by the plague numbered twenty-four thousand.

<sup>10</sup>The LORD spoke to Moses: <sup>11</sup>Phinehas (Eleazar's son and Aaron the priest's grandson) has turned back my rage toward the Israelites. Because he was jealous for me among you, I didn't consume the Israelites due to my jealousy. <sup>12</sup>Therefore, say: I'm now giving him my covenant of well-being. <sup>13</sup>It will be for him and his descendants a covenant of permanent priesthood, because he was jealous for his God and sought reconciliation for the Israelites.

24:23-24 The meaning of these verses isn't entirely clear. Kittim: Cyprus. Asshur: Assyria. Eber: probably the land east of the Euphrates, possibly Babylonia.

25:1-5 The story of the gold calf (Exod 32) likewise deals with idolatry and shows God's anger lessening when the idolaters are killed (Exod 32:26-28).

25:1 Shittim: short version of Abel-shittim, the last place of the Israelite march before entering the promised land (Nm 33:49; Josh 2:1; 3:1; 4:18).

25:3 Baal: the Canaanite storm god of fertility, though here it may be a localized deity associated with Peor, a location near the Israelite camp mentioned in the Balaam story (Nm 23:28).

25:4 kill them ... in broad daylight: a public execution (cf. the death of Saul's seven sons, 2 Sam 21:6).

25:5 officials: These officials behave like judges (see also Exod 18:25-26).

25:6 An Israelite man brought a Midianite woman to his brothers: Sexual activity may be involved, as Phinehas seems to stab both of them at once in Numbers 25:8. On Midianite, see note on Numbers 22:4. in the sight of Moses and the entire Israelite community: defines the behavior as public in nature. The community was weeping because of either the killing (Nm 25:4-5) or the plague (Nm 25:8, 18).

25:7 Phinehas: as part of the priestly family (grandson of Aaron through the line of Eleazar [Exod 6:25]), he is responsible to maintain the holiness of the camp by guarding any unlawful approach to the meeting tent.

25:8 the stomach: can also be translated "her stomach," which suggests the two are having sex when stabbed. the plague stopped: Phinehas' execution of the guilty parties appeases divine wrath. See Aaron's similar action in Numbers 16:46-48.

25:9 twenty-four thousand: 23,000 in 1 Corinthians 10:8.

25:11 he was jealous for me among you: the Hebrew idiom, "Phinehas was jealous with my jealousy." God's jealousy is an expression of God's desire to have an exclusive relationship with Israel. Phinehas' action reflects his fierce loyalty to God and affects the well-being of the entire community. 25:12 I'm now giving him my covenant of well-being: In the immediate context, God protects Phinehas from revenge by Zimri's clan of the tribe of Simeon (Nm 25:14) and affirms the duty of the Levites (and the priests) to protect the holiness of the meeting tent. The killing is necessary to sanctify the community and, in fact, saves the rest of the people from death by the plague.

25:13 covenant of permanent priesthood: See Nehemiah 13:23-31, which deals with similar topics like intermarriage and the priestly covenant. reconciliation for the Israelites: Phinehas mediates between God and Israel by killing the guilty, which averts God's wrath, secures God's forgiveness, and restores the broken relationship.

Cozbi the daughter of Zur, a tribal leader of a Midianite household. <sup>16</sup>The LORD spoke to Moses: <sup>17</sup>Go after the Midianites and destroy them <sup>18</sup>because they went after you by the deception they devised for you at Peor with Cozbi, the Midianite chief's daughter and their sister, who was killed on the same day as the plague during the events at Peor.

Second census of the Israelite tribes

suggest the couple was influential and may have caused others to act similarly. Cozbi: means "deceptive," which matches the deception described in 25:18. This event leads up to the Midianite war (Num 31).

26:1–36:13 This section focuses on the land, the goal of the new generation's campaign.

26:1–65 This census has similarities with the first census in Numbers 1. However, this census is for the second generation. Eleazar, not Aaron, his father, takes it with Moses. It occurs at the edge of the promised land, not the Sinai desert. The census itself mentions previous events, including Korah's rebellion (26:9–11); the deaths of Er and Onan (26:19); and the deaths of Nadab and Abihu (26:61). The total number of each tribe differs from that of the first census, although the sum of the numbers of the 12 tribes has no significant change (601,730 here, compared to 603,550 in Num 1:46). The primary purpose of this census is to provide a basis for the division of the promised land (26:52–55). The Levites are excluded from the census because they don't receive any inheritance of land (unlike Num 1:47–53, where they are excluded because they perform duties related to the meeting tent).

26:1 After the plague: See Numbers 25:8, 18. This plague seems to have wiped out the last members of the first generation (Num 26:63–65).

26:3 on the plains of Moab by the Jordan opposite Jericho: See note on Numbers 22:1.

26:4–51 This text has much in common with Genesis 46:8–26, which describes "the Israelites who went to Egypt." The phrase The Israelites who left the land of Egypt (26:4) shows the same families coming out of Egypt. To prevent confusion with the exodus generation of Numbers 1, this chapter clarifies that the next generation is in view (Num 26:63–65). Each tribe's description includes: (a) the tribe's name and how it was counted; (b) a list of clan names; and (c) confirmation that the clans belong to the tribe and the total number. 26:5–11 See Genesis 46:9; compare with Exodus 6:14. Dathan... Abiram... Korah: See Numbers 16:1–50. But Korah's descendants didn't die: The line of Korah wasn't terminated, as seen in later descriptions of the sons of Korah as temple singers (Pss 42; 44–49; 84–85; 87) and temple guards (1 Chron 9:19).

26:12–14 See Genesis 46:10; compare with Exodus 6:15. The decrease in population from 59,300 to 22,200 might be related to Numbers 25:1–18.

26:15–18 See Genesis 46:16.

26:19–22 See Genesis 46:12. Er and Onan: See Genesis 38; Deuteronomy 25:5–10. The focus on Perez may indicate a concern for tracing the line of David (Ruth 4:18–22; see also Matt 1:13; Luke 3:33). Judah's population increases.

<sup>52</sup>The LORD spoke to Moses: <sup>53</sup>The land will be apportioned to these as an inheritance according to the number of names. <sup>54</sup>To a large clan you will give a large inheritance, and to a small clan you will give a small inheritance. Each will be given its inheritance according to the number of its enrollment. <sup>55</sup>The land, however, will be apportioned by lot. They will inherit according to the names of their ancestral tribes. <sup>56</sup>Whether they are large or small, each tribe will inherit by means of the lot.

Second census of the Levites

<sup>57</sup>These are the ones enrolled as Levites according to their clans: from Gershon, the Gershonite clan; from Kohath, the Kohathite clan; from Merari, the Merarite clan.

26:48-50 See Genesis 46:24.

26:52-56 The location where each tribe ends up is determined by lot (the use of a small object to seek out divine will as in 1 Sam 10:17-22). However, distribution also occurs according to the number of its enrollment so that large clans receive enough land.

26:57-62 The male Levites are counted from one month of age and older due to their unique duties (Num 3:15). Unlike other tribes, they won't inherit any land. For these

They weren't enrolled with the Israelites because no inheritance of land was given to them among the Israelites.

Summary

Zelophehad's daughters' inheritance

27The daughters of Zelophehad, Hephher's son, Gilead's grandson, Machir's great-grandson, and Manasseh's great-great-grandson, belonging to the clan of Manasseh and son of Joseph, came forward. His daughters' names were Mahlah, Noah, Hoglah, Milcah, and Tirzah. <sup>2</sup>They stood before Moses, Eleazar the priest, the chiefs, and the entire community at the entrance of the meeting tent and said, <sup>3</sup>"Our father died in the desert. He wasn't part of the community who gathered against the LORD with Korah's community. He died for his own sin, but he had no sons. <sup>4</sup>Why should our father's name be taken away from his clan because he didn't have a son? Give us property among our father's brothers."

<sup>5</sup>Moses brought their case before the LORD. <sup>6</sup>The LORD said to Moses: <sup>7</sup>Zelophehad's daughters are right in what they are saying. By all means, give them property as an inheritance among their father's brothers. Hand over their father's inheritance to them. <sup>8</sup>Speak to the Israelites and say: If a man dies and doesn't have a son, you must hand his inheritance over to his daughters. <sup>9</sup>If he doesn't have a daughter, you will give his inheritance to his brothers. <sup>10</sup>If he doesn't have any brothers, you should give his inheritance to his father's brothers. <sup>11</sup>If his father had no brothers, you should give his inheritance to his nearest relative from his clan. He will take possession of it. This will be a regulation and a case law for the Israelites, as the LORD commanded Moses.

Announcement of Moses' death

<sup>12</sup>The LORD said to Moses, "Go up this mountain, Abarim, and look at the land that I've given to the Israelites. <sup>13</sup>You will see it and then join your ancestors just as Aaron your reasons, they are excluded from the census of the 12 tribes. Verses 57 and 62 together would satisfy the basic pattern used for another tribal entry. The middle section (26:58-61), however, provides information focused on the clan of Kohath, from which Moses, Aaron, and Miriam came (see also Exod 6:14-27). Aaron's descendants are listed (not Moses' or Miriam's) because they were priests. Nadab and Abihu: See Leviticus 10:1-7.

26:63-65 Concludes the second census and recalls Numbers 13-14.

27:1-11 Land is given to clans of the tribe from God. No portion of land can be permanently sold or taken away from its family of origin. Land inheritance typically follows the line of succession of male heirs (Lev 25; Num 26:52-54; 1 Kgs 21:1-4). However, this creates a legal problem when there are no male heirs to inherit the family property, as in the case brought by the daughters of Zelophehad. God's ruling is carried out later (Josh 17:3-6). Their case redefines the line of succession, applicable to all Israel (27:8-11). See also Numbers 36:1-13.

27:1 See Numbers 26:29-33.

27:2 before Moses, Eleazar the priest, the chiefs, and the entire community at the entrance of the meeting tent.

setting for a civil case brought to the public and resolved by God.

27:3 wasn't part of... Korah's community: If he had participated in Korah's rebellion (Num 16:1-50), he would have forfeited his right of inheritance. He died for his own sin: as part of the first generation that died in the wilderness. Because Zelophehad had no sons, his land would be inherited by his brothers.

27:5 The daughters' case is unprecedented, and it requires Moses to receive divine revelation, as in other cases (Lev 24:10-23; Num 9:6-14; 15:32-36). brought: The underlying Hebrew verb is similar to "came forward" in Numbers 27:1, indicating a step in the process of bringing the dispute to a higher authority for a ruling.

27:6-11 God's favorable ruling leads to more general regulations on the inheritance cases, expanding the existing law. case law: deals with specific circumstances (27:11), frequently with a word like "if" that precedes a description of when the law is applicable (27:8).

27:12-23 Follows a pattern similar to the death report of Aaron (Num 20:22-29): specific places; God's prediction of and reason for the death (Num 20:1-13); appointment of a successor; and Moses' execution of God's command brother has, <sup>14</sup>because in the Zin desert, when the community confronted you, you rebelled against my command to show them my holiness by means of the water.” (These are the waters of Meribah<sup>a</sup> of Kadesh in the Zin desert.)

<sup>15</sup>Moses spoke to the LORD: <sup>16</sup>“Let the LORD, the God of all living things, appoint someone over the community <sup>17</sup>who will go out before them and return before them, someone who will lead them out and bring them back, so that the LORD’s community won’t be like sheep without their shepherd.”

<sup>18</sup>The LORD said to Moses, “Take Joshua, Nun’s son, a man who has the spirit, and lay your hand on him. <sup>19</sup>Place him before Eleazar the priest and the entire community and commission him before them. <sup>20</sup>You will give him some of your power so that the entire Israelite community may obey. <sup>21</sup>He will stand before Eleazar the priest, who will determine for him the decision by lot before the LORD. At his command, he and all the Israelites with him, the entire community, will go out, and at his command they will return.”

<sup>22</sup>Moses did as the LORD commanded him. He took Joshua and placed him before Eleazar the priest and the entire community. <sup>23</sup>He laid his hands on him and commissioned him as the LORD had spoken through Moses.

Daily offering

28 The LORD spoke to Moses: <sup>2</sup>Command the Israelites and say to them: Make sure to offer to me my offering, my food, my food gift as a soothing smell to me at its appointed time.

<sup>3</sup>You will say to them: This is the food gift that you must present to the LORD: two flawless one-year-old lambs as the regular entirely burned offering every day. <sup>4</sup>One lamb you will offer in the morning and the second at twilight, <sup>5</sup>with a tenth of an ephah<sup>a</sup> of fine flour for a grain offering mixed with a fourth of a hin<sup>c</sup> of beaten oil. <sup>6</sup>It is the regular entirely burned offering begun at Mount Sinai, a food gift that is a soothing smell to the LORD. <sup>7</sup>Their drink offering will be a fourth of a hin for each lamb. In the sanctuary a drink offering of brandy will be poured out for the LORD. <sup>8</sup>The second lamb you will offer at twilight like the grain offering and the drink offering in the morning. You will offer a food gift that is a soothing smell to the LORD.

to install the successor. But unlike Numbers 20:22-29, this text doesn’t report the actual death of Moses (Deut 34:4-6) or the people’s mourning (Deut 34:8). Also, the request for a successor originates from Moses, not from God. Moreover, the commissioning procedure is greatly expanded (27:18-21).

27:12 Abanim: See Numbers 33:47-48; Deuteronomy 32:49.

27:13 Join your ancestors: die (Num 20:24).

27:14 See Numbers 20:1-13.

27:17 go out... return... lead them out and bring them back: military activity (Deut 31:2-3; Josh 14:11).

27:18 Joshua, Nun’s son: See Exodus 17:8-16; Numbers 11:28; 13:16; 14:6, 30, 38. a man who has the spirit: recalls the sharing of Moses’ spirit with the 70 elders (Num 11:16-27), although Joshua isn’t mentioned as one of them. See also Deuteronomy 34:9. lay your hand on him: symbolic act of transferring authority (cf. Num 8:10).

27:19 Place him before Eleazar the priest and the entire community: official presentation to the public (cf. 8:13). commission him: The underlying Hebrew can mean “command him,” which God does with Moses. See Deuteronomy 31:7-8.

27:20 some of your power: See Numbers 11:17.

27:21 lot: Unlike Numbers 26:55-56, the underlying Hebrew points to a specific type of lot, the Urim, which is used by the high priest with the Thummim to learn God’s will (Exod 28:30; Lev 8:8; 1 Sam 14:41; Ezra 2:63; Neh 7:65). The Urim and the Thummim are small objects, made of stones with symbols (indicating affirmative and negative answers) impressed on each side. They were kept in a small, square pocket of the high priest’s chest pendant (Exod 28:16, 29-30; 29:5; Lev 8:8). The high priest either pulled one out from the pocket or cast both of them on the ground to determine God’s will.

28:1-29:40 Compared to other ritual calendars (Exod 23:10-19; 34:18-26; Lev 23:1-44; Deut 16:1-17; Ezek 45:18-46:15), this text is more detailed regarding times and quantities for each occasion. Festivals are closely related to annual harvesttimes (spring and fall); as well as to the history of Israel (exodus, receiving the Instruction from Mount Sinai, and the wilderness journey).

28:2 my food: A similar expression is found in Leviticus 21:6. my food gift: See note on Numbers 15:3. at its appointed time: refers to sacred times/seasons that structured Israel’s worship life (Lev 23:2, 4, 37), just as the meeting tent refers to Israel’s sacred place. See also Numbers 9:1-5; 10:10; 15:3. 28:3-8 Compare with Exodus 29:38-46.

28:3 entirely burned offering: an offering of the entire animal consumed by the altar fire and offered regularly (see Lev 1:3-17; 6:8-13). This daily offering is foundational for the rest of offerings, which are offered “in addition to” it (Num 28:10, 15, 24, 31; 29:6, 11, 16, 19, 22, 25, 28, 31, 34, 38).

28:5 a tenth of an ephah: a half-gallon (see translation note s). grain offering: See Leviticus 2:1-16; 6:14-18. a fourth of a hin: one quart (see translation note t).

Monthly offering

<sup>11</sup>At the beginning of every month you will present an entirely burned offering to the LORD: two bulls from the herd, one ram, and seven one-year-old male lambs, all flawless. <sup>12</sup>Use three-tenths of fine flour for a grain offering mixed with oil for each bull, two-tenths of fine flour for a grain offering mixed with oil for each ram, <sup>13</sup>and one-tenth of fine flour for a grain offering mixed with oil for each lamb. It is an entirely burned offering with a soothing smell, a food gift to the LORD. <sup>14</sup>Their drink offerings will be half a hin of wine for a bull, a third a hin of wine for a ram, and a fourth a hin of wine for a lamb. This is the monthly entirely burned offering for every month through the months of the year. <sup>15</sup>There will be one male goat for a purification offering to the LORD in addition to the regular entirely burned offering and its drink offering.

Yearly offerings

Passover and unleavened bread

<sup>16</sup>On the fourteenth day of the first month<sup>a</sup> there will be a Passover offering to the LORD. <sup>17</sup>On the fifteenth day of this month there will be a festival. For seven days unleavened bread will be eaten. <sup>18</sup>The first day will be a holy occasion. You will not do any job-related work. <sup>19</sup>You will bring a food gift, an entirely burned offering to the LORD: two bulls from the herd, one ram, and seven male lambs one year old. They will be flawless. <sup>20</sup>Their grain offering will be fine flour mixed with oil. You will offer three-tenths for the bull, two-tenths for the ram, <sup>21</sup>and one-tenth for each of the seven lambs, <sup>22</sup>along with one male goat for a purification offering to seek reconciliation for yourselves. <sup>23</sup>You will offer these in addition to the entirely burned offering of the morning, which is the regular entirely burned offering. <sup>24</sup>Like these, you will also offer each day for seven days a food gift as a soothing smell to the LORD. It will be offered in addition to the regular entirely burned offering and its drink offering. <sup>25</sup>The seventh day will be a holy occasion for you. You will not do any job-related work.

Festival of Weeks

<sup>26</sup>The day of the early produce, when you present your new grain offering to the LORD at your Festival of Weeks, will be a holy occasion for you. You will not do any job-related work. <sup>27</sup>You will present an entirely burned offering as a soothing smell to the LORD: two bulls

28:9 Compare with Leviticus 23:3. An ephah (approximately five gallons; see note s), is used to measure the fine flour. So two-tenths of an ephah would be about one gallon.

28:11 the beginning of every month: based on a lunar calendar. two bulls... one ram... seven one-year-old male lambs: The same animals and quantities are used on each of the seven days of the celebration of Unleavened Bread (Num 28:19) and on the day of the Festival of Weeks (Num 28:27).

28:12-13 tenths of fine flour: See note on Numbers 28:9. grain offering: See Leviticus 2:1-16; 6:14-18.

28:14 A hin is approximately one gallon (see note t), so half would be about two quarts, a third would be about one and one-half quarts, and a fourth would be about one quart.

28:15 purification offering: See Leviticus 4:1-5:13; Numbers 15:22-31.

28:16 See Leviticus 23:5; Numbers 9:1-14. The Passover celebrates God's saving Israel in Egypt (Exod 12:3-14). The Passover offering is a family matter, separate from the public Feast of Unleavened Bread.

28:17-25 festival: the seven-day Feast of Unleavened Bread (see Exod 12:15-20; Lev 23:6-8). The amount of offerings for each day is the same as for the monthly offerings (without the drink offering here). The first day and the seventh day are called a holy occasion. It pictures the priestly calling of the people to make a pilgrimage to the sanctuary on the fifteenth and twenty-first days of the first month of every year to celebrate God's mighty act of the exodus.

28:20 grain offering: See Leviticus 2:1-16; 6:14-18.

28:22 The purification offering restores the defiled sanctuary's purity, so that the unholy people can be reconciled with the holy God (see Lev 4:1-5:13; Num 15:22-31).

28:26-31 Festival of Weeks: See Exodus 34:22; Deuteronomy 16:10. Also called the Harvest Festival (Exod 23:16); Pentecost (Acts 2); and the Day of First Fruits (cf. Lev 23:9-22). No specific date for this agricultural festival is stated here, but Leviticus 23:15-16 speaks of 50 days from the day on which the grain from the new crop is presented to the Lord for the priests' use (Lev 23:15-22; Num 18:12-13). The offerings for this festival are the same as that for each day's offering for the Festival of Unleavened Bread.

28:26 the early produce: sometimes translated "the first fruits."

28:27 entirely burned offering: See note on Numbers 28:3.

Blowing of the trumpet

29 The first day of the seventh month<sup>7</sup> will be a holy occasion for you. You will not do any job-related work. It will be for you a day of the trumpet's sound.<sup>2</sup> You will offer an entirely burned offering as a soothing smell to the LORD: one bull from the herd, one ram, and seven male lambs one year old, all flawless.<sup>3</sup> Their grain offering will be fine flour mixed with oil, three-tenths for the bull, two-tenths for the ram,<sup>4</sup> and one-tenth for each of the seven lambs.<sup>5</sup> There will be one male goat for a purification offering to seek reconciliation for yourselves.<sup>6</sup> This is in addition to the monthly entirely burned offering with its grain offering, and the regular entirely burned offering with its grain offering and drink offerings as prescribed. It will be a soothing smell, a food gift to the LORD.

Day of Reconciliation

<sup>7</sup>The tenth day of this seventh month will be a holy occasion for you. You will deny yourselves and not do any work.<sup>8</sup> You will present an entirely burned offering to the LORD as a soothing smell: one bull from the herd, one ram, and seven male lambs one year old. They will be flawless.<sup>9</sup> Their grain offering will be fine flour mixed with oil, three-tenths for the bull, two-tenths for the one ram,<sup>10</sup> and one-tenth for each of the seven lambs.<sup>11</sup> There will be one male goat for a purification offering in addition to the purification offering of reconciliation, and the regular entirely burned offering with its grain offering and drink offerings.

Festival of Booths

<sup>12</sup>The fifteenth day of the seventh month<sup>13</sup> will be a holy occasion for you. You will not do any job-related work. You will celebrate a festival to the LORD for seven days.<sup>13</sup> You will present an entirely burned offering, a food gift as a soothing smell to the LORD: thirteen bulls from the herd, two rams, and fourteen male lambs one year old. They will be flawless.<sup>14</sup> Their grain offering will be fine flour mixed with oil: three-tenths for each of the thirteen bulls, two-tenths for each of the two rams,<sup>15</sup> and one-tenth for each of the fourteen lambs.<sup>16</sup> There will be one male goat for a purification offering in addition to the regular entirely burned offering with its grain offering and its drink offering.

<sup>17</sup>On the second day: twelve bulls from the herd, two rams, and fourteen male lambs one year old, all flawless.<sup>18</sup> The grain offering and drink offerings for the bulls, rams, and lambs will be as prescribed for their number.<sup>19</sup> There will be one male goat for a purification

28:28-30 grain offering: See Leviticus 2:1-16; 6:14-18. reconciliation: See Numbers 28:22.

29:1-6 Compare with Leviticus 23:23-25. The first month of the Jewish calendar is the month of Nissan (March–April) when Passover occurs (Exod 12:2; Ezek 45:18). However, the first day of the seventh month (Tishrei, September–October) is the Jewish New Year's Day (called "Rosh Hashanah") because it is when the Jewish calendar year advances and is seen traditionally as the date when the world was created. A horn is blown to announce this beginning (see Num 10:10; Ps 81:3).

29:2 entirely burned offering: See note on Numbers 28:3.

29:3 grain offering: See Leviticus 2:1-16; 6:14-18. tenths: See note on Numbers 28:9.

29:5 purification offering: See note on Numbers 28:22.

29:6 This verse refers to the offerings described in Numbers 28:11-15.

29:7-11 The Day of Reconciliation can also be called the Day of Atonement or Yom Kippur. Similar instructions appear in Leviticus 16:1-34; 23:26-32. The main purpose is to cleanse the sanctuary of contamination from the people's sin. The offerings are similar to those of the New Year's Day celebration.

29:11 purification offering in addition to the purification offering of reconciliation: might refer to the purification offering for the high priest and his household (a bull, not a male goat, Lev 16:6) or another purification offering on behalf of the people (Lev 16:7-9).

29:12-38 See Leviticus 23:33-43; Deuteronomy 16:13-15. No name is given for this festival in the text, but other passages call it the Gathering Festival (Exod 23:16; 34:22) or the Festival of Booths (Lev 23:33; Deut 16:13). It can also be called by the Hebrew word for "booths," Sukkoth. This word refers to the temporary structures of workers during harvest, so this festival celebrates the fall harvest and is also connected to Israel's wilderness journey. It lasts seven days (29:12), as does the Festival of Unleavened Bread in the first month (Num 28:17-24). However, it requires more animals for an entirely burned offering (e.g., 13 bulls, 2 rams, and 14 male yearling lambs on the first day); and the number of bulls decreases one per day from 13 on the first day offering in addition to the regular entirely burned offering with its grain offering and drink offerings.

<sup>20</sup>On the third day: eleven bulls, two rams, and fourteen male lambs one year old, all flawless. <sup>21</sup>The grain offering and drink offerings for the bulls, rams, and lambs will be as prescribed for their number. <sup>22</sup>There will be one male goat for a purification offering in addition to the regular entirely burned offering with its grain offering and drink offering.

<sup>23</sup>On the fourth day: ten bulls, two rams, and fourteen male lambs one year old, all flawless. <sup>24</sup>The grain offering and drink offerings for the bulls, rams, and lambs will be as prescribed for their number. <sup>25</sup>There will be one male goat for a purification offering in addition to the regular entirely burned offering with its grain offering and drink offering.

<sup>29</sup>On the sixth day: eight bulls, two rams, and fourteen male lambs one year old, all flawless. <sup>30</sup>The grain offering and their drink offerings for the bulls, rams, and lambs will be as prescribed for their number. <sup>31</sup>There will be one male goat for a purification offering in addition to the regular entirely burned offering with its grain offering and its drink offerings.

<sup>32</sup>On the seventh day: seven bulls, two rams, and fourteen male lambs one year old, all flawless. <sup>33</sup>The grain offering and their drink offering for the bulls, rams, and lambs will be as prescribed for their number. <sup>34</sup>There will be one male goat for a purification offering in addition to the regular entirely burned offering with its grain offering and its drink offering.

<sup>35</sup>On the eighth day you will have a holiday. You will not do any job-related work. <sup>36</sup>You will present an entirely burned offering, a food gift as a soothing smell to the LORD: one bull, one ram, and seven male lambs one year old, all without blemish. <sup>37</sup>The grain offering and their drink offerings for the bull, ram, and lambs will be as prescribed for their number. <sup>38</sup>There will be one male goat for a purification offering in addition to the regular entirely burned offering with its grain offering and its drink offering.

<sup>39</sup>These you will offer to the LORD at your appointed times in addition to your payments for solemn promises, your spontaneous gifts, your entirely burned offerings, your grain offerings, your drink offerings, and your well-being sacrifices.

<sup>40</sup>Moses told the Israelites everything that the LORD commanded Moses.

Solemn promises by men

30 Moses spoke to the leaders of the tribes of the Israelites: This is what the LORD has commanded: <sup>2</sup>When a man makes a solemn promise to the LORD or swears a solemn pledge of binding obligation for himself, he cannot break his word. He must do everything he said.

Solemn promises by women

to seven on the seventh day. The accompanying grain and drink offerings are also scaled down for each day, while the purification offerings remain the same. The size of these public offerings reflects the abundance of the fertile land, from which the Israelites can thank God. The number seven (a symbol of perfection and completeness) is important to this text. The total number of animals sacrificed for a seven-day period is 70 bulls (10x7); 14 rams (2x7); and 98 yearling male lambs (2x7x7). Also, the decrease of a bull per day results in seven bulls for the burned offering on the seventh day. The seventh day of this festival is on the twenty-first day (3x7) of the seventh month. Seven is also important to Numbers 28:1–29:40: Seven feasts are mentioned. Both the spring (Unleavened Bread) and fall (Booths) festivals last seven days. The sabbath offering is given on the seventh day of the week. The Festival of Weeks begins on the day after seven Sabbaths from when the first part of the harvest was dedicated to God.

29:35–38 the eighth day: called a holiday (or “sacred gathering”), different from “a holy occasion” on the first day (Num 29:12). However, the same prohibition of work is mentioned for both days. It’s likely that the eighth-day celebration had a distinct origin (see 1 Kgs 8:2, 65–66) that was later integrated into the Feast of Booths.

30:2 a solemn promise to the LORD: committing to do something for God in exchange for divine support. Solemn promises in the Bible are conditional promises: If God does X, then the promise-maker will do Y (e.g., make a sacrifice). a solemn pledge: either promising that something is true (cf. Lev 6:3) or committing to do (or not to do) something. binding obligation for himself: suggests that the promise-maker’s own life is tied up in the agreement.

30:3–16 The text outlines in what circumstances fathers binding obligation for herself and keeps silent<sup>7</sup>—then all her solemn promises and any of her binding obligations for herself will stand. <sup>5</sup>But if her father expresses disapproval to her on the day that he hears her, none of her solemn promises nor any of her binding obligations for herself will stand. The LORD will forgive her, because her father expressed disapproval to her.

<sup>9</sup>Every solemn promise of a widow or a divorced woman who makes a binding obligation for herself will stand.

<sup>10</sup>If a woman makes a solemn promise in her husband's household or makes a binding obligation for herself with a solemn pledge, <sup>11</sup>and her husband hears, keeps silent, and doesn't express disapproval to her—then all her solemn promises will stand and all her binding obligations for herself will stand. <sup>12</sup>If her husband breaks them on the day he hears them, then whatever she said with regard to her solemn promises or the binding obligations for herself will not stand. Her husband has broken them. The LORD will forgive her.

<sup>13</sup>Her husband may allow any solemn promise or any binding pledge of self-denial to stand or be broken. <sup>14</sup>But if her husband keeps silent from one day to the next, he has upheld all her solemn promises, or all her binding obligations. He has upheld them because he remained silent on the day he heard them. <sup>15</sup>If he breaks them after he has heard them, he will assume her guilt.

<sup>16</sup>These are the regulations that the LORD commanded Moses concerning a husband and his wife and between a father and his daughter while she is young and in her father's household.

War against the Midianites

31 The LORD spoke to Moses: <sup>2</sup>Take just reparations for the Israelites from the Midianites. Afterward you will join your ancestors.

<sup>3</sup>Moses spoke to the people: "Equip some of your men for battle so that they may go against Midian and execute the LORD's just punishment against Midian. <sup>4</sup>You will send out for battle one thousand from each of the tribes of Israel."

<sup>5</sup>From the thousands of Israel, one thousand from each tribe were selected. Twelve thousand were equipped for battle. <sup>6</sup>Moses sent them to battle, one thousand from each tribe, along with Phinehas, Eleazar the priest's son, who carried the sanctuary equipment and the trumpets for sounding the alarm in his hand. <sup>7</sup>They battled against Midian as the LORD had commanded Moses, and they killed every male. <sup>8</sup>They killed the kings of Midian: Evi,

(30:3-5) and husbands (30:6-15) can nullify promises made by their daughters and wives. If the father or husband keeps silent on the day he learns of it, the promise will stand (i.e., remain binding). However, if he expresses disapproval to her on that day, then the promise may be broken without bearing guilt.

30:6-8 Addresses the situation of a woman who marries after she makes a solemn promise while unmarried. It presupposes that her promise has been approved by her father and has not been fulfilled when she marries.

30:9 a widow or a divorced woman is obligated to keep her promise, as is a man (Num 30:3).

30:13 The sorts of self-denial that a wife could and would make are not entirely clear.

30:15 The husband's authoritative status comes with great accountability: If he objects to her promise after the day he learns of it, he must bear the penalty.

31:1-12 Israel carries out God's command given in Numbers 25:16-18.

31:2 just reparations: in response to both Midian's support for Balak's plan to curse Israel through Balaam (Num 22:4, 7) and Midian's intermarriage with Israel (Num 25:6-18). join your ancestors: See note on Numbers 27:13.

31:3-4 just punishment: See note on Numbers 31:2. one thousand from each of the tribes of Israel: The number is small compared to the registered militia of 601,730 (Num 26:51), which suggests this is God's war.

31:5-6 The word "thousand" can also refer to a "military unit" (Josh 22:14).

31:6 Phinehas: chosen because of his killing Zimri and the Midianite woman Cozbi for their sin of intermarriage (Num 25:6-18). the sanctuary equipment: likely the chest containing the covenant. trumpets: See Numbers 10:9.

 31:18 Dt 21:10

Rekem, Zur, Hur, and Reba, the five kings of Midian, along with others slain. They also killed Balaam, Beor's son, with the sword. <sup>9</sup>The Israelites took captive the Midianite women, their little ones, all their cattle, their herds, and their possessions. <sup>10</sup>They burned all the cities where they lived and their encampments. <sup>11</sup>They took all the spoils of war and the valuable property, both human and animal, <sup>12</sup>and they brought the captives, the valuable property, and the spoils of war to Moses, Eleazar the priest, and the Israelite community, at the camp on the plains of Moab by the Jordan across from Jericho.

Purification from war

<sup>13</sup>Moses, Eleazar the priest, and the chiefs of the community went to meet them outside the camp. <sup>14</sup>Moses became angry with the commanders of the army, the officers of thousands and the officers of hundreds, who came back from the battle. <sup>15</sup>Moses said to them, "Have you let all the women live? <sup>16</sup>These very women, on Balaam's advice, made the Israelites break faith with the LORD in the affair at Peor, so there was a plague among the LORD's community. <sup>17</sup>Now kill every male child and every female who has known a man intimately by sleeping with him. <sup>18</sup>But all the young girls who have not known a man intimately by sleeping with him, spare for yourselves. <sup>19</sup>You will remain outside the camp for seven days. Everyone among you or your captives who has killed a person or touched a corpse must purify themselves on the third and seventh days. <sup>20</sup>You must also purify every garment, and everything made of leather, goats' hair, or wood."

Instructions about the spoils of war

<sup>21</sup>Eleazar the priest said to the men of battle who had gone out to war, "This is the regulation in the Instruction that the LORD commanded Moses: <sup>22</sup>Gold, silver, copper, iron, tin, and lead— <sup>23</sup>anything that can withstand fire—you will put through the fire and it will be clean. It will also be purified with the water of purification. Anything that isn't able to withstand fire, you will immerse in water. <sup>24</sup>You must wash your clothes on the seventh day and you will be clean. Afterward you may enter the camp."

<sup>25</sup>The LORD said to Moses: <sup>26</sup>You, Eleazar the priest, and the leaders of the community's households must take an inventory of the valuable property and the captives, both human and animals, <sup>27</sup>and divide the valuable property between the warriors who went into battle and the entire community. <sup>28</sup>You will offer as tribute to the LORD from each warrior who went into battle one living being in five hundred, whether human, oxen, donkeys, or flocks. <sup>29</sup>Take it from the warriors' half and give it to Eleazar the priest as a gift offering to the LORD. <sup>30</sup>But from the Israelites' half you will take one out of every fifty, whether from human, oxen, donkeys, or flock—all the animals. You will give them to the Levites who carry out the duties of the LORD's dwelling.

Cozbi, whom Phinehas stabbed (Num 25:15). Balaam, Beor's son: See Numbers 22-24; Joshua 13:22; 24:9-10.

31:9-12 took captive... burned all the cities... took all the spoils of war and the valuable property: actions of a holy war (see Deut 20:1-18). The detailed description builds up curiosity as to what will happen to the spoils, a key concern of the text.

31:13-18 The commanders' and officers' actions match the rules of holy war given in Deuteronomy 20:10-14, killing all males but taking women, children, and animals as spoils of war. Yet Moses becomes angry for sparing the Midianite women. He commands the killing of all male children and all women who aren't virgins. This severe command is issued because of the role the Midianite women played in the Baal of Peor affair (Num 25). According to Moses, they lured the Israelites to idolatrous rebellion, following Balaam's advice (although Num 25 didn't mention him). Inter-marriage with the Midianite women (Num 25:6-18) can be understood in light of the behavior of the Moabite women (Num 25:1-5). The virgins are spared for yourselves, that is, for marriage (Deut 21:10-14). 31:19-24 outside the camp... purify themselves: Because the war involved contact with dead bodies, the instructions of Numbers 19 need to be followed. third and seventh days: See Numbers 19:12, 19. Instructions for making the water of purification are given in Numbers 19:1-10, and its use in cleansing is found in Numbers 19:11-22.

31:25-47 God commands Moses to take an inventory of all spoils and to distribute them according to the following formula: (1) Divide them equally between the warriors who went to battle and the rest of the community (Josh 22:8; 1 Sam 30:23-25); (2) take a tax from each warrior at a rate of 1/500th (0.2 percent) for support of the priests and from each remaining Israelite at a rate of

of which the LORD's tribute was 72. <sup>39</sup>The donkeys were 30,500, of which the LORD's tribute was 61. <sup>40</sup>Humans were 16,000, of which the LORD's tribute was 32 persons. <sup>41</sup>Moses gave the tribute, a gift offering for the LORD, to Eleazar the priest as the LORD had commanded Moses.

<sup>48</sup>The commanders over the thousands of the army, officers over thousands and officers over hundreds, approached Moses <sup>49</sup>and said to Moses, "Your servants have counted the warriors in our charge and not one of us is missing. <sup>50</sup>We have brought the LORD's offering that each found, gold articles—anklets, bracelets, signet rings, earrings, and necklaces—to seek reconciliation for ourselves before the LORD." <sup>51</sup>Moses and Eleazar the priest took all the gold articles from them. <sup>52</sup>All the gold for the gift offering that was presented to the LORD from the officers of thousands and the officers of hundreds was sixteen thousand seven hundred fifty shekels. <sup>53</sup>Each of the men of battle took spoils of war for himself. <sup>54</sup>Yet Moses and Eleazar the priest also received the gold from the officers of thousands and of hundreds, and they brought it to the meeting tent as a memorial for the Israelites before the LORD.

Reuben and Gad request land

32 The livestock owned by the Reubenites and the Gadites were unusually vast and numerous. They saw that the land of Jazer and the land of Gilead were exactly the place for livestock. <sup>2</sup>So the Gadites and the Reubenites came and said to Moses, Eleazar the priest, and the chiefs of the community: <sup>3</sup>"Ataroth, Dibon, Jazer, Nimrah, Heshbon, Elealeh, Sebam, Nebo, and Beon is <sup>4</sup>the land that the LORD struck down before the Israelite community. It is a land for livestock, and your servants have livestock." <sup>5</sup>They said, "If you approve our request, give this land to your servants as property. Don't make us cross the Jordan."

<sup>6</sup>Moses said to the Gadites and the Reubenites, "Should your brothers go to war, while you stay here? <sup>7</sup>Why would you destroy the Israelites' resolve to cross into the land that the LORD gave them? <sup>8</sup>Your ancestors did this, when I sent them from Kadesh-barnea to inspect the land. <sup>9</sup>They went up to the Cluster ravine, saw the land, and destroyed the Israelites' resolve to enter the land that the LORD had given them. <sup>10</sup>The LORD became angry on that day and promised, <sup>11</sup>"None of the persons that went up from Egypt, those 20 years old and above, will see the fertile ground that I promised to Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob, because they didn't remain true to me, <sup>12</sup>except Caleb, Jephunneh the Kenizzite's son, and Joshua, Nun's son, because they remained true to the LORD.' <sup>13</sup>The LORD became angry with the Israelites and made them wander in the desert for forty years until the entire generation had died, which had done evil in the LORD's eyes. <sup>14</sup>Now you've taken the place of your ancestors, a group of sinful men, to intensify the LORD's anger against Israel. <sup>15</sup>If you turn away from him, he will turn away again to abandon Israel in the desert. Then you will destroy this entire people."

1/50th (2 percent) for support of the Levites. The formula is applied to both human (virgins) and animal booty. The total booty is exceptionally large.

31:49 not one of us is missing: No Israelite soldier is dead.
31:50 the LORD's offering: serves as ransom for each soldier (cf. Exod 30:11-16). seek reconciliation for ourselves before the LORD: to seek God's acceptance of the offering (Num 31:50-52) as substitution for their lives.

31:52 In response to God's miraculous help, the officers give 16,750 shekels of gold (about 400 pounds) to God. Unlike the portions given to the priest and the Levites, which are given at God's instruction, this gift is voluntary. It's an expression of thanks for God's sparing their lives in war.

31:54 a memorial for the Israelites before the LORD: a reminder of God's protection.

32:1-42 Compare with Deuteronomy 3:12-20. The text as a whole legitimizes the Transjordan settlement, on the condition that the Reubenites and the Gadites wage war west of the Jordan.

32:1-5 Jazer: a city near the Ammonite border within the land of Gilead, which refers to a region east of the Dead Sea and Jordan River (between the Arnon and the Jab-bok Rivers). Moses . . . community: Unlike the private negotiations in Numbers 32:16-27, this request is made in public.

32:6-15 Moses interprets the two tribes' request (Num 32:5) to be as serious as what the entire old generation did at Kadesh-barnea (Num 13-14).

32:15 this entire people: all the Israelites (not just the older generation, as in Num 13-14).

Conditions for possession of the land

<sup>16</sup>So they approached him and said, "We will build walled enclosures here for our livestock and towns for our children. <sup>17</sup>Then we will eagerly fight in front of the Israelites until we have brought them into their place. Our children will live in the fortified cities because of the land's inhabitants. <sup>18</sup>And we won't return to our homes until each one of the Israelites takes possession of his property. <sup>19</sup>We won't inherit land with them there across the Jordan, because we've received our property on the east side of the Jordan."

<sup>20</sup>Moses said to them, "Do this and fight before the LORD in war. <sup>21</sup>All of you who are equipped for war, cross the Jordan before the LORD until he has driven his enemies out before him <sup>22</sup>and the land is subdued in the LORD's presence. Then you may return innocently before the LORD and Israel, and this land will be your property before the LORD. <sup>23</sup>But if you don't do this, you've sinned against the LORD. Know that your sin will find you. <sup>24</sup>So build towns for your children and walled enclosures for your flocks, but do what you have promised."

<sup>25</sup>The Gadites and the Reubenites said to Moses, "Your servants will do as my master has commanded. <sup>26</sup>Our children, wives, livestock, and all of our animals will remain in the cities of Gilead. <sup>27</sup>But your servants, everyone equipped for war before the LORD, will go over to do battle as my master said."

<sup>28</sup>Moses made demands for them to Eleazar the priest, to Joshua, Nun's son, and to the leaders of the households of the Israelite tribes. <sup>29</sup>Moses said to them, "If the Gadites and the Reubenites cross the Jordan with you, each equipped for battle before the LORD, and the land is subdued before you, then you will give them the land of Gilead as a possession. <sup>30</sup>If, however, they don't cross with you, equipped for war, they will take possession of property with you in the land of Canaan."

<sup>31</sup>The Gadites and the Reubenites answered, "We'll do just as the LORD has spoken to your servants. <sup>32</sup>We'll cross into the land of Canaan before the LORD, equipped for war. But the property we inherit will be across the Jordan."

Territory of Gad, Reuben, and half the tribe of Manasseh

<sup>33</sup>So Moses gave to them—the Gadites, the Reubenites, and half the tribe of Manasseh, Joseph's son—the kingdom of Sihon the king of the Amorites, and the kingdom of Og the king of Bashan, including the land, its cities, and the territory surrounding the land's cities. <sup>34</sup>The Gadites built Dibon, Ataroth, Aroer, <sup>35</sup>Atroth-shophan, Jazer, Jogbehah, <sup>36</sup>Beth-nimrah, and Beth-haran, fortified cities and walled enclosures for flocks. <sup>37</sup>The Reubenites built Heshbon, Elealeh, Kiriathaim, <sup>38</sup>Nebo, and Baal-meon (whose names were changed), and Sibmah. They named the cities that they built. <sup>39</sup>The descendants of Machir, Manasseh's son, went to Gilead, captured it, and drove out the Amorites who were there. <sup>40</sup>So Moses gave Gilead to Machir, Manasseh's son, and he lived there. <sup>41</sup>Manasseh's son Jair went and captured their villages and named them Havvoth-jair. <sup>42</sup>Nobah went and captured Kenath and its surrounding villages. He renamed it Nobah after himself.

March out of Egypt and through the sea

33 These were the stages by which the Israelites marched when they left the land of Egypt, according to their military units under the leadership of Moses and Aaron.

32:16-27 Unlike what precedes (Num 32:1-5) and follows (Num 32:28), this passage depicts private negotiations between the Reubenites, Gadites, and Moses. The phrase before the LORD appears in Numbers 32:20-22 (x2). 27. It emphasizes that all their activities must be done in God's presence. God is in charge of fulfilling the land promise.

32:17 in front of the Israelites: The Reubenites and Gadites offer to lead the campaign.

32:20-24 Do this . . . But if you don't do this: This language is often used in covenants.

32:28-32 Moses presents the negotiated agreement to the whole community, represented by Eleazar, Joshua, and the leaders of the tribes. They serve as witnesses to the deal.

32:33-42 half the tribe of Manasseh: appears for the first time and becomes an additional recipient of the Transjordan territory (32:39-42). (On the other half of the tribe, see Josh 17:1-13.) The Gadites and Reubenites receive territories that have already been conquered (Num 21:21-35). They rebuild them and give them new names (32:34-38). Meanwhile, the descendants of Manasseh go after previously unconquered territory (32:39-42). Perhaps their own military campaign allows them to settle there, but it contradicts the normal character of holy war, with full participation of all Israelite tribes. See also Deuteronomy 3:12-15; Joshua 12:6.

A few places mentioned in Exodus and elsewhere in Numbers don't appear on this list: the wilderness of Shur (Exod 15:22); Taberah (Num 11:3); Hormah (Num 14:45; Num 21:3); Beer (Num 21:16); the valley of Zered (Num 21:12); Mattanah (Num 21:18-19); Nahaliel (Num 21:19); and Bamoth (Num 21:19-20).

33:3-4 The typical pattern for describing the journey is "They marched from A and camped at B" (Num 33:5-36, 41-49). This pattern isn't followed here when describing the beginning of the journey. Similarly, it isn't followed in Numbers 33:37-40 when describing the death of Aaron near the end of their march.

Divine instruction about the land

<sup>50</sup>The LORD spoke to Moses on the plains of Moab by the Jordan across from Jericho: <sup>51</sup>Speak to the Israelites and say to them: When you cross the Jordan into the land of Canaan, <sup>52</sup>you will drive out all the inhabitants of the land before you. You will destroy all their carved figures. You will also destroy all their cast images. You will eliminate all their shrines. <sup>53</sup>You will take possession of the land and live in it, because I've given the land to you to possess. <sup>54</sup>You will divide up the land by lot according to your clans. To the large you will make its inheritance large, and to the small you will make its inheritance small. To whomever the lot falls, that place will be his. You will inherit land according to your ancestral tribes. <sup>55</sup>But if you don't drive out the inhabitants of the land before you, then those you allow to remain will prick your eyes and be thorns in your side. They will harass you in the land in which you are living. <sup>56</sup>Then what I intended to do to them, I'll do to you.

Boundaries of the land of Canaan

33:56 Israel will lose the land if they don't completely take it from the Canaanites.

34:1–15 "From Dan to Beer-sheba" is a common way of speaking of the promised land's borders (1 Sam 3:20; 2 Sam 3:10; 2 Sam 17:11; 24:2; 1 Kgs 4:25). Here, the northern border (Lebo-hamath) is farther north than Dan; and the southern border (Kadesh-barnea) is farther south than Beer-sheba. These expanded borders recall the spy story

<sup>3</sup>Your southern boundary extends from the Zin desert alongside Edom. Your southern border extends from the edge of the Dead Sea on the east. <sup>4</sup>Your border will turn south of the ascent of Akkrabbim and cross toward Zin. Its limit will be south of Kadesh-barnea. It will go out to Hazar-addar and cross toward Azmon. <sup>5</sup>The border will then turn from Azmon to the Egypt ravine. Its limit will be at the Mediterranean Sea.

<sup>6</sup>Your western border will be the Mediterranean Sea. This will be your western border.

<sup>7</sup>This will be your northern border: From the Mediterranean Sea you will mark out your boundary to Mount Hor. <sup>8</sup>From Mount Hor you will mark out your boundary to Lebo-hamath. The limit of the border will be Zedad. <sup>9</sup>The border will go out to Ziphron. Its limit will be Hazar-enan. This will be your northern border.

<sup>10</sup>You will mark out your eastern border from Hazar-enan to Shepham. <sup>11</sup>The border will descend from Shepham to Riblah on the east side of Ain. The border will go down and meet the eastern slope of the Galilee Sea. <sup>12</sup>The border will descend to the Jordan. Its limit will be the Dead Sea.

This will be your land with its borders all around.

<sup>13</sup>Moses commanded the Israelites: This is the land that you will inherit by lot, which the LORD has commanded to give to the nine and a half tribes, <sup>14</sup>because the tribe of Reuben by their households and the tribe of Gad by their households, and half the tribe of Manasseh have taken their inheritance. <sup>15</sup>The two and a half tribes have taken their inheritance across the Jordan at Jericho toward the east.

Appointment of leaders to assign the inheritance

<sup>29</sup>These are the ones whom the LORD commanded to assign the inheritance of the Israelites in the land of Canaan.

Cities and pastures of the Levites

35 The LORD spoke to Moses in the Moab plains by the Jordan across from Jericho: <sup>2</sup>Command the Israelites that they give cities from their inherited property to the (Num 13–14). Throughout the political history of Israel, at no time do its boundaries reflect those listed in this text. Instead, these boundaries correspond to the land of Canaan known from Near Eastern (15th century) and Egyptian (13th century) texts. This suggests that the text is an idealized vision of Canaan as God's gift to Israel.

34:2 Command the Israelites: a phrase to introduce divine law and rituals (Num 5:2; 28:2; 35:2).

34:3-5 The southern border (cf. Josh 15:1-4; Ezek 47:19) is described generally (34:3a), as well as specifically (34:3b-5).

34:6 The western border is marked by a single landmark, the Mediterranean Sea, without mentioning the Judahites (Josh 15:12) or the link to Lebo-hamath (Ezek 47:20).

34:7-9 The northern border is similar to Ezekiel 47:15-17. It differs from Joshua 15:5b-11, which marks the northern tip of the Dead Sea as the beginning of the border and includes many more locations. Note that Mount Hor must be a different site than the place where Aaron died (Num 20:22; 33:38).

34:10-12 The eastern border (cf. Josh 15:5a; Ezek 47:18) clearly distinguishes the land Israel is to inherit from the land in the Transjordan (see Num 34:14-15).

34:13-15 These verses reaffirm the principles of distribution of the land (Num 26:52-56), as well as the decision made for the tribes of Reuben, Gad, and half of Manasseh (Num 32:1-32).

34:16-29 Eleazar and Joshua, succeeding Aaron and Moses, supervise the land distribution, which is carried out by the 10 leaders, selected from each of the 10 tribes (excluding Reuben and Gad). Except Caleb (Num 13:6; 14:24), all other names are new in Numbers and appear rarely in other texts. The order of the tribes is also new and reflects Israel's settlement from the south (Judah, Simeon, Benjamin, and Dan, 34:19-22); to the central region (half of Manasseh and Ephraim, 34:23-24); and finally to the north (Zebulun, Issachar, Asher, and Naphtali, 34:25-28). The tribe of Judah is prominent, placed first (see also Num 2:3-9; 7:12-17; 10:14).

35:1-8 During the wilderness journey the Levites are separated from the other tribes. They are a divine possession, functioning as substitutes for Israel's oldest male child (Num 3:40-51), dedicated to God (Num 8:5-26). They are given two main tasks: caring for (taking down, carrying, and setting up) the covenant dwelling

Levites in which to live. You will also give the Levites pastures around their cities. <sup>3</sup>The cities will be theirs in which to live. Their pastures will be for their cattle, their possessions, and all their animals. <sup>4</sup>The pastures of the cities that you must give to the Levites will extend from the wall of the city outward for one thousand five hundred feet in all directions. <sup>5</sup>You will measure outside the city on the east side three thousand feet, on the south side three thousand feet, on the west side three thousand feet, and on the north side three thousand feet, with the city in the middle. These will be their cities' pastures.

<sup>6</sup>Six of the cities that you give to the Levites will be refuge cities. You will allow the person who kills someone to flee there. In addition to these you will give them forty-two cities. <sup>7</sup>All the cities that you give to the Levites will total forty-eight, along with their pastures. <sup>8</sup>As for the cities that you give from the property of the Israelites, you will take more from the larger tribes and less from the smaller. Each in proportion to its inheritance will give cities to the Levites.

Refuge cities

<sup>9</sup>The LORD spoke to Moses: <sup>10</sup>Speak to the Israelites and say to them: When you cross the Jordan into the land of Canaan, <sup>11</sup>identify for yourselves cities to be refuge cities, where a person who kills someone by accident may flee. <sup>12</sup>The cities will be for you a place of refuge from the close relative of the dead. The person who killed someone may not be put to death until he stands before the community for judgment. <sup>13</sup>You will establish six refuge cities for yourselves. <sup>14</sup>You will establish three cities across the Jordan and three cities in the land of Canaan. They will be the refuge cities. <sup>15</sup>These six cities will be refuge for Israelites, immigrants, and temporary residents, as a place to flee for anyone who kills a person by accident.

<sup>16</sup>But if someone strikes a person with an iron object and he dies, he is a murderer. The murderer must definitely be put to death. <sup>17</sup>If someone strikes another with a stone in hand that could cause death and he dies, he is a murderer. The murderer must definitely be put to death. <sup>18</sup>Or if someone strikes with a wood object in hand that could cause death, he is a murderer. The murderer must definitely be put to death. <sup>19</sup>The close relative responsible for the blood<sup>e</sup> of the dead is the one who will put the murderer to death. When he meets him, he will execute him. <sup>20</sup>If in hatred someone hits another or throws something at him with premeditation, he will be put to death. <sup>21</sup>Or if in hostility someone strikes another with his hand and he dies, the one who struck is a murderer and he will be put to death. The close relative will put the murderer to death when he meets him.

and guarding it from unlawful encroachment (Num 1:48-53; 3:5-4:49). For this service, they receive a tenth portion (or tithe) from the Israelites instead of inheriting land (Num 18:21-24). When Israel enters the promised land, the special status of the Levites must be maintained. They separate from the other tribes. For this service, God commands the Israelites to allocate from their land inheritance, on a proportional scale, a total of 48 cities (including six cities of refuge) and associated pastures for the Levites. Israel executes God's command faithfully (Josh 21:1-42).

35:1 in the Moab plains by the Jordan across from Jericho: the location of the Israelites since Numbers 22:1.

35:4-5 It's possible that three thousand feet describes the size of just the city. In that case, the pastures extend another one thousand five hundred feet in each direction. Or, 3,000 feet may be the (minimum) length of one side of the pastures' perimeter, measured corner to corner. If the town is considered as a point, then 1,500 feet would be the length from that point to the outside perimeter.

35:6-7 Six of the cities... refuge cities... total forty-eight: According to Joshua 21, the tribes of Judah and Simeon together provide nine cities and each of the other tribes four cities, except Naphtali, which allocates only three.

35:8 Follows the principle of distributing land proportionally (Num 26:54; 33:54).

35:9-34 See also Deuteronomy 19:1-13; Joshua 20:1-9.

35:10-15 refuge cities: places of asylum for those who kill accidentally. Sanctuary altars had the same function during the early part of Israel's history (1 Kgs 1:49-53; 2:28-34). Six cities are allocated (cf. Deut 4:41-43; Josh 21). There are three inside Canaan: Kadesh in the north (Naphtali); Shechem in the center (Ephraim); and Hebron in the south (Judah); and three in the Transjordan territory: Bezer in the south (Reuben); Ramoth in Gilead in the center (Gad); and Golan in the north (Manasseh).

35:15 Israelites, immigrants, and temporary residents: Compare with Numbers 9:14; 15:14-16, 26-30.

35:16-21 The criteria used for determining the killer's intention are, first, the object used to strike; and, second, the motive for the action. As Numbers 15:30-31 explains, intentionally committed sin will not be forgiven through sacrifices. Payment for injury can be made with some deliberate sins (Num 5:5-10). With deliberate killing, however, the guilty person is executed. The close relative restores the <sup>22</sup>But if suddenly and without hostility someone hits another or throws any object at him without premeditation, <sup>23</sup>or accidentally drops any stone on him that could cause death and he dies—even though they weren't enemies and no evil was intended—<sup>24</sup>then the community must come to a verdict between the killer and the close relative in accordance with these case laws. <sup>25</sup>The community will protect the killer from the hand of the close relative and return him to the refuge city where he fled. He will live there until the death of the high priest who was anointed with holy oil. <sup>26</sup>But if the killer ever goes outside the boundaries of the refuge city where he fled <sup>27</sup>and the close relative finds him outside the boundary of his refuge city and kills him, he will not be responsible for his blood. <sup>28</sup>The killer must live in his refuge city until the high priest's death. After the high priest's death the killer may return to the land he owns.

<sup>29</sup>These will be the regulations and case laws for all time in all your settlements.

<sup>30</sup>Anyone who kills another will be executed on the evidence of witnesses. But one witness alone cannot testify against a person for a death sentence. <sup>31</sup>You may not accept a ransom for the life of a killer, who is guilty of a capital crime, for he must definitely be put to death. <sup>32</sup>You may not accept a ransom for someone who has fled to his refuge city so that he can return and live in the land before the priest's death. <sup>33</sup>You may not pollute the land in which you live, for the blood pollutes the land. There can be no recovery<sup>f</sup> for the land from the blood that is shed in it, except by the death of the one who shed it. <sup>34</sup>You will not make the land in which you live unclean, the land in the middle of which I reside, for I the LORD reside among the Israelites.

Inheritance of Zelophehad's daughters

36 The leaders of the households of the clans of Gilead, Machir's son and Manasseh's grandson, of Joseph's clans, approached and spoke before Moses and the chiefs, who were the leaders of the Israelite households. <sup>2</sup>They said, "The LORD commanded my master to give the land as an inheritance by lot to the Israelites. But my master was also commanded by the LORD to give the inheritance of Zelophehad our brother to his daughters. <sup>3</sup>If they are married to someone from another Israelite tribe, their inheritance will be taken away from our household and given to another tribe into which they marry. Then it will be taken away from the lot of our inheritance. <sup>4</sup>At the Israelite Jubilee, their inheritance will be added to the inheritance of the tribe into which they married. Then their inheritance will be taken away from the inheritance of our ancestral tribe."

<sup>5</sup>Then Moses commanded the Israelites according to the LORD's word: "The tribe of Joseph's descendants are correct in what they're saying. <sup>6</sup>This is the word that the LORD commands to Zelophehad's daughters: They may marry whomever seems best to them, but they may only marry into one of the clans of their ancestral tribe,<sup>g</sup> so that the inheritance of the Israelites doesn't transfer from one tribe to another. The Israelites will each retain the tribal inheritance of his ancestral tribe. <sup>8</sup>Every daughter who inherits land from an Israelite tribe loss incurred to the family of the victim and will carry out the execution (see also Num 5:8).

35:22-28 Unintentional killing lacks premeditation and motive. Yet one who commits it isn't free from all consequences. That person is confined in a designated refuge city, away from both the avenger of blood and the rest of the community, until the death of the high priest.

35:25, 28 The blood of those killed intentionally pollutes the land. The land recovers only by the death of the killer (Num 35:33). Similarly, the death of the high priest is necessary for the land and community to recover fully after an unintentional death.

35:30 See Deuteronomy 19:15; John 8:17; 2 Corinthians 13:1; Hebrews 10:28.

35:31-32 not accept a ransom: Killers can't buy their way out of the death penalty or confinement to a refuge city. See also Genesis 9:6.

35:33-34 While people may become unclean in the course of life's events (e.g., by touching a corpse, Num 19), a serious sin like murder or grave immorality (Lev 18) pollutes the land itself. God's holiness can't tolerate impurity, meaning either that God will abandon the defiled land or that the land will vomit out its polluting inhabitants (Lev 18:24-25).

36:1-12 This text recalls the case brought by the daughters of Zelophehad (Num 27:1-11). A problem arises if these daughters (who can inherit land) marry outside their tribe of Manasseh. In that case, the husband(s) would gain possession of the land, which would transfer to his tribe. Thus, land belonging to the tribe of Manasseh could end up belonging to another tribe, which isn't God's intent (Num 26:55; 33:54).

36:1 approached: same Hebrew word as in Numbers 27:1, a step in the procedure of disputing the boundary.

36:2-4 At the Israelite Jubilee: See Leviticus 25:8-55. On this occasion, land that has been sold—but not inherited land—returns to original owners.

must marry into one of the clans of her father's tribe. In this way each Israelite will own the land of his ancestors. <sup>9</sup>An inheritance of land may not be transferred from one tribe to another, for the Israelite tribes will each retain its own inheritance."

<sup>13</sup>These are the commandments and the case laws that the LORD commanded the Israelites through Moses in the plains of Moab by the Jordan across from Jericho.

DEUTERONOMY

The book of Deuteronomy is the fifth and final book of the Instruction from Moses. It is set in the last days of Moses' life and records his final words to the Israelites. In its literary setting the book looks backward and forward. It looks back to the four other books of the Instruction. It gives special attention to the giving of the Instruction to Moses at Mount Sinai and the wanderings in the wilderness. Deuteronomy also looks forward to the conquest of the land of Canaan. But beyond that it foresees the whole of Israel's history with God, including the disobedience of the Israelites in the time of the monarchy and the exile that comes as punishment. The book can helpfully be seen as a turning point between the books of the Instruction and the history of Israel in the promised land.

The book's name draws attention to its relationship with the rest of the Instruction. The name comes from the Greek deuteronomium, which means "second law." It was used in ancient times in translating Deuteronomy 17:18. A better translation is "a copy of this Instruction" (CEB). Nevertheless, if we understand "second law" to mean a repetition of the Instruction, the name Deuteronomy does point to an important feature of the book. Deuteronomy claims to be the definitive summary of the Instruction given to Moses on Mount Sinai. A number of laws in Deuteronomy already appear in the book of Exodus, especially Exodus 21–23 (see sidebar, "Deuteronomy and the Covenant Code" at Deut 12). In Deuteronomy these have been revised, reworked, and given new emphases. These changes often make the laws given at Sinai quite different from that at Moab.

In that sense we do have a second law or instruction that is different from the first.

At the heart of Deuteronomy stand the laws, which are found in chapters 12–26. The surrounding chapters provide a framework for these laws. They include stories, sermon-like passages, and even poetry, which show rather than tell the people how to live. Repeated words and phrases are some of the most important rhetorical tools used in the book. They all aim to motivate the people to remember and obey the commandments. The commandments are to be in the minds and move the hearts of the people.

The book of Deuteronomy is told by an anonymous narrator, but the principal character is Moses. Moses speaks most in the book, and at the end of the book we are told of his death. The book can be seen as a series of speeches by Moses, with shorter passages providing bridges between the speeches. The first speech is introduced in 1:1 and gives a history of the Israelites up to the present day (Deut 1–3), with a final concluding sermon drawing some lessons from the history (Deut 4). There is then a brief mention of the cities of refuge (Deut 4:41–43) before the second and most important speech of Moses begins. Moses' second speech is a long sermon on loyalty to the one God (Deut 5–11), followed by the laws of Deuteronomy (Deut 12–26). These instructions or teachings are the content of the agreement, or covenant, made between the Lord and Israel. This covenant is concluded in Deuteronomy 26:16–28:68, which is a bridge to the following speech.

Moses' third speech is also full of encouragement to obey the commandments and keep the covenant (Deut 29:1–30:20). While the first speech mostly looks back into history, the third speech looks into the future. Moses anticipates Israel's later rebellion and exile. The bridge to the final speech tells of how Moses arranges for various successors to replace him: Joshua, the instruction book, and a song (Deut 31:1–32:52). The final speech of Moses is his blessing of the tribes (Deut 33), which parallels Jacob's blessing of his children at the end of the book of Genesis (Gen 49). Finally, the book concludes with the story of Moses' death on Mount Nebo (Deut 34).

The book's setting is very early in Israel's history, before the conquest of the land of Canaan. In the chronology that the Bible provides, this would be about 1400 BCE. Various factors suggest that the book was composed much later. The most important of these is the mention of events later in Israel's history, most especially the Babylonian exile (6th century BCE). There are also Deuteronomy's similarities to treaties from the Assyrian Empire (ca. 7th century BCE). Finally, we may observe that there is no evidence of Deuteronomy's ideas or style until around the time of the Babylonian exile, after which point its influence is very strong.

One moment in Judah's history may provide help in knowing when Deuteronomy was written. According to 2 Kings 22, the book of the Instruction was discovered in the temple during repairs in the reign of Josiah (622 BCE). Josiah's reform of worship has many similarities with Deuteronomy's religious program. He makes a covenant with the Lord, closes the sanctuaries outside Jerusalem, destroys the idols, and celebrates Passover in Jerusalem. When he dies he is celebrated as someone who turned to the Lord with "all his heart, all his being, and all his strength" (2 Kgs 23:25). This is a conscious echo of Deuteronomy 6:5. The majority of scholars date a first version of the book of Deuteronomy to Josiah's reign, but there are also some who think it comes from a little later in the time of the Babylonian exile. Most scholars think there was some editing of the book after it was first written.

The book of Deuteronomy has a distinctive and influential theology. Many of the instructions are focused around the theme of a single sanctuary that the Lord chose. This idea emphasizes the need for worship to be practiced according to God's desire. The instructions in Deuteronomy are often similar to those in Exodus, but they have been revised to reflect this central idea of the chosen place. The central issue in the framing chapters (Deut 1–11; 29–34) is the unwavering commitment to Israel's God, the Lord. Israel is not to worship any other gods, and various encouragements and threats are given to ensure that Moses' audience and all future generations remain faithful to their only Lord. These two themes—worshipping in the chosen place and worshipping the Lord alone—do not come together especially closely. They can do so if we suppose the other gods to have been worshipped at other sanctuaries.

The commitment of Israel to its one God is brought under the comprehensive idea of covenant. This idea has been taken over from the political realm of international treaties. Israel enters into an exclusive relationship with its God. In this covenant Israel promises to be loyal to the Lord, and in return the Lord promises to bless Israel in the land of Canaan.

The first heading: Introducing Deuteronomy

1 These are the words that Moses spoke to all Israel across the Jordan River, in the desert, on the plain across from Suph, between Paran and Tophel, Laban, Hazereth, and Dizahab. <sup>(2)</sup>It is eleven days from Horeb to Kadesh-barnea along the Mount Seir route.) <sup>(3)</sup>It was in the fortieth year, on the first day of the eleventh month, that Moses spoke to the Israelites precisely what the LORD had commanded him for them. <sup>(4)</sup>This was after the defeat of Sihon, the Amorite king who ruled in Heshbon, and Og, Bashan's king, who ruled in Ashtaroth and<sup>a</sup> Edrei.) <sup>(5)</sup>Beyond the Jordan, in the land of Moab, Moses began to explain this Instruction. He said the following:

Leaving Mount Horeb

<sup>(6)</sup>At Horeb, the LORD our God told us: You've been at this mountain long enough. <sup>(7)</sup>Get going! Enter the hills of the Amorites and the surrounding areas in the desert, the highlands, the lowlands, the arid southern region, and the seacoast—the land of the Canaanites—and the Lebanon range, all the way to the great Euphrates River. <sup>(8)</sup>Look, I have laid the land before you. Go and possess the land that I<sup>b</sup> promised to give to your ancestors Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob, as well as to their descendants after them.

<sup>(9)</sup>At that same time, I told you: I can't handle all of you by myself. <sup>(10)</sup>The LORD your God has multiplied your number—you are now as countless as the stars in the sky. <sup>(11)</sup>May the LORD, your ancestors' God, continue to multiply you—a thousand times more! And may God bless you, just as he promised. <sup>(12)</sup>But how can I handle all your troubles, burdens, and disputes by myself? <sup>(13)</sup>Now, for each of your tribes, choose wise, discerning, and well-regarded individuals. I will appoint them as your leaders.

<sup>(15)</sup>So I took leading individuals from your tribes, people who were wise and well-regarded, and I set them up as your leaders. There were commanders over thousands, hundreds, fifties, and tens, as well as officials for each of your tribes.

1:1-5 The introduction provides the setting for the entire book of Deuteronomy. The book consists mostly of words delivered by Moses on the day of his death (Deut 32:48). This is at the end of the 40 years of wandering in the wilderness. Moses and the people of Israel are camping in the plains of Moab, which are on the east side of the Jordan River at the north end of the Dead Sea opposite the city of Jericho. This is the same geographical setting as the last chapters of the book of Numbers (Num 22:1; 36:13).

1:1 The first of four headings in Deuteronomy, which all begin "This is" or "These are" (Deut 1:1; 4:44; 29:1; 33:1). The heading in this verse is a title for the first speech of Moses (Deut 1:1-4:40), but it is also suitable as a heading for the entire book.

1:2 Horeb: the name that the book of Deuteronomy gives for Mount Sinai (cf. Exod 3:1). The only exceptions are Deuteronomy 33:2, 16.

1:4 The defeat of Sihon and Og is described in Deuteronomy 2:24-3:7 and in Numbers 21:21-35.

1:5 explain could mean to clarify the instructions given in Exodus-Numbers. The book of Deuteronomy is then to be understood as an explanation of the instructions that were given at Horeb and in the wilderness. An alternative translation would be "put into effect." In this understanding, Moses begins to put the Instruction into effect here, and it takes full effect in Deuteronomy 26:16-31:29 with the binding agreement of God and Israel, the recording of its statutes, and the depositing of the Instruction in the chest. The translation Instruction rightly draws attention to the fact that the expectations in Exodus-Deuteronomy are not simply minimum standards. The traditional translation "Law" rightly highlights that these are obligations that must be followed.

1:6-3:29 A review of Israel's history from Horeb to the Israelites' current location on the banks of the Jordan River. For the reader of the entire Pentateuch, this review provides a summary of what has already been told in the book of Numbers. Deuteronomy's retelling is more concise and theologically focused. The historical review is the basis of Moses' warnings in 4:1-40.

1:6 the LORD our God: Deuteronomy uses this and similar titles (especially the LORD your God) over 300 times.

1:7 The description of the land includes all the land between the Mediterranean Sea in the east and the Jordan River in the west, and between the Sinai desert in the south and the Euphrates River in the north. This roughly agrees with Genesis 15:18-21; Deuteronomy 11:24; Joshua 1:4. The description presents what the people would ideally have. Historically, the kingdoms of Israel and Judah never possessed all this territory.

1:9-18 The Lord's command is given in 1:6-8. The people don't begin obeying it until 1:19. Between the command and obedience, readers learn of appointment of tribal leaders in 1:9-18. The appointment of leaders is also told in Exodus 18:13-26; Numbers 11:4-34. In Exodus 18 the appointment of tribal leaders results from Jethro's suggestion, and in Numbers 11 it occurs due to God's initiative. Here in Deuteronomy 1 Moses decides to appoint leaders.

1:10 stars in the sky: The people are now very numerous (see Num 1:46; 26:51). This is a fulfillment of the promise to Israel's ancestors (see Gen 15:5; 22:17).

<sup>16</sup>At that same time, I commanded your judges: Listen to your fellow tribe members and judge fairly, whether the dispute is between one fellow tribe member or between a tribe member and an immigrant. <sup>17</sup>Don't show favoritism in a decision. Hear both sides out, whether the person is important or not. Don't be afraid of anyone because the ruling belongs to God. Any dispute that is too difficult for you to decide, bring to me and I will take care of it.

<sup>18</sup>So at that time, I commanded you concerning everything you were to do.

The spy disaster

<sup>19</sup>We left Horeb and journeyed through that vast and terrifying desert you saw, on the way to the hills of the Amorites, exactly as the LORD our God commanded us. Then we arrived at Kadesh-barnea. <sup>20</sup>I said to you: You have come to the hills of the Amorites, which the LORD our God is giving to us. <sup>21</sup>Look! The LORD your God has laid out the land before you. Go up and take it, just as the LORD, your ancestors' God, has promised you. Don't be afraid! Don't be frightened!

<sup>22</sup>Then all of you approached me, saying, "Let's send spies ahead of us—they can check out the land for us. Then they can return with word about the route we should use and bring a report about the cities that we'll be entering."

<sup>23</sup>This idea seemed good to me, so I selected twelve men, one from each tribe. <sup>24</sup>These set out and went up into the hills, going as far as the Cluster<sup>c</sup> ravine. They walked all around that area. <sup>25</sup>They took some of the land's fruit and then came back down to us. They reported to us: "The land that the LORD our God is giving to us is wonderful!" <sup>26</sup>But you weren't willing to go up. You rejected the LORD your God's instruction. <sup>27</sup>You complained in your tents, saying things like, "The LORD hates us! That's why he brought us out of Egypt—to hand us over to the Amorites, to destroy us!" <sup>28</sup>What are we doing? Our brothers have made our hearts sick by saying, 'People far stronger and much taller than we live there, and the cities are huge, with walls sky-high! Worse still, we saw the descendants of the Anakites there!'"

<sup>29</sup>But I said to you: Don't be terrified! Don't be afraid of them! <sup>30</sup>The LORD your God is going before you. He will fight for you just as he fought for you in Egypt while you watched, <sup>31</sup>and as you saw him do in the desert. Throughout your entire journey, until you reached this very place, the LORD your God has carried you just as a parent carries a child.

<sup>32</sup>But you had no faith in the LORD your God about this matter, <sup>33</sup>even though he went ahead of you, scouting places where you should camp, in fire by night, so you could see the road you were taking, and in cloud during the daytime.

<sup>34</sup>The LORD heard what you said. He was angry and he swore: <sup>35</sup>Not even one of these people—this wicked generation!—will see the wonderful land that I promised to give to your ancestors. <sup>36</sup>The only exception is Caleb, Jephunneh's son. He will see it. I will give the land he walked on to him and his children for this reason: he was completely devoted to the LORD.

1:16-17 The role of the tribal leaders is described in terms similar to Deuteronomy 16:18-20.

1:16 judges: The role of the tribal leaders in ancient Israel was not simply that of settling disputes. It probably included leadership within the community.

1:17 Don't show favoritism: In small communities the interests of everyone were often tightly connected. Tribal leaders were often people involved in every bit of community life. Although they had personal interests, it was especially important to be fair and neutral in making decisions.

1:19-2:1 This section retells the story of the rebellion at Kadesh-barnea and the disastrous invasion from the south. The same events are first told in Numbers 13-14. In Deuteronomy, the disobedience and complete failure of the old generation will contrast strongly with the obedience and success of their children (Deut 2:16-3:7).

1:19 Kadesh-barnea: an oasis on the southern edge of the land of Canaan, about 50 miles south of Beer-sheba.

1:26 The failed invasion results from the disobedience of the people. The book of Deuteronomy emphasizes repeatedly that God's instructions must be obeyed. Failure to do so results in loss of the land and leads to disaster. 1:27 hates us: In sharp contrast to the people's statement, Deuteronomy repeatedly insists that God loves the people of Israel (e.g., Deut 7:8).

1:28 Anakites: or "Anakim," were remembered as a race of giants (Num 13:33; Deut 2:21; 9:2).

1:29-30 Deuteronomy insists that the people are not to fear, because God is among them (see Deut 20:2-4).

1:31 The relationship between God and Israel is compared to the relationship of a parent who loves a child. See also Deuteronomy 8:5; 32:1-43. The image is also common in Hosea and may have been taken from there.

1:33 The column of cloud and lightning is described more fully in Numbers 9:15-23.

1:36 Caleb gave a positive report about the land and encouraged the people to enter it (Num 13:30; 14:6-9). As a result of his faithfulness, he was the only one of his generation to enter the land. He received the southern town of Hebron as an inheritance (see Josh 14:6-15).

<sup>37</sup>The LORD was even angry with me because of what you did. “You won’t enter the land either,” God said. <sup>38</sup>“But Nun’s son Joshua, your assistant, will enter it. Strengthen him because he’s the one who will help Israel inherit the land.”)

<sup>39</sup>Now as for your toddlers, those you said would be taken in war, and your young children who don’t yet know right and wrong—they will enter the land. I will give it to them. They will possess it! <sup>40</sup>But you all must now turn around. Head back toward the wilderness along the route of the Reed Sea.<sup>d</sup>

<sup>41</sup>You replied to me: “We’ve sinned against the LORD! We will go up! We will fight, just as the LORD our God commanded.” Each one of you grabbed your weapons. You thought it would be easy<sup>e</sup> to go up into the hills. <sup>42</sup>But the LORD told me: Tell them: Don’t go up! Don’t fight because I will not be with you. You will be defeated by your enemies.

<sup>43</sup>I reported this to you but you wouldn’t listen. You disobeyed the LORD’s instruction. Hotheadedly, you went up into the hills. <sup>44</sup>And the Amorites who lived in those hills came out to meet you in battle. They chased you like bees give chase! They gave you a beating from Seir all the way to Hormah. <sup>45</sup>When you came back, you cried before the LORD, but he wouldn’t respond to your tears or give you a hearing.

<sup>46</sup>And so you stayed in Kadesh-barnea for quite some time.

Journeys in Transjordan

2Next, we turned around and headed back toward the wilderness along the Reed Sea<sup>f</sup> road, exactly as the LORD instructed me. We traveled all around Mount Seir for a time.

<sup>2</sup>Eventually the LORD said: <sup>3</sup>You’ve been traveling around this mountain long enough. Head north. <sup>4</sup>Command the people as follows: You are about to enter into the territory of your relatives who live in Seir: Esau’s descendants. They will be afraid of you, so watch yourselves most carefully. <sup>5</sup>Don’t fight with them because I will not give the tiniest parcel of their land to you. I have given Mount Seir to Esau’s family as their property. <sup>6</sup>Of course you may buy food from them with money so you can eat, and also water with money so you can drink.

<sup>7</sup>No doubt about it: the LORD your God has blessed you in all that you have done. He watched over your journey through that vast desert. Throughout these forty years the LORD your God has been with you. You haven’t needed a thing.

<sup>8</sup>So we passed through the territory of our relatives who live in Seir, Esau’s descendants, leaving the desert road from Elath and from Ezion-geber. Next we turned and went along the Moab wilderness route. <sup>9</sup>The LORD said to me: Don’t aggravate Moab. Don’t fight them in battle because I won’t give any part of their land to you as your own. I have given Ar to Lot’s descendants as their property.

1:37 angry with me: Deuteronomy attributes Moses’ exclusion from the land to the people’s disobedience at Kadesh-barnea (cf. Deut 3:26; 4:21). In Numbers 20:1-13, Moses and Aaron are excluded because of their disobedience at the waters of Meribah (cf. Deut 32:51).

1:42 I will not be with you: God’s presence is needed in Israel’s holy wars (cf. Deut 20:2-4).

1:44 bees: For similar imagery, see note on Deuteronomy 7:20.

2:1 Mount Seir: the uplands west of the rift valley that runs between the Dead Sea and the Gulf of Aqaba.

2:2-8 The Israelites are instructed to avoid confrontation with Edom, the descendants of Esau. The story of Israel and Edom’s encounter is recounted in Numbers 20:14-21.

2:5 as their property: In Deuteronomy it’s not only Israel that receives land from God, but also the other nations that are related to Abraham: the Edomites, the Ammonites, and the Moabites. Thus Israel’s taking of the land isn’t seen as a unique event (see Deut 2:12).

2:8 passed through: Deuteronomy suggests that Israel marched through Edom’s land (cf. Deut 2:27-29). In Numbers 20:14-22, the Edomites oppose Israel and won’t let them pass through. As a result, Israel has to take a long detour around Edom (Num 21:4).

2:10-12 Deuteronomy records the details of the earlier inhabitants not only for Israel but also for the nations of the Edomites, Moabites, Ammonites, and Philistines (see also Deut 2:20-23). These are remembered as legendary giants; see note on Deuteronomy 1:28.

2:11 Rephaim: legendary pre-Israelite inhabitants of Canaan.

So we crossed the Zered ravine.

<sup>14</sup>It took us a total of thirty-eight years to go from Kadesh-barnea until we crossed the Zered ravine. It was at that point that the last of the previous generation, every one of fighting age in the camp, had died, just as the LORD had sworn about them. <sup>15</sup>In fact, the LORD’s power was against them, to rid the camp of them, until they were all gone.

<sup>16</sup>Now as soon as all those of fighting age had died, <sup>17</sup>the LORD said to me: <sup>18</sup>Today you are crossing through the territory of Moab and Ar <sup>19</sup>and you will come close to the Ammonites. Don’t aggravate them. Don’t fight with them because I won’t give any part of the Ammonites’ land to you as your own. I’ve given it to Lot’s descendants as their property.

<sup>20</sup>Now people thought that land was Rephaim territory as well. The Rephaim had lived there previously. But the Ammonites called them “Zamzummim.” <sup>21</sup>They were large, numerous, and tall, just like the Anakim. But the LORD completely destroyed the Zamzummim before the Ammonites, and they took possession of that area, settling in their place. <sup>22</sup>That is exactly what God did for Esau’s descendants, who live in Seir, when he completely destroyed the Horites in their presence, and they took possession of the Horites’ area, settling in their place to this very day. <sup>23</sup>The Avvim,<sup>1</sup> who had lived in settlements around Gaza, were completely destroyed by the Caphtorim, who had come from Caphtor. They replaced the Avvim there.

Victories in Transjordan

<sup>30</sup>But Sihon, Heshbon’s king, wasn’t willing to let us pass through his land because the LORD your God had made his spirit hard and his heart inflexible so that God could hand him over to you, which is exactly how it happened. <sup>31</sup>The LORD said to me: Look! Right now I’m laying Sihon and his land before you. It’s time to take possession of his land!

<sup>32</sup>Sihon and all his forces came out to meet us in battle at Jahaz. <sup>33</sup>But the LORD our God gave him to us. We struck him down, along with his sons, and all his forces. <sup>34</sup>At that time, we captured all of Sihon’s cities, and we placed every town—men, women, and children—under the ban.<sup>3</sup> We left no survivors. <sup>35</sup>The only things we kept for ourselves were the animals and the plunder from the towns we had taken. <sup>36</sup>From Aroer, which is on the edge of the Arnon Ravine, to the town that is in the valley there,<sup>4</sup> even as far as Gilead, there wasn’t a city that could resist us. The LORD our God laid everything out before us. <sup>37</sup>But you didn’t go near the

2:13-15 Zered ravine: The book of Deuteronomy identifies the precise moment when the older sinful generation dies out. The book of Numbers does not have this sharp transition between the disobedient and the obedient generation.

2:15 the Lord’s power was against them: This phrase can also be translated “the LORD’s hand was against them.” It invokes the language of holy war (see sidebar, “The Ban” at Deut 7). Here, it’s not applied to Israel’s enemies as is usually the case. Instead, the idea is reversed and used to describe God’s punishment of the disobedient generation.

2:23 Caphtorim: the Philistines who were believed to come from Crete (Caphtor; see Amos 9:7).

2:24-37 The defeat of Sihon is also described in Numbers 21:21-32.

2:25 afraid of you . . . worrying because of you: The language of holy war is now applied in the normal direction, that is, to Israel’s enemies (unlike Deut 2:15).

2:26 peace: In Deuteronomy’s rules of war, cities and nations outside the land of Canaan were first to be offered peace (Deut 20:10).

2:27 through your land: The land of Canaan was west of the Jordan and did not include Sihon’s land.

2:30 Sihon’s stubbornness is similar to what happened to Pharaoh in Exodus 7-14 (see sidebar, “Pharaoh’s Stubbornness” at Exod 9).

2:34 under the ban: See sidebar, “The Ban” at Deuteronomy 7.

2:34-35 The killing of all the people follows Deuteronomy’s rules of war for cities inside the land of Canaan (Deut 20:15-18).

2:37 Jabbok River: the border of Ammonite land.

Ammonite lands or hillside cities alongside the Jabbok River, in compliance with all<sup>a</sup> that the LORD our God had commanded.

3Next we turned and went up along the road to Bashan. Og, Bashan's king, came out with all his forces to meet us in battle at Edrei. <sup>2</sup>The LORD said to me: Don't be afraid of him! I have handed him, all his forces, and his land over to you. Do the same thing to him that you did to Sihon, the Amorite king who ruled in Heshbon.

<sup>3</sup>And so the LORD our God also handed Og, Bashan's king, along with his forces, over to us. We struck them down until no survivor was left. <sup>4</sup>We also captured all of Og's towns at that time. There wasn't a single city that we didn't take from them—a total of sixty towns, the entire region of Argob, the whole kingdom of Og in Bashan. <sup>5</sup>Each of these towns was fortified with high walls, double gates, and crossbars. Outside the towns there were also a great number of villages. <sup>6</sup>We placed them under the ban, just as we did with Sihon, Heshn's king. Every town—men, women, and children—was under the ban.<sup>b</sup> <sup>7</sup>The only things we kept for ourselves were the animals and the plunder from the towns.

<sup>8</sup>So at that time, we took the land that had belonged to the two Amorite kings beyond the Jordan, all the way from the Arnon Ravine to Mount Hermon (<sup>9</sup>Sidonians call Hermon "Sirion," but the Amorites call it "Senir"), <sup>10</sup>including all the towns on the plateau, in the regions of Gilead and Bashan, and all the way to Salecah and Edrei—all the towns that belonged to Og's kingdom in Bashan.

<sup>12</sup>So this is the land we possessed at that time. I gave some of it, from Aroer, which is beside the Arnon River, up through half of the Gilead highlands, along with its cities, to the Reubenites and the Gadites. <sup>13</sup>The rest of the Gilead region and all of Bashan, Og's kingdom, I gave to half the tribe of Manasseh.

(Now the whole Argob area, including all of Bashan, was often called Rephaim Country. <sup>14</sup>Jair, from the tribe of Manasseh, took possession of the entire Argob region, as far as the border with the Geshurites and the Maacathites. He named the Bashan area after himself, Jair's Settlement. That's what it's still called today.)

<sup>15</sup>I also gave Gilead to Machir. <sup>16</sup>To the Reubenites and the Gadites, I gave land from the Gilead, as far as the Arnon River—the middle of the river being the boundary line—to the Jabbok River, which is the boundary line with the Ammonites. <sup>17</sup>Also the desert plain, with the Jordan River as the boundary, from the Galilee Sea<sup>c</sup> down to the desert sea (the Dead Sea<sup>d</sup>) below the slopes of Mount Pisgah on the east.

<sup>18</sup>Then I commanded you: Although the LORD your God has given you this land to possess, you must now cross over before the rest of your Israelite relatives as a fighting force ready for battle! <sup>19</sup>However, your wives, children, and herds—I know you have lots of herds!—may remain in the towns that I have given to you. <sup>20</sup>Once the LORD settles your relatives, as you have been settled, and they also possess the land that the LORD your God is giving them across the Jordan River, each of you can return to the property that I have given to you.

<sup>21</sup>It was at that same time that I commanded Joshua: You saw everything that the LORD your God did to these two kings. That is exactly what the LORD will do to all the kingdoms where you're going! <sup>22</sup>Don't be afraid of them because the LORD your God is the one who will be fighting for you.

3:1-7 The defeat of Og is also described in Numbers 21:33-35.

3:6 under the ban: See sidebar, "The Ban" at Deuteronomy 7.

3:11 Rephaim: legendary pre-Israelite inhabitants of Canaan. bed was made of iron: This may have been the bed or couch that Og rested upon or, possibly, his stone coffin. 3:12-17 The division of the land to the Reubenites, Gadites, and half-tribe of Manasseh is also told in Numbers 32. In the book of Numbers, the two and a half tribes ask Moses if they might settle east of the Jordan and at first are strongly criticized for their request (Num 32:6-15). In Deuteronomy no mention is made of this request, only of Moses' dividing the land to them. The division of the land is described from south to north (3:12-13) and, slightly differently, from north to south (3:14-17).

3:18-20 Moses addresses the tribes of Reuben, Gad, and the half-tribe of Manasseh. According to Numbers 32:16-32, the fighting men from these tribes were to go into battle to help other tribes on the other side of the Jordan River.

3:21-22 The encouragement of Joshua is similar to what is found in Joshua 1.

Moses' prayer

<sup>23</sup>It was also at that same time that I begged the LORD: <sup>24</sup>Please, LORD God! You have only begun to show your servant your greatness and your mighty hand. What god in heaven or on earth can act as you do or can perform your deeds and powerful acts? <sup>25</sup>Please let me cross over the Jordan River so I can see the wonderful land that lies beyond it: those beautiful highlands, even the Lebanon region.

<sup>26</sup>But the LORD was angry with me because of you! He wouldn't listen to me. He said to me: That's enough from you! Don't ever ask me about this again! <sup>27</sup>Go up to the top of Mount Pisgah. Look west, north, south, and east. Have a good look, but you will not cross the Jordan River. <sup>28</sup>Instead, command Joshua, strengthen him, and encourage him because he's the one who will cross the river before this people. He's the one who will make sure they inherit the land you will see.

The events at Mount Horeb

4 Now, Israel, in light of all that, listen to the regulations and the case laws that I am teaching you to follow, so that you may live, enter, and possess the land that the LORD, your ancestors' God, is giving to you. <sup>2</sup>Don't add anything to the word that I am commanding you, and don't take anything away from it. Instead, keep the commands of the LORD your God that I am commanding all of you.

<sup>3</sup>You saw with your own eyes what the LORD did concerning the Baal of Peor. The LORD your God destroyed everyone who followed the Baal of Peor, <sup>4</sup>but all of you who stayed true to the LORD your God are alive today. <sup>5</sup>So pay attention! I am teaching all of you the regulations and the case laws exactly as the LORD my God commanded me. You must do these in the land you are entering to possess. <sup>6</sup>Keep them faithfully because that will show your wisdom and insight to the nations who will hear about all these regulations. They will say, "Surely this great nation is a wise and insightful people!" <sup>7</sup>After all, is there any great nation that has gods<sup>a</sup> as close to it as the LORD our God is close to us whenever we call to him? <sup>8</sup>Or does any great nation have regulations and case laws as righteous as all this Instruction that I am setting before you today?

<sup>9</sup>But be on guard and watch yourselves closely so that you don't forget the things your eyes saw and so they never leave your mind as long as you live. Teach them to your children and your grandchildren. <sup>10</sup>Remember that<sup>b</sup> day when you stood before the LORD your God at Horeb, when the LORD said to me: "Gather the people to me. I will declare my words to them so that they will learn to fear me every day of their lives on the fertile land, and teach their

3:24 What god: For the uniqueness of the Lord, who is beyond comparison, see also Deuteronomy 4:32-40.

3:26 because of you: Deuteronomy attributes Moses' exclusion from the land to the people's disobedience at Kadesh-barnea (Deut 1:37).

3:27 Pisgah: also known as Mount Nebo. This is the place of Moses' death. His final sight will be of the land that God has promised the people.

3:28 command: or "commission." The commissioning of Joshua is described more fully in Deuteronomy 31.

3:29 Beth-peor: a place known especially for Israel's worship of Baal of Peor (see Num 25).

4:1-40 The climax to Moses' speech is a lengthy sermon drawn from the history retold in Deuteronomy 1:6-3:29.

4:1 the regulations and the case laws: a common expression in Deuteronomy. It means the entire Instruction in Deuteronomy 12-26. live, enter, and possess the land: Life in the land of Canaan and all the good God promised depend on the people's obedience. The stories in Deuteronomy 1-3 have shown that disobedience leads to failure and life outside the land (Deut 1), but obedience leads to success and conquest of the land (Deut 2-3).

4:2 Don't add . . . don't take anything away from it: Words such as these are common in laws from the ancient Near East.

4:3 Baal of Peor: The idolatrous worship of this Moabite god is described in Numbers 25.

4:6 wise and insightful: Solomon is described in the same way in 1 Kings 3:12. His wisdom also gains international recognition.

4:7 as close: God is near to the people through mighty actions and the words of the Instruction (Deut 30:14).

4:9 don't forget: One of the central themes in Deuteronomy is the importance of remembering God and God's instructions. See especially Deuteronomy 6 and 8. Teach them: Memory is not an individual concern, but a national one. Deuteronomy 6:7, 20-25 also stresses the need for teaching children.

4:10 fear: doesn't mean terror, but the proper response of obedience toward God (see Exod 20:20). "Fear of God" is a central theme in Deuteronomy and Proverbs.

children to do the same.”<sup>11</sup> Then you all came close and stood at the foot of the mountain. The mountain was blazing with fire up to the sky, with darkness, cloud, and thick smoke!<sup>12</sup> The LORD spoke to you out of the very fire itself. You heard the sound of words, but you didn’t see any form. There was only a voice.<sup>13</sup> The LORD declared his covenant to you, which he commanded you to do—the Ten Commandments<sup>14</sup>—and wrote them on two stone tablets.<sup>14</sup> At that time, the LORD commanded me to teach you all the regulations and the case laws that you must keep in the land that you are entering to possess.

<sup>15</sup> So watch your conduct closely, because you didn’t see any form on the day the LORD spoke to you at Horeb out of the very fire itself.<sup>16</sup> Don’t ruin everything and make an idol for yourself: a form of any image, any likeness—male or female—<sup>17</sup> or any likeness whatsoever, whether of a land animal, a bird that flies in the sky,<sup>18</sup> an insect that crawls on the earth, or a fish that lives in the sea.<sup>19</sup> Don’t look to the skies, to the sun or the moon or the stars, all the heavenly bodies, and be led astray, worshipping and serving them. The LORD your God has granted these things to all the nations who live under heaven.<sup>20</sup> But the LORD took you and brought you out of that iron furnace, out of Egypt, so that you might be his own treasured people, which is what you are right now.

<sup>21</sup> The LORD was angry with me because of your deeds and swore that I couldn’t cross the Jordan River or enter the wonderful land that the LORD your God is giving you as an inheritance.<sup>22</sup> I will die here in this land. I won’t cross the Jordan River. But you will, and you will take possession of that wonderful land.<sup>23</sup> So all of you, watch yourselves! Don’t forget the covenant that the LORD your God made with you by making an idol or an image of any kind or anything the LORD your God forbids,<sup>24</sup> because the LORD your God is an all-consuming fire. He is a passionate God.

Warnings and teachings about future disobedience

<sup>25</sup> Once you have had children and grandchildren and have grown old on the land, if you ruin things by making an idol, in any form whatsoever, and do what is evil in the eyes of the LORD your God and anger him,<sup>26</sup> I call heaven and earth as my witnesses against you today: You will definitely disappear—and quickly—from the land that you are crossing over the Jordan River to possess. You won’t extend your time there but will instead be totally destroyed.<sup>27</sup> The LORD will scatter you among the nations. Only a very few of you will survive

<sup>a</sup>Or the ten words

4:11 For the description of the events at Horeb, see Exodus 19–20, where “Horeb” is called “Sinai.”

4:12 didn’t see any form: This doesn’t state that God was invisible, only that God wasn’t seen. only a voice: In the ancient Near East, the gods were made present through physical statues. Israel’s God is present through God’s words.

4:13 covenant: See sidebar, “Covenant” at Deuteronomy 5. Ten Commandments: The giving of the Ten Commandments is told about in Exodus 20 (cf. Deut 5:1–22).

4:14 all the regulations and the case laws: probably a reference to the instructions of the Covenant Code (Exod 20:22–23:19), which Moses received from God after the Ten Commandments. These are given to the people in altered form in Deuteronomy 12–26. The instructions of the Covenant Code are repeated and developed in the book of Deuteronomy. See sidebar, “Deuteronomy and the Covenant Code (Exodus 21–23)” at Deuteronomy 12.

4:15–24 Moses insists on the importance of not making idols.

4:16–19 Israel must not make an image of anything on earth: bird, land animal, or fish (4:16–18). The words for these creatures echo the language of Genesis 1. Israel mustn’t make an image of anything in the heavens: sun, moon, or stars (4:19). The division into images of earthly things and heavenly things corresponds to the way that the Lord has revealed himself to Israel. God showed his fire on earth, and his voice spoke from heaven (Deut 4:36). Neither can be represented by images.

4:20 took you: the same choice of Israel from all the nations. iron furnace: The same image is found in 1 Kings 8:51 and Jeremiah 11:4. It suggests the people’s suffering and their purification. own treasured people: or “inheritance.” The word is usually used of property and suggests that Israel is God’s special possession.

4:21 because of your deeds: Deuteronomy attributes Moses’ exclusion from the land to the people’s disobedience at Kadesh-barnea (cf. Deut 1:37).

4:24 all-consuming fire: Fire is often a symbol of God’s presence (e.g., Deut 4:36). a passionate God: or “jealous God.” God won’t tolerate the worship of any other god. Likewise, God won’t tolerate idols. That is, both images of other gods and images of the Lord are forbidden. The mention of God’s passion is a suitable conclusion to the section on idolatry (Deut 4:15–24). But God isn’t only a jealous God. God is also compassionate (Deut 4:31).

4:25–31 Moses describes what will happen if the Israelites commit idolatry.

4:26 heaven and earth: the natural world. my witnesses against you: or, perhaps, “my witnesses to warn you.” See also Deuteronomy 30:19; 31:28; 32:1. disappear . . . from the land: Obedience to the covenant and living in the land are closely bound together in Deuteronomy (see Deut 4:40).

4:27 scatter you: predicts exactly the kind of situation that Israel and Judah suffered during the exile.

in the countries where the LORD will drag you. <sup>28</sup>There you will worship other<sup>v</sup> gods, made of wood and stone by human hands—gods that cannot see, listen, eat, or smell. <sup>29</sup>You will seek the LORD your God from there, and you will find him<sup>w</sup> if you seek him with all your heart and with all your being. <sup>30</sup>In your distress, when all these things happen to you in the future, you will return to the LORD your God and you will obey his voice, <sup>31</sup>because the LORD your God is a compassionate God. He won't let you go, he won't destroy you, and he won't forget the covenant that he swore to your ancestors.

<sup>32</sup>Now look into it: into days long past, before your time—all the way back to the day God first created human beings on earth, from one end of heaven to the other. Has anything this amazing ever happened? Has anything like it ever been heard of before? <sup>33</sup>Has any people ever listened to a god's voice speaking out of fire, as each of you have, and survived? <sup>34</sup>Or has any god ever tried to take one nation out of another nation using tests, miracles, wonders, war, a strong hand and outstretched arm, or awesome power like all that the LORD your God did for you in Egypt while you watched? <sup>35</sup>You were shown these things so that you would know this: The LORD is the only God. There's no other god except him. <sup>36</sup>From heaven he made you hear his voice in order to discipline you. On earth he showed you his great fire. You heard his words from that very fire. <sup>37</sup>And because he loved your ancestors and chose their descendants after them, God brought you out of Egypt with his own presence, by his own great power, <sup>38</sup>in order to remove larger and stronger nations from before you and bring you into their land, giving it to you as an inheritance. That's where things stand right now. <sup>39</sup>Know then today and keep in mind that the LORD is the only God in heaven above or on earth below. There is no other. <sup>40</sup>Keep the Lord's regulations and his commandments. I'm commanding them to you today for your well-being and for the well-being of your children after you, so that you may extend your time on the fertile land that the LORD your God is giving you forever.

Cities of refuge

<sup>41</sup>Then Moses set aside three cities on the eastern side of the Jordan River <sup>42</sup>so that anyone who killed someone accidentally and without prior hatred could flee to one of these

4:28 made of wood and stone: The mocking of other gods is similar to what is found in Isaiah 40–48 and Jeremiah 10.
4:29 Deuteronomy offers the hope of return after Israel has been punished for its sins (cf. Deut 30:1–10).

4:31 compassionate God: The Lord is not merely a passionate God (Deut 4:24). The Lord is also a compassionate God. The Lord's mercy on the people despite their disobedience is a strong demonstration of God's compassion and grace. he won't forget the covenant that he swore to your ancestors: probably an indirect way of saying that the people will return to the land and possess it again. Deuteronomy usually speaks of the covenant in relation to Israel rather than the ancestors: Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob. For the same idea, see Deuteronomy 7:12; 8:18.

4:32–40 The climax of Moses' sermon rehearses history from creation (4:32) to the present (4:38) and leads to two confessions. First, Israel's God is the only true God (4:35). Second, God is the only true God in heaven and on earth (4:39). This leads to a final warning to be obedient in order to enjoy life in the land of Canaan (4:40).

4:32 first created human beings: the only mention of creation in the book of Deuteronomy. The significance of creation here is that it's as far back as history stretches. Also, the Lord's creation of all people confirms the uniqueness of God that is central to this passage.

4:33 and survived: Hearing or seeing God was thought to lead to immediate death (Exod 20:19).

4:34 has any god ever tried: Although other nations were settled into land that God had allocated to them, only Israel has experienced something like the exodus.

4:35 There's no other god except him: Interestingly, the previous verses speak about other gods (Deut 4:32–34).

4:36 heaven is the place where God spoke. The earth is where God revealed the fire, which is closely associated with divine character (Deut 4:24). The Lord's presence in heaven and earth is a contrast to idols that are modeled on earthly creatures or heavenly bodies (Deut 4:16–19). discipline you: The display at Horeb was to make the people's obedience certain. In Deuteronomy 8:5 God's relationship to Israel is compared to a father disciplining his children. You heard his words from that very fire: God is not in either heaven or earth, but in both.

4:38 larger and stronger nations: Taking the land of Canaan will take place only because of God's power, not the strength of Israel's armies. This lesson can be drawn from the history in Deuteronomy 1:6–3:29.

4:40 Keep: In Deuteronomy, confession (Deut 4:39) and obedience (4:40) go hand in hand. well-being: The purpose of the instruction was to help the people enjoy God's good gift of the land.

4:41–43 According to Numbers 35, there were to be six cities of refuge in the Israelites' land. If someone killed someone else accidentally, they could flee to a city of refuge and be safe from revenge by the dead person's relatives. Murderers who acted deliberately were not allowed refuge, and their guilt would be assessed or punished by the tribal leaders. These verses name the three cities of refuge that were established east of the Jordan River. For the others, see Joshua 20:1–9. Their mention here is something of an afterthought and not

The second heading: Recounting the Horeb covenant

<sup>44</sup>Now this is the Instruction that Moses set before the Israelites. <sup>45</sup>These are the laws and the regulations and the case laws that Moses spoke to the Israelites when they came out of Egypt. <sup>46</sup>This took place across the Jordan River, in the valley opposite Beth-peor, in the land of Sihon the Amorite king who ruled in Heshbon, whom Moses and the Israelites defeated when they came out of Egypt. <sup>47</sup>They took possession of his land and the land of Og, Bashan's king—the two Amorite kings across the Jordan River to the east—<sup>48</sup>from Aroer, which is on the banks of the Arnon River, all the way to Mount Sion,<sup>x</sup> also known as Hermon, <sup>49</sup>and all the desert regions across the Jordan River, on the east, down to the Dead Sea, beneath the slopes of Mount Pisgah.

Ten Commandments

5 Moses called out to all Israel, saying to them: “Israel! Listen to the regulations and the case laws that I’m recounting in your hearing right now. Learn them and carefully do them. <sup>2</sup>The LORD our God made a covenant with us at Mount Horeb. <sup>3</sup>The LORD didn’t make this covenant with our ancestors but with us—all of us who are here and alive right now. <sup>4</sup>The LORD spoke with you face-to-face on the mountain from the very fire itself. <sup>5</sup>At that time, I was standing between the LORD and you, declaring to you the LORD’s word, because you were terrified of the fire and didn’t go up on the mountain.”

Covenant The central theological idea of the book of Deuteronomy is that a covenant is created between two parties: the Lord and Israel (see Deut 26:16-19). The idea of a covenant was taken from the world of international politics. The same Hebrew word translated as “covenant” could also be translated as “treaty” when made between two human parties. In the ancient Near East, treaties were made between different nations, especially between larger empires and smaller subject nations. These “treaties” are known from various parts of the ancient Near East and from different periods.

The book of Deuteronomy is particularly close to a treaty known as the Vassal Treaty of Esarhaddon. This treaty was imposed on subject-nations by the Assyrian king Esarhaddon in order to ensure their loyalty to his son, Ashurbanipal. It is especially close to elements in Deuteronomy like the instructions to love the Lord, the strong encouragement to keep the commandments, and the various curses in Deuteronomy 28. An important feature of this treaty was the devastating destruction promised on those who didn’t show loyalty to Esarhaddon and his son. Possible rebels had to be handed over for execution. In Deuteronomy this idea is found in chapters 5–11; 13; 17; and 26–30.

The treaty analogy, however, doesn’t fully explain the relationship between the Lord and the people of Israel. Some parts of Deuteronomy speak of a parent-child relationship (Deut 1:31; 8:5). This suggests a level of love and commitment beyond that in a human treaty.

part of Moses’ first speech. They are here because the dividing of the land east of the Jordan is described in Deuteronomy 3.

4:44 this is the Instruction: the second of four headings in Deuteronomy (see note on Deut 1:1). This heading covers 4:44–26:15, the section of Deuteronomy that contains all the instructions and obligations. For the meaning of “instruction,” see note on Deuteronomy 1:5.

4:45 These are the laws . . . the case laws: a subtitle to Deuteronomy 5–11. The laws refer to the Ten Commandments, the regulations and the case laws must refer to Deuteronomy 6–11. The theme of these chapters is the love of God. The command to love God is seen as a summary of the instructions in Deuteronomy 12–26, which are usually given the title the regulations and the case laws (see Deut 12:1). that Moses . . . Egypt: The 40 years in the wilderness are now passed over. It is as if they didn’t happen, or should not have happened.

5:2 covenant: See sidebar, “Covenant.”

5:3 with us: Strictly speaking, none of the current generation that Moses addresses were present at Horeb. Moses addresses the previous disobedient generation who had died in the wilderness. It is a common rhetorical move in the book of Deuteronomy to collapse the distinction between the different generations.

5:4 face-to-face: The Ten Commandments were spoken directly to the people of Israel, unlike the rest of the commandments, which were given to Moses (see Exod 20:18-21; Deut 5:22-31).

5:5 standing between the LORD and you: This statement stands in some tension with the previous verse. Deuteronomy 5:4 emphasizes God’s direct speaking of the Instruction to the people, but 5:5 mentions Moses’ role as a go-between for the people and God. In Exodus 20:18-21, Moses takes on this go-between role for the obligations that follow, not for the Ten Commandments.

The LORD said:

<sup>6</sup>I am the LORD your God, who brought you out of Egypt, out of the house of slavery.

<sup>7</sup>You must have no other gods before<sup>7</sup> me. <sup>8</sup>Do not make an idol for yourself—no form whatsoever—of anything in the sky above or on the earth below or in the waters under the earth. <sup>9</sup>Do not bow down to them or worship them because I, the LORD your God, am a passionate God. I punish children for their parents' sins—even to the third and fourth generations of those who hate me. <sup>10</sup>But I am loyal and gracious to the thousandth generation<sup>8</sup> of those who love me and keep my commandments.

<sup>11</sup>Do not use the LORD your God's name as if it were of no significance; the LORD won't forgive anyone who uses his name that way.

<sup>12</sup>Keep the Sabbath day and treat it as holy, exactly as the LORD your God commanded:

<sup>13</sup>Six days you may work and do all your tasks, <sup>14</sup>but the seventh day is a Sabbath to the LORD your God. Don't do any work on it—not you, your sons or daughters, your male or female servants, your oxen or donkeys or any of your animals, or the immigrant who is living among you—so that your male and female servants can rest just like you. <sup>15</sup>Remember that you were a slave in Egypt, but the LORD your God brought you out of there with a strong hand and an outstretched arm. That's why the LORD your God commands you to keep the Sabbath day.

<sup>16</sup>Honor your father and your mother, exactly as the LORD your God requires, so that your life will be long and so that things will go well for you on the fertile land that the LORD your God is giving you.

5:6 I am the LORD: God self-identifies as the one who rescued Israel. It's on this basis that God can require Israel to obey the commandments.

5:7-10 In Deuteronomy the requirement not to have other gods and the requirement not to worship idols are one commandment. In Exodus they are two separate commandments. Thus in Exodus and Deuteronomy the commandments are numbered differently. The author of Deuteronomy combined the first two commandments of Exodus: the commandments against other gods and image worship. The author kept the total number at 10 by splitting the last commandment: the commandment against desiring a neighbor's wife, and the commandment against desiring his possessions (see Deut 5:21).

5:7 no other gods: The Ten Commandments, like the rest of the book of Deuteronomy, see other gods as a real threat to Israel's devotion. The existence of other gods is not denied here (cf. Deut 4:35). Rather, Israel must not worship them. before me: or "over and against me."

5:8 The commandment not to make an image of anything in the sky, the earth, or the sea has already been mentioned in Deuteronomy 4:16-19.

5:9 to them: the other gods mentioned in Deuteronomy 5:7. passionate God: or "jealous God." The Lord will not share worship with other gods. of those who hate me: God's punishment is not arbitrary but is brought only on future generations that disobey.

5:10-11 thousandth generation: The relationship between God's passionate jealousy and God's graciousness is unbalanced. God's graciousness to the thousandth generation far outweighs the requirements of divine justice to the third and fourth generations. God's long-lasting mercy is the basis of Israel's hopes for restoration after punishment (see Deut 30:1-10).

5:11 Lord your God: God is now spoken of in the third person, rather than the first person "I" (Deut 5:6-10). Moses resumes as the main speaker. of no significance: forbids any misuse of God's name, Yahweh (usually represented as "LORD"). This could include cursing, false testimony, and false prophesying (Deut 18:20-22).

5:12-15 Most of the Ten Commandments prohibit people from doing things. However, the sabbath commandment (described in these verses) and the command to honor father and mother (in Deut 5:16) speak positively about what people should do. In the book of Exodus, the Sabbath is justified by appeal to creation: God created the world in six days. In the book of Deuteronomy, the Sabbath is justified by appeal to the exodus from Egypt. Israel has experienced what it's like to work without rest. The book of Deuteronomy makes clear that sabbath rest applies to the common beasts of burden, the ox and the donkey.

5:12 Keep: Exodus 20 has "remember." Deuteronomy uses "remember" for historical events. The Hebrew word sabbath means "rest." It can be used in the OT for various festive days, but here it is used of the seventh day of the week.

5:14 you: The sabbath commandment is addressed to landowners. The immigrant wasn't native and had no land. Immigrants depended on landowners to survive. They had certain limited rights, and the instructions in Deuteronomy show a particular concern for them.

5:16 Honor: Submission to parental authority is also found in Deuteronomy 21:18-21 and 27:16. The Israelites lived together in family groupings across a number of generations. life will be long: Obedience to the commandments is frequently connected to enjoying life in the land. See note on Exodus 20:12.

5:17 kill: The killing of other persons is prohibited. Detailed laws about killing are found in Deuteronomy 19:1-13.

5:18 adultery: In ancient Israel the exclusive rights of the husband to his wife or his wife-to-be were protected. Although some instructions regulated men's sexual

Do not crave your neighbor's house, field, male or female servant, ox, donkey, or anything else that belongs to your neighbor.

<sup>22</sup>Those are the words the LORD spoke to your entire assembly with a loud voice while on the mountain, from the midst of the fire, the cloud, and the thick smoke. He added no more. God wrote them on two stone tablets, then gave them to me.

Moses' intercessory role

<sup>23</sup>Now once you heard the voice from the darkness while the mountain was blazing with fire, you came to me—more specifically, all the chiefs of your tribes and your elders came—

<sup>24</sup>and you said: "Look here! The LORD our God has shown us his glory and greatness. We've heard his voice come out of the very fire itself. We've seen firsthand that God can speak to a human being and they can survive! <sup>25</sup>But why should we die? Surely this massive fire will consume us! If we hear any more of the LORD our God's voice, we will die. <sup>26</sup>Is there anyone who has heard the living God's voice speaking out of the very fire itself, like we have, and survived? <sup>27</sup>You go and listen to all that the LORD our God says. Then tell us all that the LORD our God speaks to you. We'll listen and we'll do it."

<sup>28</sup>The LORD heard what you said, when you said this to me. The LORD then told me: I heard what the people said when they spoke with you. Everything they suggest is good.

<sup>29</sup>If only their minds were like this: always fearing me and keeping all my commandments so that things would go well for them and their children forever! <sup>30</sup>Go and tell them: You may go back to your tents. <sup>31</sup>But you, Moses, must stay here with me. I will tell you all the commandments,<sup>b</sup> the regulations, and the case laws that you must teach the Israelites to do in the land that I am giving them to possess.

<sup>32</sup>So you must carefully do exactly what the LORD your God commands you. Don't deviate even a bit! <sup>33</sup>You must walk the precise path that the LORD your God indicates for you so that you will live, and so that things will go well for you, and so you will extend your time on the land that you will possess.

The great commandment

6 Now these are the commandments, the regulations, and the case laws that the LORD your God commanded me to teach you to follow in the land you are entering to possess, <sup>2</sup>so that you will fear the LORD your God by keeping all his regulations and his commandments that I am commanding you—both you and your sons and daughters—all the days of your life and so that you will lengthen your life. <sup>3</sup>Listen to them, Israel! Follow them carefully behavior (cf. Deut 22:13-30), women didn't have the same rights over their husbands' sexuality (cf. Num 5:11-31). This was probably due to securing the rights of a man's heirs, and also because women were considered the men's property.

5:20 testify falsely: The commandment doesn't concern lying in general, but false witness in a dispute. Individual testimony was almost the only means for determining guilt or innocence in Israel's tribal justice. False testimony threatened the whole system of instruction. For more detailed rules on testimony, see Deuteronomy 19:15-21.

5:21 In Exodus just one commandment forbids desiring what others possess. In Deuteronomy this is split into two commandments: a command not to desire your neighbor's wife, and a command not to crave the possessions of your neighbor. desire... crave: Prohibiting an internal attitude is unusual in Israel's laws. It may be that the law is concerned with the actions that stem from desire or craving. wife: See note on Deuteronomy 5:18.

5:22 Those are the words: In early rabbinic Judaism the Ten Commandments are known as the "ten words" (cf. Exod 34:28). He added no more: draws a sharp distinction between the Ten Commandments and the rest of the commandments. The Ten Commandments were spoken by God directly to the people. The rest of the commandments were mediated to the people by Moses (cf. Exod 20:18-19). God wrote them: The book of Deuteronomy is particularly concerned with the writing of the Instruction (see Deut 31). 5:24-25 God can speak... and they can survive: In Israel direct encounter with God was thought to bring death. A number of verses suggest that a person can't see God and live (e.g., Gen 32:30; Exod 33:20). The dangers involved in hearing God's voice are also mentioned in Deuteronomy 4:33. These dangers suggest the need for Moses to act as a go-between.

5:29 always fearing... all my commandments: God reminds the people that the most threatening thing isn't hearing God's voice, but failing to obey God. See Deuteronomy 5:32-33.

5:30 go back to your tents: The assembly of the people is ended.

5:31 commandments... case laws: This all-encompassing description refers to the entire collection of instructions in Deuteronomy 12-26.

so that things will go well for you and so that you will continue to multiply exactly as the LORD, your ancestors' God, promised you, in a land full of milk and honey.

<sup>5</sup>Love the LORD your God with all your heart, and all your strength. <sup>6</sup>These words that I am commanding you today must always be on your minds. <sup>7</sup>Recite them to your children. Talk about them when you are sitting around your house and when you are out and

The Shema Deuteronomy 6:4 and the following verses are often known as the Shema. This name comes from the opening word in Hebrew, shema, which is translated "listen." These verses have played a central role in Jewish and Christian traditions. In Judaism it is recited at the beginning and end of the day. To repeat its words is "to take on the yoke of the kingdom of heaven." In Christianity the Shema introduces the greatest commandment: to love God. One of the challenges in understanding the Shema is the translation of Deuteronomy 6:4. Translation footnote c outlines the various possibilities. The different translations give rise to different understandings of the Shema. There are two main interpretations. The first interpretation understands the Shema as a statement of God's being or character. God is unique and always faithful. The second interpretation understands the Shema as a statement about the relationship between the Lord and Israel. The Lord is loved as the only God for them. The interpretation offered in the notes seeks to combine the best of both these possibilities. The Lord is to be Israel's only God, but that is because of the Lord's uniqueness. Another challenge in understanding the Shema is determining whether Deuteronomy 6:6-9 should be understood as literal practices or metaphors for complete commitment. In Judaism the literal approach is taken. The Shema is repeated daily and texts are carried in small boxes on the head and arms. In Christianity the instructions in Deuteronomy 6:6-9 are usually understood as metaphors for wholehearted commitment. (See notes on Deut 6:6-9.) The question is whether complete commitment is possible without the practices that express it.

<sup>6</sup>Or The LORD is our God, the LORD only; or The LORD is our God, the LORD alone; or The LORD our God is one LORD; or The LORD our God, the LORD is one; or The LORD is our God, the LORD is one.

6:1-11:32 These chapters provide a long introduction to the Instruction that Moses received from God on Mount Horeb. He will relay these to the people in Deuteronomy 12-26. The introduction is a long exhortation encouragement to obey the instructions. It insists on the importance of obeying God and the dangers of disobedience. It uses various examples from Israel's history in the wilderness to point out both the dangers of disobedience and God's generosity.

6:1 commandments . . . case laws: See note on Deuteronomy 5:31.

6:2 fear the LORD: See note on Deuteronomy 4:10.

6:3 land full of milk and honey: a common description of the land in the books of Exodus to Deuteronomy. It's found most frequently in Deuteronomy and is an ideal description of the land. Milk and honey are two choice foods in ancient Israel. They are plentiful because of the natural abundance of the land. Unlike cereal crops, nobody needed to cultivate milk and honey.

6:4 Our God . . . the LORD: The original Hebrew is difficult to translate. There are four nouns: "LORD"; "our God"; "LORD"; "one." Because of how Hebrew works, the reader must decide where to place the word "is." The footnote gives the different possible translations. The translation Our God is the LORD! Only the LORD! is correct in highlighting the relationship between God and Israel as the central issue. We may compare the use of the word "one" in Song of Songs 6:8-9. The lover knows that there are many other beautiful women, but in his eyes the woman he loves is the "one." In a similar way Deuteronomy 6:4 insists that the Lord is the only god for Israel. In the ancient world there were many gods, but Deuteronomy again and again requires the people to worship and obey only the Lord. This verse relates to the first commandment: The people should have no other gods before the Lord because the Lord is the only God for Israel. See sidebar, "The Shema."

6:5 Love the LORD: One God means Israel must be totally devoted to the Lord. Jesus in Matthew 22:37-39 calls this the most important commandment. Together with the commandment to love your neighbor it summarizes the Instruction for the Gospel writers (cf. Lev 19:18). heart: with thoughts and intentions. being: with desires and emotions. The meanings of heart and being have some overlap. These two terms are often found together in Deuteronomy. strength: a term that covers any other instincts and wishes of a person. It's only otherwise used together with "heart" and "being" in 2 Kings 23:25. There it describes Josiah, who is presented as someone who followed the Instruction of Deuteronomy completely.

6:6-9 These words: It's unclear whether this refers to Deuteronomy 6:4-5, the Ten Commandments, or the entirety of Deuteronomy. If the whole book is meant, the commandments in 6:6-9 can be understood metaphorically. They point to the central place the commandments must have in Israel's life, and the need to constantly remember. If "these words" refer to 6:4-5, then the commandments in 6:6-9 can be obeyed literally. The commands were to be written and carried upon the head and arms; they were to be written on doors and gates. Amulets and charms discovered in Israel suggest that words mentioning God's presence and protection were worn. We may also compare this with the high priest's headgear in Exodus 28:36-38.

6:7 Recite them to your children: Deuteronomy is particularly concerned with the teaching of the next generation, about, when you are lying down and when you are getting up. <sup>8</sup>Tie them on your hand as a sign. They should be on your forehead as a symbol.<sup>4</sup> <sup>9</sup>Write them on your house's doorframes and on your city's gates.

<sup>10</sup>Now once the LORD your God has brought you into the land that he swore to your ancestors, to Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob, to give to you—a land that will be full of large and wonderful towns that you didn't build, <sup>11</sup>houses stocked with all kinds of goods that you didn't stock, cisterns that you didn't make, vineyards and olive trees that you didn't plant—and you eat and get stuffed, <sup>12</sup>watch yourself! Don't forget the LORD, who brought you out of Egypt, out of the house of slavery. <sup>13</sup>Revere the LORD your God, serve him, and take your solemn pledges in his name! <sup>14</sup>Don't follow other gods, those gods of the people around you—<sup>15</sup>because the LORD your God, who is with you and among you, is a passionate God. The LORD your God's anger will burn against you, and he will wipe you off the fertile land. <sup>16</sup>Don't test the LORD your God the way you frustrated him at Massah. <sup>17</sup>You must carefully follow the LORD your God's commands along with the laws and regulations he has given you. <sup>18</sup>Do what is right and good in the LORD's sight so that things will go well for you and so you will enter and take possession of the wonderful land that the LORD swore to your ancestors, <sup>19</sup>and so the LORD will drive out all your enemies from before you, just as he promised.

The next generation

<sup>20</sup>In the future, your children will ask you, "What is the meaning of the laws,<sup>a</sup> the regulations, and the case laws that the LORD our God commanded you?" <sup>21</sup>tell them: We were Pharaoh's slaves in Egypt. But the LORD brought us out of Egypt with a mighty hand. <sup>22</sup>Before our own eyes, the LORD performed great and awesome deeds of power<sup>b</sup> against Egypt, Pharaoh, and his entire dynasty. <sup>23</sup>But the Lord brought us out from there so that he could bring us in, giving us the land that he swore to our ancestors. <sup>24</sup>Then the LORD commanded us to perform all these regulations, revering the LORD our God, so that things go well for us always and so we continue to live, as we're doing right now. <sup>25</sup>What's more, we will be considered righteous if we are careful to do all this commandment before the LORD our God, just as he commanded us.

<sup>a</sup>Heb uncertain; cf Exod 13:16; Syr sign or mark; Tg phylacteries <sup>b</sup>Or What are the laws . . . ? <sup>c</sup>Or signs and wonders

as well as the remembering of commandments from one generation to the next. The commandments are viewed as having an uncertain place in Israel's life, so care must be taken to remember them.

6:8 Tie them: See Exodus 13:9, 16. symbol: Translation note d points out the uncertainty in translating this word. In Jewish tradition the word is understood to refer to phylacteries. These are the small boxes worn by some Jews during prayer, which contain select Bible verses.

6:10-12 Deuteronomy 6-11 repeatedly warns about the dangers of eating until satisfied and then forgetting God. God's generous gift of land and food is a danger to the people. In Deuteronomy 12-26, however, food and feasting are always celebrated as something positive.

6:10 Now . . . brought you into the land: The same phrase is used in Deuteronomy 7:1 and 8:6. The commandments in Deuteronomy 12-26 concern Israel's life in the land of Canaan.

6:13 Revere the LORD: or "fear the LORD." See note on Deuteronomy 4:10. solemn pledges in his name: These pledges were made in various contexts, such as during a dispute with another person or when making agreements. In solemn pledges, people invoked the names of their gods as witnesses. The command here is to make oaths in the Lord's name because such an oath shows allegiance to the Lord.

6:14 Don't follow: Worship of other gods can be described using the language of journeys and paths.

6:15 passionate God: See note on Deuteronomy 4:24.

6:16 Don't test: Testing God is seen as a lack of trust. It reverses the relationship between God and the people. God may test the covenant people, but they shouldn't test God. Massah: See Exodus 17:1-7.

6:18 ancestors: could refer to the patriarchs (Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob) or the people's parents, who experienced the exodus from Egypt.

6:20 children will ask you: Similar questioning occurred in the Passover Festival (Exod 12:21-13:16).

6:21-23 The child's question is answered by telling Israel's story. In Deuteronomy the instruction is closely bound up with Israel's story with God. It's because of God's deliverance of Israel from Egypt that God has a special claim on the covenant people and can demand that Israel obey divine instruction.

6:22 Before our own eyes: Moses speaks to the children of those who experienced the exodus. The book of Deuteronomy frequently blends the two generations together in order to make its theological and ethical points. What one generation experiences, all experience as the story is retold. See Deuteronomy 5:3.

6:25 righteous: The term means that Israel's relationship with God is in order.

Dealing with foreign worship

7 Now once the LORD your God brings you into the land you are entering to take possession of, and he drives out numerous nations before you—the Hittites, the Girgashites, the Amorites, the Canaanites, the Perizzites, the Hivites, and the Jebusites: seven nations that are larger and stronger than you—<sup>2</sup>once the LORD your God lays them before you, you must strike them down, placing them under the ban.<sup>3</sup> Don't make any covenants with them, and don't be merciful to them. <sup>3</sup>Don't intermarry with them. Don't give your daughter to one of their sons to marry, and don't take one of their daughters to marry your son, <sup>4</sup>because they will turn your child away from following me so that they end up serving other gods. That will make the LORD's anger burn against you, and he will quickly annihilate you.

<sup>5</sup>Instead, this is what you must do with these nations: rip down their altars, smash their sacred stones, cut down their sacred poles,<sup>b</sup> and burn their idols <sup>6</sup>because you are a people holy to the LORD your God. The LORD your God chose you to be his own treasured people beyond all others on the fertile land. <sup>7</sup>It was not because you were greater than all other

The Ban The seven Canaanite nations are to be placed under the “ban.” The use of the word here and in Deuteronomy 2:34 and 3:6 suggests that the nations are to be completely destroyed. The Hebrew word for “ban,” herem, is not simply a word for destruction, but something devoted to God and placed off-limits for everyone else. In Leviticus 27 items that have been devoted can't be sold or redeemed. They are holy to the Lord. When something is herem, all human claims to it are renounced. But what does it mean to devote human beings to the Lord? What is a modern reader to make of a divine commandment that requires men, women, and children to be killed?

The rabbis suggested that Joshua gave a proclamation that allowed the Canaanites to choose to leave, submit, or fight. If they chose to fight, they would be destroyed. Some argue that the ban is divine judgment because the Canaanites were especially unrighteous. Since the book of Deuteronomy was written many centuries after the conquest of Canaan, many scholars think Deuteronomy offers a model that wasn't carried out historically. Deuteronomy presents how the conquest under Joshua was supposed to happen.

There is another solution. Given that the term herem is unusual, perhaps readers should understand it as a metaphor. The Israelites are to treat the Canaanites as though they were dead and turned over to the Lord's judgment. The Israelites should not marry them (Deut 7:3). They should destroy Canaanite religious objects (Deut 7:5). The concern thus is wholehearted devotion to the Lord, who is worshipped in the way God chooses.

7:1 seven nations: The list of nations is found in various places in the OT and can vary. Here, seven implies the complete list of nations that Israel must face. Though there are many foes, God will defeat them. larger and stronger: Deuteronomy insists that it is the Lord who defeats the Canaanite nations, not Israel.

7:2 God lays them: The Lord defeats the nations. ban: See sidebar, “The Ban.” any covenants: A covenant of peace is probably meant. The word “covenant” can refer to either a treaty with another nation, as is the case here, or Israel's relationship with God, as was the case in Deuteronomy 5:2 (see sidebar, “Covenant” at Deut 5). In essence, Israel is told to choose whether to have a covenant with these Canaanite nations or with God. God's people cannot have both.

7:3 Don't intermarry: A number of other OT texts express the concern that Israel will intermarry with the surrounding nations. The worry is that this intermarriage will lead to idolatry. See Exodus 34:16; Numbers 25; Ezra 9:1-2. The commandment in 7:3 seems rather strange if the people are annihilated as Deuteronomy 7:2 commands.

7:5 sacred stones: stone monuments that were set up at various places and used in worship. Some were even erected by the ancestors in Genesis. In Deuteronomy they contradict the commandment to worship the Lord in the chosen place (Deut 12). sacred poles: Translation note h draws attention to the possible connection with the goddess Asherah. In Deuteronomy the pole may have been understood to represent the goddess, or it may simply have been part of the religious worship of other gods.

7:6 people holy: Israel is separate from other nations because of its special relationship to God. It is like the objects in the temple. Though they are in many respects ordinary objects, they have been set aside for a special purpose. As a result, they can't be put to any other use. chose you: Israel's special status can also be described with the language of choice or election. God chose Israel from the nations. own treasured people: Israel is compared to a king's treasury. Israel is God's personal and special property.

7:7-8 the Lord loved you and chose you . . . because the Lord loved you: The verses describe a paradox. The Lord loves because the Lord loves! God's generosity is based on God alone, not anything the people have done or are.

7:7 God's choice isn't based on any quality that the people possess (see Deut 9:4-5). It's based solely on God's decision to love Israel.

people that the LORD loved you and chose you. In fact, you were the smallest of peoples! <sup>8</sup>No, it is because the LORD loved you and because he kept the solemn pledge he swore to your ancestors that the LORD brought you out with a strong hand and saved you from the house of slavery, from the power of Pharaoh, Egypt's king. <sup>9</sup>Know now then that the LORD your God is the only true God! He is the faithful God, who keeps the covenant and proves loyal to everyone who loves him and keeps his commands—even to the thousandth generation! <sup>10</sup>He is the God who personally repays anyone who hates him, ultimately destroying that kind of person. The LORD does not waste time with anyone who hates him; he repays them personally. <sup>11</sup>So make sure you carefully keep the commandment, the regulations, and the case laws that I am commanding you right now.

<sup>12</sup>If you listen to these case laws and follow them carefully, the LORD your God will keep the covenant and display the loyalty that he promised your ancestors. <sup>13</sup>He will love you, bless you, and multiply you. He will bless the fruit of your wombs and the fruit of your fertile land—all your grain, your wine, your oil, and the offspring of your cattle and flocks—upon the very fertile land that he swore to your ancestors to give to you. <sup>14</sup>You will be more blessed than any other group of people. No one will be sterile or infertile—not among you or your animals. <sup>15</sup>The LORD will remove all sickness from you. As for all those dreadful Egyptian diseases you experienced, the Lord won't put them on you but will inflict them on all who hate you. <sup>16</sup>You will destroy all the peoples that the LORD your God is handing over to you. Show them no pity. And don't serve their gods because that would be a trap for you.

Against power and lack of trust

<sup>17</sup>If you happen to think to yourself, These nations are greater than we are; how can we possibly possess their land? <sup>18</sup>Don't be afraid of them! Remember, instead, what the LORD your God did to Pharaoh and all Egypt: <sup>19</sup>the great trials that you saw with your own eyes, the signs and wonders, and the strong hand and outstretched arm the LORD your God used to rescue you. That's what the LORD your God will do to any people you fear. <sup>20</sup>The LORD your God will send terror<sup>i</sup> on them until even the survivors and those hiding from you are destroyed. <sup>21</sup>Don't dread these nations because the LORD your God, the great and awesome God, is with you and among you. (<sup>22</sup>The LORD your God will drive out these nations before you bit by bit. You won't be able to finish them off quickly; otherwise, the wild animals would become too much for you to handle.) <sup>23</sup>The LORD your God will lay these nations before you, throwing them into a huge panic until they are destroyed. <sup>24</sup>He will hand their kings over

7:8 saved you: or “redeemed you.” The same verb is used of saving an animal or person from death by providing a substitute or making a payment.

7:9 Know now then: In the book of Deuteronomy, God is known through the things that God does for Israel. proves loyal: This is a restatement of part of the Ten Commandments (see Deut 5:10).

7:10 anyone who hates: God's generosity in the previous verse is no excuse for carelessness. God chose Israel, and Israel must obey God's Instruction. As love is shown through obeying the Instruction, hating God is seen in disobedience. In Hebrew, the word for “anyone” here implies one person, unlike “everyone” in Deuteronomy 7:9, which refers to a group of people. So the person hating God is seen as the exception.

7:12 If you listen: In Deuteronomy blessing depends upon obedience. covenant: God's covenant is mostly used of the agreement between God and Israel. Only here and in Deuteronomy 4:31 and 8:18 is it used of a covenant with Israel's ancestors: Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob. See sidebar, “Covenant” at Deuteronomy 5.

7:13 your grain, your wine, your oil: the three main crops of the land of Israel. They are mentioned regularly in Deuteronomy. The terms refer to the crops as they appear just after harvest and before they have been processed.

7:15 The LORD . . . sickness: For God as healer, see Exodus 15:26. dreadful Egyptian diseases: a reference to the 10 disasters that came on Egypt (see Exod 7–14).

7:18 don't be afraid: a regular instruction during occasions of war in the OT. When the people are obedient, God will fight for them and they need not fear.

7:20 terror: The translation note refers to “wasp” as a possible translation. A similar idea is found in Deuteronomy 1:44.

7:22 wild animals: The slow progress of the conquest of the land of Canaan is explained. In Judges 2:20–23 the slow conquest is due to sin, but in Judges 3:1–4 the remaining peoples are there to test Israel. The explanation that we find here in Deuteronomy 7:22 is also found in Exodus 23:29.

7:23 huge panic: For God sending panic on foreign armies, see also Exodus 14:24; 23:27; Joshua 10:10. This is common in portrayals of God fighting for Israel.

7:24 their names: In Israel and neighboring nations, people wanted their names to be remembered even after their deaths. This remembering could be by their descendants or through a monument. If this didn't happen, the individual no longer had any place in the world of the living. God commands Israel to make this feared possibility a reality for the Canaanite kings.

to you, and you will wipe their names out from under the skies. No one will be able to stand before you; you will crush them.

<sup>25</sup>Burn the images of their gods. Don't desire the silver or the gold that is on them and take it for yourself, or you will be trapped by it. That is detestable to the LORD your God. <sup>26</sup>Don't bring any detestable thing into your house, or you will be placed under the ban too, just like it is! You must utterly detest these kinds of things, despising them completely, because they are under the ban.

GYou must carefully perform all of the commandment that I am commanding you right now so you can live and multiply and enter and take possession of the land that the LORD swore to your ancestors. <sup>2</sup>Remember the long road on which the LORD your God led you during these forty years in the desert so he could humble you, testing you to find out what was in your heart: whether you would keep his commandments or not. <sup>3</sup>He humbled you by making you hungry and then feeding you the manna that neither you nor your ancestors had ever experienced, so he could teach you that people don't live on bread alone. No, they live based on whatever the LORD says.<sup>j</sup> <sup>4</sup>During these forty years, your clothes didn't wear out and your feet didn't swell up. <sup>5</sup>Know then in your heart that the LORD your God has been disciplining you just as a father disciplines his children. <sup>6</sup>Keep the commandments of the LORD your God by walking in his ways and by fearing him, <sup>7</sup>because the LORD your God is bringing you to a wonderful land, a land with streams of water, springs, and wells that gush up in the valleys and on the hills; <sup>8a</sup>a land of wheat and barley, vines, fig trees, and pomegranates; a land of olive oil and honey; <sup>9a</sup>a land where you will eat food without any shortage—you won't lack a thing there—a land where stone is hard as iron and where you will mine copper from the hills. <sup>10</sup>You will eat, you will be satisfied, and you will bless the LORD your God in the wonderful land that he's given you.

Against wealth and overconfidence

<sup>11</sup>But watch yourself! Don't forget the LORD your God by not keeping his commands or his case laws or his regulations that I am commanding you right now. <sup>12</sup>When you eat, get full, build nice houses, and settle down, <sup>13</sup>and when your herds and your flocks are growing large, your silver and gold are multiplying, and everything you have is thriving, <sup>14</sup>don't become arrogant, forgetting the LORD your God:

<sup>j</sup>Or whatever comes out of the LORD's mouth

7:25 the silver or the gold: Images of the gods were commonly made of wood and covered with precious metal. Moses forbids even the reuse of the metal from idols. The Lord's choice of Israel has enduring results. In a similar way, using metal for idol making has lasting consequences. detestable to the LORD: In Deuteronomy the word "detestable" is used a number of times for various practices that are obnoxious to the Lord. These practices often come from Canaanite worship.

7:26 Those who take the precious metal come under the ban (see sidebar, "The Ban" at Deut 7). A vivid application of this instruction is found in the story of Achan in Joshua 6–7.

8:1–20 Deuteronomy 8 is dominated by the theme of memory, as can be seen by the repeated use of the words "remember" and "forget." The lessons of the past (8:2–6) must be followed in the future when Israel enters the land (8:7–20).

8:2–4 The 40 years in the wilderness are understood as God's disciplining of Israel. Obedience to the Instruction requires Israel to recognize its dependence on the Lord.

8:2 testing: For the wilderness as a test from the Lord, see Exodus 15:23–17:7.

8:3 they refers to all human beings, and not just Israel. whatever the LORD says: As translation note j points out, the Hebrew idiom is "whatever comes out of the LORD's mouth." This proverbial statement means that all people depend on what God determines. In the wilderness

Israel depended upon the bread that God provided (Exod 16:13). In Deuteronomy, Israel is also dependent on what God has commanded. This dual meaning unites Israel's past experience in the wilderness and future events in the land of Canaan.

8:4 For a similar description of the wilderness, see Deuteronomy 29:5–6.

8:5 For God as a father, see Deuteronomy 1:31. In Israel's Wisdom literature such as Proverbs, disciplining children—including physical punishment—is a strong theme.

8:7–10 The description of the land of Canaan is a little exaggerated. The land isn't a good source of iron or copper. The description has a similar purpose to the words "a land full of milk and honey": It emphasizes the generosity of the Lord to the people (see note on Deut 6:3). In this way it seeks to make disobedience of the Instruction unthinkable.

8:10 eat . . . satisfied: The climax of God's generosity is often seen in Israel's enjoying the land's goodness in a meal. See note on Deuteronomy 6:10–12. Food is central to life, and a good supply wasn't guaranteed in the ancient world. The gift of land was first and foremost a gift of regular meals.

8:14 don't become arrogant: Prosperity is linked to a belief in self-sufficiency. The Lord's generosity to Israel brings with it a danger that the people will attribute their wealth to their own power and hard work. Deuteronomy insists the one who rescued you from Egypt, from the house of slavery; <sup>15</sup>the one who led you through this vast and terrifying desert of poisonous snakes and scorpions, of cracked ground with no water;

the one who made water flow for you out of a hard rock;

<sup>16</sup>the one who fed you manna in the wilderness, which your ancestors had never experienced, in order to humble and test you, but in order to do good to you in the end.

<sup>17</sup>Don't think to yourself, My own strength and abilities have produced all this prosperity for me. <sup>18</sup>Remember the LORD your God! He's the one who gives you the strength to be prosperous in order to establish the covenant he made with your ancestors—and that's how things stand right now. <sup>19</sup>But if you do, in fact, forget the LORD your God and follow other gods, serving and bowing down to them, I swear to you right now that you will be completely destroyed. <sup>20</sup>Just like the nations that the LORD is destroying before you, that's exactly how you will be destroyed—all because you didn't obey the LORD your God's voice.

Against false piety and immodesty

9 Listen, Israel! Today you will cross the Jordan River to enter and take possession of nations larger and more powerful than you, along with huge cities with fortifications that reach to the sky. <sup>2</sup>These people are large and tall—they are the Anakim. You know and have heard what people say: “Who can stand up to the Anakim?” <sup>3</sup>Know right now that the LORD your God, who is crossing over before you, is an all-consuming fire! He will wipe them out! He will subdue them before you! Then you will take possession of their land, eliminating them quickly, exactly as the LORD told you.

<sup>4</sup>Once the LORD your God has driven them out before you, don't think to yourself, It's because I'm righteous that the LORD brought me in to possess this land. It is instead because of these nations' wickedness that the LORD is removing them before you. <sup>5</sup>You aren't entering and taking possession of their land because you are righteous or because your heart is especially virtuous; rather, it is because these nations are wicked—that's why the LORD your God is removing them before you, and because he wishes to establish the promise he made to your ancestors: to Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob.

Gold calf

<sup>6</sup>Know then that the LORD your God isn't giving you this excellent land for you to possess on account of your righteousness—because you are a stubborn people! <sup>7</sup>Remember—don't ever forget!—how you made the LORD your God furious in the wilderness. From the very first day you stepped out of Egypt until you arrived at this place, you have been rebels that everything comes from God. This is as true in the land of Canaan as it was in the wilderness when the food appeared every day from heaven. house of slavery: The same words are found at the beginning of the Ten Commandments (Deut 5:6).

8:15-16 The description of the wilderness in these verses is meant to contrast with the generous picture of the land of Canaan in Deuteronomy 8:7-10.

8:15 poisonous snakes: Numbers 21:4-9 tells of the troubles with snakes in the wilderness. hard rock: The same words are found in Deuteronomy 32:13.

8:16 good to you in the end: Deuteronomy presents God's discipline as something with a positive end. This is true even in Deuteronomy 28–30, where Israel's exile from the promised land is predicted. The exile will also be a time of discipline so that God can eventually bring Israel back to the land. The people will then be prepared to obey the Instruction.

8:18 Usually the word covenant refers to the agreement between God and the Israelites. Here it refers to the ancestors: Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob. See Deuteronomy 4:31; 7:12; see sidebar, “Covenant” at Deuteronomy 5.

8:19-20 The theme of forgetfulness concludes with a reference to following other gods. In this way the theme of Deuteronomy 9–10 (i.e., the golden calf) is introduced.

Idolatry will lead to destruction, and the story of the gold calf is a good example of how this almost happened in the wilderness.

9:1-6 Israel can't think that its size was the reason that it possesses the land of Canaan (9:1-3). Nor should it imagine it's because of its righteousness (9:4-6).

9:1 reach to the sky: The same description of the Canaanite cities is found in the spies' report in Deuteronomy 1:28.

9:2 Anakim: See note on Deuteronomy 1:28.

9:3 all-consuming fire: The same image is used in Deuteronomy 4:24. eliminating them quickly: a contrast with Deuteronomy 7:22, where the conquest is slow so that the wild animals don't take over the land.

9:4-5 righteous . . . wicked: These are originally legal terms. Israel's victory won't show it to be right or innocent. In view of Deuteronomy 8:19-20, Israel, too, may prove to be as guilty as the Canaanites. nations are wicked: The same idea is found in Genesis 15:16.

9:6 stubborn people: The Hebrew idiom “stiff-necked” implies that the people can't turn their heads in order to hear God. With this word Moses introduces one of the key ideas in the story of the gold calf that follows.

9:7-10:11 The story of the gold calf is also told in more detail in Exodus 32–34. In Deuteronomy's account the themes of rebellion and Moses' intercession are in against the LORD. <sup>8</sup>Even at Horeb you angered the LORD! He was so enraged by you that he threatened to wipe you out. <sup>9</sup>When I went up on the mountain to get the stone tablets, the covenant tablets that the LORD made with you, I was up there forty days and forty nights. I ate no bread, drank no water. <sup>10</sup>The LORD gave me the two stone tablets, written by God's finger, and on them were all the words that the LORD had said to you on the mountain, out of the very fire itself, on the day we assembled. <sup>11</sup>At the end of those forty days and nights, the LORD gave me the two stone tablets—the covenant tablets. <sup>12</sup>Then the LORD said to me, "Get going! Get down from here quickly because your people, whom you brought out of Egypt, have ruined everything! They couldn't wait to turn from the path I commanded them! They've made themselves an idol out of cast metal."

<sup>13</sup>The LORD said more to me: "I have seen this people. Look! What a stubborn people they are! <sup>14</sup>Now stand back. I am going to wipe them out. I will erase their name from under heaven, then I will make a nation out of you—one stronger and larger than they were."

<sup>15</sup>So I went down the mountain while it was blazing with fire. The two covenant tablets were in my two hands. <sup>16</sup>It was then that I saw how you sinned against the LORD your God: you made yourselves a calf, an idol made of cast metal! You couldn't wait to turn from the path the LORD commanded you! <sup>17</sup>I grabbed the two tablets and threw them down with my own hands, shattering them while you watched. <sup>18</sup>Then I fell before the LORD as I had done the previous forty days and forty nights. I ate no bread and drank no water, all because of the sin that you had committed by doing such evil in the LORD's sight, infuriating him. <sup>19</sup>I was afraid of the massive anger and rage the LORD had for you—he was going to wipe you out! However, the LORD listened to me again in that moment.

<sup>20</sup>But the LORD was furious with Aaron—he was going to wipe him out! So I also prayed hard for Aaron at that time. <sup>21</sup>And as for that sinful thing you made, that calf, I took it and I burned it with fire. Then I smashed it, grinding it thoroughly until it was as fine as dust. Then I dumped the dust into the stream that ran down the mountain.

<sup>22</sup>Also at Taberah, again at Massah, and then again at Kibroth-hattaavah, you have been the kind of people who make the LORD angry. <sup>23</sup>And then, when the LORD sent you from Kadesh-barnea, telling you: "Go up and take possession of the land that I'm giving you," you disobeyed the LORD your God's command. You didn't trust him. You didn't obey God's voice.

<sup>b</sup>LXX, Sam he (God) met you particular focus. The covenant is broken, but because of Moses' actions it could be remade.

9:8 Even at Horeb: The rebellion was not only serious but also took place at the very location where Israel heard God speak the Ten Commandments!

9:9 no bread... no water: Moses' act of fasting is a form of self-discipline.

9:10 God's finger: See Exodus 31:18. In Deuteronomy 5 the special place of the Ten Commandments is expressed by the fact that only they were spoken by God directly to the people. In this verse their special status is shown in that they are written by God's own finger.

9:12 your people... you brought out: God withdraws from Israel. The Bible usually calls the Israelites God's people and says that God brought them out of Egypt. Now God makes them Moses' responsibility. from the path: the Ten Commandments.

9:13 stubborn people: See note on Deuteronomy 9:6.

9:14 erase their name: Israel was meant to erase the name of the Canaanites (Deut 7:24). God threatens to do that to Israel itself.

9:16 calf: Worship of a calf has a long history in the ancient region where Israel emerged (see 1 Kgs 12). The calf was probably a symbol of agricultural fertility and strength.

9:17 shattering them: The breaking of a (stone) document symbolizes the breaking of the legal agreement. Both the covenant and the committed relationship are broken!

9:18 forty days and forty nights: In Deuteronomy Moses seems to spend another 40 days on the mountain before destroying the gold calf. This isn't found in Exodus. In Deuteronomy the periods of 40 days and nights give a structure to the story (see Deut 9:9, 18, 25; 10:10).

9:20 Aaron: Moses' intercession for Aaron is not mentioned in Exodus 32. This appears to be part of a concern with the priesthood, which is also found in Deuteronomy 10:6-9.

9:21 The description of the destruction of the gold calf is slightly different from what is found in Exodus 32:20. A number of these differences make the destruction more like the destruction of worship objects in the books of Kings. dust into the stream: In Exodus 32:20 the people are made to drink the water. In Deuteronomy food and drink are always seen as good. Any problems lie in the people's response, rather than with what they consume.

9:22 Taberah: See Numbers 11:1-3. Massah: See Exodus 17:1-7; Deuteronomy 6:16. Kibroth-hattaavah: See Numbers 11:4-34. On each occasion Moses successfully intercedes for the people.

9:23 Kadesh-barnea: See Deuteronomy 1:19-46.

Moses' intercessory prayer

<sup>25</sup>But I fell on my knees in the LORD's presence forty days and forty nights, lying flat out, because the LORD planned on wiping you out. <sup>26</sup>But I prayed to the LORD! I said: LORD, my Lord! Don't destroy your people, your own possession, whom you saved by your own power, whom you brought out of Egypt with a strong hand! <sup>27</sup>Remember your servants: Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob! Don't focus on this people's stubbornness, wickedness, and sin. <sup>28</sup>Otherwise, that land out of which you brought us will say: The LORD wasn't strong enough to bring them into the land he'd promised them. Because he didn't care for them in the least, he brought them out to die in the desert. <sup>29</sup>But these are your people! Your own possession! The people you brought out by your great power and by your outstretched arm!

New tablets

10 At that time the LORD told me: Carve two stone tablets, just like the first ones, and hike up the mountain to me. Construct a wooden chest as well. <sup>21</sup>I will write on the tablets the words that were on the first tablets—the ones you smashed—then you will place them in the chest.

<sup>3</sup>So I built a chest out of acacia wood and carved two stone tablets just like the first ones. Then I hiked up the mountain holding the two tablets in my hands. <sup>4</sup>God wrote on the new tablets what had been written on the first set: the Ten Commandments that the LORD spoke to you on the mountain, from the very fire itself, on the day we assembled there. Then the LORD gave them to me.

<sup>5</sup>So I came back down the mountain. I put the tablets in the chest that I'd made, and that's where they are now, exactly as the LORD commanded me.

(<sup>6</sup>Now, the Israelites had set out from Beeroth-bene-jaakan<sup>1</sup> to Moserah. It was there that Aaron died and was buried. His son Eleazar succeeded him in the priestly role. <sup>7</sup>From there the Israelites traveled to Gudgodah, then from Gudgodah to Jobbathah, which is a land with flowing streams. <sup>8</sup>At that time, the LORD selected the tribe of Levi to carry the chest containing the LORD's covenant, to minister before the LORD, to serve him, and to offer blessings in his name. That's the way things are right now. <sup>9</sup>That's why the Levites don't have a stake or inheritance with the rest of their relatives. The LORD is the Levites' inheritance, just as the LORD your God promised them.)

<sup>10</sup>Just as the first time, I remained on the mountain forty days and nights. And the LORD listened to me again in this instance. The LORD wasn't willing to destroy you. <sup>11</sup>Then the LORD told me: Get going. Lead the people so they can enter and take possession of the land that I promised I'd give to their ancestors.

What the Lord requires

<sup>12</sup>Now in light of all that, Israel, what does the LORD your God ask of you? Only this: to revere the LORD your God by walking in all his ways, by loving him, by serving the LORD your God with all your heart and being, <sup>13</sup>and by keeping the LORD's commandments and his regulations that I'm commanding you right now. It's for your own good!

9:25-29 This intercession is very similar to the first intercession in Exodus 32:7-14. In Exodus, however, Moses prayed before he went down from the mountain the first time. In both cases, Moses appeals to God's earlier promises, the righteousness of the ancestors, and God's own honor.

9:26 Despite God's words in Deuteronomy 9:12, Moses insists that the Israelites are God's people.

10:1 wooden chest: In Deuteronomy the wooden chest houses the Ten Commandments. It's often known as the "chest containing the LORD's covenant" (Deut 10:8; 31:9, 25).

10:6-9 These verses are an insertion into the story of the gold calf. They have an interest in tasks of the priests and Levites. This concern is already found in Deuteronomy 9:20.

10:6 Beeroth-bene-jaakan to Moserah: These locations are mentioned in Numbers 33:31. In Numbers 20 the place of Aaron's death is said to be Mount Hor.

10:7 Gudgodah...Jobbathah: For these locations, see Numbers 33:32.

10:8 The tasks listed here include levitical and priestly roles.

10:9 The LORD is the Levites' inheritance: The Levites received a tenth of Israelite crops, the tithes. The priests received parts of the sacrifices offered by the Israelites. For details, see Numbers 18.

10:10 to destroy you: The story of the gold calf ends with the important fact that God chose not to destroy Israel for her sin. The story shows that Israel was stubborn, but also that the Lord was faithful to the promise to the ancestors.

10:12-11:32 In Deuteronomy 12 God's instructions for Israel will be given in detail. Moses' strong encouragement in Deuteronomy 5-11 is brought to a conclusion with a lengthy sermon. Israel is urged again and again to love God and follow the commandments. Various reasons are given, including God's actions in Israel's history and the promises concerning the land.

10:12 Now in light of all that: The story about the gold calf leads into the encouragement to keep the instruction.

<sup>14</sup>Clearly, the LORD owns the sky, the highest heavens, the earth, and everything in it. <sup>15</sup>But the LORD adored your ancestors, loving them and choosing the descendants that followed them—you!—from all other people. That's how things still stand now. <sup>16</sup>So circumcise your hearts<sup>m</sup> and stop being so stubborn, <sup>17</sup>because the LORD your God is the God of all gods and Lord of all lords, the great, mighty, and awesome God who doesn't play favorites and doesn't take bribes. <sup>18</sup>He enacts justice for orphans and widows, and he loves immigrants, giving them food and clothing. <sup>19</sup>That means you must also love immigrants because you were immigrants in Egypt. <sup>20</sup>Revere the LORD your God, serve him, cling to him, swear by his name alone! <sup>21</sup>He is your praise, and he is your God—the one who performed these great and awesome acts that you witnessed with your very own eyes. <sup>22</sup>Your ancestors went down to Egypt with a total of seventy people, but now look! The LORD your God has made you as numerous as the stars in the nighttime sky!

11 So love the LORD your God and follow his instruction, his regulations, his case laws, and his commandments always. <sup>2</sup>And know right now what your children haven't known or yet witnessed.<sup>n</sup>

The LORD your God's discipline, his power, his mighty hand and outstretched arm;

<sup>3</sup>the signs and the acts that he performed in the heart of Egyptian territory, against Egypt's King Pharaoh and all his land;

<sup>5</sup>what the Lord did for you in the desert, until you arrived at this place;

<sup>6</sup>and what he did to Dathan and Abiram, the descendants of Eliab the Reubenite, when the ground opened up its mouth and swallowed them, their families, their tents, and every living thing they possessed in the presence of all Israel.

<sup>7</sup>Your own eyes witnessed each of these powerful acts the LORD performed. <sup>8</sup>So keep every part of the commandment that I am giving you today so that you stay strong to enter and take possession of the land that you are crossing over to possess, <sup>9</sup>and so that you might prolong your life on the fertile land that the LORD swore to your ancestors to give to them and their descendants—a land full of milk and honey.

<sup>10</sup>The land you are about to enter and possess is definitely not like the land of Egypt, where you came from, where you sowed your seed and irrigated it by hand<sup>p</sup> like a vegetable

Israel is advised to revere, to walk in God's ways, to love and serve God in every way. In short, Israel is told to obey the Instruction and take it to heart.

10:14-15 the LORD owns: God's choice of Israel isn't opposed to God's universal reign over all the parts of creation but depends upon it. Because everything in creation belongs to the Lord, God can choose Israel. The same idea is found in Deuteronomy 7:6-8.

10:16 circumcise your hearts: This vivid metaphor means that the Israelites must be devoted to the Lord in a committed relationship. Here the Israelites are asked to remove any obstacle from being devoted to God. After the people fail and are punished with exile, Deuteronomy 30:6 foresees a day when God will need to circumcise the people's hearts, because they can't do it themselves.

10:17-18 God is portrayed not only as a king, but as a just king. God isn't partial by taking bribes from the rich and powerful. Instead, God is known as one who acts for the poor and outsiders. Providing for the poor and weak was one of the ways that the ideal king was pictured in the ancient world.

10:19 you must also love: The instructions of Deuteronomy have a special concern for the orphans, widows, and immigrants. Various commandments describe how they are to be cared for. This is an example of how Israel is required to imitate God's mercy and compassion.

10:20 See note on Deuteronomy 6:13.

10:21 your very own eyes: For the merging of generations, see note on Deuteronomy 6:22.

10:22 Two passages in Genesis are brought together. According to Genesis 46:27, Jacob's family numbered 70 people when they went down into Egypt. Now, many years later, they fulfill the promise to Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob that they would become more numerous than the stars (Gen 22:17; 26:4).

11:2 Lord your God's discipline: Israel's history with God (Deut 11:2-6) is seen as a story of discipline. The people have been trained to obey and follow God.

11:6 Dathan and Abiram: The story of Dathan and Abiram is found in Numbers 16, which also speaks of a rebellion by Korah.

11:7 Your own eyes: For the merging of generations, see note on Deuteronomy 6:22.

11:9 land full: See note on Deuteronomy 6:3.

11:10-12 Egypt gets very little rain, and its agriculture depends upon water from the Nile River. As a result, much work is required in taking the water to the fields. By contrast, Israel's agriculture was based on water from rain. The land was terraced so that the rainwater would run down the hills and onto the terraces. Vegetables that needed more water were rarely grown. They were found only in vegetable gardens, which needed to be watered regularly.

garden. <sup>11</sup>No, the land you are entering to possess is a land of hills and valleys, where your drinking water will be rain from heaven. <sup>12</sup>It's a land that the LORD cares for: the LORD's eyes are on it constantly from the first of the year until the very end of the year.

<sup>13</sup>Now, if you completely obey God's<sup>a</sup> commandments that I am giving you right now, by loving the LORD your God and by serving him with all your heart and all your being, <sup>14</sup>then he<sup>f</sup> will provide rain for your land at the right time—early rain and late rain—so you can stock up your grain, wine, and oil. <sup>15</sup>He<sup>g</sup> will also make your fields lush for your livestock, and you will eat and be satisfied. <sup>16</sup>But watch yourselves! Otherwise, your heart might be led astray so you stray away, serving other gods and worshipping them. <sup>17</sup>Then the LORD's anger would burn against you. He will close the sky up tight. There won't be any rain, and the ground won't yield any of its crops. You will quickly disappear off the wonderful land the LORD is giving to you.

<sup>18</sup>Place these words I'm speaking on your heart and in your very being. Tie them on your hand as a sign. They should be on your forehead as a symbol.<sup>h</sup> <sup>19</sup>Teach them to your children, by talking about them when you are sitting around your house and when you are out and about, when you are lying down and when you are getting up. <sup>20</sup>Write them on your house's doorframes and on your city's gates. <sup>21</sup>Do all that so your days and your children's days on the fertile land the LORD swore to give to your ancestors are many—indeed, as many as the number of days that the sky's been over the earth!

<sup>22</sup>It's true: if you carefully keep all this commandment that I'm giving you, by doing it, by loving the LORD your God, by walking in all his ways, and by clinging to him, <sup>23</sup>then the LORD will clear out all these nations before you. You will inherit what belonged to nations that are larger and stronger than you are. <sup>24</sup>Every place you set foot on will be yours: your territory will run from the wilderness all the way to the Lebanon range, and from the Euphrates River all the way to the Mediterranean Sea. <sup>25</sup>No one will be able to stand up to you. Just as he promised, the LORD your God will make the entire land deathly afraid of you wherever you advance in it.

Ceremony on Mount Gerizim and Mount Ebal

<sup>26</sup>Pay attention! I am setting blessing and curse before you right now: <sup>27</sup>the blessing if you obey the LORD your God's commandments that I am giving you right now, <sup>28</sup>but the curse if you don't obey the LORD your God's commandments and stray from the path that I am giving you today by following other gods that you have not known. <sup>29</sup>Now when the LORD your God brings you into the land that you are entering to take possession of, put the blessing on Mount Gerizim and the curse on Mount Ebal. This rain-based agriculture meant that Israel's life was in some ways easier, but also more dependent upon regular rain. This rain was in God's control, and the land needed God's constant care (11:12).

11:13-17 Israel's dependence upon the rain made it vulnerable to irregular weather. In Deuteronomy the failure of the rain to come, or to come in the right amount, is attributed to God's anger at disobedience.

11:14 early rain and late rain: The rainy season lasts from about the end of October to the beginning of April. The early and late rains are the crucial rains at the beginning and end of the season. If the rain came late or finished early, the growing season was reduced, with devastating results for the harvest.

11:17 There won't be any rain: The idea of drought as divine punishment is found in Deuteronomy 28:32-33 and probably also in the story of Ahab and Elijah (1 Kgs 17).

11:18-21 The idea of binding words on hands and foreheads is taken up from Deuteronomy 6:6-9. Since these words refers to the instructions more generally, which are taught to the children, it's likely that the words should be taken to heart, rather than literally written. They should affect intentions and desires. See sidebar, "The Shema" at Deuteronomy 6.

11:24 The land that Israel is given is generously described. Israel rarely, if ever, possessed land as far as the Euphrates River.

11:26 blessing and curse: This theme will occur again in Deuteronomy 27. These chapters about blessings and curses make a clear border around the instructions in Deuteronomy 12-26.

11:29 Mount Gerizim... Mount Ebal: These two hills are found near Shechem in the middle of Israel. The covenant ceremony in which the blessings and curses are said by the Israelites is described in more detail in Deuteronomy 27.

11:30 Moreh Oak Grove: the first place that Abram stopped in the land of Canaan and received a promise from God (Gen 12:6).

<sup>31</sup>So then, once you cross the Jordan River to enter and possess the land that the LORD your God is giving you, and you take possession of it, settling down in it, <sup>32</sup>you must carefully follow the regulations and the case laws that I am laying out before you right now.

Regulations and the case laws:

Worship at the location the Lord selects

12 These are the regulations and the case laws that you must carefully keep in the fertile land the LORD, your ancestors' God, has given to you to possess for as long as you live on that land:

<sup>5</sup>Instead, you must search for the location the LORD your God will select from all your tribes to put his name there, as his residence, and you must go there. <sup>6</sup>You must bring your

Deuteronomy and the Covenant Code (Exodus 21–23) The teachings in the book of Deuteronomy have a number of noticeable similarities with the so-called Covenant Code (Exodus 20:22–23:19). Both begin with an instruction about the sanctuary (Exod 20:22–26 // Deut 12:1–28) and include laws on slavery (Exod 21:1–11 // Deut 15:12–18) and the festivals (Exod 23:10–19 // Deut 16:1–15).

The Covenant Code is usually understood to be an earlier body of instruction than that found in Deuteronomy. Deuteronomy can be seen as a revision of the Covenant Code. The decisive difference between the two codes is in their ideas about sanctuaries. According to Exodus 20:22–26, the Israelites may worship the Lord in any place where the Lord is revealed. But for Deuteronomy there is only one place that the Lord has chosen for the divine name. This insistence on only one chosen sanctuary results in changes to many teachings. These changes include practical issues such as how to make sacrifices and eat meat (Deut 12:1–31); where to celebrate festivals (Deut 16:1–8); and how to make gifts of money to God (Deut 14:22–27).

The idea of a single sanctuary is the most important revision of the instruction, but there are others. Deuteronomy more often provides motivations for obeying the commandments. Appeals are made to Israel's history as well as self-interest. Some of the teachings have a humanitarian concern, especially instruction that commands the Israelites to be generous to the poor and marginalized.

12:1–14:21 The case laws in Deuteronomy begin with the most important instructions: those that concern the unity and purity of Israel's worship. Deuteronomy 5–11 has insisted that God must be loved and that no other gods may be followed. Now these instructions describe what this exclusive love looks like in practical terms.

12:1–28 This chapter requires Israel to worship the Lord only at the place God has chosen. The focus in the text is that Israel's worship must be conducted according to God's requirements. The emphasis is on God's choosing a place, rather than there being just one place. The repetitiveness and length of this chapter show how important this idea is in Deuteronomy. The chosen place is never named. In Samaritan theology it was understood to be Mount Gerizim; and in Judaism, Jerusalem. Israel's history shows that this commandment was rarely followed. The books of Kings often complains about worship at other shrines. Only in the reigns of Hezekiah and Josiah is worship restricted to the chosen place of Jerusalem.

12:1 These are the regulations and the case laws: a subtitle for the instructions in Deuteronomy 12–26 (see Deut 4:45), has given: The taking of the land is seen as a past event. Though Deuteronomy 5–11 encourages the people from the perspective of life outside the land, the instructions in Deuteronomy 12–26 concern life in the land. This verse marks this change in perspective.

12:2 high mountains . . . leafy green trees: The places to be destroyed aren't temple buildings, but altars placed at significant points in the natural environment. Mountains were probably chosen because they were near to heaven. A tree marks a place of special fruitfulness.

12:3 sacred stones . . . sacred poles: See note on Deuteronomy 7:5. Wipe out their names: The names of other gods aren't to be present in the land. Only the Lord's name is to be there at the chosen place. The name of another god might signal that god's presence in the land or ownership of it.

12:5 search: the verb used for visiting a sanctuary in the OT. location: Nothing is said of a temple building. The only structure mentioned is an altar. Deuteronomy 12 is concerned with sacrifices for which an altar is necessary. will select: The choice of the place for worship is the Lord's.

12:6 The regulation insists that all sacrifices and donations are to be brought to the chosen place. entirely burned offerings: The entire animal was burned in the fire. sacrifices: a general term for offerings. tenth-part gifts: A tenth of the harvest was put to one side and eaten by the people in God's chosen place. entirely burned offerings, your sacrifices, your tenth-part gifts, your contributions,▼ your payments for solemn promises, your spontaneous gifts, and the oldest offspring of your herds and flocks to that place. <sup>7</sup>You will have a feast there, each of you and your families, in the LORD your God's presence, and you will celebrate all you have done because the LORD your God has blessed you. <sup>8</sup>Don't act like we've been acting here lately—everyone doing what seems right to them—<sup>9</sup>because up to this point you haven't yet reached the place of rest or the inheritance the LORD your God is giving you. <sup>10</sup>But you are about to cross the Jordan River and will settle in the land the LORD your God is giving you as your inheritance. Then he will give you rest from all your enemies on every side so that you live safely and securely. <sup>11</sup>At that point, you must bring all that I am commanding you, your entirely burned offerings, your sacrifices, your tenth-part gifts, your contributions, and all your best payments that you solemnly promised to the LORD, to the location the LORD your God selects for his name to reside. <sup>12</sup>Then you will rejoice in the LORD your God's presence: each of you, your sons and daughters, your male and female servants, and the Levites who dwell in your cities because they have no designated inheritance.

Deuteronomy 14:22-29. contributions: the contribution from the offering given to the priest (see Lev 7:28-36). your payments for solemn promises: offerings that were promised in a solemn promise. Further instructions about solemn promises are given in Deuteronomy 23:21-23. your spontaneous gifts: additional offerings to the Lord that weren't part of a solemn promise. See Deuteronomy 16:10; 23:23. oldest offspring: The first male animal was to be dedicated to the Lord and consumed by the Israelite landholder and his family. For further details, see Deuteronomy 15:19-23.

12:7 feast: Most of the sacrificed animals were eaten by the family bringing them, with a portion going to the serving priest. Only in rare cases was the entire animal burned completely on the altar. celebrate: The heart of worship in Deuteronomy is celebration before the Lord concerning the good land God has given. The animals and the harvest are the clearest sign of the Lord's goodness in giving the land. all you have done: the hard work of farming and the food that results.

12:8 Don't act . . . lately: refers to the time in the wilderness, when the people hadn't reached the land of Canaan (Deut 12:9), though it would also be true of other periods in Israel's history. The expression everyone doing what seems right to them appears also in the book of Judges to describe the social chaos in the time before Saul and David were kings (cf. Judg 17:6; 21:25).

12:9 place of rest: the land where the wanderings of the Israelites will end. The idea of rest includes peace and security from enemies.

12:10 inheritance: In Deuteronomy the land is Israel's possession that the people receive because of the promises to their ancestors. Leviticus prefers to speak about the land as God's possession. There, the Israelites are tenants who may be expelled if they disobey.

12:12 Deuteronomy shows particular concern for the poor and marginalized. Here Moses instructs the people to include their servants in the feasting. Similarly, in the sabbath commandment the servants are included in the day of rest (Deut 5:14-15). Moses provides a number of measures to protect the Levites. In Deuteronomy they are presented as a marginalized group without any land.

12:13-14 The instruction about sacrifice has a number of similarities with Exodus 20:24. The meaning is, however, quite different. In Exodus, sacrifice may be given in various places where God's self is made known, but in Deuteronomy, only one place is in view.

12:15 Deuteronomy's insistence that sacrifices can take place only at the chosen place raises questions about eating meat. This verse assumes that, if meat were to be eaten, the usual practice was to sacrifice it. But with only one chosen place, this becomes impractical. Those who lived at a distance from the chosen place would hardly ever get to eat meat. The solution offered in this verse is that the people may eat meat whenever they wish. They can slaughter a domestic animal—a sheep, a cow, or a goat—whenever they desire. They would treat it like they would an animal that had been hunted, such as a gazelle or a deer. These animals weren't sacrificed. When they were caught by a hunter, they were simply killed and eaten without religious ceremony. polluted and . . . purified: Anyone taking part in a sacrifice had to be ritually pure. Since the slaughter of animals away from the chosen place wasn't sacrifice, these rules didn't apply.

12:16 Slaughter without sacrifice is permitted, but the blood, as the means of the animal's life, must be disposed of properly. It is returned to the ground from where, perhaps, it was believed to have come.

12:17 Permission to slaughter and eat animals in other places doesn't do away with the requirement to bring the of grain, wine, and oil; the oldest offspring of your herds and flocks; any of the payments you have solemnly promised; your spontaneous gifts or your contributions. <sup>18</sup>Only in the presence of the LORD your God, at the location the LORD your God selects, can you eat these things—that holds true for you, your son and daughter, your male and female servant, and the Levite who lives in your city. Then celebrate all you have done in the LORD your God's presence. <sup>19</sup>But watch yourself: as long as you are on the land, don't forget about the Levites.

<sup>20</sup>Once the LORD your God has enlarged your territory, as he promised you, and you think to yourself, I'd like to eat some meat (because you have the desire to do so), feel free to do so whenever you want. <sup>21</sup>But if the location that the LORD your God will choose to put his name is far away from where you live, then slaughter an animal from your herd or flock that the LORD has given you, just as I have commanded you, and eat it in your cities whenever you wish. <sup>22</sup>But be sure to eat it as if it were gazelle or deer. People who are polluted and people who are purified can feast on it together.

<sup>23</sup>Furthermore, make sure that you don't consume any of the blood, because blood is life. You must not consume the life along with the meat. <sup>24</sup>You must not consume any of it. Pour it out on the ground, just like water. <sup>25</sup>You must not consume any of it so that things go well for you and for your children later because you did what was right in the LORD's eyes.

<sup>26</sup>Note that you must bring your sacred offerings and your payments for solemn promises to the location the LORD selects, <sup>27</sup>offering up your entirely burned sacrifices—both meat and blood—on the LORD your God's altar. The blood from your sacrifices must be poured out on the LORD your God's altar, but you are allowed to eat the meat. <sup>28</sup>Observe and obey all these words that I am commanding you so that things always go well for you and your children later because you did what was good and right in the LORD your God's eyes.

<sup>29</sup>Once the LORD your God has removed from before you all the nations that you are entering and taking possession of, and you have displaced them and are living in their land, <sup>30</sup>then watch yourself! Don't be trapped by following their practices after they've been wiped out before you. Don't go investigating their gods, thinking, How did these nations worship their gods? I want to do the very same thing!

<sup>31</sup>Don't act like they did toward the LORD your God because they did things for their gods that are detestable to the LORD, which he hates. They even burned their own sons and daughters with fire for their gods!

<sup>32</sup>Everything I'm commanding you, you must do it with utmost care! Don't add anything to it or take anything away from it.

False prophets and false gods

13 <sup>1</sup>Now if a prophet or a dream interpreter appears among you and performs a sign or wonder for you, <sup>2</sup>and the sign or wonder that was spoken actually occurs; if he says:

tenth-part gifts, the oldest offspring, and other offerings to the chosen place.

12:19 On concern for the Levite, see Deuteronomy 12:12. 12:20-21 Additional conditions are given for slaughtering and eating outside the chosen place. Moses has in view the expansion of Israelite land so that the chosen place is far away. Deuteronomy 12:13-19 suggests anyone can avoid the trip to the temple if they want to eat meat. These verses imply that this wasn't the case for those within easy reach of the chosen place.

12:27 The blood from the sacrifice was traditionally placed on the altar or poured out at its base.

12:28 The instructions about the chosen place end with an appeal to obey. The people will benefit if they obey: All will go well for them and their children. A similar appeal is found in Deuteronomy 12:25.

12:29-13:18 In Deuteronomy 12:1-28 the Israelites are given instructions about how they are to worship. The following section tells them how to avoid disobeying.

12:29-30 These verses return to the theme of Deuteronomy 12:2-4. The nations that lived in the land of Canaan worshipped their own gods in ways that weren't permitted to the Israelites.

12:31 detestable: See note on Deuteronomy 7:25. The link between this word and Canaanite practices is very clear in this verse. burned... with fire: The Canaanites are accused of child sacrifice. The prophets Jeremiah and Ezekiel claim that this was practiced by some of the people of Judah toward the end of the monarchy (Jer 7:31; Ezek 20:26).

12:32 Don't add... take anything away: A similar statement appears in Deuteronomy 4:2. Words such as these are common in laws from the ancient Near East. In this verse it particularly concerns the laws about other gods (Deut 13:1-18). They weren't originally meant to protect the text of Deuteronomy. However, they were later understood to apply to the whole of Deuteronomy.

13:1-5 Deuteronomy 13 imagines three cases of religious temptation: the false prophet (13:1-5); a relative (Deut 13:6-11); and a whole city (Deut 13:12-18) following other gods. In each case the people must root out and destroy the threat to the true worship of the Lord. The approach is

"Come on! We should follow other gods"—ones you haven't experienced—"and we should worship them,"<sup>3</sup> you must not listen to that prophet's or dream interpreter's words, because the LORD your God is testing you to see if you love the LORD your God with all your mind and all your being.<sup>4</sup> You must follow the LORD your God alone! Reverse him! Follow his commandments! Obey his voice! Worship him! Cling to him—no other! <sup>5</sup>That prophet or dream interpreter must be executed because he encouraged you to turn away from the LORD your God who brought you out of Egypt, who redeemed you from the house of slavery; they tried to lead you away from the path the LORD your God commanded you to take. Remove<sup>7</sup> such evil from your community!

<sup>6</sup>Similarly, if one of your relatives—even one of your own siblings—or your own son or daughter or your dear spouse or best friend entices you secretly, if someone like that says: "Come on! We should follow and worship other gods"—ones that neither you nor your ancestors have experienced, <sup>7</sup>gods from all the neighboring peoples, whether nearby or far away, from one end of the earth to the other—<sup>8</sup>don't give in to them! Don't obey them! Don't have any mercy on them! Don't have compassion on them and don't protect them! <sup>9</sup>Instead, you must execute them. Your own hand must be against them from the beginning of the execution; the hand of all the people will be involved at the end. <sup>10</sup>Stone them until they are dead because they desired to lead you away from the LORD your God, the one who brought you out of Egypt, out of the house of slavery. <sup>11</sup>All Israel will hear about this and be afraid. They won't do that sort of evil thing among you again.

<sup>12</sup>Or if you hear about one of your towns the LORD your God is giving you to inhabit, that <sup>13</sup>certain wicked people have gone out from your community and they've led the citizens of their town astray by saying: "Come on! We should follow and worship other gods"—ones you haven't experienced before; <sup>14</sup>at that point you must look into this situation very carefully to see if it's true. And if it's definitely true that this detestable thing was done in your community, <sup>15</sup>you must completely strike down the inhabitants of that city with the sword. Place similar to the treatment described in ancient treaties for dealing with rebellion.

13:1-2 prophet or a dream interpreter: In the ancient Near East, the gods were believed to speak in various ways. A number of these are condemned in Deuteronomy 18:14-22. However, dreams and prophecy were ways in which the Lord did speak. A sign is something performed to confirm the prophet. A wonder is a miraculous deed. According to Deuteronomy 18:21-22, if a prophet's word was fulfilled, this was believed to be a sign that the prophet was genuine. In Deuteronomy 13 it's recognized that a prophet's word might be fulfilled, and the prophet might still be false. See also 1 Kings 13.

13:3 testing you: If a prophet performs a wonder and tempts the people to follow another god, the only explanation must be that the Lord is testing the people. love... all your mind and all your being: See Deuteronomy 6:5.

13:4 This verse repeats many of the encouragements from Deuteronomy 6:10-19, but in a more emphatic fashion. follow the LORD your God alone: Only here in Deuteronomy are the people commanded to follow the Lord. The book often speaks of following other gods. This verse creates a strong contrast between following the Lord and following other gods.

13:5 Remove such evil: The prophet or dream interpreter is condemned in the strongest terms. This expression is used in Deut 17:7, 12; 19:19; 21:21; 22:21, 22, 24; 24:6. Elsewhere it's used in connection with the death penalty (cf. must be executed here). The danger is to be removed through the killing of the prophet or dream interpreter.

13:6 The words are addressed to the head of the house. This person must act even if the guilty party is a sibling, secretly: The enticing doesn't go beyond the family. your ancestors have experienced: in contrast to the Lord's actions for Israel's ancestors described in Deuteronomy 4:31, 37.

13:7 gods: The perspective includes not only the Canaanite gods mentioned in Deuteronomy 12:29-30, but any gods.

13:8 They are to be treated in the same way as the Canaanites (see Deut 7:1-5).

13:9 Your own hand: The instruction places loyalty to the Lord above even family loyalty. In Deuteronomy's instructions about trials, the witnesses must be first in punishing (Deut 17:7). hand of all the people: The entire community had to take part in removing the threat.

13:11 Israel will hear: The purpose of stoning wasn't merely to punish. The event is meant to have a profound impact on the people.

13:12-18 What to do when an entire town follows other gods.

13:13 certain wicked people: The verse assumes that a faithful town was subverted by a few rebellious persons within it. The threat of a few underlines the importance of the previous verses. The danger is to be stamped out as soon as it becomes apparent.

13:14 look into this situation: As was the case with the family members, a careful investigation is required. detestable thing: See notes on Deuteronomy 7:25; 12:31.

13:15 under the ban: For this expression, see sidebar, "The Ban" at Deuteronomy 7. The Israelite town is to be treated in the same manner as a Canaanite one. animals to the sword: The punishment goes beyond what was required for the Canaanite city in Deuteronomy 7. Even the animals it and all that is in it under the ban.<sup>14</sup> Put its animals to the sword.<sup>16</sup> Gather all the plunder into the middle of the town's square. Then burn the city and all of its plunder as an entirely burned offering to the LORD your God. It must remain a heap of rubble forever. It must not be rebuilt.<sup>17</sup> Don't hold on to any of the banned items—this will ensure that the LORD turns from his great anger and is compassionate to you, showing you mercy and multiplying you just like he swore to your ancestors.<sup>18</sup> You must definitely obey the LORD your God's voice, keeping all his commandments that I am giving you right now, by doing what is right in the LORD your God's eyes!

Complete devotion to the Lord

14 You are the LORD's children. Don't cut yourselves and don't shave your foreheads for the dead,<sup>2</sup> because you are a people holy to the LORD your God. You are the ones whom the LORD selected to be his own, to be a treasured people out of all other people on earth.

Dietary laws

the camel, the hare, and the rock badger—because these chew food but don't have divided hooves, they are off-limits for you; are to be killed. The threat of contamination requires that everything be destroyed.

*See note at 2:34.

13:16 all the plunder: Even the inanimate objects are to be destroyed. There are to be no exceptions. entirely burned offering: Only here in Deuteronomy do we find the ban being described with a sacrificial term. Perhaps the destruction is meant to purge the land. It must not be rebuilt: The same instruction is given for Jericho (Josh 6:26). The purpose is to make the ruin an example for future generations.

13:17 hold on: Similar instructions were given about Jericho, and were broken by Achan (Josh 7).

13:18 Insists emphatically that the instructions be kept. The instructions about the chosen place in Deuteronomy 12 end in a similar manner (Deut 12:28).

14:1-2 These two verses provide a bridge between the instructions about religious temptation in Deuteronomy 13 and the dietary instructions in Deuteronomy 14. Both teachings have in common the idea that Israel is a holy people. Holiness implies separation. This means complete devotion to the Lord (Deut 13) and not consuming those things that are impure.

14:1 Lord's children: For this idea, see note on Deuteronomy 1:31. The special relationship to the Lord means that Israel must hold to the Lord's commandments. Don't cut yourselves: Cutting and shaving were common mourning practices in ancient Israel (see Amos 8:10; Isa 15:2; 22:12). They expressed the deep emotions that result from the death of a relative or friend. Because of their holiness, Israel's priests weren't permitted to take part in traditional mourning practices (see Lev 21:5, 10-11). It appears that these instructions were not required of all the people. Alternatively, such mourning practices may have been used in the worship of other deities (see 1 Kgs 18:28; Ezek 8:14).

14:2 people holy ... treasured people: See Deuteronomy 7:6. 14:3-21 The instructions about clean and unclean food are also found in Leviticus 11, but with a number of significant differences. In Deuteronomy a simple distinction occurs between clean and unclean animals, but in Leviticus 11 detestable animals are noted. Deuteronomy addresses animals that are to be eaten, but Leviticus 11 describes in detail which dead animals may pass on uncleanness through touch. Deuteronomy 14 lists the land animals that may be eaten, but Leviticus lists only forbidden animals. Overall, Deuteronomy 14 gives a picture consistent with teaching about the chosen place in Deuteronomy 12. The Lord wants Israel to eat and enjoy meat. The emphasis is on what the Israelites may eat. The distinction between clean and unclean animals isn't made for health reasons. The reason relates to Israel's holiness, or distinctiveness, from other nations. The animals are discussed according to where they live: land animals (14:4-8); water animals (14:9-10); and animals of the air (14:11-20). No one single rule explains why one animal is clean or unclean. It's likely, though, that the ideas of "fit" and "order" are important. The animals fit where they live. Land animals should chew grass and have divided hooves, and fish should have scales and fins. The central idea is, then, that God's creation has an order, and the people of Israel should follow that order.

14:3 detestable thing: See notes on Deuteronomy 7:25; 12:31.

14:4-5 Unlike Leviticus 11, Deuteronomy 14 lists land animals that may be eaten. These include domestic animals (14:4) and wild animals (14:5). ibex ... mountain sheep: The exact identification of some of these animals is uncertain. 14:6-8 Both Deuteronomy and Leviticus discuss borderline animals. For land animals to be clean, they need both to chew their food and to have a divided hoof. The camel, hare, and rock badger don't have divided hooves and are excluded; whereas the pig doesn't chew its food. The pig was very often kept as a domestic animal in the ancient world. This was particularly important in the time of the Maccabees (approximately 165 BCE). From that time on, not eating pork—together with <sup>8</sup>and the pig—because it has a divided hoof but doesn't rechew food, it's off-limits for you.

You may not eat these animals' meat, and you must not touch their carcasses.

<sup>9</sup>Here's a list of the water animals you are allowed to eat: you can eat anything that has fins and scales. <sup>10</sup>But you aren't allowed to eat anything that lacks scales or fins. These are off-limits for you.

<sup>21</sup>You must not eat any decayed animal flesh because you are a people holy to the LORD your God. You can give decayed animal flesh to the immigrants who live in your cities, and they can eat it; or you can sell it to foreigners.

Don't cook a lamb in its own mother's milk.

Tenth part

<sup>22</sup>You must reserve a tenth part of whatever your fields produce each year. <sup>23</sup>Eat the tenth part of your grain, wine, oil, oldest offspring of your herds and flocks in the presence of the LORD your God in the location he selects for his name to reside so that you learn to fear the LORD your God at all times. <sup>24</sup>But if the trip is too long, because the location the LORD your God has selected to put his name is far away from where you live so that you can't transport the tenth part—because the LORD your God will certainly bless you—<sup>25</sup>then you can convert it to money. Take the money with you and go to the location the LORD your God selects. <sup>26</sup>Then you can use the money for anything you want: cattle, sheep, wine, beer, or whatever else you might like. Then you should feast there and celebrate in the presence of the LORD circumcision—became one of the central signs of Jewish identity.

14:8 touch their carcasses: The avoidance of unclean animals is absolute.

14:11 Neither Leviticus nor Deuteronomy identifies any clean birds or provides a rule to follow. Simply a list of unclean birds is given. From archaeological evidence we know that quail, partridge, geese, ducks, and pigeons were eaten in ancient Israel.

14:12-18 Twenty birds are listed as unclean. The identification of some of the species of birds is uncertain. Also uncertain is the reason why they were considered unclean. In some cases it is probably because the bird was a scavenger or a bird of prey. In other cases it might have been because they lived in abandoned ruins.

14:19-20 Leviticus 11:20-23 gives a list of winged creatures that can be eaten. These include the locust, grasshopper, and cricket.

14:21 decayed animal flesh: an animal that died of natural causes, or when attacked by another animal. Deuteronomy allows this meat to be given to the immigrant, or it may be sold to the foreigner. Elsewhere Deuteronomy encourages the Israelites to show charity to the immigrant (see Deut 10:19; 16:11). Don't cook a lamb . . . milk: This commandment is also found in Exodus 23:19; 34:26. The reason for the instruction is uncertain. The problem may be the mixing of life—the mother's milk—and death. 14:22-16:17 The instructions in 14:22-16:17 all concern time. They begin with the tenth-part offering made every year (14:22-27) and the tenth-part offering in the third year (14:28-29). After seven years, debts were to be canceled and slaves released (15:1-18). Oldest male animals were to be set aside (15:19-22) and eaten at the chosen place during the three festivals that took place every year (16:1-17).

14:22-29 Moses insists that there was a single chosen place of worship. This had implications for how the sanctuary was supported. When there were many shrines, people could easily take their offering to a local place, but a single place of worship made this more difficult. The instruction in these verses explains how offerings at a single place would happen. The offering could be converted into silver and taken to the sanctuary in this portable form. At the chosen place it could be converted back into sacrificial offerings.

14:22 tenth part: Abraham is already said to have given a tenth part to Melchizedek (Gen 14:20). The practice is also mentioned elsewhere in the OT (e.g., Amos 4:4).

14:23 your grain, wine, oil: the three main crops of Israel (see note on Deut 7:23).

14:24 because the LORD your God will certainly bless you: According to Deuteronomy, obedience will lead to blessing in the land.

14:25 money: or simply "silver." Silver was a means to exchange goods into something transportable. Pieces of silver could be weighed to the appropriate measure. Coins weren't introduced into the region until after 400 BCE.

14:26 The silver was to be converted back into food for the family feast. Some of the offering was probably given to the sanctuary officials.

your God, along with your entire household. <sup>27</sup>Only make sure not to neglect the Levites who are living in your cities because they don't have a designated inheritance like you do.

<sup>28</sup>Every third year you must bring the tenth part of your produce from that year and leave it at your city gates. <sup>29</sup>Then the Levites, who have no designated inheritance like you do, along with the immigrants, orphans, and widows who live in your cities, will come and feast until they are full. Do this so that the LORD your God might bless you in everything you do.

Year of canceled debts

15 Every seventh year you must cancel all debts. <sup>2</sup>This is how the cancellation is to be handled: Creditors will forgive the loans of their fellow Israelites. They won't demand repayment from their neighbors or their relatives because the LORD's year of debt cancellation has been announced. <sup>3</sup>You are allowed to demand payment from foreigners, but whatever is owed you from your fellow Israelites you must forgive. <sup>4</sup>Of course there won't be any poor persons among you because the LORD will bless you in the land that the LORD your God is giving you to possess as an inheritance, <sup>5</sup>but only if you carefully obey the LORD your God's voice, by carefully doing every bit of this commandment that I'm giving you right now. <sup>6</sup>Once the LORD your God has blessed you, exactly as he said he would, you will end up lending to many different peoples but won't need to borrow a thing. You will dominate many different peoples, but they won't dominate you.

<sup>7</sup>Now if there are some poor persons among you, say one of your fellow Israelites in one of your cities in the land that the LORD your God is giving you, don't be hard-hearted or tightfisted toward your poor fellow Israelites. <sup>8</sup>To the contrary! Open your hand wide to them. You must generously lend them whatever they need. <sup>9</sup>But watch yourself! Make sure no wicked thought crosses your mind, such as, The seventh year is coming—the year of debt cancellation—so that you resent your poor fellow Israelites and don't give them anything. If you do that, they will cry out to the LORD against you, and you will be guilty of sin. <sup>10</sup>No, give generously to needy persons. Don't resent giving to them because it is this very thing that will lead to the LORD your God's blessing you in all you do and work at. <sup>11</sup>Poor persons will never disappear from the earth. That's why I'm giving you this command: you must open your hand generously to your fellow Israelites, to the needy among you, and to the poor who live with you in your land.

<sup>12</sup>If any of your fellow Hebrews, male or female, sell themselves into your service, they can work for you for six years, but in the seventh year you must set them free from your service.

14:27 Levites: For the care of the Levite, see Deuteronomy 12:12.

14:28-29 In the third year the tenth part was put to a different use. It was used to support the poor and marginalized in society, which included the Levites, as well as the immigrants, orphans, and widows. Other instructions providing for these groups can be found in Deuteronomy (e.g., Deut 24:17-22).

15:1-11 The practice of allowing the land to lie fallow (i.e., unplanted) every seven years is mentioned in Exodus 23:10-11. In Deuteronomy this idea is moved into the economic world. Debt was a significant problem for many people in the ancient world (see 2 Kgs 4). One solution was the occasional cancellation of all debts. This was often done at the beginning of a new king's reign. In Deuteronomy this policy is made into a regular event.

15:1 seventh year: Mention of the Lord's year of debt cancellation (Deut 15:2) and the situation described in Deuteronomy 15:9-10 means that we should understand there to have been a particular point when all debts were canceled across Israel. It's not that debts were considered to be forgiven seven years after they were taken on.

15:2 announced: a public proclamation.

15:3 foreigners weren't part of the community, and they weren't subject to the cancellation of debts. The foreigner is distinguished from the immigrant who had settled in the community. The immigrants would have been included.

15:4-5 As elsewhere in Deuteronomy, obedience brings blessing. The result is that no Israelite will be poor. This is the ideal, but this statement stands in tension with Deuteronomy 15:11, which is more realistic.

15:6 The idea of Israel as a creditor-nation is found in the blessings and curses of Deuteronomy 28:12 (see also Deut 28:44).

15:7-11 These verses are clearly encouragement rather than law. The passage fits with the encouraging style in Deuteronomy 1-11, more than the case laws of Deuteronomy 12-26.

15:7 hard-hearted: a characteristic of Sihon (Deut 2:30).

15:9 Moses anticipates the situation where credit isn't available because the year of debt cancellation gets close. A credit crunch is avoided by appealing to generosity while portraying credit refusal as wicked and sinful. Community bonds are emphasized by calling the debtor "your fellow Israelite." The generous Israelite will also find that God more than rewards an openhanded approach (Deut 15:10).

15:11 A more sober view on poverty that contrasts with Deuteronomy 15:4.

15:12-18 The instruction about slaves in Deuteronomy 15 is similar to the expectation in Exodus 21:2-6. In Deuteronomy both male and female slaves are released after seven years.

15:12 Hebrews, male or female: The parallel law in Exodus 21:1-11 also mentions Hebrew slaves. The term "Hebrew"

<sup>13</sup>Furthermore, when you set them free from your service, you must not let them go empty-handed. <sup>14</sup>Instead, provide for them fully from your flock, food, and wine. You must give to them from that with which the LORD your God has blessed you. <sup>15</sup>Remember how each of you were slaves in Egypt and how the LORD your God saved you. That's why I am commanding you to do this right now. (<sup>16</sup>Now if your male servant says to you: "I don't want to leave your service" because he loves you and your family and because life is good for him in your service, <sup>17</sup>then you may take a needle and pierce his ear with it into the doorframe. From that point on, he will be your permanent servant. Do the same thing for female servants.) <sup>18</sup>Don't consider it a hardship to set these servants free from your service, because they worked for you for six years—at a value double that of a paid worker. The LORD your God will bless you in everything that you do.

<sup>19</sup>You must devote every oldest male animal from your herds or flocks to the LORD your God. Don't plow with your oldest male ox and don't shear your oldest male sheep. <sup>20</sup>Year after year, you and your family are allowed to eat these animals in the presence of the LORD your God, in the location the LORD selects. <sup>21</sup>But if there is any defect in it, lameness, blindness, any flaw whatsoever, you must not sacrifice it to the LORD your God. <sup>22</sup>You are allowed to eat those in your own cities, whether you are polluted or purified, just as you would eat gazelle or deer. <sup>23</sup>Even so, don't consume any blood. Pour it out on the ground, like water.

Passover celebration

16 Wait for the month of Abib,<sup>b</sup> at which time you must perform the Passover for the LORD your God, because the LORD your God brought you out of Egypt at nighttime appears to have been used once of a lower social group. It only later became a term for the Israelites (see Jon 1:9). The mention of six years might suggest that the release of slaves is only after six years of service and not at the Lord's year of debt cancellation. However, slaves were probably released at the same time. The instruction about slaves goes together with the teaching about debts, because most slaves in Israel entered slavery as a result of falling into debt. This is implied by the fact that slaves sell themselves into your service.

15:14 provide for them fully: an encouragement rather than commandment (see note on Deut 15:7-11). The concern may pertain to the slaves' reentry into society. They aren't to be sent out empty-handed so that slavery follows again a little while later. blessed you: All should share in the blessing that the Lord promises Israel.

15:15 each of you were slaves in Egypt: Israel's experience in Egypt is a motive for obeying the instructions elsewhere in this book (see Deut 5:15; 16:12; 24:18, 22).

15:16 I don't want to leave: Exodus 21:5 mentions a case where the slave doesn't wish to leave because he has received a wife in slavery. Although the male slave could go free, the wife and her children couldn't (Exod 21:4). Here in Deuteronomy, things are different: Men and women go out together after seven years. In 15:16, the slave decides to stay permanently solely because of the goodness of his master. life is good for him: The same expression is used of God's goodness to Israel (e.g., Deut 5:16). Masters are to be as generous to their slaves as God is to Israel.

15:17 pierce his ear: In Exodus 21:6 the master takes the slave to the sanctuary. This isn't practical with just one chosen sanctuary. In Deuteronomy, then, the piercing of the ear takes place at home. The ear is easily visible, but is also the part of the body needed to hear (and obey).

15:18 Deuteronomy again uses encouragement to make sure that the people obey.

15:19-23 The oldest male animal born each year was set aside to be eaten at the chosen sanctuary. Since the occasions for these feasts would have been the festivals mentioned in Deuteronomy 16, these verses are closer to chapter 16 than the rest of chapter 15.

15:20 Year after year: According to Exodus 22:30, the oldest male animal was to be sacrificed on the eighth day. This isn't practical with a single sanctuary. Deuteronomy allows the sacrifice to be made any time within the year.

15:21-22 Sacrificial animals must have no defect. The flawed animal may be eaten like any other animal away from the sanctuary. See Deuteronomy 17:1.

16:1-17 The festival calendar is found elsewhere in the OT with a number of differences: Exodus 23:14-19; 34:17-26; Leviticus 23:1-44. In addition, Numbers 28:1-29:40 outlines the sacrifices to be made at different festivals. The festival calendar is distinct in certain ways because of Deuteronomy's idea of a single chosen sanctuary. The calendar describes the three main festivals. There is the joint Feast of Passover and Unleavened Bread (16:1-8); the Feast of Weeks (16:9-12); and the Feast of Booths (16:13-15). The calendar probably is intended to take the people from remembering the pain of Egypt by eating the bread of misery to celebrating the good land.

16:1-8 Before the book of Deuteronomy, Passover and the Feast of Unleavened Bread were two separate feasts. Passover was celebrated at home, and the blood of a lamb was wiped on the doorframe. The Feast of Unleavened Bread was a pilgrimage feast held at a sanctuary. From earliest times it celebrated the exodus from Egypt. In Deuteronomy Passover is transformed into a pilgrimage festival and combined with the Feast of Unleavened Bread. See sidebar, "The Festivals of Passover and Unleavened Bread" at Exodus 12.

16:1 The name Abib is found only here and in Exodus 13:4; 23:15. It is March–April. Passover: There is still uncertainty about the meaning of this word. The traditional understanding is that it refers to the passing over of the angel of death during the exodus (see Exod 12:11 and note). This tradition is certainly very old.

Do this so you remember the day you fled Egypt for as long as you live. <sup>5</sup>No dough with yeast should appear in any of your territory for seven days. Furthermore, none of the meat that you sacrificed on the first night should remain until morning. <sup>6</sup>You are not permitted to offer the Passover sacrifice in any of the cities that the LORD your God is giving you. <sup>7</sup>Instead, you must offer the Passover sacrifice at the location the LORD your God selects for his name to reside, at evening time, when the sun sets, which was the time you fled Egypt. <sup>8</sup>Cook it and eat it in the location that the LORD your God selects. The next morning you can return to your tents. <sup>9</sup>For six days you will eat unleavened bread. The seventh day will be a celebration for the LORD your God. Don't do any work.

Festival of Weeks

<sup>9</sup>Count out seven weeks, starting the count from the beginning of the grain harvest. <sup>10</sup>At that point, perform the Festival of Weeks for the LORD your God. Offer a spontaneous gift in precise measure with the blessing the LORD your God gives you. <sup>11</sup>Then celebrate in the presence of the LORD your God—you, your sons, your daughters, your male and female servants, the Levites who live in your cities, the immigrants, the orphans, and the widows who are among you—in the location the LORD your God selects for his name to reside. <sup>12</sup>Remember how each of you was a slave in Egypt, so follow these regulations most carefully.

Festival of Booths

<sup>13</sup>Once you have collected the food and drink you need, perform the Festival of Booths for seven days. <sup>14</sup>Celebrate your festival: you, your sons, your daughters, your male and female servants, the Levites, the immigrants, the orphans, and the widows who live in your cities. <sup>15</sup>Seven days you must perform the festival for the LORD your God in the location the LORD selects because the LORD your God will bless you in all you do and in all your work. You will be overjoyed.

16:2 flock or herd: In Deuteronomy a sheep, goat, or calf may be sacrificed. In Exodus 12:3-6 only a lamb is allowed.
 16:3 bread symbolizing misery: Elsewhere in Deuteronomy food is always a cause for celebration and a symbol of God's blessing. In the story of the exodus, the people must bake flat cakes because there was no time to let them rise (Exod 12:39).
 16:4 The verse combines instructions for the Festival of Unleavened Bread and the Passover sacrifice (see translation note c).
 16:5-6 you must offer . . . his name to reside: The Passover is no longer a family festival celebrated at home, but a public feast in the chosen place (see note on Deut 16:1-8).
 16:7 Cook it: In Exodus 12:9 cooking with water is forbidden. Instead the Passover food must roast over a fire. The phrase return to your tents could refer to three things. First, it could suggest that the people camped around the sanctuary during the festival. Second, it could be a way of speaking about the Israelites' houses. Third, the reference to tents could be a reminder of the people's time in the wilderness. They remember the exodus, return to their "tents," and then return to the sanctuary later in the year to celebrate the harvest and the gift of the land during the Festivals of Weeks and Booths.
 16:8 celebration: The last day of the feast was a community assembly.
 16:9-12 The Festival of Weeks isn't described with much detail, though it's clearly a joyful occasion. In Exodus 23:16 the same festival is called the Harvest Festival. The name of the festival comes from the seven weeks that are counted from the beginning of the harvest (16:9).

 16:9 It would appear that the seven weeks are counted from when the harvest began, and so its timing might vary from year to year. The seven weeks allowed the harvest to be collected across the country before the people gathered together for a festival of celebration. In Leviticus 23 the seven weeks are counted from the festival of early produce, which eventually becomes connected to the Festival of Unleavened Bread. In the modern calendar the Festival of Weeks, known to Christians as Pentecost, takes place seven weeks after the Festivals of Passover and Unleavened Bread. It's celebrated in May.
 16:10 spontaneous gift: See note on Deuteronomy 12:6.
 16:11 the Levites . . . and the widows: The poor and marginalized are also to enjoy the blessings of the land.
 16:12 The encouragement to remember gives reason for being generous to the immigrants, orphans, and widows.
 16:13-15 Deuteronomy contains little detail about the Feast of Booths. It's clearly meant to be a celebration with plenty to eat and drink.
 16:13 Booths: In Exodus 23:16 it's called the Gathering Festival. It celebrates the completion of the grape harvest and the storage of grain and grape. It occurred in September.
 16:14 the Levites . . . and the widows: The poor and marginalized are also to enjoy the blessings of the land.
 16:15 overjoyed: God's goodness is seen particularly in the giving of the land with all its harvests. In Deuteronomy, <sup>16</sup>Three times a year every male among you must appear before the presence of the LORD your God in the location he will select: at the Festival of Unleavened Bread, the Festival of Weeks, and the Festival of Booths. They must not appear before the LORD's presence empty-handed. <sup>17</sup>Each one should have his gift in hand, in precise measure with the blessing the LORD your God gives you.

Judges and officials

<sup>18</sup>Appoint judges and officials for each of your tribes in every city that the LORD your God gives you. They must judge the people fairly. <sup>19</sup>Don't delay justice; don't show favoritism. Don't take bribes because bribery blinds the vision of the wise and twists the words of the righteous. <sup>20</sup>Righteousness! Pursue righteousness so that you live long and take possession of the land that the LORD your God is giving you.

Rules for worship

<sup>21</sup>Don't plant any tree to serve as a sacred pole<sup>d</sup> next to the altar you make for the LORD your God. <sup>22</sup>Don't set up any sacred stone either, because the LORD your God hates such things. <sup>1</sup>Don't sacrifice to the LORD your God any oxen or sheep that have defects of any kind, because that is detestable to the LORD your God.

Capital punishment

<sup>2</sup>If someone, whether male or female, is found in your community—in one of the cities the LORD your God is giving you—who does evil in the LORD your God's eyes, by breaking worship, joy, and celebration go hand in hand. The Festival of Booths is a climax to the year.

16:16-17 This summary is based upon Exodus 23:15-17. must appear: The language suggests subjects appearing before a king, in precise measure: God's generosity is meant to be paralleled by human generosity.

16:18-18:22 The third main section of the instruction is concerned with state officials. These include judges and officials (16:18-17:13); the king (17:14-20); levitical priests (18:1-8); and the prophet (18:9-22). Since there is a single sanctuary, the instruction is different in this section of the requirements from the parallel laws in Exodus.

16:18-17:13 Traditionally all of the town elders would have judged disputes. There was no need for a central court, because disputes were decided locally. In Deuteronomy, however, the system of judges appears to be centralized, though the king doesn't appoint the judges (unlike Jehoshaphat's reform in 2 Chron 19:5). Here the appointing of leaders to settle disputes is similar to the description of what Moses did in Deuteronomy 1:16-17. The system of justice in the land continues Moses' system.

16:18 judges: The role was more than settling disputes, because it also included ruling and leading the people. officials: possibly administrators who assisted the judges. Their role may have been to record decisions. in every city: The Hebrew idiom is "in all your gates." The gate was where the town elders assembled to make decisions (see Ruth 4:1-12; 1 Kgs 22:10). judge the people fairly: For the challenges of local justice in small communities, see note on Deuteronomy 1:17.

16:19 An appeal to judge rightly. For similar advice, see Exodus 23:8. The reasons for judging fairly sound like the kinds of sayings we might find in the book of Proverbs. Bribery is to be avoided not just because it's wrong, but also because of the distorting effect it has on the person who takes the bribe.

16:20 Righteousness! Pursue righteousness: The word order of the Hebrew idiom uses a simple repetition: "Righteousness! Righteousness pursue . . ."

16:21-17:1 Religious offenses suddenly appear, and it's difficult to see why they have been introduced here. Instructions about judges and courts will continue in Deuteronomy 17:8-13. The offenses described in Deuteronomy 17:2-7 involve the death penalty, and great care is taken to ensure that proper procedure is followed, including more than one witness (Deut 16:6-7). Perhaps it's these very serious crimes that require the judges to be especially careful to make sure they are being fair. In Deuteronomy 13 the threat of disloyalty by the people to the Lord is described, and it's clear that this disloyalty must be rooted out immediately.

16:21 sacred pole: See note on Deuteronomy 7:5. The sacred pole is described as planted. This suggests that it may have looked like a living tree. the altar: the altar at the chosen place. A number of biblical passages describe a sacred pole together with an altar: Judges 6:25; 1 Kings 14:23; 2 Kings 21:3; 23:15.

16:22 sacred stone: stone pillars that were erected at places of worship. In Kings they are often mentioned with forbidden altars and sacred poles (1 Kgs 14:23; 2 Kgs 17:10; 18:4; 23:14). In Genesis, however, the ancestors of Israel worship God with sacred stones. They are not condemned for doing so (see Gen 28:18; 31:45). such things: the sacred poles and the sacred stones.

17:1 defects of any kind: The rule about offering unblemished animals is already found in Deuteronomy 15:21. In this verse it is linked to worship with sacred poles and stones in order to make it appear even more reprehensible. detestable: See notes on Deuteronomy 7:25; 12:31.

17:2-7 This section has close links to Deuteronomy 13:6-11. It describes how a person is to be investigated when accused of following other gods.

17:2 God's covenant may refer specifically to the Ten Commandments, especially the first commandment.

God's covenant, <sup>3</sup>by following and serving other gods, and by bowing down to them, to the sun or the moon or any of the heavenly bodies that I haven't permitted—<sup>4</sup>and you hear news about it, then you must look into this situation very carefully. And if it's definitely true that this detestable thing was done in Israel, <sup>5</sup>then you must bring out the man or woman who has done this evil thing to the gates of the city. Stone that person until he or she is dead.

<sup>6</sup>Capital punishment must be decided by two or three witnesses. No one may be executed on the basis of only one testimony. <sup>7</sup>In the execution, the hands of the witnesses must be against the guilty person from the start; the hand of all the people will be involved at the end. Remove<sup>8</sup> such evil from your community!

Legal disputes

<sup>8</sup>If some legal dispute in your cities is too difficult for you to decide—say, between different kinds of bloodshed, different kinds of legal ruling, or different kinds of injury—then take it to the location the LORD your God selects. <sup>9</sup>Go to the levitical priests and to the head judge in office at that time and look into things there. They will announce to you the correct ruling. <sup>10</sup>You must then act according to the ruling they announced to you from that location, the one the LORD selects. You must follow very carefully everything they instruct you to do. <sup>11</sup>Act precisely according to the instruction they give you and the ruling they announce to you. Don't deviate even a bit from the word they announce. <sup>12</sup>And whoever acts rashly by not listening to the priest who is in office serving the LORD your God or to the head judge will die. Remove<sup>9</sup> such evil from Israel! <sup>13</sup>All the people will hear about this and be afraid. They won't act arrogantly anymore.

Law of the king

<sup>14</sup>Once you have entered the land the LORD your God is giving you and you have taken possession of it and settled down in it, you might say: "Let's appoint a king over us, as all our neighboring nations have done." <sup>15</sup>You can indeed appoint over you a king that the LORD your God selects. You can appoint over you a king who is one of your fellow Israelites. You are not allowed to appoint over you a foreigner who is not one of your fellow Israelites. <sup>16</sup>That granted, the king must not acquire too many horses, and he must not return the people to Egypt in order to acquire more horses, because the LORD told you: "You will never go back by that road again." <sup>17</sup>The king must not take numerous wives so that his heart doesn't go

17:3 the sun... heavenly bodies: These are permitted for the nations (see Deut 4:19).

17:6 two or three witnesses: The principle that there must be more than one witness to a crime is stated in more detail in Deuteronomy 19:15-21.

17:7 the hands of the witnesses: The witnesses must begin the act of killing the guilty person. Remove such evil: See note on Deuteronomy 13:5.

17:8-13 When Moses appointed judges he instructed them to come to him with disputes that were too difficult for them (Deut 1:9-18). The permanent system of judges in the promised land is set up similarly. The central court is there for disputes that the local judges can't handle.

17:8 different kinds of injury: possibly a reference to judging between skin infections. The same word is used in Leviticus 13-14.

17:9 levitical priests: Deuteronomy frequently identifies the priests as levitical. No clear distinction is made between Levites and priests as we find in Numbers or Chronicles. See note on Deuteronomy 10:8. head judge: This translation suggests a single figure appointed to the role. It could also be one among a number of judges, which Deuteronomy 19:17 suggests. look into things: or "inquire." This may suggest seeking a message from God.

17:11 Don't deviate: The priests and their instructions are the final authority. Their rulings have the same force as the commandments from God (see Deut 5:32).

17:12 Remove such evil: See note on Deuteronomy 13:5.

17:13 All the people will hear: See note on Deuteronomy 13:11.

17:14-20 Traditionally the king was the final judge (2 Sam 15:1-11), but in Deuteronomy this role has been assigned to others (Deut 17:8-13). The king's role is limited. He is a fellow Israelite and is subject to the Instruction.

17:14 Let's appoint a king: In 1 Samuel 8 the people request a king, despite Samuel's resistance. neighboring nations: 1 Samuel 8:5 also sees kings as a practice introduced from outside of Israel. Both here and in 1 Samuel, this imitation of surrounding nations is permitted, but is not seen as praiseworthy.

17:15 selects: As with the chosen place, the king is chosen by God. The theology of divine choice emphasizes God's role.

17:16-17 Solomon is said to have had numerous horses, wives, and gold—exactly what this text forbids (1 Kgs 10:14, 25-26; 11:3).

17:16 You will never go back: Returning to Egypt for political help is condemned in Isaiah 30-31 and Jeremiah 42-44. This declaration by the Lord is also mentioned in Deuteronomy 28:68.

astray. Nor can the king acquire too much silver and gold. <sup>18</sup>Instead, when he sits on his royal throne, he himself must write a copy of this Instruction on a scroll in the presence of the levitical priests. <sup>19</sup>That Instruction must remain with him, and he must read in it every day of his life so that he learns to revere the LORD his God by keeping all the words of this Instruction and these regulations, by doing them, <sup>20</sup>by not being overbearing toward his fellow Israelites, and by not deviating even a bit from the commandment. If the king does all that, he will ensure lasting rule in Israel for himself and for his successors.

Priests and Levites

18 Neither the levitical priests nor any Levite tribe member will have a designated inheritance in Israel. They can eat the sacrifices offered to the LORD, which are the LORD's portion,<sup>a</sup> <sup>2</sup>but they won't share an inheritance with their fellow Israelites. The LORD alone is the Levites' inheritance—just as God promised them.

<sup>3</sup>Now this is what the priests may keep from the people's sacrifices of oxen or sheep: They must give the priest the shoulder, the jaws, and the stomach. <sup>4</sup>You must also give the priest the first portions of your grain, wine, and oil, and the first of your sheep's shearing <sup>5</sup>because the LORD your God selected Levi from all of your tribes to stand and minister in the LORD's name—both him and his descendants for all time.

<sup>6</sup>Now if a Levite leaves one of your cities or departs from any location in Israel where he's been living and, because he wants to, comes to the location the LORD selects <sup>7</sup>and ministers in the LORD his God's name, just like his relatives—the other Levites serving there in the LORD's presence—<sup>8</sup>he is allowed to eat equal portions, despite the finances he has from his family.<sup>b</sup>

Communicating with God

<sup>9</sup>Once you enter the land that the LORD your God is giving you, don't try to imitate the detestable things those nations do. <sup>10</sup>There must not be anyone among you who passes his son or daughter through fire; who practices divination, is a sign reader, fortune-teller, sorcerer, <sup>11</sup>or spell caster; who converses with ghosts or spirits or communicates with the dead. <sup>12</sup>All who do these things are detestable to the LORD! It is on account of these detestable practices that the LORD your God is driving these nations<sup>1</sup> out before you.

<sup>13</sup>Instead, you must be perfect before the LORD your God. <sup>14</sup>These nations you are displacing listened to sign readers and diviners, but the LORD your God doesn't permit you to do

17:18 he himself must write a copy: The king would most likely have had someone else write the copy. Making copies was time-consuming and expensive. The fact that the king must have a copy points to its importance for him. copy of this Instruction: The Greek translation of this phrase is deuteronomium, meaning "second law." This gave the book its title; see the introduction.

17:20 David encourages Solomon in a similar way in 1 Kings 2:1-4.

18:1-8 The rights and livelihood of the Levites and priests are described. The Levites and the priests are not as clearly distinguished as they are in the book of Numbers. Even Deuteronomy's favorite title "levitical priest" blends the two roles together.

18:1 eat the sacrifices: For detailed description of the portions for priests and Levites, see Numbers 18:8-32. There are some differences in what is assigned to the priests from what is described in Deuteronomy 18:3-4.

18:3 the shoulder, the jaws, and the stomach: In Leviticus 7:28-34 the breast and the right thigh are assigned to the priest.

18:4 first portions: also assigned to the priests in Numbers 18:12.

18:5 selected Levi: As God chose the place and the king, so God also chose the tribe of Levi. The theology of divine choice emphasizes God's rule.

18:6-8 The Levites were found throughout Israel and Judah, and they probably served at various sanctuaries. Since there is to be only one chosen place, the Levites can only serve there. This rule encourages the Levites to come to the chosen place where they can share in the sacrifices. The rule about the Levites may relate to the priests mentioned in 2 Kings 23:9.

18:8 despite the finances he has from his family: possibly a reference to the sale of family property (cf. Lev 25:32-34).

18:9-22 Deuteronomy gives the prophet a very important role in communicating God's will. Moses himself is presented as a prophet.

18:9 detestable: See notes on Deuteronomy 7:25; 12:31.

18:10 passes... through fire: This probably isn't to be understood as child sacrifice, but some form of divination. The children may have been passed through the fire and examined to see whether they had been harmed.

18:10-11 divination... dead: Various ways of learning about the future are condemned. The exact meaning of some of them isn't certain. Those mentioned first probably examined objects such as patterns in clouds or liquids in order to tell the future. The sorcerer and spell caster made magical spells. Finally, there are those who conjure up the dead.

18:12 detestable: See notes on Deuteronomy 7:25; 12:31.

18:14 These nations you are displacing: Prophecy was the same! <sup>15</sup>The LORD your God will raise up a prophet like me from your community, from your fellow Israelites. He's the one you must listen to. <sup>16</sup>That's exactly what you requested from the LORD your God at Horeb, on the day of the assembly, when you said, "I can't listen to the LORD my God's voice anymore or look at this great fire any longer. I don't want to die!"

<sup>17</sup>The LORD said to me: What they've said is right. <sup>18</sup>I'll raise up a prophet for them from among their fellow Israelites—one just like you. I'll put my words in his mouth, and he will tell them everything I command him. <sup>19</sup>I myself will hold accountable anyone who doesn't listen to my words, which that prophet will speak in my name. <sup>20</sup>However, any prophet who arrogantly speaks a word in my name that I haven't commanded him to speak, or who speaks in the name of other gods—that prophet must die.

<sup>21</sup>Now, you might be wondering, How will we know which word God hasn't spoken?

<sup>22</sup>Here's the answer: The prophet who speaks in the LORD's name and the thing doesn't happen or come about—that's the word the LORD hasn't spoken. That prophet spoke arrogantly. Don't be afraid of him.<sup>3</sup>

Cities of refuge

19Once the LORD your God has eliminated those nations—whose land the LORD your God is giving you—and you displace them, settling into their cities and their houses, <sup>2</sup>you must designate three cities for your use in the land the LORD your God is giving you to possess. <sup>3</sup>Mark out the roads to them<sup>4</sup> and divide the regions of the land the LORD your God is apportioning to you into three parts. These cities are the places to which a person who has killed can escape. <sup>4</sup>Here is the rule concerning a person who killed someone and is permitted to escape to one of these cities and live:

If it is someone who killed his neighbor accidentally, without having hated that person previously; <sup>5</sup>or if someone goes into the forest with a neighbor to chop some wood, and while swinging an ax to cut down the tree, the axhead flies off its handle and hits the neighbor, who subsequently dies—these kinds of killers may escape to one of these cities and live. <sup>6</sup>Otherwise, the blood avenger will chase after the killer out of rage and—especially if the distance to one of these cities<sup>1</sup> is too far—might catch and kill him, even though a death sentence was not in order because the killer didn't have prior malice toward the other. <sup>7</sup>This is why I am commanding you as follows: Designate three cities for your use.

<sup>8</sup>Now if the LORD your God enlarges your territory, as he swore to your ancestors—and he will give you all the land he swore to give to them<sup>9</sup> as long as you keep all this commandment certainly practiced by other nations, including by those who lived in Canaan before the Israelites. The emphasis on prophecy in the OT is unusual compared to what we know from elsewhere in the ancient Near East. Divination was more commonly used as a means to know the future. 18:15 a prophet: not one person, but a line of prophets. Deuteronomy is speaking about the prophetic office. like me: The prophet is viewed as a go-between who stood between God and Israel (see Gen 20:7). 18:16 Moses is the best example of the prophet as go-between because he brought God's Instruction to the people when they didn't want to hear the law directly from God. 18:19 This idea is developed in Ezekiel 33:1-20, where Ezekiel is called a "lookout." Just as a guard on a watchtower lets out an alarm, so Ezekiel must relay God's word. 18:20 The problem of false prophecy is found especially in Jeremiah 23 and Ezekiel 13. 18:21-22 The prophet is seen as someone who speaks accurately about the future. See 1 Samuel 3:19-20; 10:1-7; Jeremiah 28:9. 19:1-21:9 With these chapters the book of Deuteronomy moves closer to what we might recognize today as civil law. This passage covers death penalty cases and warfare. Issues of human life come before disputes about family or property. The idea of one sanctuary is still important. Sanctuaries were originally places of refuge, but in 19:1-13 various cities are set aside for refuge. 19:1-13 The cities of refuge were mentioned in Deuteronomy 4:41-43, where Moses sets aside three cities across the Jordan. That brief passage assumes the instructions set out here. 19:1 The land is not the area east of the Jordan that has already been conquered, but the land between the Jordan and the Mediterranean Sea. 19:3 The location of the cities represents the principle of fairness and equality. has killed: At this point, no judgment is passed about whether this is intentional or not. Unintentional killings are addressed in Deuteronomy 19:4-10, and intentional murders receive attention in Deuteronomy 19:11-13. The distinction between deliberate and accidental killing is already made in Exodus 21:12-14. 19:6 blood avenger: Members of the dead person's family are assumed to seek revenge for the death. Ancient Israel had limited organization for settling disputes. They had no police force. Family loyalty and protection were important parts of community life and held together the order of society. 19:8-9 add three more cities: This could mean the three cities in the land will be gradually added to the three that I am giving you right now by doing it, by loving the LORD your God, and by always walking in his ways—you can add three more cities for your use along with the first three.

<sup>10</sup>Innocent blood must not be spilled in the land the LORD your God is giving to you as an inheritance, or it will be bloodshed that will be required of you.

<sup>11</sup>But if someone does hate a neighbor and ambushes him, rising up against him and attacking him so he dies, and then escapes to one of these cities, <sup>12</sup>elders from the killer's hometown will send word, and the killer will be sent back from there. They will then hand him over to the blood avenger, and he will be executed. <sup>13</sup>Show no mercy to such killers. Remove<sup>m</sup> innocent bloodshed from Israel so that things go well for you.

Property laws

<sup>14</sup>Now in the land the LORD your God is giving you, in your allotted property that you will receive there, you must not tamper with your neighbor's property line, which has been previously established.

Rules for testimony

<sup>15</sup>A solitary witness against someone in any crime, wrongdoing, or in any sort of misdeed that might be done is not sufficient. The decision must stand by two or three witnesses.

<sup>16</sup>Now if a spiteful witness comes forward against someone, so as to testify against them falsely, <sup>17</sup>the two persons who have a legal suit must stand before the LORD, before the priests, and before the judges that are in office at that time. <sup>18</sup>The judges will look into the situation very carefully. If it turns out that the witness is a liar—that the witness has given false testimony against his fellow Israelite—<sup>19</sup>then you must do to him what he had planned to do to his fellow Israelite. Remove<sup>m</sup> such evil from your community! <sup>20</sup>The rest of the people will hear about this and be afraid. They won't do that sort of evil thing among you again. <sup>21</sup>Show no mercy on this point: life for life, eye for eye, tooth for tooth, hand for hand, foot for foot.

Rules for warfare

20When you march out to battle your enemies and you see horses, chariots, and a fighting force larger than yours, don't be afraid of them, because the LORD your God, the one who brought you up from Egypt, is with you. <sup>2</sup>As you advance toward the war, the priest will come forward and will address the troops. <sup>3</sup>He will say to them: "Listen, Israel: Right now you are advancing to wage war against your enemies. Don't be discouraged! Don't be afraid! Don't panic! Don't shake in fear on account of them, <sup>4</sup>because the LORD your God is going with you to fight your enemies for you and to save you."

mentioned in Deuteronomy 4:41-43. Or it could be a way of speaking about those three cities themselves.

19:10 Innocent blood: A powerful relationship exists between land and innocent shed blood. The same idea is found in the story of Cain and Abel (Gen 4:10-11). In Numbers 35:33-34, bloodshed pollutes the land and needs to be purged.

19:11-13 These verses outline what to do in cases where murder was intended.

19:14 The instruction about property boundaries is rather surprising here in the middle of death penalty crimes. The link is perhaps the careful dividing of the land mentioned in Deuteronomy 19:3 and 19:14. Protection of land boundaries is also required in Proverbs 22:28; 23:10.

19:15-21 Giving true witness is important in all disputes, and these verses mention legal judgments for many different kinds of crimes. Of all cases, though, false witness is most significant in death penalty crimes.

19:15 This verse establishes the principle that more than one witness is needed in a dispute.

19:16-18 The dispute described in this verse is slightly different from that in Deuteronomy 19:15. Two people are in dispute, and one is a false witness. The judges have to examine the controversy to decide who is speaking the truth. There is no mention of there being more than one witness on either side of this dispute. look into the situation: could also mean using ritual to discover the truth.

19:20 rest of the people will hear: The purpose of the resolution is not merely justice, but also to discourage others from doing the same evil thing. See note on Deuteronomy 13:1. 19:21 The "eye for an eye" principle is found in Exodus 21:23-25. It's used in a different way here. This principle aims to discourage malicious testimony. It may rebound on the one seeking to harm his neighbor.

20:1-20 Various rules for warfare are set out in this chapter. First, the preparations for warfare are described (20:1-9). Second, how the war is to be conducted against enemy cities is set out (20:10-18). Third, if there is to be warfare, there are to be certain limitations (20:19-20).

20:1 larger than yours: The situation described is very specific. Israel faces a larger enemy army. Despite instincts to be afraid, the people are to remember that God fights for them. up from Egypt: The deliverance from Egypt provides a reminder of the Lord's actions in the past.

20:3 Don't be afraid! See Deuteronomy 1:29-30. Rather, the people are to fear God (Deut 6:13).

20:4 God is going with you: The presence of God is seen as essential in the stories of Deuteronomy 1-3.

<sup>5</sup>The officials will also say to the troops: "Is there anyone here who has just built a new house but hasn't yet dedicated it? He can leave and go back to his house; otherwise, he might die in the war and someone else would dedicate the house. <sup>6</sup>Or is there anyone here who has planted a vineyard but hasn't yet put it to good use? He can leave and go back to his house; otherwise, he might die in the battle and someone else would use the vineyard. <sup>7</sup>Or is there anyone here who is engaged but not yet married? He may leave and go back to his house; otherwise, he might die in the battle and someone else would marry his fiancée."

<sup>8</sup>The officials will continue to address the troops, stating: "Is there anyone here who is afraid and discouraged? He can leave and go back to his house; otherwise, his comrades might lose courage just as he has." <sup>9</sup>Once the officials have completed their speech to the troops, the army commanders will assume leadership of the forces.

<sup>10</sup>When you approach a city to fight against it, you should first extend peaceful terms to it. <sup>11</sup>If the city responds with peaceful terms and surrenders to you, then all the people in the city will serve you as forced laborers. <sup>12</sup>However, if the city does not negotiate peacefully with you but makes war against you, you may attack it. <sup>13</sup>The LORD your God will hand it over to you; you must kill all the city's males with the sword. <sup>14</sup>However, you can take for yourselves the women, the children, the animals, and all that is in the city—all its plunder. You can then enjoy your enemies' plunder, which the LORD your God has given you.

<sup>15</sup>That's what you must do to all the cities that are located far away from you—specifically, those cities that don't belong to these nations here. <sup>16</sup>But in the case of any of the cities of these peoples—the ones the LORD your God is giving you as an inheritance—you must not spare any living thing. <sup>17</sup>Instead, you must place these under the ban:<sup>o</sup> Hittites, Amorites, Canaanites, Perizzites, Hivites, and Jebusites—just as the LORD your God commanded you. <sup>18</sup>Then they can't teach you to do all the detestable things they did for their gods, with the result that you end up sinning against the LORD your God.

<sup>19</sup>Now if you have been attacking a city for some time, fighting against it and trying to conquer it, don't destroy its trees by cutting them down with axes. You can eat from those trees; don't cut them down! Do you think a tree of the field is some sort of warrior to be attacked by you in battle? <sup>20</sup>That said, if you know that a tree is not a food-producing tree, you are allowed to destroy it, cutting it down and using it in the siege against the city that is fighting against you until it falls.

Unsolved homicides

21 If a corpse is found on the ground the LORD your God is giving you to possess, lying in a field, and the identity of the killer is unknown, <sup>2</sup>your elders and judges must come out and measure the distances to the cities nearest the body. <sup>3</sup>Once it is determined which city is closest to the dead body, its elders must take a young cow that hasn't been

20:5-7 This law seeks to prevent the people from becoming victims of senselessness. A number of the curses in Deuteronomy 28 describe situations where the natural relationship between starting something and completing it is broken. These "futility curses" are signs that God is against Israel. This law stops this from happening. The new house is dedicated by the one who built it. The new vineyard is enjoyed by the one who planted it. The new wife is enjoyed by the one who married her.

20:8 Gideon also dismisses those who lack courage (Judg 7:3). The purpose may not have been to reduce the numbers of fighting men but to ensure they were courageous.

20:10 peaceful terms: offer the city the opportunity to surrender without a fight.

20:11 forced laborers are mentioned in the building projects of David's and Solomon's reigns (e.g., 2 Sam 20:24; 1 Kgs 9:15).

20:15 This verse insists that the rules in Deuteronomy 20:10-14 apply only to cities outside the land of Canaan.

The difference between far and near is important in the story of Gibeon (Josh 9).

20:17 The list of nations is the same as Deuteronomy 7:1 except that the Girgashites are missing here. ban: See sidebar, "The Ban" at Deuteronomy 7.

20:18 detestable: See notes on Deuteronomy 7:25; 12:31.

20:19 This teaching can be viewed as environmental instruction. Warfare is only for a brief time, and lands shouldn't be put out of use indefinitely. At the same time, the logic may simply be practical. Fruit trees can provide food. There is no gain in wasting effort chopping down trees; rather, warriors have to be killed.

20:20 If a tree cannot provide food to eat, it can be cut down to attack a city.

21:1-9 The problem of bloodguilt in the case of an unsolved murder is resolved through a ritual. These verses show the close relationship between bloodshed and the land (see Deut 19:10).

21:1 corpse: the body of someone who has been killed.

used or yet pulled a plow, <sup>4</sup>and those elders will take the cow down to a ravine with a flowing stream—one that has not been plowed or planted—and they will break the cow's neck right there in the river valley. <sup>5</sup>Then the priests, the descendants of Levi, will step forward because the LORD your God selected them to minister for him and to bless in the LORD's name, and because every legal dispute and case of assault is decided by them. <sup>6</sup>All the elders of the city closest to the corpse will wash their hands over the cow whose neck was broken in the river valley. <sup>7</sup>They will then solemnly state: "Our hands did not shed this blood. Our eyes did not see it happen. <sup>8</sup>LORD, please forgive your people Israel, whom you saved. Don't put the guilt of innocent bloodshed on your people Israel."

Then the bloodguilt will be forgiven them.

Foreign wives

<sup>10</sup>When you wage war against your enemies and the LORD hands them over to you and you take prisoners, <sup>11</sup>if you see among the captives a beautiful woman, and you fall in love with her and take her as your wife, <sup>12</sup>bringing her into your home, she must shave her head, cut her nails, <sup>13</sup>remove her prisoner's clothing, and live in your house, mourning her father and her mother for one month. After that, you may consummate the marriage. You will be her husband, and she will be your wife. <sup>14</sup>But if you aren't pleased with her, you must send her away as she wishes. You are not allowed to sell her for money or treat her as a slave because you have humiliated her.

Right of the oldest son

<sup>15</sup>Now suppose a man has two wives—one of them loved and the other unloved. Both wives bear children, but the oldest male is the unloved wife's child. <sup>16</sup>On the day when the man decides what will go to each of his children as an inheritance, he isn't allowed to treat his loved wife's son as the oldest male rather than his unloved wife's son, who is the real oldest male. <sup>17</sup>Instead, he must acknowledge the unloved wife's son as the oldest male, giving to him two-thirds of everything that he owns, because that son is the earliest produce of his physical power. The oldest male's rights belong to that son.

Rebellious children

<sup>18</sup>Now if someone has a consistently stubborn and rebellious child, who refuses to listen to their father and mother—even when the parents discipline him, he won't listen to

21:4 The animal is slain in an area that isn't used and where the water can wash the guilt away. By this ritual the community can distance itself from the murder. The shed blood is associated with this waste area, and not with the town's productive land. break the cow's neck: This procedure is used with animals that aren't sacrificed (see Exod 13:13; 34:20).

21:5 minister . . . and to bless: See Deuteronomy 10:6-7; 18:1-8. every legal dispute . . . assault: See Deuteronomy 17:8.

21:6 wash their hands: The guilt is transferred to the cow and away in the stream.

21:7-8 The ritual action is accompanied by words. The elders distance the town from the murder. forgive: or "reconcile" or "wipe away." A common word in Leviticus; it's used only here in Deuteronomy.

21:10-22:30 It becomes harder to say why some of the commandments have been collected together as they have. The present section is concerned mostly with family matters and property disputes.

21:10-14 The instruction about a foreign wife taken in battle must apply only to wars fought against distant enemies (see Deut 20:10-18). It's the first requirement in this section because of its close relationship to the war behaviors in Deuteronomy 21:1-20.

21:12-13 shave . . . clothing: These actions mark the woman's change of status. one month: The Israelites mourn for Moses for one month in Deuteronomy 34:8.

21:14 send her away: a common way of speaking about divorce. In Exodus 21:8 the slave girl who doesn't please may not be sold to foreigners, and in certain circumstances may go free (Deut 21:11). Exodus talks about treating her fairly, and Deuteronomy about not humiliating her.

21:15-17 Questions of inheritance were very important in ancient Israel, especially when there was more than one wife. The problem is a theme in the stories of Jacob (Gen 29-35) and Elkanah (1 Sam 1). This instruction seeks to provide clear guidance that gives rights to the oldest male offspring.

21:17 earliest produce: The idea is that the first son carries more of the father's strength and potency.

21:18-21 The rebellious child should be understood as an adult, and the parents rely on his taking over the family land and providing for them. Stubborn and rebellious behavior threatens the parents' existence. The relationship between Israel and God is compared to a father-son relationship in Deuteronomy 1:31; 8:5. So this teaching about a rebellious child may have been intended to speak also to the relationship between God and Israel.

21:18 child: The parallel between the punishments of the them—<sup>19</sup>the father and mother will take the son before the elders of that city at its gates. <sup>20</sup>Then they will inform the city's elders: "This son of ours is consistently stubborn and rebellious, refusing to listen to us. What's more, he's wild and a drunkard."

<sup>21</sup>Then all the people of that town will stone him until he dies.

Remove<sup>a</sup> such evil from your community! All Israel will hear about this and be afraid.

Hangings

<sup>22</sup>Now if someone is guilty of a capital crime, and they are executed, and you then hang them on a tree, <sup>23</sup>you must not leave the body hanging on the tree but must bury it the same day because God's curse is on those who are hanged.<sup>f</sup> Furthermore, you must not pollute the ground that the LORD your God is giving to you as an inheritance.

Rules for property and mixtures

22 Don't just watch your fellow Israelite's ox or sheep wandering around and do nothing about it. You must return the animal to its owner. <sup>2</sup>If the owner doesn't live nearby, or you don't know who owns the animal, then you must take care of it. It should stay with you until your fellow Israelite comes looking for it, at which point you must return it to him.

<sup>3</sup>Do the same thing in the case of a donkey. Do the same thing in the case of a piece of clothing. Do the same thing in the case of anything that your fellow Israelite loses and you end up finding. You are not allowed to sit back and do nothing about it.

<sup>5</sup>Women must not wear men's clothes, and men must not wear women's clothes. Everyone who does such things is detestable to the LORD your God.

<sup>6</sup>If you come across a bird's nest along your way, whether in a tree or on the ground, with baby birds or eggs, and the mother is sitting on the baby birds or eggs, do not remove the mother from her young. <sup>7</sup>You must let the mother go, though you may take the young for yourself so that things go well for you and so you can prolong your life.

<sup>8</sup>Whenever you build a new house, you must build a railing for the roof so that you don't end up with innocent blood on your hands because someone fell off of it.

<sup>9</sup>Don't plant your vineyards with two types of seed; otherwise, the entire crop that you have planted and the produce of the vineyard will be unusable.<sup>g</sup>

son in Deuteronomy 21:18-21 and the daughter in 22:13-21 suggests that the son-daughter pair was deliberate.

21:19 its gates: See note on Deuteronomy 16:18. The elders act as the judges in the gate.

21:20 wild and a drunkard: The same description is found in Proverbs 23:20-22, where it also occurs with disobeying parents.

21:21 all the people . . . stone him: an identical punishment to that given to the daughter who had extramarital sex (Deut 22:21). All Israel will hear: See note on Deuteronomy 13:11. The rebellious son does not keep the fifth commandment, which insists that obedience of parents is necessary to keep the land (Deut 5:16).

21:22-23 hang them on a tree: The person is already dead, but their body is displayed as a warning. pollute the ground: For the threat that bloodshed poses to the land, see Deuteronomy 19:10.

22:1-12 A short collection of instructions that show concern for protecting life.

22:1 A similar teaching is found in Exodus 23:4. In Exodus the instruction speaks about caring for an enemy's animal. In Deuteronomy the teaching is made general and applies to all Israelites. In Deuteronomy 22:2-3 the instruction is expanded to consider an unknown owner.

22:3 A very similar list of lost items is found in Exodus 22:9. 22:4 Similar to Exodus 23:5. In Exodus the animal lies under the weight of its burden, but in Deuteronomy it has fallen down in the road.

22:5 This verse introduces the theme of mixture. All sorts of mixtures aren't allowed. The underlying idea may be that the world has a certain order granted by God. Mixing disturbs this divine order. See Deuteronomy 22:9-11. detestable: See notes on Deuteronomy 7:25; 12:31.

22:6-7 The instruction about the bird's nest belongs more closely with Deuteronomy 22:1-4. The teachings about caring for animals and about mixtures have been interlocked by making the situations overlap. let the mother go: There may be an environmental concern. Or we may simply have a recognition that the mother is needed to keep the species continuing. Future supplies of eggs or baby birds for the Israelites are guaranteed.

22:8 Roofs were flat in ancient Israel and had a variety of uses.

22:9 The same instruction is found in Leviticus 19:19. The resulting mix can't be used by the Israelites (see note on Deut 22:5).

22:11 The same teaching is found in Leviticus 19:19.

Virgin bride

<sup>13</sup>Suppose a man gets married and consummates the marriage but subsequently despises his wife. <sup>14</sup>He then spreads false claims about her to the point that she has a bad reputation, because he said such things as, “I married this woman, but when I went to have sex with her, I couldn’t find any proof that she was a virgin.”

<sup>15</sup>At that point, the young woman’s father and mother will bring proof of her virginity to the city’s elders at the city gate. <sup>16</sup>The young woman’s father will say to the elders: “I gave my daughter to this man to be his wife, but he doesn’t like her anymore. <sup>17</sup>That’s why he has spread false claims about her, saying, ‘I couldn’t find any proof that your daughter was a virgin.’ But look! Here’s proof of my daughter’s virginity.” At that point they will spread out the blanket in front of the city’s elders. <sup>18</sup>The city’s elders must then take that husband and punish him. <sup>19</sup>They will fine him one hundred silver shekels, giving that to the young woman’s father, because that husband gave one of Israel’s virgin daughters a bad reputation. Moreover, she must remain his wife; he is never allowed to divorce her.

<sup>20</sup>However, if the claim is true and proof of the young woman’s virginity can’t be produced, <sup>21</sup>then the city’s elders will bring the young woman to the door of her father’s house. The citizens of that city must stone her until she dies because she acted so sinfully in Israel by having extramarital sex while still in her father’s house.

Remove<sup>c</sup> such evil from your community!

Inappropriate sexual behavior

<sup>22</sup>If a man is found having sex with a woman who is married to someone else, both of them must die—the man who was having sex with the woman and the woman herself.

Remove such evil from Israel!

<sup>23</sup>If a young woman who is a virgin is engaged to one man and another man meets up with her in a town and has sex with her, <sup>24</sup>you must bring both of them to the city gates there and stone them until they die—the young woman because she didn’t call for help in the city, and the man because of the fact that he humiliated his neighbor’s wife.

Remove such evil from your community!

<sup>25</sup>But if the man met up with the engaged woman in a field, grabbing her and having sex with her there, only the man will die. <sup>26</sup>Don’t do anything whatsoever to the young woman. She hasn’t committed any capital crime—rather, this situation is exactly like the one where someone attacks his neighbor and kills him.<sup>u</sup> <sup>27</sup>Since the man met up with her in a field, the engaged woman may well have called out for help, but there was no one to rescue her.

<sup>c</sup>Or burn; so also 22:22, 24 <sup>u</sup>See 19:11.

22:13-30 The teaching in this section is concerned with sex.

22:13 despises: a term used in divorce, which comes before sending the wife away (Deut 24:1). In addition to divorce, the husband here likely wants to have the bride-price returned. For more on what a bride-price was, see Exodus 22:16 and note.

22:14 proof that she was a virgin: a bloodstained blanket (Deut 22:17). This would result either from tearing of the hymen, which was often taken as proof of virginity; or from menstruation, which proved the woman wasn’t already pregnant.

22:17 proof: It’s unclear how the elders could be sure that the blood was the woman’s. The instruction may have meant that such proof was always kept. This then prevented disputes.

22:19 one hundred silver shekels: twice the bride price (Deut 22:29). never allowed to divorce her: Since the wife was dependent on her husband or family, her damaged reputation would threaten her survival.

22:21 she acted so sinfully: In Deuteronomy 22:28-29 extramarital sex means that the couple must marry. Here in 22:21, extramarital sex has occurred, but the woman has then gone on to marry someone else. In ancient Israel the husband expected to have the rights to his wife’s virginity. This made sure that it was his children who inherited his property. The citizens . . . must stone her: Her punishment is identical to that of the rebellious son (see Deut 21:18).

22:22 a woman who is married to someone else: The marital status of the man isn’t important, only the marital status of the woman. Adultery violated the husband’s rights, meaning the husband couldn’t be sure the children were his.

22:23 For an engaged woman, extramarital sex is dealt with as if she were married (see Deut 22:22).

22:24 she didn’t call for help: In the city it’s assumed someone would hear and come to help. Since she didn’t call, the writers of Deuteronomy assume the woman agreed to sex.

22:25 in a field: The woman is assumed to be innocent, since no one would have heard calls for help.

22:26 like the one . . . and kills him: the only place in the OT when one instruction is compared to another. The law about murder is found in Deuteronomy 19:11. The man seizing the woman intended to act criminally.

<sup>28</sup>If a man meets up with a young woman who is a virgin and not engaged, grabs her and has sex with her, and they are caught in the act, <sup>29</sup>the man who had sex with her must give fifty silver shekels to the young woman's father. She will also become his wife because he has humiliated her. He is never allowed to divorce her.

<sup>30</sup>A man cannot marry his father's former wife so that his father's private matters are not exposed.<sup>31</sup>

The Lord's assembly

<sup>8</sup>Don't detest Edomites, because they are your relatives. Don't detest Egyptians because you were immigrants in their land. <sup>9</sup>Children born to them are permitted to belong to the LORD's assembly starting with the third generation.

Rules for the war camp

<sup>10</sup>When you are camped in battle against your enemies, guard yourself from every possible evil. <sup>11</sup>If an individual in the camp becomes polluted due to a nighttime emission, he must exit the camp area and not reenter. <sup>12</sup>When the next evening arrives, he must wash with water; and when the sun sets, he can come back to the camp.

<sup>13</sup>The latrines<sup>4</sup> must be outside the camp. You will use them there, outside the camp. <sup>14</sup>Carry a shovel with the rest of your gear; once you have relieved yourself, use it to dig a hole, then refill it, covering your excrement.

<sup>15</sup>Do these things because the LORD your God travels with you, right in the middle of your camp, ready to save you and to hand your enemies over to you. For this reason your camp

22:28-29 grabs her: The parallel law in Exodus 22:15-16 speaks about seduction. In Deuteronomy the law is more ambiguous. It could mean seduction, but grabbing suggests the man forced himself on the woman.

22:30 The same instruction is found in Leviticus 18:8; 20:11 alongside other similar instructions.

23:1-25:19 It's difficult to see a logical arrangement for the final collection of teaching in Deuteronomy. This collection begins and ends with references to other nations: Edom, Ammon, and Moab in 23:1-8; and then Amalek in 25:17-19. Purity is an important theme in 23:1-14, and in inner-community relationships in the rest of the section.

23:1-8 the LORD's assembly is a rare expression and it is unclear what its precise significance is. Entry into the Lord's assembly is restricted to those who have some Israelite descent.

23:1 In Deuteronomy the assembly is viewed as an inter-generational community. In the community teaching is passed on through the generations and so is property. Those who cannot procreate are excluded.

23:2 No one born of an illegitimate marriage: children from relationships that were forbidden.

23:3 Not even the tenth generation: emphasizing that this is an absolute exclusion of Ammonites and Moabites.

23:4 Ammonites and Moabites are excluded because of their failure to show hospitality. A different story about the Moabites is given in Deuteronomy 2:28-29. Balaam, Beor's son: The story about Balaam is told in Numbers 22-24.

23:7 Don't detest Edomites: The positive view of Edomites is unusual given that the Edomites were no more generous to Israel in the wilderness than the Ammonites and Moabites (Deut 2:1-8). Many texts in the Prophets are very hostile toward Edom (e.g., Mal 1:2-5). immigrants: perhaps suggesting that Israel was shown generosity by Egypt. This would be true of Joseph's time, but less so of Israel's later experience in Egypt. Perhaps the author has the gifts of the Egyptians in Exodus 12:35-37 in mind.

23:9-14 The theme of the purity of the camp continues from Deuteronomy 1-8, but the rules in 23:9-14 concern the war camp. See also Deuteronomy 20:1-20; 21:10-14.

23:10 nighttime emission: Uncleanliness because of the emission of semen is also found in Leviticus 15:16-17. In Leviticus as well the man must wash himself and becomes clean at evening.

23:12-13 Ritual uncleanliness because of excrement is not found in Leviticus. It's assumed in Ezekiel 4:1-15.

23:14 The presence of God in the war camp is mentioned in Deuteronomy 1:30; 20:4. God's presence is necessary to bring victory. anything indecent: an imprecise expression that seems to relate to ritual impurity.

must be holy. The LORD must not see anything indecent among you, or he will turn away from you.

Escaped slaves

<sup>15</sup>Don't return slaves to owners if they've escaped and come to you. <sup>16</sup>They can stay with you: in your own community or in any place they select from one of your cities, whatever seems good to them. Don't oppress them.

Consecrated workers

<sup>17</sup>No Israelite daughter is allowed to be a consecrated worker.<sup>a</sup> Neither is any Israelite son allowed to be a consecrated worker.<sup>b</sup> <sup>18</sup>Don't bring a female prostitute's fee or a male prostitute's<sup>c</sup> payment to the LORD your God's temple to pay a solemn promise because both of these things are detestable to the LORD your God.

Charging interest

<sup>19</sup>Don't charge your fellow Israelites interest—whether on money, provisions, or anything one might loan. <sup>20</sup>You can charge foreigners interest, but not your fellow Israelite. Do this so that the LORD your God blesses you in all your work on the land you are entering to possess.

Solemn promise

<sup>21</sup>When you make a promise to the LORD your God, don't put off making good on it, because the LORD your God will certainly be expecting it from you; delaying would make you guilty. <sup>22</sup>Now if you simply don't make any promises, you won't be guilty of anything. <sup>23</sup>But whatever you say, you should be sure to make good on, exactly according to the promise you freely made to the LORD your God because you promised it with your own mouth.

Neighbor's goods

<sup>24</sup>If you go into your neighbor's vineyard, you can eat as many grapes as you like, until full, but don't carry any away in a basket. <sup>25</sup>If you go into your neighbor's grain field, you can pluck ears by hand, but you aren't allowed to cut off any of your neighbor's grain with a sickle.

Marriage and divorce

24 Let's say a man marries a woman, but she isn't pleasing to him because he's discovered something inappropriate about her. So he writes up divorce papers, hands them to her, and sends her out of his house. <sup>2</sup>She leaves his house and ends up marrying someone else. <sup>3</sup>But this new husband also dislikes her, writes up divorce papers, hands them to her, and sends her out of his house (or suppose the second husband dies). <sup>4</sup>In this case, the first husband who originally divorced this woman is not allowed to take her back and marry her

23:15 come to you: This would suggest that the slave has escaped from foreign slavery, rather than Israelite slaves fleeing to another area.

23:17 consecrated worker: a worker in the temple. The expression is known from elsewhere in the ancient Near East. Because biblical texts (e.g., Deut 23:18) often speak about consecrated workers together with prostitution, the traditional translation of consecrated worker is "cultic prostitute" (see translation footnotes a and b). The evidence for cultic prostitution in Israel is now thought to be questionable.

23:18 male prostitute's payment: The underlying Hebrew reads "dog's payment" (see translation footnote c). This may refer to male prostitution or some other forbidden behavior. detestable: See notes on Deuteronomy 7:25; 12:31.

23:19-20 fellow Israelites: The rule about interest is found in Exodus 22:25. Deuteronomy draws attention to the family relationship. The Hebrew for "fellow" can also be translated "brother." foreigners: This doesn't include the immigrant, who should probably be treated like an Israelite. See note on Deuteronomy 15:3.

23:21, 23 A similar statement about solemn promises is found in Ecclesiastes 5:4. Such promises would be to make an offering in the sanctuary in thanks to God for help.

23:22 simply don't make any promises: The idea is different from the surrounding verses. Verses 21 and 23 assume the validity of making promises, but verse 22 recommends not making any solemn promises.

23:24-25 Sharing the land's goodness is also found in Deuteronomy 24:19-22. Here the fruit of the land is to be shared with all, not just the poor. Similar ideas about sharing the land's goodness are found in Deuteronomy's teaching about sharing the feast with the poor and marginalized (see Deut 12:12 and note).

24:1-4 Deuteronomy's rules for divorce are narrowly concerned with the issue of the same man remarrying a wife he earlier divorced. It doesn't directly address how and when divorce can happen, but it assumes that a man can divorce his wife on almost any grounds.

24:1 something inappropriate: an imprecise term. It may refer to some form of ritual uncleanness (see Deut 23:14); or it may be a broad term that covers any reason for wanting a divorce.

24:4 The original husband can't remarry the woman again after she has been polluted in this way because the LORD detests that. Don't pollute the land the LORD your God is giving to you as an inheritance.

<sup>5</sup>A newly married man doesn't have to march in battle. Neither should any related duties be placed on him. He is to live free of such responsibilities for one year, so he can bring joy to his new wife.

Pawning

<sup>6</sup>Millstones or even just the upper millstone must not be pawned, because that would be pawning someone's livelihood.

Kidnapping

<sup>7</sup>If someone is caught kidnapping their fellow Israelites, intending to enslave the Israelite or sell them, that kidnapper must die. Remove<sup>4</sup> such evil from your community!

Skin disease

<sup>8</sup>Be on guard against outbreaks of skin disease<sup>6</sup> by being very careful about what you do. You must carefully do everything the levitical priests teach you, just as I have commanded them. <sup>9</sup>Remember, after all, what the LORD your God did to Miriam on your departure from Egypt!

Loans

<sup>10</sup>When you make any type of loan to your neighbor, don't enter their house to receive the collateral. <sup>11</sup>You must wait outside. The person to whom you are lending will bring the collateral to you out there. <sup>12</sup>Moreover, if the person is poor, you are not allowed to sleep in their pawned coat. <sup>13</sup>Instead, be certain to give the pawned coat back by sunset so they can sleep in their own coat. They will bless you, and you will be considered righteous before the LORD your God.

Payment for workers

<sup>14</sup>Don't take advantage of poor or needy workers, whether they are fellow Israelites or immigrants who live in your land or your cities. <sup>15</sup>Pay them their salary the same day, before the sun sets, because they are poor, and their very life depends on that pay, and so they don't cry out against you to the LORD. That would make you guilty.

Generational punishment

<sup>16</sup>Parents shouldn't be executed because of what their children have done; neither should children be executed because of what their parents have done. Each person should be executed for their own guilty acts.

Rights of widows, orphans, and immigrants

<sup>17</sup>Don't obstruct the legal rights of an immigrant or orphan. Don't take a widow's coat as pledge for a loan. <sup>18</sup>Remember how you were a slave in Egypt but how the LORD your God saved you from that. That's why I'm commanding you to do this thing.

<sup>19</sup>Whenever you are reaping the harvest of your field and you leave some grain in the field, don't go back and get it. Let it go to the immigrants, the orphans, and the widows so because of defilement, not for any financial or ethical reason. The issue is probably that the original husband divorced her on some grounds that can't now be ignored. detests: See notes on Deuteronomy 7:25; 12:31.

24:5 Similar teachings are found in Deuteronomy 20:5-7. The year away from other duties may be so that a child can be produced.

24:6 The hard stone used for milling grain was essential for human survival (see Deut 24:10-13, 17).

24:7 Enslaving another Israelite violates the sense of a united community that Deuteronomy is trying to achieve. A similar teaching is found in Exodus 21:16.

24:8 This verse presupposes the instructions on skin diseases in Leviticus 13-14.

24:9 The story of Miriam is found in Numbers 12. She was placed outside the camp for seven days.

24:10-13 The taking of a cloak as collateral is also found in Exodus 22:26-27. Deuteronomy doesn't allow the lender into the debtor's home (24:10). Deuteronomy also gives a reason for the commandment: favor with others and God (24:13).

24:14 Payment of workers keeps the focus on care for the poor that is found in Deuteronomy 24:10-13.

24:15 cry out against you: in contrast to blessing you (Deut 24:13).

24:16 The instruction is cited in 2 Kings 14:6. In ordinary matters this principle is followed. In the case of divine and human covenants, however, loyalty can last over generations, as can punishment.

24:17 The importance of looking after the legal rights of the poor is also found in Deuteronomy 17:19.

24:19-22 A similar teaching is found in Leviticus 19:9-10.

Let the leftovers go to the immigrants, the orphans, and the widows. <sup>21</sup>Again, when you pick the grapes of your vineyard, don't pick them over twice. Let the leftovers go to the immigrants, the orphans, and the widows. <sup>22</sup>Remember how you were a slave in Egypt. That's why I am commanding you to do this thing.

Corporal punishment

25 Now two people have a disagreement and they enter into litigation and their case is decided, with the judges declaring one person legally right and the other legally liable. <sup>2</sup>If the guilty party is to be beaten, the presiding judge will have that person lie down and be punished in his presence—the number of blows in measure with the guilt determined. <sup>3</sup>Give no more than forty blows. If more than that is given, your fellow Israelite would be completely disgraced in your eyes.

Working oxen

The brother-in-law's duty

<sup>5</sup>If brothers live together and one of them dies without having a son, the dead man's wife must not go outside the family and marry a stranger. Instead, her brother-in-law should go to her and take her as his wife. He will then consummate the marriage according to the brother-in-law's duty. <sup>6</sup>The brother-in-law will name the oldest male son that she bears after his dead brother so that his brother's legacy will not be forgotten in Israel. <sup>7</sup>If the brother does not want to marry his sister-in-law, she can go to the elders at the city gate, informing them: "My brother-in-law refuses to continue his brother's legacy in Israel. He's not willing to perform the brother-in-law's duty with me." <sup>8</sup>The city's elders will summon him and talk to him about this. If he doesn't budge, insisting, "I don't want to marry her," <sup>9</sup>then the sister-in-law will approach him while the elders watch. She will pull the sandal off his foot and spit in his face. Then she will exclaim: "That's what's done to any man who won't build up his own brother's family!" <sup>10</sup>Subsequently, that man's family will be known throughout Israel as "the house of the removed sandal."

Improper touching

Honest business practices

<sup>13</sup>Don't have two different types of money weights in your bag, a heavy one and a light one. <sup>14</sup>Don't have two different types of ephahs in your house, a large one and a small one. <sup>15</sup>Instead, you must have only one weight, complete and correct, and only one ephah, also complete and correct, so that your life might be long in the fertile land the LORD your God

The book of Ruth provides a memorable story of this practice (Ruth 2).

25:1-3 This instruction prevents corporal punishment from being taken too far. The two parties can't reach agreement and have decided to have their dispute decided by the judges. The purpose of this law about corporal punishment may be to encourage disputing parties to settle their differences, rather than going before the leaders. If they can't, they risk a public beating. The avoidance of public shame is also a theme in Deuteronomy 25:5-10.

25:4 Denying the worker, even an animal, some of the fruits of its hard work is seen as unjust.

25:5-10 Many biblical texts show that Israelites cared about the continuation of the family line. If a male family member died, the traditional practice was that the nearest male family member would marry the widow. The children would inherit the land of the dead family member. This practice is reflected in Genesis 38 and the book of Ruth. Both stories suggest that the traditional solution wasn't seen as an attractive option. Presumably if there was no heir, the children of the surviving family member would inherit more. The marriage means acting in the family interest rather than the individual interest. Deuteronomy's teaching allows that an Israelite might refuse to marry his dead brother's widow. The only means the widow has is persuasion and public shaming.

25:9 pull the sandal off his foot: Removing the sandal probably had some symbolic meaning, which is no longer clear to us. It also was a legal action (see Ruth 4:7).

25:12 you must cut off her hand: the only case of mutilation as a punishment in the OT. It may show Deuteronomy's concern with the Israelites' having children. See also Deuteronomy 23:1.

25:13-15 Deuteronomy insists that weights and measures be true and fair. The same idea is found in Proverbs 11:1; 16:11; 20:10, 23. In ancient Israel it was difficult to ensure weights were true. It is no accident, then, that Deuteronomy doesn't give a law, but warns the people.

is giving you. <sup>16</sup>What's more, all who do such things, all who do business dishonestly, are detestable to the LORD your God. <sup>17</sup>Remember, after all, what Amalek did to you on your departure from Egypt: <sup>18</sup>how he met up with you on the way, striking from behind those who were lagging back because you were weak and tired, and because he didn't fear God. <sup>19</sup>So once the LORD your God gives you relief from all the enemies that surround you in the land the LORD your God is giving you as an inheritance to possess, you must wipe out Amalek's memory from under the heavens. Don't forget this!

The ceremony upon entering the land

26 Once you have entered the land the LORD your God is giving you as an inheritance, and you take possession of it and are settled there, <sup>2</sup>take some of the early produce of the fertile ground that you have harvested from the land the LORD your God is giving you, and put it in a basket. Then go to the location the LORD your God selects for his name to reside. <sup>3</sup>Go to the priest who is in office at that time and say to him: "I am declaring right now before the LORD my<sup>f</sup> God that I have indeed arrived in the land the LORD swore to our ancestors to give us."

<sup>4</sup>The priest will then take the basket from you and place it before the LORD your God's altar. <sup>5</sup>Then you should solemnly state before the LORD your God:

"My father was a starving Aramean. He went down to Egypt, living as an immigrant there with few family members, but that is where he became a great nation, mighty and numerous. <sup>6</sup>The Egyptians treated us terribly, oppressing us and forcing hard labor on us. <sup>7</sup>So we cried out for help to the LORD, our ancestors' God. The LORD heard our call. God saw our misery, our trouble, and our oppression. <sup>8</sup>The LORD brought us out of Egypt with a strong hand and an outstretched arm, with awesome power, and with signs and wonders. <sup>9</sup>He brought us to this place and gave us this land—a land full of milk and honey. <sup>10</sup>So now I am bringing the early produce of the fertile ground that you, LORD, have given me."

Set the produce before the LORD your God, bowing down before the LORD your God. <sup>11</sup>Then celebrate all the good things the LORD your God has done for you and your family—each one of you along with the Levites and the immigrants who are among you.

Land It's important not to overlook the importance of land for the book of Deuteronomy. This temptation is perhaps especially strong for Christian readers of the book. The land's importance is seen in a number of respects. The book opens with the people on the way to the promised land. The book is set on the edge of the land of Canaan. They are about to enter, but they need to remain obedient. If they are obedient, then the conquest of the land will succeed. Historically, the book was probably written when the land was under threat or the people were in exile (see Deut 29–30). The book holds open the possibility of return to the land if the people change their intentions and are obedient.

The land is the most obvious sign of the blessings that come from being in covenant with God. The land is described as "full of milk and honey" (Deut 6:3) and is often contrasted with life in the wilderness (Deut 8). It was promised to the fathers. Now, their children are taking possession of what was promised. But the land can also be taken away in the future if the covenant isn't followed.

25:16 detestable: See notes on Deuteronomy 7:25; 12:31.

25:17 what Amalek did: The story of Amalek is told in Exodus 17:8–16. Nothing is said in Exodus about Amalek attacking Israel when the people were weak and tired. God does promise to fight against Amalek forever in Exodus 17. This passage in Deuteronomy might have been written to explain this permanent warfare.

25:18 striking . . . those who were lagging back: Amalek's actions are the exact opposite of those demanded of Israel. He struck down the weak. In contrast, Israel is again and again told to help the poor and marginalized.

25:19 wipe out Amalek's memory: Saul is condemned in 1 Samuel 15 for failing to carry out this commandment when he fought against Agag the Amalekite.

26:1–11 The harvest ceremonies are mentioned in Deuteronomy 16. This chapter appears to be out of place.

What is described is, perhaps, to be understood as the first ceremony of harvest on entering the land. No doubt it provided a pattern for future celebrations, for the first part of the harvest was offered to God every year (see Lev 23:9–22).

26:5 starving Aramean: An alternative translation is "wandering Aramean." The reference to hunger makes a strong contrast to the Israelite worshipper now offering from the fruit of the land.

26:6 The Egyptians treated us: The solemn statement brings together the past and the present. The "I" of the Israelite worshipper joins with the "they" of the ancestors.

26:9 this place: the land or the chosen sanctuary. land full of milk and honey: See note on Deuteronomy 6:3.

I haven’t broken your commandments. I haven’t forgotten one! <sup>14</sup>I haven’t eaten from the holy portion while mourning, nor did I remove it while I was polluted, nor have I dedicated any of it to the dead. ### Conclusion to the regulations and case laws <sup>16</sup>This very moment the LORD your God is commanding you to keep these regulations and case laws. So keep them and do them with all your mind and with your entire being! <sup>17</sup>Today you have affirmed that the LORD will be your God and that you will walk in his ways and follow his regulations, his commandments, and his case laws, and that you will obey his voice. <sup>18</sup>Today the LORD has gotten your agreement<sup>b</sup> that you will be his treasured people, just like he promised—by keeping his commandments—<sup>19</sup>in order to set you high above all the other nations that he made in praise, fame, and honor; and so that you are a people holy to the LORD your God, just as he said you would be.

Stones of the Instruction

27 Then Moses and Israel’s elders commanded the people: <sup>1</sup>Keep all of the commandment that I am giving you right now. <sup>2</sup>The same day you cross the Jordan River to enter the land the LORD your God is giving you, set up large stones and cover them with plaster. <sup>3</sup>Once you have crossed over, write on the stones all the words of this Instruction because you will have entered<sup>d</sup> the land the LORD your God is giving to you—a land full of milk and honey—exactly as the LORD, your ancestors’ God, promised you. <sup>4</sup>Once you have crossed over the Jordan River, set up these stones that I’m telling you about right now on Mount Ebal. Cover them with plaster <sup>5</sup>and build an altar there for the LORD your God—an altar of stones that haven’t been cut with iron tools. <sup>6</sup>(You must build 26:12-15 The tithe celebrates the goodness of the land and reflects the need to be generous to the poor and marginalized.

26:12 See the teaching about giving a tenth in Deuteronomy 14:22-29.

26:13 I have removed the holy portion: Because of the offering’s holy purpose, none of it can be kept back.

26:14 Before giving the food to others, the Israelite landowner confesses that the food hasn’t been defiled or used for offerings to the dead. This confession is similar to the insistence that sacrificial animals have no defect (see Deut 15:21). Second-best offerings that the worshipper would rather not keep are unacceptable. to the dead: Offerings to dead ancestors were made in ancient Israel.

26:15 your holy home, from heaven itself: Heaven as God’s home isn’t a significant theme in Deuteronomy. Compare with 1 Kings 8:27. land full of milk and honey: See note on Deuteronomy 6:3.

26:16–28:68 The expectations in Deuteronomy 12:1–26:15 are the content of the covenant. This covenant is now sealed through a number of different rituals.

26:16-19 These verses contain the covenant formula, which describes the commitments of both the covenant parties to each other.

26:16 regulations and case laws refers to Deuteronomy 12–26. See Deuteronomy 12:1.

26:17 Describes the people’s obligations to the Lord. They must obey all the commandments given in Deuteronomy 12–26.

26:18-19 The Lord’s commitment to the people. his treasured people: See Deuteronomy 7:6. set you high: If obedient, the people will be greatly honored by the other nations.

27:1-10 Moses takes steps to make sure that the Instruction is written down and visible for all to see in the promised land.

27:2 The same day suggests something done near Jericho after the crossing of the Jordan. However, Deuteronomy 27:4 talks of Mount Ebal, which is in the middle of the land of Canaan, more removed from the Jordan. The fulfillment of this chapter is found in Joshua 8:30-35, which also mentions Mount Ebal.

27:3 a land full of milk and honey: See note on Deuteronomy 6:3.

27:4 Mount Ebal: a mountain by the modern city of Nablus.

27:5 haven’t been cut with iron tools: The stones for the altar were not to be cut with tools (see Exod 20:25).

27:6 The Samaritans claimed that Mount Gerizim, which is mentioned together with Mount Ebal in Deuteronomy

Then offer up on that altar entirely burned sacrifices to the LORD your God. <sup>7</sup>Offer up well-being sacrifices and eat them there, celebrating in the LORD your God's presence. <sup>8</sup>Make sure to write all the words of this Instruction on the stones plainly and clearly.

<sup>9</sup>Then Moses and the levitical priests said to all Israel: Quiet down and listen, Israel! This very moment you have become the people of the LORD your God. <sup>10</sup>So obey the LORD your God's voice. Do his commandments and his regulations that I'm giving you right now.

Ceremony on Mount Gerizim and Mount Ebal

<sup>11</sup>That same day Moses commanded the people: <sup>12</sup>Once you have crossed over the Jordan River, the following tribes will stand on Mount Gerizim to bless the people: Simeon, Levi, Judah, Issachar, Joseph, and Benjamin. <sup>13</sup>And these are the tribes that will stand on Mount Ebal for the cursing: Reuben, Gad, Asher, Zebulun, Dan, and Naphtali. <sup>14</sup>The Levites will address every individual Israelite with a loud voice:

<sup>15</sup>"Cursed is anyone who makes an idol or an image—things detestable to the LORD, made by artisans—and sets it up secretly."

All the people will reply: "We agree!"

<sup>16</sup>"Cursed is anyone who belittles their father or mother."

<sup>17</sup>"Cursed is anyone who tampers with their neighbor's property lines."

<sup>18</sup>"Cursed is anyone who misleads a blind person on a road."

All the people will reply: "We agree!"

<sup>19</sup>"Cursed is anyone who obstructs the legal rights of immigrants, orphans, or widows."

<sup>20</sup>"Cursed is anyone who has sex with his father's wife, because that exposes his father's private matters."<sup>k</sup>

All the people will reply: "We agree!"

<sup>21</sup>"Cursed is anyone who has sex with any kind of animal."

<sup>22</sup>"Cursed is anyone who has sex with his sister, whether his father's daughter or his mother's daughter."

<sup>23</sup>"Cursed is anyone who has sex with his mother-in-law."

<sup>24</sup>"Cursed is anyone who kills his neighbor in secret."

<sup>25</sup>"Cursed is anyone who accepts money to kill an innocent person."

All the people will reply: "We agree!"

27:7 celebrating: eating a festival meal.

27:8 on the stones: presumably the stones mentioned in Deuteronomy 27:4, and not the stones of the altar (Deut 27:5-7).

27:9 This very moment: The covenant formula in Deuteronomy 26:16-19 results in a change of status. Israel has become God's people and has taken on the commitments of the covenant.

27:11-26 The tribes assemble on Mount Gerizim and Mount Ebal to proclaim the blessings and curses of the covenant.

27:12-13 The southern mountain, Mount Gerizim, has the tribes who live in the center of the land. The northern mountain, Mount Ebal, has the tribes who live in Galilee or on the other side of the Jordan. bless the people... cursing: Only curses are given in Deuteronomy 27:14-26. In Deuteronomy 28 blessings will also be listed, as well as more curses.

27:15-26 Many of the actions that are cursed are things done in secret.

27:15 idol: Idolatry is a central concern in Deuteronomy. It opens the Ten Commandments (Deut 5:7-10) and is a major theme in Deuteronomy 6-11. It provides a fitting opening to the series of curses. detestable: See notes on Deuteronomy 7:25; 12:31.

27:16 Behaving badly toward parents has already been mentioned (Deut 21:18-21).

27:17 See note on Deuteronomy 19:14.

27:18 The abuse of those with disabilities is also condemned in Leviticus 19:14.

27:19 The poor and marginalized are mentioned frequently in Deuteronomy.

27:20 See note on Deuteronomy 22:30.

27:21 Sex with animals is condemned in Leviticus 18:23; 20:15.

27:22-23 These types of incest are also condemned in Leviticus 18:9, 17; 20:14, 17.

Future blessing

28 Now if you really obey the LORD your God’s voice, by carefully keeping all his commandments that I am giving you right now, then the LORD your God will set you high above all nations on earth. <sup>2</sup>All these blessings will come upon you and find you if you obey the LORD your God’s voice: <sup>3</sup>You will be blessed in the city and blessed in the field. <sup>4</sup>Your own fertility, your soil’s produce, and your livestock’s offspring—the young of both cattle and flocks—will be blessed. <sup>5</sup>Your basket and your kneading bowl will be blessed. <sup>6</sup>You will be blessed when you are out and about and blessed when you come back. <sup>7</sup>The LORD will defeat any enemies who attack you. They will come against you from one direction but will run for their lives away from you in seven different directions. <sup>8</sup>The LORD will command the blessing to be with you—in your barns and on all the work you do—and he will bless you on the land the LORD your God is giving you. <sup>9</sup>The LORD will establish you as his own, a holy nation, just as he swore to you, if you keep the LORD your God’s commandments and walk in his ways. <sup>10</sup>All the earth’s peoples will see that you are called by the LORD’s name, and they will be in awe of you. <sup>11</sup>The LORD will make good things abound for you—whether the fertility of your womb, your livestock’s offspring, or your fertile soil’s produce—on the very land that the LORD swore to your ancestors to give to you. <sup>12</sup>The LORD will open up for you his own well-stocked storehouse, the heavens, providing your land with rain at just the right time and blessing all your work. You will lend to many nations, but you won’t have any need to borrow. <sup>13</sup>The LORD will make you the head of things, not the tail; you will be at the top of things, not the bottom, as long as you obey the LORD your God’s commandments that I’m commanding you right now, by carefully doing them. <sup>14</sup>Don’t deviate even a bit from any of these words that I’m commanding you right now by following other gods and serving them.

Future curses

<sup>15</sup>But if you don’t obey the LORD your God’s voice by carefully doing all his commandments and his regulations that I am commanding you right now, all these curses will come upon you and find you. <sup>16</sup>You will be cursed in the city and cursed in the field. <sup>17</sup>Your basket and kneading bowl will be cursed. <sup>18</sup>Your own fertility, your soil’s produce, your cattle’s young, and your flock’s offspring will be cursed. <sup>19</sup>You will be cursed when you are out and about and cursed when you come back. <sup>20</sup>The LORD will send calamity, confusion, and frustration on you no matter what work you are doing until you are wiped out and until you disappear—it’ll be quick!—because of the evil acts by which you have abandoned him.<sup>1</sup> <sup>21</sup>The LORD will make a plague stick to you until he has totally wiped you off the fertile land you are entering to possess. <sup>22</sup>The LORD will strike you with consumption, fever, and

27:26 The final curse ends the series by requiring obedience of the entire Instruction.

28:1-68 The chapter sets out some blessings when the teaching is obeyed (28:1-14) and a longer list of curses that will come on Israel if the people disobey (28:15-68). The content of these blessings and curses is very close to the blessings and curses found in international treaties at the time.

28:1 high above all nations on earth: picks up the ideas in Deuteronomy 26:19.

28:3 city . . . field: The contrasting pair means that God will bless the Israelites everywhere.

28:4 Your own fertility: Bearing children and passing on knowledge to the next generation are important in Deuteronomy.

28:5 basket: for the harvest (see Deut 26:4).

28:6 when you are out . . . when you come back: could mean all of life’s activities. Alternatively, the expression is used in the OT of armies going out to war and returning from war

(e.g., 1 Sam 18:13). This leads on to the theme of warfare in Deuteronomy 28:7.

28:7 The LORD: From this verse the Lord is identified as the one who does the blessing.

28:9 swore to you: Elsewhere in Deuteronomy God’s swearing a promise always relates to the ancestors Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob. It perhaps looks back to Exodus 19:6.

28:10 called by the Lord’s name: a sign of the Lord’s ownership.

28:12 providing your land with rain: Israel’s dependence on rain is also mentioned in Deuteronomy 11:14.

28:14 The conclusion of the blessings reminds the people of the centrality of the first commandment (Deut 5:7).

28:15 Almost the reverse of Deuteronomy 28:1.

28:16-19 Reverses Deuteronomy 28:4-6.

28:20 Probably a reversal of Deuteronomy 28:7. The people will be confused and frustrated in battle.

28:21-22 In the curses, disease is a theme that appears twice more (see Deut 28:27, 35).

inflammation; with scorching heat and drought;<sup>m</sup> with destruction and disease for your crops.<sup>n</sup> These things will chase you until you are dead and gone. <sup>23</sup>The sky over your head will be as hard as bronze; the earth under your feet will be like iron. <sup>24</sup>The LORD will turn the rain on your land into dust. Only dirt will fall down on you from the sky until you are completely wiped out. <sup>25</sup>The LORD will hand you over defeated to your enemies. You will go out against them by one direction, but you will run for your life away from them in seven different directions. All the earth's kingdoms will be horrified by you. <sup>26</sup>Your corpses will be food for every bird in the sky and animal on earth; no one will frighten them off. <sup>27</sup>The LORD will afflict you with Egyptian inflammation, hemorrhoids,<sup>o</sup> rash, and itch. You will be untreatable. <sup>28</sup>The LORD will make you go crazy, make you blind, make your mind confused. <sup>29</sup>You will fumble around at high noon as blind people fumble around in darkness. Your plans won't prosper. Instead, you will be constantly oppressed and taken advantage of without any savior. <sup>30</sup>You might get engaged to a woman, but another man will have sex with her. You might build a house, but you won't get to live in it. You might plant a vineyard, but you won't enjoy it. <sup>31</sup>Your ox will be slaughtered while you watch, but you won't get to eat any of it. Your donkey will be stolen right out from under you, and it won't come back. Your flocks will be given to your enemies. No one will save you. <sup>32</sup>Your sons and daughters will be given to another nation while you watch; you will long for them constantly, but you won't have the power to do anything about it. <sup>33</sup>The produce of your land and all your hard work will be consumed by people you don't know. You will be nothing but oppressed and mistreated constantly. <sup>34</sup>The sights your eyes see will drive you insane. <sup>35</sup>The LORD will strike you with horrible inflammation in your knees and legs, from the sole of your foot to the top of your head. You will be untreatable. <sup>36</sup>The LORD will send you and the king that you appoint over you far away to a nation that neither you nor your ancestors have known. There you will worship other gods made of wood and stone. <sup>37</sup>You will become a horror, fit only for use in proverbs and in insults by all the nations where the LORD drives you. <sup>38</sup>You might scatter a lot of seed on the field, but you will gather almost nothing because the locusts will eat it all. <sup>39</sup>You might plant lots of vineyards and work hard in them, but you won't drink any wine or harvest the grapes because worms will devour them. <sup>40</sup>You might have many olive trees throughout your territories, but you won't cover yourself with their oil because your olive trees will fail. <sup>41</sup>You might have sons and daughters, but they won't be yours for long because they will be taken away as prisoners. <sup>42</sup>Crickets will take over all your trees and your soil's produce. <sup>43</sup>The immigrants who live among you will be promoted over you, higher and higher! But you will be demoted, lower and lower! <sup>44</sup>They will lend to you, but you will have nothing to lend to them. They will be the head of things; you will be the tail.

<sup>45</sup>That's how all these curses will come over you, pursuing you, reaching you until you are completely wiped out, because you didn't obey the LORD your God's voice by keeping his commandments and his regulations that he gave you. <sup>46</sup>These things will be a sign and a wonder on you and your descendants forever. <sup>47</sup>Because you didn't serve the LORD your God joyfully and gladly above all else,<sup>p</sup> <sup>48</sup>you will serve your enemies—the ones the LORD will send against you—during famine, drought, nakedness, and total deprivation. God will put an iron yoke on your neck until he has wiped you out. <sup>49</sup>The LORD will bring a distant nation—one from the far ends of the earth—against you as fast as the eagle flies: a nation that speaks a language you can't understand, <sup>50</sup>a stern nation that doesn't go easy on the very old or show pity to the very young. <sup>51</sup>That nation will devour your livestock's offspring and your soil's produce until you yourselves are destroyed because you will have no grain, wine, or oil left—nor any young from your cattle or offspring from your flocks—that is, until that nation annihilates you. <sup>52</sup>That nation will attack you in all your cities until your high, reinforced walls that you thought were so safe fall down across your entire countryside. That nation will attack you in all your cities throughout the land the LORD your God has given you. <sup>53</sup>You will eat the offspring of your own womb—the flesh of your own sons and daughters, whom the LORD your God gave you—because of the desperate and dire circumstances that your enemy has brought on you.

<sup>54</sup>Even the most gentle and refined man among you will scowl at his brother or his own dear wife, or the last of his surviving children. <sup>55</sup>He won't want to give them any of his children's flesh that he will be eating because he has no other food due to the desperate and dire circumstances that your enemy has brought on you in all your cities. <sup>56</sup>Even the most gentle and refined woman among you, who is so refined and gentle she wouldn't stomp her foot on the ground, will scowl at her own dear husband, her son, or her daughter—<sup>57</sup>not wanting to give them any of the afterbirth she pushed out or the babies she bore, because she will be eating them secretly while starving due to the desperate and dire circumstances that your enemy will bring on you in your cities.

<sup>58</sup>If you don't carefully keep all the words of this Instruction that are written in this scroll, by fearing the awesome and glorious name of the LORD your God—<sup>59</sup>the LORD will overwhelm you and your descendants with severe and chronic afflictions, and with terrible and untreatable sicknesses. <sup>60</sup>He'll put on you all the Egyptian diseases about which you were so afraid; they will stick to you! <sup>61</sup>What's more, the LORD will bring on you all the other diseases and plagues that aren't written in this Instruction scroll until you are completely wiped out. <sup>62</sup>Once as countless as the stars in the night sky, only a few of you will be left alive—all because you didn't obey the LORD your God's voice. <sup>63</sup>And just as before, the LORD enjoyed doing good things for you and increasing your numbers, now the LORD will enjoy annihilating and destroying you. You will be torn off the very fertile land you are entering to possess. <sup>64</sup>The LORD will scatter you among every nation, from one end of the earth to the other. There you will serve other gods that neither you nor your ancestors have known—gods of wood and stone. <sup>65</sup>Among those nations you will have no rest and no place to call your own. <sup>66</sup>There the LORD will give you an agitated mind, failing eyes, and a depressed spirit. <sup>67</sup>Your life will seem to dangle before your very eyes. You will be afraid night and day. You won't be able to count on surviving for long. <sup>68</sup>In the morning you will say: "I wish it was nighttime," but at nighttime you will say, "I wish it was morning"—on account of your tortured mind, which will be terrified, and because of the horrible sights that your eyes will see. <sup>69</sup>Finally, the LORD will take you back to Egypt in ships, by the route I promised you would never see again. There you will try to sell yourselves as slaves—both male and female—but no one will want to buy you.

The third heading: The new covenant at Moab

29<sup>a</sup>These are the words of the covenant the LORD commanded Moses to make with the Israelites in the land of Moab in addition to the covenant he had made with them at Horeb. <sup>2b</sup>Moses summoned all Israel, saying to them:

God will bring an enemy against Israel to destroy it. The description is particularly close to Jeremiah 5:15-19.

28:53-57 The horrible picture of parents consuming their own children is found elsewhere in the Bible (Lev 26:29; 2 Kgs 6:28-29; Jer 19:9; Lam 2:20; 4:10).

28:60 For Egyptian diseases, see note on Deuteronomy 28:27.

28:62 stars in the night sky: an echo of the promise to Abraham. See note on Deuteronomy 1:10.

28:64 wood and stone: See note on Deuteronomy 28:36.

28:68 See Deuteronomy 17:16.

29:1-30:20 The terms of the covenant. The blessings and curses are now completed. With these words Moses seeks to encourage the people to keep the covenant. Deuteronomy 29 and 30 belong together and are series of speeches. Moses reminds the people of their history (29:2-9) before calling all to the moment of decision (29:10-15). He warns them about the dangers of disobedience (29:16-29). If the people do disobey, there is the possibility of changing their hearts and lives and returning into relationship with the Lord (30:1-14). Finally, Moses encourages the people to choose obedience, because to do so is to choose life and not death (30:15-20).

29:1 In the Hebrew text this verse concludes chapter 28. It's probably best understood as a heading to chapter 29, since it's like the other three headings in Deuteronomy

You've seen with your own eyes everything the LORD did in Egypt, to Pharaoh, his servants, and all his land—<sup>3</sup>the great trials your eyes witnessed, those awesome signs and wonders! <sup>4</sup>But until this very moment, the LORD hasn't given you insight to understand, eyes to see, or ears to hear. <sup>5</sup>I've led you in the wilderness forty years now; neither the clothes on your back nor the sandals on your feet have worn out. <sup>6</sup>Neither have you eaten bread nor drunk wine or beer during this time—so that you would know that I am the LORD your God. <sup>7</sup>When you arrived here, Sihon, Heshbon's king, and Og, Bashan's king, marched out to fight against us, but we defeated them. <sup>8</sup>We took possession of their land and gave it as an inheritance to the Reubenites, Gadites, and half of Manasseh's tribe. <sup>9</sup>So then keep the words of this covenant and do them so you can succeed in all you do.

<sup>10</sup>Right now, all of you are in the presence of the LORD your God—the leaders of your tribes, <sup>11</sup>your elders, and your officials, all the Israelite males, <sup>12</sup>your children, your wives, and the immigrants who live with you in your camp, the ones who chop your wood and those who draw your water—<sup>13</sup>ready to enter into the LORD your God's covenant and into the agreement that the LORD your God is making with you right now. <sup>14</sup>That means the Lord will make you his own people right now—he will be your God just as he promised you and just as he swore to our ancestors: to Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob. <sup>15</sup>But I'm not making this covenant and this agreement with you alone <sup>16</sup>but also with those standing here with us right now before the LORD our God, and also with those who aren't here with us right now.

<sup>17</sup>You know firsthand how we used to live in Egypt and how we passed right through the nations that you passed through. <sup>18</sup>You saw the horrific things, the filthy idols of wood and stone, silver and gold, that they had with them. <sup>19</sup>Make sure there isn't any one among you right now—male or female, clan or tribe—whose mind is turning from being with the LORD our God in favor of going to serve these nations' gods. Make sure there isn't any root among you that is sprouting poison and bitterness. <sup>20</sup>When that kind of person hears the words of this agreement, they congratulate themselves, thinking: I'll be fine even though I insist on being stubborn. This would cause something wet to dry up and become like something parched. <sup>21</sup>The LORD won't be willing to forgive that kind of person; instead, the LORD's anger and passion will smolder against that person. Every curse written in this scroll will stretch out over them, and the LORD will wipe out their name from under the heavens.

(Deut 1:1; 4:44; 33:1). Covenant is the main theme of Deuteronomy 29 (see Deut 29:9, 12, 14, 21, 25). Moab... Horeb: This verse draws a clear distinction between the covenant made at Horeb (see note on Deut 1:2) and that made 40 years later here at Moab.

29:2-9 Moses begins by giving an overview of the people's experience in Egypt and the wilderness.

29:2 your own eyes: Strictly speaking, the people in Moab didn't see the events in Egypt. These events were seen by their parents. Here and elsewhere in Deuteronomy, the different generations are often merged together (e.g., Deut 5:3).

29:4 insight to understand, eyes to see, or ears to hear: Although the people saw the events, they didn't understand their significance.

29:5 The same idea is found in Deuteronomy 8:4.

29:6 so that you would know that I am the LORD your God: The humbling experience in the wilderness is needed in order to recognize who the Lord is. A similar idea is found in Deuteronomy 8:2-5.

29:7-8 These events are told in detail in Deuteronomy 2:24-3:20.

29:9 The recognition of the Lord (Deut 29:6) should lead to obedience.

29:10-15 Moses declares that all Israelites and immigrants, including future children of those present, are entering into the covenant with the Lord. The words "right now" appear five times, signaling that this is the crucial moment of decision.

29:11 The immigrants who live in the land will also come under the covenant. See note on Deuteronomy 15:3. chop your wood... draw your water: the most menial tasks. The Gibeonites are given these duties in Joshua 9:27.

29:13 This verse echoes the covenant formula in Deuteronomy 26:16-19. This is the formal expression for entering into covenant with God. swore to our ancestors: The promise to the ancestors is usually the promise to give the people the land. In Genesis 17:7-8 the Lord promises to be the God of Abraham's children.

29:15 Future generations could also be included in international treaties.

29:16-21 Moses insists that the commitment to the covenant must be both outward and inward.

29:16 You know firsthand: The Israelites with Moses are blended with their parents, who were in Egypt. (See note on Deut 29:2.)

29:17-18 horrific things... filthy idols: In Deuteronomy, this language is found only here. It is more common in Ezekiel for expressing utter disgust toward idolatry.

29:18 these nations' gods: Deuteronomy assumes the existence of the gods of other nations and their threat to Israel's commitment.

29:19 This would cause... something parched: or, "in order to sweep away wet and dry." Rebellious Israelites might <sup>21</sup>Out of all Israel's tribes, the LORD will single them out for disaster in compliance with all the covenant curses that are written in this Instruction scroll.

<sup>22</sup>Future generations, your children after you, or foreigners from distant lands will say: Look<sup>w</sup> at all that land's plagues and the sicknesses that the LORD laid on it! <sup>23</sup>Look at all its land burned by sulfur and salt, unsuitable for planting, unable to grow or produce any vegetation, as devastated as Sodom and Gomorrah, Admah and Zeboiim, which the LORD devastated in anger and wrath! <sup>24</sup>Indeed, all nations will ask: Why did the LORD do this to this land? What led to this terrible display of anger? <sup>25</sup>They will deduce: It was because those people abandoned the covenant of the LORD, their ancestors' God, which he made with them when he brought them out of Egypt. <sup>26</sup>They followed other gods, serving them and worshipping them—other gods that they hadn't experienced before and that the Lord hadn't designated for them. <sup>27</sup>Then the LORD's anger burned against that land, and he brought against it every curse written in this scroll. <sup>28</sup>The LORD ripped them off their land in anger, wrath, and great fury. He threw them into other lands, and that's how things still stand today.

<sup>29</sup>The secret things belong to the LORD our God. The revealed things belong to us and to our children forever: to keep all the words of this covenant.

30 Now, once all these things happen to you, the blessing and the curse that I'm setting before you, you must call them to mind as you sit among the various nations where the LORD your God has driven you; <sup>2</sup>and you must return to the LORD your God, obeying his voice, in line with all that I'm commanding you right now—you and your children—with all your mind and with all your being. <sup>3</sup>Then the LORD your God will restore you as you were before and will have compassion on you, gathering you up from all the peoples where the LORD your God scattered you. <sup>4</sup>Even if he has driven you to the far end of heaven, the LORD your God will gather you up from there; he will take you back from there. <sup>5</sup>The LORD your God will bring you home to the land that your ancestors possessed; you will possess it again. And he will do good things for you and multiply you—making you more numerous even than your ancestors!

<sup>6</sup>Then the LORD your God will circumcise your hearts and the hearts of your descendants so that you love the LORD your God with all your mind and with all your being in order that you may live. <sup>7</sup>The LORD your God will put all these curses on your enemies and on those imagine that everyone else (the wet and the dry probably mean everyone here) will be punished, but that they will be safe because of the Lord's commitment to Israel. The following verses promise that the Lord will punish rebellious Israelites individually.

29:21 single them out . . . all the covenant curses: The curses will come upon the guilty, even if the disobedient party is just one person.

29:22-29 Moses now imagines what will happen if all Israel rebels against the covenant. He gives the viewpoint of other nations seeing Israel's destruction.

29:23 Sodom and Gomorrah, Admah and Zeboiim: The cities that were destroyed in Genesis 19 are bywords of complete destruction (see Gen 10:19; 14:8; Hos 11:8).

29:24 Why: Moses invites his listeners to ask the same question as the nations.

29:25 There is an irony in the nations' having a better understanding than Israel about its covenant with the Lord.

29:26 They followed other gods: Moses again emphasizes the first commandment (Deut 5:7). designated for them: Other gods have been assigned to other nations and are off-limits for Israel (see Deut 4:19).

29:28 threw them into other lands: Moses speaks about exile. still stand today: The text has the viewpoint of the exile (after 587 BCE).

29:29 This verse has no obvious links to its surroundings. The secret things may be the future. Only God can see what this is. Moses encourages the Israelites to focus on what they know. They have the words of the covenant, and they are to keep them.

30:1-10 When Israel has broken the covenant, there remains the possibility of return.

30:1 the blessing and the curse . . . call them to mind: The Israelites are to reflect upon both the good that comes from obedience and the bad that has resulted from their disobedience. as you sit: We return to the perspective of Moses (see Deut 29:27). The text envisions the exile, which is something that happens in the distant future.

30:2 with all your mind and with all your being: echoes Deuteronomy 6:5. The phrase emphasizes the complete devotion needed from Israel.

30:3 will restore you: a play on the word "turn/return" (see note on Deut 30:1-10). If Israel "returns" to the Lord, the Lord will "return" to them, thus restoring them. Although Israel is said to "return" or "repent," the Lord is not said to do so.

30:4 far end of heaven: the very ends of the earth. This verse emphasizes the Lord's control and willingness to return his people.

30:5 bring you home to the land: The land is seen as the great benefit of the covenant. Although Israel's disobedience didn't result in the covenant's being lost forever, Israel has missed out on the benefits of its covenant with the Lord. more numerous: The generosity of the Lord is seen in Israel exceeding even its earlier size.

30:6 circumcise your hearts: See note on Deuteronomy 10:16. The Lord has to do the task of inward renewal. This who hate you and chase you. <sup>8</sup>But you will change and obey the LORD's voice and do all his commandments that I'm commanding you right now. <sup>9</sup>The LORD your God will help you succeed in everything you do—in your own fertility, your livestock's offspring, and your land's produce—everything will be great! Because the LORD will once again enjoy doing good things for you just as he enjoyed doing them for your ancestors, <sup>10</sup>and because you will be obeying the LORD your God's voice, keeping his commandments and his regulations that are written in this Instruction scroll, and because you will have returned to the LORD your God with all your heart and all your being.

<sup>11</sup>This commandment that I'm giving you right now is definitely not too difficult for you. It isn't unreachable. <sup>12</sup>It isn't up in heaven somewhere so that you have to ask, "Who will go up for us to heaven and get it for us that we can hear it and do it?" <sup>13</sup>Nor is it across the ocean somewhere so that you have to ask, "Who will cross the ocean for us and get it for us that we can hear it and do it?" <sup>14</sup>Not at all! The word is very close to you. It's in your mouth and in your heart, waiting for you to do it.

Life and death

<sup>15</sup>Look here! Today I've set before you life and what's good versus death and what's wrong. <sup>16</sup>If you obey the LORD your God's commandments that I'm commanding you right now by loving the LORD your God, by walking in his ways, and by keeping his commandments, his regulations, and his case laws, then you will live and thrive, and the LORD your God will bless you in the land you are entering to possess. <sup>17</sup>But if your heart turns away and you refuse to listen, and so are misled, worshipping other gods and serving them, <sup>18</sup>I'm telling you right now that you will definitely die. You will not prolong your life on the fertile land that you are crossing the Jordan River to enter and possess. <sup>19</sup>I call heaven and earth as my witnesses against you right now: I have set life and death, blessing and curse before you. Now choose life—so that you and your descendants will live—<sup>20</sup>by loving the LORD your God, by obeying his voice, and by clinging to him. That's how you will survive and live long on the fertile land the LORD swore to give to your ancestors: to Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob.

Moses announces his death

31 Then Moses said<sup>7</sup> these words to all Israel, <sup>2</sup>telling them: I'm 120 years old today. I can't move around well anymore. Plus, the LORD told me "You won't cross the Jordan River."<sup>3</sup> But the LORD your God, he's the one who will cross over

30:9 Repeats the blessing in Deuteronomy 28:4.
30:10 because you will have returned: Despite the rebellion and exile, Moses imagines a situation where things will be even better than they were before.

30:11-14 Moses expresses a similar thought in Deuteronomy 29:29. The Israelites have the commandments. To experience blessing they simply need to obey.

30:11 too difficult: or, "too wonderful." Moses denies that what is needed is some heavenly knowledge beyond them.

30:12-13 up in heaven... across the ocean: Job 28 describes quests for wisdom that can't be reached.

30:14 very close to you: The instructions in Deuteronomy are internalized. The people have heard them and can repeat them daily (Deut 6:6-9).

30:15-20 Moses concludes his encouragement speech by identifying obedience with life.

30:17-18 you will definitely die: The consequences of disobedience are presented in stark terms.

30:19 as my witnesses: or, "to warn you." choose life: the high rhetorical point of Moses' speech in Deuteronomy 29-30.

In the final chapters he turns to Israel's continued existence after his death. In Deuteronomy 31 he introduces various successors who will help the Israelites in the land. Joshua is commissioned (31:7-8, 14-15). The scroll of the Instruction is given to the Levites for regular reading (31:9-13, 24-29). A song that the people are to remember is recited (Deut 31:16-22; 31:29-32:43).

31:1 These words can be seen as the introduction to the chapter, as the CEB's translation indicates. They mark a new topic. However, as translation note y indicates, they could also be translated as "When Moses had finished speaking these words to all Israel." They would then mark the close of the "words of the covenant" that began in Deuteronomy 29:1.

31:2-8 Already in Deuteronomy 3:23-29 the reader has been made aware that Moses will die outside the land of Canaan. Moses encourages the people for the task of conquering the land and speaks especially to Joshua.

31:2 120 years old: See Deuteronomy 34:7. Moses was 80 when he was called to lead the Israelites out of Egypt (Exod 7:7). I can't move around well anymore: or, "go out and come in." This phrase is possibly a reference to military leadership; see note on Deuteronomy 28:6.

31:3 he's the one who will cross... Joshua too will cross over. The absence of Moses isn't a matter of concern, because the Lord is with them (see Deut 1:42; 20:2-4). Joshua will before you! He's the one who will destroy these nations before you so you can displace them. Joshua too will cross over before you just like the LORD indicated. <sup>4</sup>The LORD will do to these enemies the same thing he did to the Amorite kings Sihon and Og, and to their land, when he destroyed them. <sup>5</sup>The LORD will lay them out before you, and you will do to them exactly what the command I've given you dictates. <sup>6</sup>Be strong! Be fearless! Don't be afraid and don't be scared by your enemies, because the LORD your God is the one who marches with you. He won't let you down, and he won't abandon you.

<sup>7</sup>Then Moses called Joshua and, with all Israel watching, said to him: "Be strong and fearless because you are the one who will lead<sup>a</sup> this people to the land the LORD swore to their ancestors to give to them; you are the one who will divide up the land for them. <sup>8</sup>But the LORD is the one who is marching before you! He is the one who will be with you! He won't let you down. He won't abandon you. So don't be afraid or scared!"

Regular reading of the instruction

<sup>9</sup>Then Moses wrote this Instruction down and gave it to the priests—the Levites who carry the chest containing the LORD's covenant—and to all of the Israelite elders. <sup>10</sup>Moses then commanded them:

At the end of seven years, at the appointed time in the year of debt cancellation, during the Festival of Booths, <sup>11</sup>when all Israel comes to appear before the LORD your God at the location he selects, you must read this Instruction aloud, in the hearing of all the people. <sup>12</sup>Gather everyone—men, women, children, and the immigrants who live in your cities—in order that they hear it, learn it, and revere the LORD your God, carefully doing all the words of this Instruction, <sup>13</sup>and so that their children, who don't yet know the Instruction, may hear it and learn to revere the LORD your God for as long as you live on the ground you are crossing the Jordan River to possess.

Joshua commissioned

<sup>14</sup>Then the LORD said to Moses: "It's almost time for you to die. Summon Joshua. The two of you must present yourselves at the meeting tent so I can command him." So Moses and Joshua went and presented themselves at the meeting tent. <sup>15</sup>The LORD appeared in the tent in a pillar of cloud; the cloud pillar stood at the tent's entrance. <sup>16</sup>The LORD then said to Moses:

"Soon you will rest with your ancestors, and the people will rise up and act unfaithfully, going after strange gods of the land they are entering. They will abandon me, breaking my covenant that I made with them. <sup>17</sup>At that point my anger will burn against them, and I'll be lead the people now, not Moses. the LORD indicated: See Deuteronomy 3:28.

31:5 exactly what the command I've given you dictates: that is, to put the Canaanite nations to the ban. See Deuteronomy 7:2.

31:6 Don't be afraid: The reason for not fearing is God's presence with the people. God will guarantee victory in battle.

31:7 divide up the land: Joshua's task is not only to lead the people into battle but to divide the land between the tribes. This verse neatly summarizes the book of Joshua, which divides into roughly two parts: conquest and division of the land.

31:9-13 Moses was the go-between for the Lord and the people (see Deut 5:5, 24-25 and notes). He passed on the teaching. This role will now continue in the form of a scroll that will be read every seven years.

31:9 who carry the chest: The scroll was kept by the chest (Deut 31:26). The Ten Commandments were kept within the chest, which is why it is called the chest containing the LORD's covenant (Exod 25:16; Deut 31:26).

31:10 year of debt cancellation: See Deuteronomy 15:1-6. Festival of Booths: See Deuteronomy 16:13-15.

31:11 appear: Attending the festivals is described as appearing before the Lord in Deuteronomy 16:16.

31:13 children . . . may hear it and learn: For the importance of children hearing the Instruction, see Deuteronomy 6:4-9, 20-25.

31:14-15 The focus returns to Joshua. meeting tent: the only mention of the meeting tent and the cloud in Deuteronomy. In Numbers 11 it's the place where the Lord takes some of Moses' spirit and gives it to 70 leaders. Here, too, Joshua will take over from Moses.

31:16-22 Moses is to teach a poem to the people, and it will remain in their memories after he dies. It appears in Deuteronomy 32:1-43. It acts like an alarm that will go off when the people rebel against the covenant. The Song of Moses shares many ideas with the rest of Deuteronomy, but the way it puts them is quite different. These verses bring together some of these different expressions.

31:16 act unfaithfully: uses a marriage term to describe Israel's sin. In the Song of Moses Israel is said to have made the Lord jealous (Deut 32:16). strange gods: This expression occurs otherwise only in Deuteronomy 32:12. Elsewhere Deuteronomy talks about "other gods." A major theme of the book is covenant, but the term is absent from the song in Deuteronomy 32:1-43.

31:17 I'll be the one who abandons them: Israel's abandoning of the Lord will result in God's abandoning of them.

the one who abandons them! I'll hide my face from them. They will become nothing but food for their enemies,* and all sorts of bad things and misfortunes will happen to them. Then they will say: 'Haven't these terrible things happened to us because our God is no longer with us?' <sup>18</sup>But I will hide my face at that time because of the many wrong things they have done, because they have turned to other gods! <sup>19</sup>So in light of all that, you must write down this poem and teach it to the Israelites. Put it in their mouths so that the poem becomes a witness for me against them. <sup>20</sup>When I bring the Israelites to the land I swore to their ancestors, which is full of milk and honey, and they eat, get full, then fat, and then turn toward other gods, serving them and disrespecting me and breaking my covenant, <sup>21</sup>then, when all kinds of bad things and misfortunes happen to them, this poem will witness against them, giving its testimony, because it won't be lost from the mouths of their descendants. Yes, I know right now what they are inclined to do, even before I've brought them into the land I swore."

31:18 Dt 31:17;
Is 59:2, Is 64:7;

31:20 Dt 6:10,
Dt 8:10,
Dt 32:15
31:23 Dt 31:7,
Dt 31:14; Josh 1:5

<sup>22</sup>So Moses wrote this poem down that very day, and he taught it to the Israelites.

<sup>23</sup>Then the Lord commissioned Joshua, Nun's son: "Be strong and fearless because you are the one who will bring the Israelites to the land I swore to them. I myself will be with you."

Life after Moses

<sup>24</sup>Once Moses had finished writing in their entirety all the words of this Instruction scroll, <sup>25</sup>he commanded the Levites who carry the chest containing the LORD's covenant as follows:

<sup>26</sup>"Take this Instruction scroll and put it next to the chest containing the LORD your God's covenant. It must remain there as a witness against you <sup>27</sup>because I know how rebellious and hardheaded you are. If you are this rebellious toward the LORD while I'm still alive, it's bound to get worse once I'm dead! <sup>28</sup>Assemble all of your tribes' elders and your officials in front of me, so I can speak these words in their hearing, and so I can call heaven and earth as my witnesses against them, <sup>29</sup>because I know that after I'm dead, you will ruin everything, departing from the path I've commanded you. Terrible things will happen to you in the future because you will do evil in the LORD's eyes, aggravating him with the things your hands have made."

The poem of instruction

<sup>30</sup>Then Moses recited in their entirety the words of this poem in the hearing of the entire assembly of Israel:

*Heb lacks for their enemies.

I'll hide my face from them: looking ahead to the song (Deut 32:20). bad things: The same word is found in Deuteronomy 32:23. "Haven't these terrible things . . . God is no longer with us?": The nations ask a similar question in Deuteronomy 29:24.

31:19 in their mouths: learned by memory. witness: The song's role is to accuse the Israelites and witness against them when they sin.

31:20 full of milk and honey: a classic expression in Deuteronomy (e.g., Deut 6:3). they eat, get full, then fat: This expression is closer to how the song portrays Israel's rebellion (Deut 32:15). The richness of the land of Canaan is seen as a potential threat, similar to what we see in Deuteronomy 8:11–20. disrespecting me: A similar Hebrew word is used in Deuteronomy 32:19 to refer to God's rejection of the people.

31:21 inclined to do: Even at the edge of the promised land, Deuteronomy presents Israel's sin and exile as a certainty.

31:23 For the third time, Joshua comes into focus and is finally commissioned at the meeting tent (Deut 31:14–15; cf. Deut 1:38; 3:28).

31:24–30 The spotlight comes back to the Instruction scroll. Like the song, it will be a witness against the Israelites when they turn from the Lord.

31:26 The scroll is accessible to both partners in the covenant and can be referenced.

31:27 rebellious and hardheaded: echoes the rebellion of the gold calf (see Deut 9:6, 7, 13, 23, 24). it's bound to get worse: The people turned to the gold calf after just 40 days of Moses' being absent.

31:28 heaven and earth: See Deuteronomy 4:26; 30:19; 32:1. as my witnesses: or, "to warn you."

31:29 Moses echoes the Lord in predicting Israel's future rebellion. the things your hands have made: idols.

31:30–32:47 It's usually thought that the Song of Moses had its own history separately from the book of Deuteronomy. Nevertheless, the song shares many ideas and emphases with the book of Deuteronomy, though it does put them in its own way. The song provides further insight into how Israel will turn away from the Lord and, even more, how it will be brought back into relationship. When the people are oppressed, the Lord will have compassion on them. The song is made up of a series of speeches. These move between the narrator of the song and the Lord (or the elders in Deut 31:8–14). It may be that the song was to be recited by two parties. The song tells a story of God's generosity, the people's rebellion and punishment, and how God brings them back.

32:1-6 The opening of the song sets out the main themes of the song: the faithfulness of the Lord and the twisted thinking of God's children.

32:1 Heaven...Earth: The entire world is called to hear the song.

32:2 My teaching: The song, like the instructions in the whole book of Deuteronomy, is seen as a form of teaching. Those who give heed to it will find it to be life-giving like gentle rains.

32:3 proclaim the Lord's name: This name expresses the Lord's character. The name is probably the "rock" in Deuteronomy 32:4.

32:4 rock: A central theme of the song is that the Lord is the rock (see Deut 32:15, 18, 30, 31, 37). This image expresses the faithful love of the Lord despite the people's unfaithfulness.

32:5 children who weren't his own: The people are portrayed as the Lord's children throughout the song (Deut 32:6, 11, 19, 20, 43).

32:6 stupid, senseless people: Deuteronomy speaks in terms of disobedience and lack of loyalty. Here, the people show lack of wisdom. They act against their best interests.

32:7-14 Describes the beginnings of God's relationship with Israel. Israel's story begins in the wilderness and moves to the promised land.

32:7 In its own way, the song reflects the idea of teaching the children.

32:8-9 The song utilizes a myth. At the very beginning of time, the nations were divided up according to the number of gods. The same idea is found in a different way in Deuteronomy 4:19: The gods have been assigned to the other nations. The number of nations and gods was probably 70 (see Gen 10). God Most High: identical with the Lord in this song. number of the gods: This reading follows the ancient Greek translation of the OT and the Dead Sea Scrolls. The Hebrew text has probably been changed to read "number of the Israelites." This change may have been attempted to deliberately avoid the implication that there are other gods. Or, scribes may have written "the Israelites" as a side note in the text about the term "children," which refers to the Israelites elsewhere in the song. This side note may eventually have found its way into the song's text. the Lord's property was his people: Israel has a unique position among the nations.

32:10 God found Israel in a wild land: Israel's origins are placed in the wilderness in order to emphasize the he protected him, cared for him,

- <sup>11</sup> Like an eagle protecting its nest,

God spread out his wings, took hold of Israel,

- <sup>12</sup> The LORD alone led Israel;
no foreign god assisted.
- <sup>13</sup> God<sup>f</sup> made Israel<sup>g</sup> glide over the highlands;
he fed him<sup>h</sup> with food from the field, nursed him with honey from a boulder,
with oil from a hard rock:
- <sup>14</sup> curds from the herd, milk from the flock, along with the best of lambs,
rams from Bashan, he-goats too, along with the finest wheat—and for drink, wine from the juiciest grapes!
- <sup>15</sup> Jacob ate until he was stuffed;<sup>i</sup>
Jeshurun<sup>j</sup> got fat, then rebellious.<sup>k</sup>

It was you who got fat, thick, stubborn!<sup>l</sup>

Jeshurun<sup>m</sup> gave up on the God who made him, thought the rock of his salvation was worthless.

- <sup>16</sup> They made God<sup>n</sup> jealous with strange gods, aggravated him with detestable things.
- <sup>17</sup> They sacrificed to demons, not to God, to deities of which they had no knowledge—
new gods only recently on the scene, ones about which your ancestors had never heard.<sup>o</sup>
- <sup>18</sup> You deserted<sup>p</sup> the rock that sired you;
you forgot the God who gave birth to you!

contrast with the goodness of the promised land. See Hosea 9:10.

32:11 One of the benefits that the Lord offers Israel is protection.

32:12 LORD alone: The relationship in the wilderness was exclusive.

32:13-14 The goodness of the land of Canaan is described in poetic terms. As in the rest of Deuteronomy, there is a particular emphasis on food. Like the phrase “the land full of milk and honey,” these verses suggest a land with natural bounty that cannot stop producing things to eat and drink.

32:15-18 The generosity of the Lord is met with the disdain of the people.

32:15 ate until he was stuffed: In the teaching of Deuteronomy, food and drink are things to celebrate before the Lord. At the same time, they are a potential threat to Israel’s faithfulness. The perspective here is similar to Deuteronomy 8:11-20. Jeshurun: a rare name for Israel. It also occurs in the blessing of Moses (Deut 33:5, 26) and provides a link between these two poetic chapters. Otherwise, it’s found only in Isaiah 44:2. Its meaning is uncertain. If it’s related to the Hebrew word jasher, which means “does the right thing,” then its use here is ironic.

32:16 jealous: a term from marital relationships (see note on Deut 31:16). The relationship between the Lord and Israel was to be exclusive, as it was in the wilderness (Deut 32:12). strange gods: or “strangers.” The point is that Israel had no history with these gods. detestable: See notes on Deuteronomy 7:25; 12:31.

32:17 demons: This rare word is found only here and in Psalm 106:37. These deities are unimportant. They are certainly not the Most High, who divided up the nations (Deut 32:8).

32:18 forgot the God: Forgetfulness is seen as a threat in Deuteronomy 8. It stands behind Deuteronomy’s insistence that the instructions be learned and repeated all the time. who gave birth to you: The imagery is now maternal.

32:19-25 God’s anger is shown against Israel.

- 20 He said: I will hide my face from them—
I will see what becomes of them—because they are a confused generation;
they are children lacking loyalty.
- 21 They provoked me with “no-gods,” aggravated me with their pieces of junk.
So I am going to provoke them with “No-People,” aggravate them with a nation of fools.
- 22 A fire burns in me—
it will blaze to the depths of the grave;<sup>f</sup>
it will destroy the land and its crops;
it will blacken the base of the mountains.
- 23 I’ll throw<sup>g</sup> on them disaster after disaster;
I’ll destroy them with my arrows:
24 devastating hunger, consuming plague, bitter sickness.
I’ll send animal fangs after them, venom from dust crawlers too.
- 25 Outside, in the streets, the sword will bereave!
Inside, in the safest room, there will be terror for young men and women, nursing baby and senior citizen.
- 26 I thought about it: I could have struck them down,<sup>h</sup> erased them from human memory,
27 but their enemies’ rage concerned me;
their opponents might misunderstand.
They might say, “Our strong hands, not the LORD’s, did all this,”
28 because they are not a thoughtful nation;
they lack any insight.
- 29 If they had any wisdom, they would understand this;
they would discern what will become of them.
- 30 How could one person chase off a thousand in battle?
How could two people make ten thousand flee for their lives?
Only because their rock sold them off, only because the LORD handed them over!

32:20 hide my face: an expression of anger. It’s the opposite of God’s allowing the divine presence to shine upon someone (e.g., Num 6:25-26). These expressions of God’s anger and pleasure are very common in the Psalms.

32:21 no-gods: continues the idea of Deuteronomy 32:17. The gods that Israel worshipped are nothing, pieces of junk, especially when compared to the Most High (Deut 32:8). This expression also sets up the punishment. As the people have provoked God Most High with no-gods, so God will punish them with No-People. This name No-People is a deliberately unclear expression. It may originally have referred to a particular nation, but it isn’t possible any longer to determine who that might have been.

32:22 fire burns in me: This description is similar to Deuteronomy 4:24, where the Lord is a consuming fire and a jealous God. the grave: As translation note r indicates, the Hebrew word for “grave” is Sheol. This word refers to the world of the dead. destroy the land and its crops: Throughout the book of Deuteronomy, the destruction of the land is a sign of the broken relationship.

32:23 my arrows: The Lord is pictured as a divine warrior firing arrows at the people.

32:24 The Lord fires five arrows at Israel. They are plagues that infect the people. This punishment for disloyalty is similar to what is found in the curses of Deuteronomy 28. The punishments may well be allusions to the names of demons. For example, the Hebrew word for consuming plague is also the name of the demon Reshep (see Hab 3:5).

32:25 nursing baby and senior citizen: The two extremes in age indicate that all will be affected.

32:26-38 The Lord’s actions are misunderstood by the nations. The nations think that Israel’s weakness is because of their own strength in battle.

32:26 I thought about it: the turning point of the song. At the point when Israel might have been completely destroyed, the Lord considers the consequences of that happening.

32:27 might misunderstand: Moses uses a similar logic when he prays for the people after the sin of the gold calf (Deut 9:28). The fate of the Lord and the people are bound together by their relationship.

32:28 they are not a thoughtful nation: It isn’t clear whether the song is referring to Israel or another nation that attacked it here. Probably another nation is meant.

32:30 one person chase off a thousand: The disaster was so

- 31 But, no, their rocks can't compare to our rock!
Our enemies are completely stupid.<sup>a</sup>
- 32 Their roots run straight from Sodom—from the fields of Gomorrah!

extreme that it could only have happened because God was against them. The description of the defeat is similar to that described in Deuteronomy 28:25.

32:31 their rocks: The idea is perhaps that the nations think their gods have helped them. But Israel's God is the Most High (Deut 32:8). Their defeat can only be because the Lord has turned against them. Our enemies are completely stupid: The Hebrew is difficult. It might also be translated "Our enemies are judges."

32:32 Sodom ... Gomorrah: The origin of the enemies is seen as deeply corrupt. It can't be that they have gained victory because of who they are.

32:35 The nations have overstepped, and the day of punishment is also coming for them. The thought is similar to what we find in some of the Prophets (see Isa 10; Hab 1–2).

32:36 In contrast to the other nations (Deut 32:35), the Lord will have compassion on the people. those who serve him: presents Israel in a positive light as servants, rather than disobedient children. prisoners and free people: two extremes used to cover all the people.

32:37 the rocks they trusted in: The other gods proved not to be worth following. At the time of need, they proved to be useless.

32:39–43 The triumphant end of the song in which the Lord shows himself to be unique as Israel's deliverer.

32:39 there are no other gods with me: The Lord alone comes to save the people. The situation is exactly the same as in the wilderness (Deut 32:12). There is no one else with him. deals death and gives life: points to the Lord's authority. The Lord is the one who punishes and has mercy. See Isaiah 45:7; Hosea 6:1–2.

32:40 lifting my hand: a pose for making a promise (see Ps 106:26).

32:41 God is presented as a divine warrior. This image is also found in Deuteronomy 33:2, 26–29; as well as Exodus 15:3 and Isaiah 63.

43Heavens:<sup>a</sup> Rejoice with God!<sup>7</sup>

All you gods: bow down to the Lord!<sup>a</sup>

Because he will avenge his children's<sup>a</sup> blood;

he will pay back his enemies;

he will punish in kind those who hate him;<sup>b</sup>

he will cleanse his people's land.<sup>c</sup>

44So Moses came and recited all the words of this poem in everyone's hearing: Joshua,<sup>d</sup> Nun's son, joined him. 45When Moses finished speaking all these words to all Israel, 46he told them: Set your mind on all these words I'm testifying against you right now, because you must command your children to perform carefully all the words of this Instruction. 47This is no trivial matter for you—this is your very life! It is by this means<sup>e</sup> alone that you will prolong your life on the fertile land you are crossing the Jordan River to possess.

Moses' death imminent

48The LORD spoke to Moses that very same day: 49"Hike up the Abarim mountains, to Mount Nebo, which is in the land of Moab opposite Jericho. Take a good look at the land of Canaan, which I'm giving to the Israelites as their property. 50You will die on the mountain you have hiked up, and you will be gathered to your people just like your brother Aaron, who died on Mount Hor and was gathered to his people, 51because the two of you were unfaithful toward me in front of the Israelites at the waters of Meribath-kadesh, in the Zin wilderness, because you didn't treat me with proper respect before the Israelites. 52You can look at the land from the other side of the river,<sup>f</sup> but you won't enter there."<sup>g</sup>

The fourth heading: Moses' blessing

33This is the blessing that Moses the man of God gave the Israelites before he died. 33<sup>2</sup>He said:

32:43 The climax of the song. The traditional Hebrew text, the Dead Sea Scrolls, and the earliest Greek translations are quite different from each other. There may be an attempt to remove references to other gods (see note on Deut 32:8). Heavens... All you gods: The other gods are called to acknowledge the Lord. The supreme status of the Lord is recognized by all: not only Israel and the nations, but even the other gods.

32:44-47 These words help frame the song. Like Deuteronomy 31:16-22, these verses connect the song with some of the major themes in the rest of the book. Unlike Deuteronomy 31:16-22, these verses give a slightly more positive role to the song.

32:44 Joshua, Nun's son, joined him: These words are something of an afterthought, but they do underline the fact that Joshua has been commissioned as Moses' successor.

32:45 all these words: could refer to the entirety of the book or to the words of the song. The words are said to testify against, or warn, the Israelites. The same expression is used in Deuteronomy 31:28. It's possible that the words originally referred to the whole book, but with the inclusion of the song now refer to the song (see note on Deut 31:30-32:47).

32:46 I'm testifying against you: or "I'm warning you." A reference to words warning Israel is also found in Deuteronomy 31:28. All the words of this Instruction: The positive role of the song is to ensure that Israel obeys the teaching of Deuteronomy.

32:47 this is your very life: an emphatic statement similar to Deuteronomy 30:19.

32:48-52 The book draws near to its close by preparing Moses and the reader for the approaching death of Israel's leader. Moses' death won't be told until Deuteronomy 34, but the closeness of death sets the stage for the final blessing in Deuteronomy 33.

32:48 that very same day: The book of Deuteronomy is presented as a series of speeches told on the very day that Moses dies (see Deut 1:3).

32:49 Mount Nebo: called Mount Pisgah in Deuteronomy 3:27. Take a good look: Moses has been promised that he may see the land, but not enter it (Deut 3:27).

32:50 gathered to your people: an expression that usually refers to burial in the family tomb. Since Moses was not buried with his family, the expression refers merely to burial. just like your brother Aaron: Moses' death is told in an almost identical way to that of his brother. Both go up a mountain to die when commanded by the Lord. Mount Hor: called Moserah in Deuteronomy 10:6.

32:51 The story of Moses and Aaron's sin is told in Numbers 20:1-13. you didn't treat me with proper respect could also be translated "you didn't treat me as holy." Compare with Numbers 20:12.

33:1-29 Like the Song of Moses, the blessing may have originally had an existence outside the book of Deuteronomy (see note on Deut 31:30-32:47). The book of Deuteronomy has been given an ending like the book of Genesis (see Gen 49). There is no blessing for Simeon in Deuteronomy 33, and Joseph and Levi's tribes get the most attention. The blessings are organized according to their mothers. First come the sons of Jacob's primary wives:

The LORD came from Sinai:
 from Seir he shone like the dawn on us,<sup>b</sup> from Paran Mountain he beamed down.
 Thousands of holy ones were with him,<sup>i</sup> his warriors were next to him, ready.<sup>j</sup>

<sup>3</sup>Yes, those who love<sup>k</sup> the nations—
 all his holy ones—were at your command;
 they followed your footsteps;
 they got moving when you said so.

<sup>4</sup>Moses gave the Instruction to us—
 it's the prized possession of Jacob's assembly.

<sup>5</sup>A king came to rule in Jeshurun, when the people's leaders gathered together, when Israel's tribes were one.

<sup>6</sup>"I pray that Reuben lives, doesn't die, though his numbers are so few."

<sup>7</sup>Moses said this to Judah:
 "LORD, listen to Judah's voice!
 Bring him back to his own people, strengthen his hands,<sup>l</sup> be his help against every enemy."

<sup>8</sup>Then he told Levi:
 "Give your Thummim to Levi,<sup>m</sup> your Urim to your faithful one—the one you tested at Massah, the one you challenged by Meribah's waters;
<sup>9</sup>the one who said of his own mother and father:
 'I don't consider them as such';

Leah's sons and then Rachel's. Second come the sons from Jacob's secondary wives: Bilhah and Zilpah.

33:1 The last of four headings in Deuteronomy (see Deut 1:1), the man of God: See Joshua 14:6 and the title of Psalm 90. The title is used of prophets, especially those with powers to do wonders.

33:2-5 The blessings themselves are framed by descriptions of the divine warrior (see Deut 33:26-29).

33:2 Sinai: See note on Deuteronomy 1:2. This name is used only here and in Deuteronomy 33:16 (though see translation note p on Deut 33:16). Seir: the mountains that were the traditional home of the Edomites. They were also located to the south of Israel. shone like the dawn: The divine warrior appears like the sun. See also Habakkuk 3:4. holy ones: not Israel, but divine beings that come with the Lord into battle. This picture is perhaps what is meant by the title "the LORD of heavenly forces."

33:3 the nations: perhaps a reference to Israel with all its different parts (see Deut 33:19). The early Greek translation has "people." A reference to nations other than Israel seems out of place here.

33:4 Moses gave the Instruction to us: See Deuteronomy 1:5 and note. This verse links the blessing of Moses to the rest of the book of Deuteronomy.

33:5 king came to rule: The king is probably the Lord, rather than Moses or some later king of Israel. Jeshurun: See note on Deuteronomy 32:15.

33:6 The blessing on Reuben. Although Reuben was the oldest male offspring of Jacob, it would seem the tribe was not especially strong. In Genesis 49:3-4 this is blamed on Reuben's actions.

33:7 The blessing on Judah. The positive blessing of Judah reflects the leading position his tribe is given in the story of Israel. Bring him back to his own people: The historical background for these words is unclear.

33:8-11 The blessing on Levi. The blessing is longer than almost all the others. The blessing begins, as do the others, with a blessing of Levi as an individual, but the perspective quickly becomes the tribe as a whole.

33:8 Thummim . . . Urim: previously mentioned (Exod 28:30; Lev 7:7; Num 27:21). As in Numbers 27 they were means to discover God's will. Massah . . . Meribah: These two place-names are where the Israelites tested the Lord (Exod 17:1-7). The story makes no mention of Levi or the Levites.

33:9 "I don't consider them as such": In the story of the gold calf, the Levites are particularly committed to God's cause, even if this means killing brother and friends (Exod 32:25-29). The blessing seems to allude to the same story.

33:10 teach your case laws: The role of the Levites included knowing and applying the teaching from Moses (see Deut 17:8-13). sweet incense refers to the role of the tribes of Levi in offering sacrifices to the Lord.

33:11 Levi's enemies are introduced rather abruptly. Moses wishes for them to be thwarted.

33:13 his land is blessed by God: The tribes of Joseph possessed some of the richest land in the center of Israel.

33:14 moon: As translation note o suggests, the underlying Hebrew could be translated as "months." The blessing may relate to the different months that crops were harvested.

33:16 Sinai: The Hebrew could also be read as "bush," an allusion to the events in Exodus 3. crown of that prince among brothers: The praise of Joseph's tribes points to their strong position within Israel.

33:17 A firstborn bull: The bull was greatly celebrated, and images of bulls were used in worship both in Israel and in surrounding nations. The bull symbolized strength and fertility. Ephraim's... Manasseh's: The two sons of Joseph became separate tribes within Israel.

33:22 The blessing on Dan. Bashan: perhaps means that the lion is from Bashan. The tribe of Dan had land in other places. (For the division of the land, see Josh 13-19.)

33:23 The blessing on Naphtali. the west and the south: Naphtali's land was in the north and east of Canaan.

33:24-25 The blessing on Asher. most blessed: a play on the name Asher, which means "blessed." dead bolts: the bolts of the city and the source of its strength.

33:26-29 The end of the blessings, like their opening, also refers to the divine warrior.

33:26 Jeshurun: See note on Deuteronomy 32:15. rides through heaven: The picture is of a chariot riding across the sky.

33:27 the eternal arms are a support: or "underneath are the eternal arms." The image could be God's providing support or God as a warrior reaching down to fight (see translation note x). drove out the enemy... "Destroy them!": In Deuteronomy this can be understood only as the conquest of Canaan and the practice of the ban (see Deut 7:2).

33:28 The end of the blessing matches the rest of the book's concern with the land, which is secure and full of abundance.

The final words about Moses mark him off as someone without comparison. The death of Moses closes a significant chapter in the canonical story of Israel. It allows a new chapter to open with the book of Joshua.

34:1 Mount Nebo, the peak of the Pisgah slope: The two names of the mountain are brought together (see Deut 3:27; 32:49). Gilead region: Moses' visual tour of the land begins with the area closest, the southern part of the land on the other side of the Jordan. as far as Dan's territory: Moses' view then moves up all the way to the most northern part of the land, near modern-day Lake Huleh.

34:3 the arid southern plain: the Negeb. The southern-most part of the land of Israel. and the plain: Moses' view of the land returns to where he started by seeing the southern end of the Jordan River and the area around the Dead Sea. Palm City: Jericho (see 2 Chron 28:15).

34:6 Even now, no one knows where Moses' grave is: The narrator of Deuteronomy writes from a perspective some time after Moses' death.

34:7 120 years old: See note on Deuteronomy 31:2. His eyesight . . . hadn't diminished a bit: Moses' continued strength and vigor highlight that his death was the result of sin, rather than old age. His age places him among Israel's ancestors who lived over a century.

34:9 filled with wisdom: See Joshua's commissioning in Numbers 27:18-23.

34:10 No prophet like Moses: This verse not only sets Moses apart, but also the books that contain his words. face-to-face: Moses had unmediated access to the Lord that no one else enjoyed before or after (see Exod 33:11).

JOSHUA

The book of Joshua tells the story of how God gave Israel the land of Canaan (Josh 1–12) and allotted the land to them as an inheritance (Josh 13–22). In Genesis, God promised Abraham that his descendants would possess the land (Gen 12:7; 15:12–16) and Joshua essentially reports that the promise has been fulfilled. Joshua concludes with a call for Israel to be devoted completely to God, a call that is also central to the message of the OT (Josh 23–24). Indeed, the charge to serve only the Lord is related in its language and theology to Moses' insistence on absolute devotion to the God who brought Israel out of Egypt (Exod 20:1; Deut 6:5).

Joshua is set during the period of Israel's entry into the land of Canaan, perhaps during the 13th century BCE. The writing of the book, however, took place much later and thus Joshua reflects the theological concerns of later times. At least two periods in Israel's history seem to be crucial times of composition. First, portions of Joshua were composed in the late 7th century during the reign of King Josiah (2 Kgs 22–23). That period was marked by Josiah's strong concern for religious purity and absolute devotion to God. Hence, the story of Israel's conquest of Canaan was shaped by and speaks to that concern. This is evident in Joshua's frequent references to the instructions of Moses and their charge to obey the covenant Moses established (see Josh 1:7; 24). Second, the book wasn't completed until after the destruction of Jerusalem in 587 BCE, and perhaps not until the residents of Judah returned from exile in 539 BCE. The finished product therefore is intended to be read in the light of the trauma of exile and the identity crises it produced.

The main character in the book is Joshua, first introduced in Exodus as a military leader who fought the Amalekites just after the Israelites left Egypt (Exod 17:8–16). Joshua became Moses' assistant during the period of wilderness wandering, and Moses appointed him as his successor (Num 27:18–23). In Joshua 1, God commissions Joshua to lead the Israelites into Canaan and to take possession of it. Despite the centrality of Joshua to the book, however, his authority and influence are tempered by two other figures: Moses and Eleazar.

The authority of Moses continues to overshadow Joshua even though Moses died at the end of Deuteronomy. The book's opening note about Moses' death (Josh 1:1) hints that his influence remains, and indeed it continues through the written instructions he left behind (the "Instruction scroll," see Josh 1:7–8). Thus, although Joshua is the main character in the book, he is presented constantly in relation to Moses (Josh 8:30–35; 11:23).

In addition to Moses, Eleazar the priest and his son Phinehas also appear prominently in the book. In Joshua 14–19, Eleazar stands with Joshua to cast lots to determine inheritance. In Joshua 22:13-34 it is Phinehas, not Joshua, whom the Israelites west of the Jordan send to settle their dispute with their kindred east of the river. Furthermore, the book concludes with a note about the death of Eleazar, not Joshua (Josh 24:33). The presence of these priestly figures serves to temper Joshua's authority. They effectively bring the character of Joshua more in line with the presentation of shared authority of priest and military leader in Numbers 27:20-23; 34:17.

A ram's horn or shofar (Josh 6:4–5)

The book of Joshua occupies a pivotal place in the canons of Judaism and Christianity. In the Jewish canon, Joshua is the first book of the Former Prophets (Joshua through Kings; the Latter Prophets follow with the books of Isaiah through Malachi). That canonical identification highlights the fact that Joshua promotes obedience to the Instruction (the Torah, or Genesis–Deuteronomy, which it follows). The fact that Joshua opens with a charge to obey the Instruction scroll from Moses (see Josh 1:7-8) illustrates the logic of this place in the canon and anticipates the attention to the Mosaic Instruction throughout the Prophets (note that Mal 4:4 concludes the collection of the prophets with a similar command to obey the teachings of Moses). In the Christian Bible, Joshua is part of a grand narrative that runs from Genesis through Esther, a narrative that tells the story of God's people from their creation (Gen 12) to their exile in Babylon.

The juxtaposition of Joshua and Deuteronomy is an important clue to the meaning and significance of the book of Joshua. Joshua was likely written as a type of sequel to Deuteronomy and was intended to be read with it. The books of Judges, Samuel, and Kings were likely part of this continuing story based on the values and concerns of Deuteronomy. Perhaps the most basic and most pervasive theme in Joshua that draws from Deuteronomy is the idea that the primary authority for Israel is God's teachings through Moses that Moses left behind in written form (Deut 30:10; 31:9). Like Deuteronomy, Joshua has a strong emphasis on the divine initiative in taking the land (Deut 20:4). This understanding of the land as God's gift provides an important foundation for the conquest story. Because in Joshua it is God's power that wins battles, warfare becomes a type of ritual for the Israelites. At Jericho the people march in order for the divinely prescribed six days, with priests at the head of the procession, and then on the seventh day the walls tumble at the blast of the priests' trumpets. There is no strategy about how to breach the walls of the city, because Israel captures Jericho and Canaan by God's might, not their own military prowess (Josh 6:8-21).

Joshua, like Deuteronomy, speaks often of "all Israel" gathered for instruction and conquest (Deut 1:1; 5:1; 11:6; 27:14; 29:9; Josh 3:7, 17; 4:14; 7:22-26; 8:21, 24; 23:2). The fact that national unity is a real concern in Joshua is apparent through passages that deal with the threat of disunity. This is seen particularly when the Reubenites, the Gadites, and half the tribe of Manasseh settle east of the Jordan River. Joshua, just as Moses did before him, cautiously and diplomatically allows the Transjordan tribal groups to live separately, but only after they first aid their kindred in the conquest east of the river (Deut 3:12-20; Josh 1:12-15; 4:12). The idealistic picture in Deuteronomy and Joshua is probably influenced by tension between some Israelite groups in the period after the Babylonian exile. Joshua 22 hints that the land east of the Jordan River was considered unclean (Josh 22:19) and that the tribes who occupied it were of secondary status, a circumstance that probably prevailed late in Israel's history. For that reason the status of the eastern tribes is highlighted in the book (Josh 1:12-18; 13:8-32). Joshua affirms that they are part of Israel and that all the tribes act in one accord.

Orders from the LORD

1 After Moses the LORD's servant died, the LORD spoke to Joshua, Nun's son. He had been Moses' helper. <sup>2</sup>"My servant Moses is dead. Now get ready to cross over the Jordan with this entire people to the land that I am going to give to the Israelites. <sup>3</sup>I am giving you every place where you set foot, exactly as I promised Moses. <sup>4</sup>Your territory will stretch from the desert and the Lebanon as far as the great Euphrates River, including all Hittite land, up to the Mediterranean Sea on the west. <sup>5</sup>No one will be able to stand up against you during your lifetime. I will be with you in the same way I was with Moses. I won't desert you or leave you. <sup>6</sup>Be brave and strong, because you are the one who will help this people take possession of the land, which I pledged to give to their ancestors.

<sup>7</sup>"Be very brave and strong as you carefully obey all of the Instruction that Moses my servant commanded you. Don't deviate even a bit from it, either to the right or left. Then you will have success wherever you go. <sup>8</sup>Never stop speaking about this Instruction scroll. Recite it day and night so you can carefully obey everything written in it. Then you will accomplish your objectives and you will succeed. <sup>9</sup>I've commanded you to be brave

Moses Moses was Israel's leader whom God chose to rescue the Israelites from slavery in Egypt (Exod 3–4). The books of Exodus through Deuteronomy have Moses as the main character, and Deuteronomy ends with a report of Moses' death (Deut 34). The book of Joshua now begins "after Moses the LORD's servant died" (Deut 34). This note communicates a simple progression in time and leadership, from Moses to Joshua. But it also directs the reader to the authority of Moses that continues even after his death. The book of Deuteronomy, immediately preceding Joshua, is a collection of Moses' speeches that he gave the Israelites before they entered the land of Canaan. Moses wrote the speeches and left them for the Israelites, however, in the form of an Instruction scroll (see note on Josh 1:7) that was to guide the Israelites as they settled in Canaan. On the one hand, Moses' death marks the appropriate time of the Israelites' entry into Canaan (Num 20:12; Deut 32:48–52). But on the other hand, Moses' death simply marks a transition from his physical presence to his written instructions as the primary authority for God's people. Therefore, throughout the book, Joshua is presented as faithful precisely because he followed in Moses' footsteps, and he obeyed Moses' instructions that Moses gave before his death (Josh 8:30–35; 11:23).

1:1–9 The book opens with God commissioning Joshua as the leader who will take the Israelites into the land of Canaan. The installation follows a pattern found in other accounts of God investing power in someone new: (1) charge with encouragement ("Be very brave and strong," 1:6, 7); (2) description of the mission; and (3) promise of assistance ("I will be with you," 1:5, 9). See Exodus 3–4; 2 Chronicles 19:4–11. The language of the charge to Joshua is particularly close to that in 1 Kings 1–2 in which David installs Solomon as king. David charges Solomon to be brave (1 Kgs 2:2) and to keep the Instructions from Moses (1 Kgs 2:3; see Josh 1:7–8). It is also apparent that the charge to Joshua includes language and themes like that found in the final evaluation of King Josiah (2 Kgs 23). Josiah is praised particularly for obedience to the written instructions of Moses (2 Kgs 23:24; see note on Josh 1:7–9). Thus, Joshua's installation and his performance as Israel's leader anticipate the rule of Israel's kings and provide a model for those kings to follow.

1:1–2 Joshua: The name means "the LORD saves." The equivalent name in Greek is Jesus (Matt 1:21). Thus the NT remembers Joshua's leadership as the foreshadowing of Jesus' work. Hebrews 4:8 declares that Jesus gives his followers the "rest" that Joshua couldn't give (see note on Josh 1:13). The LORD's servant: an expression that describes the status of a select number of leaders (David, 1 Kgs 8:66; the prophets, Jer 7:25). The label implies that God is completely in charge of the person's life. Thus the person's authority derives from obedience to God. Jordan: This river, which runs from the Galilee Sea in the north to the Dead Sea in the south, was the natural border of the land of Canaan.

1:1 Moses' helper: This expression refers to Joshua's role during the wilderness wandering period when Joshua accompanied Moses to the mountain where God is present and served as Moses' assistant (Exod 24:13; 33:11; Num 11:28). The label validates the transition from Moses to Joshua. (See sidebar, "Moses"). Joshua's role involves two actions, both anticipated in Deuteronomy: Joshua will lead the people into the land (Deut 1:38; 3:21, 28) and put them in possession of it (Deut 31:7). Despite Joshua's important place in the story, however, God's action is primary. God promises to give the land of Canaan to the Israelites (Josh 1:2–3) and to be constantly present with Joshua (Josh 1:5). Joshua's main task is to be faithful and obedient and to believe confidently in God's promises (Josh 1:6, 7, 9).

1:4 The land of Canaan lay west of the Jordan River. It stretched from the arid southern plain (Negeb, which was north of the Sinai desert) to the mountains of Lebanon in the north and to the Mediterranean Sea in the west. The description of Israelite territory here however includes a much-expanded area and probably reflects the ideal borders of the Davidic kingdom. According to this verse, the borders will stretch from the Mediterranean Sea in the west to the Euphrates River in the east. Northern and southern borders are less clear, particularly the reference from the desert which describes the southern limits of the land. But the description of the land suggests the Israelites will be like the powerful empires of the ancient world. Such descriptions likely arose within the period of monarchy or when the Israelites had lost their land and were dreaming of a glorious restoration. The land is described and strong, haven’t I? Don’t be alarmed or terrified, because the LORD your God is with you wherever you go.”

Instruction Scroll The directions God commands Joshua to follow appear on an Instruction scroll that contained the words of Moses (Josh 1:7). The scroll mentioned here is probably some version of the speeches of Moses found in Deuteronomy. Deuteronomy 4:44–26:19 in particular are presented as Moses’ instructions that he gave the Israelites on the plains of Moab just before the Israelites entered the land of Canaan (Deut 4:44). According to Deuteronomy 31:24–29, Moses wrote down these speeches and left them as a permanent record. The scroll then served as a surrogate for Moses after his death. Moses’ speeches in written form became a foundational document for the Israelites, similar to a constitution or polity document. This status of the scroll is indicated most clearly in Deuteronomy 17:18–20, which states that the Israelite king, when appointed, is to have this Instruction scroll always before him to guide him. Later David charged Solomon to be faithful to God by obeying the written Instruction from Moses (1 Kgs 2:3). A direct link between the Instruction scroll and King Josiah appears in 2 Kings 23:3. Thus when God charges Joshua with obedience to the writings of Moses, God is presenting Joshua as a precursor of and model for Israel’s future monarchs.

Joshua gives orders

<sup>10</sup>Then Joshua gave orders to the people’s officers: <sup>11</sup>“Go through the camp and give orders to the people. Say, ‘Get supplies ready for yourselves because in three days you will be crossing over the Jordan to enter the land and take it over. The LORD your God is going to give it to you as your possession.’”

<sup>12</sup>Then Joshua addressed the Reubenites, the Gadites, and half the tribe of Manasseh: <sup>13</sup>“Remember the command that Moses the LORD’s servant gave you: ‘The LORD your God will give you rest and give you this land.’ <sup>14</sup>Your wives, children, and cattle may remain in the land that Moses has given you on the east side of the Jordan. But all you brave fighters, organized for war, must cross over in front of your fellow Israelites. You must help them <sup>15</sup>until the LORD gives a rest like yours to your fellow Israelites and they too take possession of the land that the LORD your God is giving them. Then you may return and take over the land that belongs to you, which Moses the LORD’s servant has given you on the east side of the Jordan.”

<sup>16</sup>They answered Joshua, “We will obey everything you have commanded us and go anywhere you send us. <sup>17</sup>We will obey you in the same way that we obeyed Moses. Just let the as Hittite land, which refers to the area once controlled by a powerful kingdom located in what is present-day Turkey and portions of Syria. The territory outlined in the verse also includes areas ruled by the Assyrians and Babylonians. This expansive land was never actually controlled fully by the Israelites. The description probably intended to suggest, however, that Israel would be as powerful and influential in world politics as any of the great empires because God fought for them and God ultimately controlled the land.

1:7-9 Be very brave and strong: The command to “be very brave and strong” sounds like encouragement to engage in battle, but it’s actually a mandate to have faith and depend on God. The bravery ordered will be seen specifically in Joshua’s obedience to God’s Instruction that came through Moses. Joshua will be successful if he reads and recites the words of the Instruction scroll Moses left behind (see sidebar, “Instruction Scroll”). Thus his success isn’t determined by military planning or ability. The concluding imperative, Don’t be alarmed or terrified, is similar. It is paired with the promise that the LORD your God is with you (1:9).

1:10-18 As Joshua prepares the people to enter Canaan, he addresses first three and a half tribes whom Moses gave land east of the Jordan River (Num 32; Deut 3:12-17): Reuben, Gad, and half the tribe of Manasseh. Manasseh is unique in that half the tribe, mentioned here, will occupy territory east of the Jordan, while the other half will have a share of the land of Canaan. That the address to the three eastern groups appears here at the beginning of Joshua anticipates the question of their inclusion in the chosen people and the nature of the land they occupy. The fact that Moses assigned their territory would seem to clarify that they have holy land just as the other tribes west of the Jordan. Joshua 22 will raise questions about this, however, that reflect doubts about the nature of the land east of the Jordan (see notes on Josh 22).

1:11 three days: The reference to three days is a common biblical expression referring to a complete period of time and doesn’t necessarily mean a 72-hour period (see Josh 2:22; 3:3; 9:16). “In three days” or “after three days” is the equivalent of modern expressions like “after a while” or “after some time passed.”

1:13 rest: The word refers to the state of living at peace in the land without the threat of enemies (Josh 1:15; 11:23). The word also has symbolic dimensions, referring to the state of being reconciled to God (see Ps 95:11). Hebrews 4:8 adopts this meaning when it says Jesus provides the rest Joshua could not.

1:16-18 The eastern tribes’ obedience indicates that Joshua is accepted as Moses’ successor. It also paints a picture of a unified people who are ready to receive the land

Joshua sends spies

2 Joshua, Nun's son, secretly sent two men as spies from Shittim. He said, "Go. Look over the land, especially Jericho." They set out and entered the house of a prostitute named Rahab. They bedded down there.

<sup>2</sup>Someone told the king of Jericho, "Men from the Israelites have come here tonight to spy on the land."

<sup>3</sup>So the king of Jericho sent word to Rahab: "Send out the men who came to you, the ones who came to your house, because they have come to spy on the entire land."

Rahab takes action

<sup>4</sup>But the woman had taken the two men and hidden them. Then she said, "Of course the men came to me. But I didn't know where they were from. <sup>5</sup>The men left when it was time to close the gate at dark, but I don't know where the men went. Hurry! Chase after them! You might catch up with them." <sup>6</sup>But she had taken them up to the roof and hidden them under the flax stalks that she had laid out on the roof. <sup>7</sup>The men from Jericho<sup>a</sup> chased after them in the direction of the Jordan up to the fords. As soon as those chasing them went out, the gate was shut behind them.

Rahab sets terms

<sup>8</sup>Before the spies bedded down, Rahab went up to them on the roof. <sup>9</sup>She said to the men, "I know that the LORD has given you the land. Terror over you has overwhelmed us. The and trust that God will give it to them. This generation that enters the land with Joshua stands in marked contrast with the generation that came out of Egypt with Moses and didn't believe God's promise. See note on Joshua 5:2-9, where this difference between the two generations is explicit.

2:1-3 The spy mission is reminiscent of Moses sending spies into Canaan (Num 13). In contrast to the previous reconnaissance of the land, however, there is no mention here of God ordering spies to be sent (cf. Num 13:1). The characterization of the mission as secret (2:1) may suggest the Israelites are trying to hide it from God. Regardless, the mission doesn't seem to go well. Though Joshua sent the spies secretly (2:1), they are immediately detected by the king's men (2:2). Moreover, the prostitute Rahab controls the spies throughout their time in Jericho, and she gets concessions from them to preserve her family during the invasion.

2:1 Rahab: She is identified as a prostitute, but the exact nature of that identity is uncertain. Prostitution simply for economic survival was practiced (Prov 6:26). The nature of Rahab's prostitution isn't specified. It's also not clear whether the two Israelite spies came to Rahab as her customers. Some of the language of the story implies sexual activity (they bedded down there), but there is no indication the spies actually engaged in sex with Rahab. What is clear, however, is that Rahab's identity as a prostitute is ironic. Though she engaged in disreputable activity, she hides the spies and is preserved for this act when the Israelites invade Jericho (Josh 6:17). The NT includes her in the genealogy of Jesus (Matt 1:5). She is also praised as a person of great faith (Heb 11:31) and as one who was justified by the act of harboring the Israelite spies (Jas 2:25). Shittim: site of the Israelite camp east of the Jordan River and northeast of the Dead Sea (Num 25:1). Its exact location is uncertain. The name, however, means "Acacias," which may indicate the desert trees at the site of the last wilderness encampment.

Jericho: located about 10 miles north of the Dead Sea and just east of the Jordan River, about 23 miles east of Jerusalem. Jericho is the oldest continuously populated city in the world, established around 9000 BCE. Remains of a massive defensive wall from the earliest period of occupation make Jericho a hallmark of ancient fortifications. Thus the report of Israel's capture and defeat of Jericho is an important symbolic statement about God's power over all nations, as well as a logical movement in the story of the Israelites entering Canaan from the wilderness.

2:4-7 Rahab hides the spies but also makes them dependent on her and vulnerable to the king's lookouts. A rooftop wasn't a good place to hide (2 Sam 11:2; 16:22), and this location creates one of the humorous elements of the story. The spies came to uncover secrets and to be undetected, but instead are buried beneath a pile of flax on Rahab's roof. They are in danger always of being seen by officials of the city. Though the spies represent a powerful approaching army, they are held captive by a woman in her home, and the woman proves to be shrewder than they.

2:6 flax: material from which linen is made. Flax was wet to separate the fibers. The rooftop was a good place for drying the material.

2:8-14 Rahab shows keen awareness of God's power and of the vulnerability of the Canaanites. She isn't presented, however, as a Gentile convert. She identifies Israel's God as your God (2:11). Nevertheless, she shows great insight as she proclaims the power of Israel's God and states her knowledge of what God has done to those who opposed the Israelites. This awareness of God's power and her reaction to that awareness sets her apart from most of the other Canaanites.

2:9-11 Rahab introduces a theme that will appear again in Joshua 5:1; 9:1-2; 10:1-5; and 11:1-5. She describes the Canaanite response to the Israelites' entry into the land first by rehearsing what God did for the Israelites in the exodus entire population of the land has melted down in fear because of you. <sup>10</sup>We have heard how the LORD dried up the water of the Reed Sea<sup>b</sup> in front of you when you left Egypt. We have also heard what you did to Sihon and Og, the two kings of the Amorites on the other side of the Jordan. You utterly wiped them out. <sup>11</sup>We heard this and our hearts turned to water. Because of you, people can no longer work up their courage. This is because the LORD your God is God in heaven above and on earth below. <sup>12</sup>Now, I have been loyal to you. So pledge to me by the LORD that you in turn will deal loyally with my family. Give me a sign of good faith. <sup>13</sup>Spare the lives of my father, mother, brothers, and sisters, along with everything they own. Rescue us from death.”

<sup>14</sup>The men said to her, “We swear by our own lives to secure yours. If you don’t reveal our mission, we will deal loyally and faithfully with you when the LORD gives us the land.”

The spies escape

<sup>15</sup>So she lowered the spies on a rope through the window. Her house was on the outer side of the city wall, and she lived inside the wall. <sup>16</sup>Then she said to them, “Go toward the highlands so that those chasing you don’t run into you. Hide there for three days until those chasing you return. Then you may go on your way.”

<sup>17</sup>The men said to her, “We won’t be responsible for this pledge you made us swear <sup>18</sup>unless, when we come into the land, you tie this red woven cord in the window through which you lowered us. Gather your father, your mother, your brothers, and your whole family into the house with you. <sup>19</sup>Those who go outside the doors of your house into the street will have only themselves to blame for their own deaths. We won’t be responsible. If anyone lays a hand on those who are with you in the house, we will take the blame for their death. <sup>20</sup>But if you reveal our mission, we won’t be responsible for this pledge you made us swear.”

<sup>21</sup>She said, “These things will happen just like you said.” She sent them away and they went off. Then she tied the red cord in the window.

and then by describing the Canaanites’ fear of the Israelites. An important aspect of this theme each time it appears will be how the Canaanites react to their fear of the Israelites. Some will fight against the Israelites and thus act against what God is doing in the land (see notes on Josh 9:1-2; 10:1-7; 11:1-5). But Rahab confesses the power of Israel’s God and seeks to be preserved when the Israelites enter Jericho (Josh 2:12). Thus she sets herself apart from the people in the land. The Gibeonites will also stand in contrast to the other residents of the land who oppose Joshua (Josh 9:1-2).

2:10 Reed Sea: a body of water the Israelites crossed to escape Pharaoh after coming out of Egypt (Exod 14). The Greek translation of the Bible (Septuagint) mistakes the site of the crossing as the Red Sea, the large body of water between Africa and Arabia. The Hebrew, however, reads “Reed Sea” and could denote a marshy area far west of the Red Sea. The exact location therefore is uncertain (see also Josh 4:24). Amorites: This label originally (in documents outside the OT) referred to a kingdom west of the Euphrates River in modern-day Syria. The OT seems to expand this term and uses it as an ethnic label mainly for the people who lived east of the Jordan River in territories occupied by Reuben, Gad, and half the tribe of Manasseh (Josh 1:12-15). Kings Sihon and Og are here identified as Amorites. Sihon and Og: The accounts of Israel’s trek from Sinai to Canaan highlight the encounter with these two Amorite kings (Num 21:21-35; Deut 2:26-3:17). Although the Israelites offered them terms of peace, asking only to pass through their land unharmed, Sihon and Og both attacked them (Deut 2:30; 3:1). King Og is portrayed as the last of the Rephaim, a race of giants (Deut 2:10-11; 3:11) that arose as a result of heavenly beings mating with women (Gen 6:1-5). Thus the two kings are emblems of evil forces opposed to God. Israel’s encounter with Sihon and Og is the primary example of how God protected the Israelites from evil forces that would have prevented them from entering Canaan (see Josh 9:10; 12:1-6).

2:15-21 Having bound the spies by a pledge to preserve her and her family, Rahab now releases the spies with directions for a safe escape. The spies only demand that Rahab keep their mission secret (2:20). This concluding portion of the spy account indicates again that Rahab controlled the situation, and she controlled the spies who came to her.

2:15 she lived inside the wall: The description of Rahab’s living quarters reflects a common building practice in ancient fortified cities. Two parallel walls were often built on the outermost portion of the fortification. The space between the two walls was then partitioned and used for storage or dwellings. Rahab’s house was located thus within the protective outer walls of Jericho. This description explains why the spies were able to escape the city even though the gate of the city was closed (Josh 2:7).

2:18 this red woven cord: The cord doesn’t seem to be a rope, as Joshua 2:15 includes another word to refer to the line Rahab used to lower the spies from the wall. The color suggests a dyeing industry. Colored cloth was produced by dyeing single threads and weaving them together. The flax on Rahab’s roof also suggests cloth-making activity (see note on Josh 2:6). The significance of the color and of the material isn’t made clear by the story. It states only that the woven cord would identify Rahab’s house during the invasion.

Mission accomplished

<sup>22</sup>The spies went out and entered the highlands. They stayed there for three days until those chasing them came back. Those chasing them had searched all along the road but never found them. <sup>23</sup>Then the two men came back down from the highlands. They crossed the Jordan and came to Joshua, Nun's son. They told him everything that had happened to them. <sup>24</sup>They said to Joshua, "The LORD has definitely given the entire land into our power. In addition, all of the land's population has melted down in fear because of us."

Directions for crossing the Jordan

3 Joshua took down the camp early in the morning. He and all the Israelites marched out of Shittim and came to the Jordan, where they stayed overnight before crossing. <sup>2</sup>At the end of three days the officers went through the middle of the camp. <sup>3</sup>They commanded the people, "As soon as you see the LORD your God's chest containing the covenant and the levitical priests carrying it, you are to march out from your places and follow it. <sup>4</sup>But let there be some distance between you and it, about three thousand feet. Don't come near it! You will know the way you should go, even though you've never traveled this way before."

<sup>5</sup>Joshua said to the people, "Make yourselves holy! Tomorrow the LORD will do wonderful things among you." <sup>6</sup>Then Joshua said to the priests, "Lift up the covenant chest. Go along in front of the people." So they lifted up the covenant chest and went in front of the people.

<sup>7</sup>The LORD said to Joshua, "Today I will begin to make you great in the opinion of all Israel. Then they will know that I will be with you in the same way that I was with Moses. <sup>8</sup>"You are to command the priests who carry the covenant chest, 'As soon as you come to the bank of the Jordan, stand still in the Jordan.'"

<sup>9</sup>Joshua said to the Israelites, "Come close. Listen to the words of the LORD your God." <sup>10</sup>Then Joshua said, "This is how you will know that the living God is among you and will completely remove the Canaanites, Hittites, Hivites, Perizzites, Girgashites, Amorites, and

Chest Containing the Covenant The term refers to a sacred object that Moses constructed according to God's specifications after the Israelites left Egypt (Exod 25:10-22; 37:1-9). It was approximately 45 inches long, 27 inches wide, and 27 inches deep (Exod 25:10). The chest was made of acacia wood and overlaid with gold inside and out (Exod 25:11). The cover for the chest had two winged creatures, one on each side (Exod 25:18). The object represented God's nearness and probably signified God's throne (1 Sam 4:4; 2 Sam 6:2). The exact significance of the chest varies depending on the context. The OT contains more than 200 references to this chest, and there are 22 different labels for it. For example, it is sometimes called the "covenant chest" because it contained the tablets God gave to Moses (see Exod 24:12). It is also called the "LORD's chest" and "God's chest." In Joshua it seems to act as a war palladium (see 1 Sam 4), which is an object that goes in front of the Israelites in battle to ensure victory. The chest is a holy object, infused with the power of God, whose presence it represents. Therefore, it is also able to stop the waters of the Jordan River. After the Israelites settled in the land, it was placed in the sanctuary at Shiloh (1 Sam 3-6), and eventually David brought it to Jerusalem (2 Sam 6).

2:22-24 The spies return to Joshua with a report, but what they discovered is limited to the information Rahab gave in her speech to them (Josh 2:9-11), namely that the people of the land melted in fear because they heard how God gave the Israelites victory at the Reed Sea and against Sihon and Og.

2:22 three days: See note on Joshua 1:10.

3:1-13 Crossing the Jordan is described as a reenactment of the crossing of the Reed Sea, with the water standing up in a pile and the Israelites passing through on dry ground (Exod 14:21-22). The crossing of the Jordan River is described in fact as a liturgical event that is meant to be repeated. The presence of God's chest in front of the procession indicates the religious and ceremonial quality of the event. See sidebar, "Chest Containing the Covenant."

3:4 let there be some distance: The chest was a holy object and was therefore dangerous for people to touch. The Israelites were to remain separate from it as from all sacred objects lest the power inherent in the chest destroy them (see 2 Sam 6:7).

3:5 Make yourselves holy: Making oneself holy implies separation from ordinary things, from objects, including food thought to be ritually unclean. The notion of ritual cleanliness may come from the assumption that some things have fallen away from the order and purpose God intended in creation. Thus animals that could be used for food or sacrifices had certain characteristics perhaps thought to reflect God's initial design (see Lev 11:2-23). Other animals may have been conceived as falling out of the intended order (see Lev 11:24-44). Also certain experiences in life, such as childbirth (Lev 12) or certain diseases or bodily conditions (Lev 13), brought a period of ritual uncleanness.

3:10 living God: The expression appears only eight times in the OT. It refers to God's power to deliver Israel and put Israel in possession of Canaan (see the expression in Isa 37:4, 17). The primary sign of the living God among the Jebusites before you. <sup>11</sup>Look! The covenant chest of the ruler of the entire earth is going to cross over in front of you in the Jordan. <sup>12</sup>Now pick twelve men from the tribes of Israel, one per tribe. <sup>13</sup>The soles of the priests' feet, who are carrying the chest of the LORD, ruler of the whole earth, will come to rest in the water of the Jordan. At that moment, the water of the Jordan will be cut off. The water flowing downstream will stand still in a single heap."

Marching across the Jordan

<sup>14</sup>The people marched out from their tents to cross over the Jordan. The priests carrying the covenant chest were in front of the people. <sup>15</sup>When the priests who were carrying the chest came to the Jordan, their feet touched the edge of the water. The Jordan had overflowed its banks completely, the way it does during the entire harvest season. <sup>16</sup>But at that moment the water of the Jordan coming downstream stood still. It rose up as a single heap very far off, just below Adam, which is the city next to Zarethan. The water going down to the desert sea (that is, the Dead Sea) was cut off completely. The people crossed opposite Jericho. <sup>17</sup>So the priests carrying the LORD's covenant chest stood firmly on dry land in the middle of the Jordan. Meanwhile, all Israel crossed over on dry land, until the entire nation finished crossing over the Jordan.

Twelve stones at Gilgal

4 <sup>1</sup>When the entire nation had finished crossing over the Jordan, the LORD said to Joshua, <sup>2</sup>"Pick twelve men from the people, one man per tribe. <sup>3</sup>Command them, 'Pick up twelve stones from right here in the middle of the Jordan, where the feet of the priests had been firmly planted. Bring them across with you and put them down in the camp where you are staying tonight.'"

<sup>4</sup>Joshua called for the twelve men he had appointed from the Israelites, one man per tribe. <sup>5</sup>Joshua said to them, "Cross over into the middle of the Jordan, up to the LORD your God's chest. Each of you, lift up a stone on his shoulder to match the number of the tribes of the Israelites. <sup>6</sup>This will be a symbol among you. In the future your children may ask, 'What do these stones mean to you?' <sup>7</sup>Then you will tell them that the water of the Jordan was cut off before the LORD's covenant chest. When it crossed over the Jordan, the water of the Jordan was cut off. These stones will be an enduring memorial for the Israelites."

<sup>8</sup>The Israelites did exactly what Joshua ordered. They lifted twelve stones from the middle of the Jordan, matching the number of the tribes of the Israelites, exactly as the LORD had said to Joshua. They brought them over to the camp and put them down there. <sup>9</sup>Joshua also set up twelve stones in the middle of the Jordan where the feet of the priests had stood while carrying the covenant chest. They are still there today.

Crossing completed

<sup>10</sup>Meanwhile, the priests carrying the chest were standing in the middle of the Jordan. They stood there until every command that the LORD had ordered Joshua to tell the people

Israelites seems to be the presence of the "covenant chest" (Josh 3:11) that crosses in front of the Israelites and causes the waters of the Jordan River to cut off. The sign of God's power isn't simply the chest as an object but the miraculous signs that accompany it. See sidebar, "Chest Containing the Covenant"

3:11 ruler of the entire earth: The power of God to deliver the Israelites comes from the fact that Israel's God is ruler of the entire earth. In some other passages this expression refers to God's reign over all nations (Ps 97:5; Mic 4:13). The word translated "earth" can also simply mean land, as in the land of Canaan. Certainly part of the claim here is that God rules over Canaan and is able to give it to whomever God chooses.

3:14-17 The miraculous stoppage of the water of the Jordan River is effected by the priests carrying the chest into the water. It represents the power and presence of God that stand ready to deliver the Israelites from trouble.

3:15 overflowed its banks: Assyrian military records include reports of Assyrian kings crossing the flooded Euphrates River en route to major battles. The comment about the Jordan River overflowing thus subtly compares the Israelites to their powerful neighbors to the east. The message is that the Israelites could accomplish as much as the great empires because God fought for them (see notes on Josh 1:4; 15:45-47).

4:1-9 This section breaks the narrative account of crossing the Jordan River with Joshua's instructions for preserving the memory of the event. Joshua instructs the Israelites to remove 12 stones, one for each tribe, from the river and place them as a monument in the camp at Gilgal. Joshua then prescribes a liturgy that will be led by the question of children (What do these stones mean to you? 4:6; see Exod 12:26). Joshua 4:9 presents yet another memorial of stones in the middle of the river. The referent in the case of the second memorial is confusing. Perhaps 4:9 has in mind a walkway created by the stones in the river; or perhaps the stones are placed where the water is low, and the stones can be seen clearly. Otherwise, this second set of stones would have no purpose for future generations.

4:10-19 The crossing of the Jordan River has been described as finished two times already (Josh 3:17; 4:1), but had been carried out. This was exactly what Moses had commanded Joshua. The people crossed over quickly. <sup>11</sup>As soon as all the people had finished crossing, the LORD's chest crossed over. The priests then moved to the front of the people. <sup>12</sup>The people of Reuben, the people of Gad, and half the tribe of Manasseh crossed over, organized for war ahead of the Israelites, exactly as Moses had told them. <sup>13</sup>Approximately forty thousand armed for war crossed over in the LORD's presence to the plains of Jericho, ready for battle. <sup>14</sup>The LORD made Joshua great in the opinion of all Israel on that day. So they revered him in the same way that they had revered Moses during all of his life.

<sup>15</sup>The LORD said to Joshua, <sup>16</sup>"Command the priests carrying the chest containing the testimony to come up out of the Jordan."

<sup>17</sup>So Joshua commanded the priests, "Come up from the Jordan." <sup>18</sup>The priests carrying the LORD's covenant chest came up from the middle of the Jordan, and the soles of their feet touched dry ground. At that moment, the water of the Jordan started flowing again. It ran as before, completely over its banks. <sup>19</sup>The people came up out of the Jordan on the tenth day of the first month. <sup>6</sup>They camped at Gilgal on the east border of Jericho.

Stones at Gilgal

<sup>20</sup>Joshua set up at Gilgal those twelve stones they had taken from the Jordan. <sup>21</sup>He said to the Israelites, "In the future your children will ask their parents, 'What about these stones?' <sup>22</sup>Then you will let your children know: 'Israel crossed over the Jordan here on dry ground.' <sup>23</sup>This was because the LORD your God dried up the water of the Jordan before you until you crossed over. This was exactly what the LORD your God did to the Reed Sea. <sup>4</sup>He dried it up before us until we crossed over. <sup>24</sup>This happened so that all the earth's peoples might know that the LORD's power is great and that you may always revere the LORD your God."

Enemy kings react

5All the Amorite kings on the west side of the Jordan and all the Canaanite kings near the sea heard that the LORD had dried up the water of the Jordan before the Israelites until they had crossed over. Then their hearts melted. They lost all courage because of the Israelites.

Circumcision

<sup>2</sup>At that time the LORD said to Joshua, "Make yourself flint knives. Circumcise the Israelites for a second time." <sup>3</sup>So Joshua made flint knives for himself. He circumcised the Israelites at Foreskins Hill. <sup>4</sup>This is the reason Joshua did so: All the people who went out of Egypt, that is, all the men who were soldiers, had died in the desert on the way after they left Egypt. <sup>5</sup>All the people who went out were circumcised. But none of the people born in the desert on the way after they had left Egypt had been circumcised. <sup>6</sup>This was because the Israelites journeyed forty years in the desert until the whole nation died off. These were the men old in 4:10-19 the narrative description resumes, and the description of the crossing is finally completed. The focus of this conclusion is the power of the chest carried by the priests and the success of Joshua in leading God's people. The priests move in front of the people so the chest leads the way (4:11). When the chest comes out of the Jordan River, the water of the river begins to flow again (4:18). There is also an emphasis on the tribes of Reuben, Gad, and half the tribe of Manasseh crossing over with the other Israelites to capture the land across the Jordan. The point is that the Israelites are one people and that tribes east of the Jordan River stand with the western tribes (see intro; see note on Josh 1:10-18).

4:20-24 This section gives yet another report of a memorial at Gilgal and the plans for a liturgical celebration (see Josh 4:1-8). The celebration Joshua commands is essentially the same as Joshua 4:1-8. This second version, however, broadens the significance of the memorial with references to the Lord rescuing the Israelites at the Reed Sea (4:23). Now Joshua makes explicit that the Jordan River crossing and its reenactment is to recall the exodus. Moreover, while the first account of the ceremony is for the benefit of the Israelites (Josh 4:7), this version aims the ceremony at all the earth's peoples (4:24). It is a testimony to the nations of what God has done.

5:1 Rahab earlier told the Israelite spies that she and the other Canaanites heard that God was fighting for the Israelites and that the Canaanites "melted down in fear" (Josh 2:9). Joshua 5:1 is the first in a series of subsequent notes that the kings in the territory across the Jordan River also heard the Israelites had entered the land and that God was fighting for them (Josh 9:1; 10:1-5; 11:1-5). The focus of this first note is that the hearts of the kings melted, just as the hearts of the Canaanites Rahab described. Subsequent notes emphasize that the kings of the land didn't fear but instead gathered for war against the Israelites and their allies (see Josh 10:1-5; 11:1-5).

5:2-9 Circumcision and Passover were two identifying marks of the Israelites. According to Exodus 12:48, all males participating in the Passover Festival had to be circumcised. Joshua 5:2-9 assumes the generation of those who came out of Egypt with Moses may be separated exactly from the generation of those born in the wilderness. Each member of the exodus generation was circumcised enough to fight who went out from Egypt and who hadn't obeyed the LORD. The LORD had pledged to them never to show them the land that the LORD had pledged to their ancestors to give us. It is a land full of milk and honey. <sup>7</sup>Joshua circumcised their children, the ones the LORD had set in their place. They were uncircumcised because they hadn't been circumcised on the way. <sup>8</sup>After the whole nation had undergone circumcision, they remained in the camp until they got well again. <sup>9</sup>Then the LORD said to Joshua, "Today I have rolled away from you the disgrace of Egypt." So the place was called Gilgal,<sup>a</sup> as it is today.

Passover

<sup>10</sup>The Israelites camped in Gilgal. They celebrated Passover on the evening of the fourteenth day of the month<sup>f</sup> on the plains of Jericho. <sup>11</sup>On the very next day after Passover, they ate food produced in the land: unleavened bread and roasted grain. <sup>12</sup>The manna stopped on that next day, when they ate food produced in the land. There was no longer any manna for the Israelites. So that year they ate the crops of the land of Canaan.

Commander of the Lord's heavenly force

<sup>13</sup>When Joshua was near Jericho, he looked up. He caught sight of a man standing in front of him with his sword drawn. Joshua went up and said to him, "Are you on our side or that of our enemies?"

<sup>14</sup>He said, "Neither! I'm the commander of the LORD's heavenly force. Now I have arrived!"

Then Joshua fell flat on his face and worshipped. Joshua said to him, "What is my master saying to his servant?"

<sup>15</sup>The commander of the LORD's heavenly force said to Joshua, "Take your sandals off your feet because the place where you are standing is holy." So Joshua did this.

Instructions about Jericho

6 Now Jericho was closed up tightly because of the Israelites. No one went out or came in. <sup>2</sup>The LORD said to Joshua, "Look. I have given Jericho and its king into your power, in Egypt, but none of those born in the wilderness were circumcised until now. The circumcision of those born in the wilderness marks the beginning of the generation that will possess the promised land. The importance of this story lies in part in the memory of the event for future generations. Circumcision and Passover became particularly important for the Israelites during their exile in Babylon. This account of the first Passover in Canaan, and the accompanying circumcision, likely provided those exiles with inspiration and identity as they practiced the two rites as testimony to their captors of what they believed.

5:9 disgrace of Egypt: This expression seems to refer to the notion that the Israelites who came out of bondage in Egypt were never freed spiritually because they didn't fully accept God's gift of the land of Canaan. The circumcision of the next generation thus marks the end of that disgrace. The Israelites have now entered the land God promised their ancestors and through circumcision they have affirmed their covenant with God, who rescued them from Egypt. Gilgal: The name comes from a Hebrew word that means "to roll." Thus the statement that the disgrace of Egypt is rolled away uses a play on the name of the place of the circumcision.

5:10-12 The celebration of Passover in the land of Canaan officially marked the end of the wilderness period in Israel's history. The first Passover was during the exodus (Exod 12:43-13:10). During the wilderness-wandering period God sustained the Israelites with manna (Exod 16:14), a flaky substance that appeared on the ground each morning. manna: from a Hebrew word meaning "What is it?" (see note on Exod 16:15). The mysterious substance appeared on the ground every morning the Israelites were in the wilderness. Now that the Israelites are settled in the land, the manna ceases and the wilderness wandering comes to a close.

5:13-15 commander of the Lord's heavenly force: a divine messenger who represents God's attempt to bring justice to the earth. He states that he is neither on the side of Israel nor Israel's enemy. Thus he shows that God's desire for justice transcends Israel's desire for land and freedom. In line with this divine character, the commander of God's army doesn't instruct Joshua to engage in battle or use a particular military strategy. Rather, he tells Joshua to take off his sandals and take on a posture of worship. The command for Joshua to remove his shoes is reminiscent of God's instruction to Moses at the burning bush (Exod 3:5). 6:1-5 Jericho's residents react in fear of the Israelites, as did the other people of the land (Josh 5:1). The note that the city was closed up tightly indicates that the residents expected the Israelites to besiege the town and try to breach its walls or gates. The account, however, emphasizes God's actions and not the Israelites' military strategy. The people of Jericho perhaps know that their battle wasn't against the Israelite army but against God who had given Jericho into Joshua's hands (see Josh 2:9-11). God's command to the Israelites reinforces this point. The action God prescribes is closer to an act of worship than a military endeavor. The march around Jericho emphasizes the number seven, a number that stood for wholeness and perfection. The march around Jericho progresses each day until they reach the complete number of days. Seven priests carrying seven ram's horns led the procession. On the final day they march around the city the same number of times.

along with its mighty warriors. <sup>3</sup>Circle the city with all the soldiers, going around the city one time. Do this for six days. <sup>4</sup>Have seven priests carry seven trumpets made from rams' horns in front of the chest. On the seventh day, circle the city seven times, with the priests blowing the trumpets.

<sup>5</sup>"Have them blow a long blast on the ram's horn. As soon as you hear that trumpet blast, have all the people shout out a loud war cry. Then the city wall will collapse, and the people will rise up, attacking straight ahead."

Israel destroys Jericho

<sup>6</sup>So Joshua, Nun's son, called the priests. He said to them, "Lift up the covenant chest. Let seven priests carry seven trumpets made from rams' horns in front of the LORD's chest." <sup>7</sup>He said to the people, "Go forward. Circle the city. Let the armed soldiers go in front of the LORD's chest." <sup>8</sup>As soon as Joshua had spoken to the people, the seven priests carrying seven ram's horn trumpets moved forward in front of the LORD. They blew the trumpets. The LORD's covenant chest followed. <sup>9</sup>The initial group of soldiers was going in front of the priests who were blowing the trumpets. The rear guard was coming behind the chest, with trumpets blowing continuously. <sup>10</sup>Joshua ordered the people, "Don't shout. Don't let your voice be heard. Don't let a word come out of your mouth until the day I tell you, 'Shout!' Then shout!"

<sup>11</sup>He made the LORD's chest circle the city, going around one time. They went back to the camp and stayed there overnight. <sup>12</sup>Joshua got up early in the morning. The priests lifted up the LORD's chest. <sup>13</sup>The seven priests carrying the seven trumpets made from rams' horns were going in front of the LORD's chest, blowing trumpets continuously. The armed soldiers were going in front of them. The rear guard was coming after the LORD's chest, blowing trumpets continuously. <sup>14</sup>They circled the city one time on the second day. Then they went back to the camp. They did this for six days.

<sup>15</sup>On the seventh day, they got up at dawn. They circled the city in this way seven times. It was only on that day that they circled the city seven times. <sup>16</sup>The seventh time, the priests blew the trumpets. Then Joshua said to the people, "Shout, because the LORD has given you the city! <sup>17</sup>The city and everything in it is to be utterly wiped out as something reserved for the LORD. Only Rahab the prostitute is to stay alive, along with everyone with her in her house. This is because she hid the messengers we sent. <sup>18</sup>But you, keep away from the things set aside for God so that you don't desire<sup>b</sup> and take some of the things reserved. That would turn the camp of Israel into a thing doomed to be utterly wiped out and bring calamity on it. <sup>19</sup>All silver and gold, along with bronze and iron equipment, are holy to the LORD. They must

Ban: Utterly Wiped Out This expression refers to the practice of devoting to God the loot taken in battle in order to acknowledge that God gave the victory. As the intensive language indicates, the practice was similar to making an entirely burned sacrifice so that nothing but smoke remained afterward. Items "reserved for God" aren't to be possessed by soldiers conquering a city (see note on Josh 7:1). People were often included among those things reserved for God.

The practice of the ban is known outside the Bible. In an inscription dating to the 9th century BCE, Moab's King Mesha recalls how he devoted to utter destruction and then utterly wiped out certain Israelites. He reserved for his god Chemosh the spoils of the battle. Similarly, Numbers 21:1-3 reports that the Israelites called on God for help against the Ammonites and promised to reserve the spoils of war for God. Note that in these cases the ban is applied at the initiative of humans on an ad hoc basis. The description of the practice in Joshua (and Deuteronomy) is different in that it comes as part of God's order and is to be applied at all times. The instruction to place people under the ban in some passages, however, seems to refer to religious purity and is not a literal order to kill (see especially Deut 7:2, which follows the order with instructions not to intermarry).

6:4 rams' horns: refers to the shofar, a horn used to call the Israelites to worship (Lev 25:9) and to war (Judg 3:27).

6:6-21 Joshua gives instructions for the march around Jericho, and the people obey. The Lord's chest containing the covenant goes in front of the Israelites, thus symbolizing that the power to conquer Jericho belongs to God. The warning to keep away from the things set aside for God is a further reminder that the Israelites won't possess Jericho because of their military capacity. God will give Jericho into their hands.

6:18 things set aside for God: items placed under the ban, that is, items to be utterly wiped out (see Josh 2:8; see sidebar, "Ban: Utterly Wiped Out"). The Israelites weren't to possess the loot obtained from the victory at Jericho.

go into the LORD's treasury." <sup>20</sup>Then the people shouted. They blew the trumpets. As soon as the people heard the trumpet blast, they shouted a loud war cry. Then the wall collapsed. The people went up against the city, attacking straight ahead. They captured the city. <sup>21</sup>Without mercy, they wiped out everything in the city as something reserved for God—man and woman, young and old, cattle, sheep, and donkeys.

Consequences

<sup>22</sup>Joshua spoke to the two men who had scouted out the land. "Go to the prostitute's house. Bring out the woman from there, along with everyone related to her, exactly as you pledged to her." <sup>23</sup>So the young men who had been spies went and brought Rahab out, along with her father, her mother, her brothers, and everyone related to her. They brought her whole clan out and let them stay outside Israel's camp. <sup>24</sup>They burned the city and everything in it. But they put the silver and gold, along with the bronze and iron equipment, into the treasury of the LORD's house. <sup>25</sup>Joshua let Rahab the prostitute live, her family, and everyone related to her. So her family still lives among Israel today, because she hid the spies whom Joshua had sent to scout out Jericho.

<sup>26</sup>At that time Joshua made this decree: "Anyone who starts to rebuild this city of Jericho will be cursed before the LORD. Laying its foundations will cost them their oldest child. Setting up its gates will cost them their youngest child."

<sup>27</sup>The LORD was with Joshua. News about him spread throughout the land.

Israel defeated at Ai

7The Israelites did a disrespectful thing concerning the items reserved for God. Achan was the son of Carmi, grandson of Zabdi, great-grandson of Zerach. He was from the tribe of Judah. He took some of the things reserved for God. So the LORD was furious with the Israelites.

<sup>2</sup>Joshua sent men from Jericho to Ai, which is near Beth-aven to the east of Bethel. He said to them, "Go up. Scout out the land."

So the men went up and scouted out Ai. <sup>3</sup>They came back to Joshua and said to him, "There is no need for all of the people to go up. Two or three thousand men could go up and strike Ai. Don't make all of the people bother going there. There are just a few of them." <sup>4</sup>So about three thousand men from the people went up in that direction. But they fled from the men of Ai. <sup>5</sup>The men of Ai struck down approximately thirty-six of them. They chased them from outside the gate as far as Shebarim. They struck them down on the slope. Then the hearts of the people melted and turned to water.

Instead, they were to devote these items to God to recognize that they only captured the city because God gave it to them (Josh 6:17).

6:22-27 In the conclusion to the story of the fall of Jericho, Rahab again becomes a prominent character. As the Israelites capture the city of Jericho, Joshua orders the soldiers to preserve Rahab and her family. This order seems to contradict earlier orders to destroy everything in the city. Moreover, it is striking that Rahab and her family members are preserved, though Joshua 6:21 indicates that they wiped out everything in the city. Joshua 2 emphasized Rahab's agreement with the spies as the reason for her salvation, but 6:25 seems to indicate this is an act of compassion simply because she hid the spies.

7:1-5 The narrator here gives background information for the next event in the conquest story. Achan kept some of the spoils from Jericho that were reserved for God (see note on Josh 6:18; see sidebar, "Ban: Utterly Wiped Out" at Josh 6). Achan's family identity is important in the overall message sent by this sinful act. Achan is from the tribe of Judah, the most prominent tribe. As an Israelite with pedigree, Achan thus stands in marked contrast with Rahab the foreigner in the previous account. Achan fails to recognize the obligation of the Israelites to God, whereas Rahab fully acknowledges that God controlled the land and gave Jericho into the hands of the Israelites. By keeping some of the loot from the battle, Achan acted as though the Israelites possessed the city by their own power and ability. The Israelites follow Achan's attitude at Ai. They don't recognize Ai is God's gift to them. As a result the people of Ai defeat the Israelites. Now the Israelites' hearts melt, as earlier the hearts of the Canaanites melted in fear (Josh 2:9-11; 5:1). The story of Achan provides an implicit reminder that the people of God aren't an ethnic group identified by tribe, clan, and family. Rather, they are people who receive God's gift in faith. Thus someone like Achan could be rejected because of his unfaithfulness, while a foreigner like Rahab could be included because of her acknowledgment of God's power.

7:1 items reserved for God: also referred to as "items set aside for God." See note on Joshua 6:18.

7:2 Ai: The Hebrew word means "ruin." The site is probably identified with a particular ruin called et-Tell, which in Arabic also means "the mound" or "the ruin." It is located about two miles southeast of Bethel (see Gen 12:8; 13:3). Ai was established in approximately 3000 BCE, and was at times in its history a prominent city. By the time the Israelites entered Canaan, however, Ai seems little more than a village. That may explain the spies' confidence that they could capture Ai easily (Josh 7:3).

Cause of Israel's defeat

<sup>6</sup>Joshua ripped open his clothes. He, along with the elders of Israel, lay flat on their faces before the LORD's chest until evening. They put dust on their heads. <sup>7</sup>Then Joshua said, "Oh no, LORD God! Why did you ever bring this people across the Jordan? Was it to hand us over to the power of the Amorites, to destroy us? If only we had been prepared to live on the other side of the Jordan! <sup>8</sup>Please forgive me, LORD. What can I say now that Israel has retreated before its enemies? <sup>9</sup>The Canaanites and the whole population of the land will hear of it. They will surround us and make our name disappear from the earth. What will you do about your great name then?"

<sup>10</sup>The LORD said to Joshua, "Get up! Why do you lie flat on your face like this? <sup>11</sup>Israel has sinned. They have violated my covenant, which I commanded them to keep. They have taken some of the things reserved for me and put them with their own things. They have stolen and kept it a secret. <sup>12</sup>The Israelites can't stand up to their enemies. They retreat before their enemies because they themselves have become a doomed thing reserved for me. I will no longer be with you unless you destroy the things reserved for me that are present among you. <sup>13</sup>Go and make the people holy. Say, 'Get ready for tomorrow by making yourselves holy. This is what the LORD, the God of Israel, says: "Israel! Things reserved for me are present among you. You won't be able to stand up to your enemies until you remove from your presence the things reserved for me."' <sup>14</sup>In the morning, come forward tribe by tribe. Whichever tribe the LORD selects must come forward clan by clan. Whichever clan the LORD selects must come forward family by family. Whichever family the LORD selects will come forward by individual soldiers. <sup>15</sup>The person selected, who has the things reserved for God, must be put to death by burning. Burn everything that belongs to him too. This is because he has violated the LORD's covenant and has committed an outrage in Israel."

Achan discovered and punished

<sup>16</sup>Joshua got up early in the morning. He made Israel come forward tribe by tribe. The tribe of Judah was selected. <sup>17</sup>He made the clans of Judah come forward. He selected the clan of Zerah. He made the clan of Zerah come forward as individual soldiers. Zabdi was selected. <sup>18</sup>He made each soldier of his family come forward. Achan was selected. He was a son

7:6-15 Joshua assumes the Israelites' defeat is the result of God breaking a covenant promise. He appeals to God on that basis, presenting the argument that God's reputation among the Canaanites will be damaged. Moses appealed to God the same way (Exod 32:11-14).

7:6 ripped open his clothes... lay flat on their faces... put dust on their heads: indicates a ritual of turning away from sin. See 1 Kings 21:27-29. Lying on the ground and putting dust on the head indicates awareness of human frailty (Pss 103:14; 104:29). Thus Joshua's prayer begins with the assumption that the Israelites, who are limited and weak, are victims of God's random behaviors and must beg God to be fair. As Joshua learns, however, the Israelites were defeated as the direct result of their own unfaithfulness.

7:7 Amorites: general term for the people east of the Jordan River. See note on Joshua 2:10.

7:9 your great name: "name" refers to God's reputation, or the view of God's character among the nations. Joshua's appeal to God seems to assume God has been unfaithful to God's promises. So he prays not for justice or fairness but for God to consider what others will say about God. our name: God promised Abraham a great name through his many descendants (Gen 12:2). Now the promise to Abraham seems in jeopardy.

7:11-12 They have stolen: Achan took items reserved only for God. doomed thing: Because the Israelites kept some of "the items reserved for God" (see Josh 7:1), the Israelites themselves were doomed to destruction. They became like the items to be destroyed (see Deut 7:26).

7:13 make... holy: Holiness is an attribute of God and all places and people closely associated with God. Holiness is the opposite of being profane (which applies to ordinary things), and is sometimes associated with ritual purity, the removal of oneself from foods, objects, and experiences thought to be unworthy of God's presence. In Joshua 7 the Israelites are to make themselves holy by removing the forbidden objects, the doomed things, from their camp. See note on Joshua 3:5.

7:14 The structure and values of ancient Israelite society are revealed in the labels tribe, clan, and family. Individuals weren't recognized apart from their relatives. The family consisted of a patriarch, his wife or wives, their sons, and their sons' wives and children (the patriarch's daughters would have become members of their husbands' households). Thus family translates a Hebrew idiom, "the father's house." This was the most intimate and important association. Within the family, property was passed from generation to generation, thus providing financial stability. The clan was the extended family in which blood relations could still be established. The tribe was a large group of families, somewhat loosely connected, in which blood relations were assumed but weren't altogether certain.

7:15 Burn everything: The doomed things were like sacrifices and were burned as an offering to God. This was the original intention for the objects reserved for the Lord (see 1 Sam 15:15).

7:16-26 Joshua searches for the Israelite who kept plunder from Jericho by going through the series of social networks related to family relations that become more narrow as the search goes on (see Josh 7:14). Judah: Judah was the fourth son of Jacob and Leah and therefore wouldn't normally be the most important (Gen 29:31-35).

of Carmi, grandson of Zabdi, great-grandson of Zerah, and of the tribe of Judah. <sup>19</sup>Joshua said to Achan, "My son, give glory to the LORD the God of Israel. Tell me what you have done. Don't hide anything from me."

<sup>20</sup>Achan answered Joshua, "It's true. I've sinned against the LORD, the God of Israel. This is what I have done: <sup>21</sup>Among the booty I saw a single beautiful robe in the Babylonian style, two hundred shekels of silver, and a single gold bar weighing fifty shekels. I desired them and took them. Now they are hidden in the ground inside my tent, with the silver on the bottom."

<sup>22</sup>Then Joshua sent messengers. They ran to the tent. There it was, hidden in his tent, with the silver on the bottom. <sup>23</sup>They took the things from inside the tent. They brought them to Joshua and to all the Israelites and emptied them out before the LORD. <sup>24</sup>Then Joshua seized Achan, Zerah's son, along with the silver, the robe, the gold bar, his sons and daughters, his cattle, donkeys, flocks, tent, and everything that belonged to him. All Israel joined Joshua. They brought them up to Achor Valley. <sup>25</sup>Joshua said, "You have brought disaster to us! May the LORD bring disaster to you today!" Then all Israel stoned him. They burned them with fire and stoned them with stones. <sup>26</sup>They raised over him a great pile of stones that is still there today. Then the LORD turned away from his fury. So he named that place Achor Valley.<sup>b</sup> It is still called that today.

Plan to capture Ai

8 The LORD said to Joshua, "Don't be afraid or terrified. Take the entire army with you. Start to go up to Ai. Look! I have given the king of Ai, his people, his city, and his land into your power. <sup>2</sup>Do to Ai and its king what you did to Jericho and its king. But you may take its booty and cattle as plunder. Set your ambush behind the city."

<sup>3</sup>So Joshua and the whole army got ready to go up to Ai. Joshua chose thirty thousand brave soldiers. He sent them out by night. <sup>4</sup>He commanded them, "Look. You are to ambush the city from behind. Don't move too far away from the city. Be ready, all of you. <sup>5</sup>I will approach the city with all the people. When they come out against us the same way as before, we will flee from them. <sup>6</sup>They will come out after us until we have drawn them away from the city. They will think, They are fleeing from us as before. So we will flee from them. <sup>7</sup>But you will rise up from the ambush and take over the city. The LORD your God will give it into your power. <sup>8</sup>As soon as you seize the city, set it on fire. Act according to the LORD's word. Indeed, I have given you an order!"

<sup>9</sup>Joshua sent them off, and they went to set the ambush. They stayed between Bethel and Ai, to the west of Ai. Joshua spent that night among the people. <sup>10</sup>Joshua got up early in the morning and mustered the people. Then he and the elders of Israel went up in front of the people to Ai. <sup>11</sup>The entire army that was with him went up. They moved in close, in front of the city. Then they camped north of Ai, with the valley between them and Ai. <sup>12</sup>He took about five thousand men and positioned them as an ambush between Bethel and Ai to the west of the city. <sup>13</sup>The people positioned the main camp on the north side of the city and its rear guard on its west side. That night, Joshua went into the middle of the valley.

The tribe of Judah, however, became the central tribe during the Israelite monarchy since it was the tribe of King David.

7:21 shekels: A shekel was a unit of weight that averaged about two-fifths of an ounce. Later the shekel became a designation of currency (see Exod 30:13).

7:24 All Israel: An important theme in Joshua is the unity of the Israelite tribes. Thus all the tribes gather for key events, as here to determine who is guilty of disobeying God and causing the Israelites to be defeated. See note on Joshua 1:10-18.

8:1-13 The attack on Ai involves a recognizable military strategy, unlike the attack on Jericho. At Ai Joshua feigned retreat and set an ambush for the soldiers of Ai who pursued them. Nevertheless, the story insists that God gave Ai into the power of the Israelites (8:7) just as God delivered Jericho to them.

8:2 take its booty and cattle as plunder: Although the city's residents were dedicated to the Lord, its livestock and other material wealth could be taken as plunder from war. The rules concerning the possession of material like this seem to vary from town to town (cf. Josh 6:17).

8:9 Bethel: one of Israel's most sacred places, location of Jacob's dream of a stairway to heaven (Gen 28:10-22), and later, an important sanctuary (1 Kgs 12:29). The narrative at points suggests the Israelites also attacked and captured Bethel, though this isn't stated explicitly (Josh 8:17). Bethel's king is listed in Joshua 12:9 as one of those the Israelites defeated. Bethel and Ai are closely linked, and Ai is nearly always described in relation to Bethel (see Josh 12:9).

Israel's successful strategy

<sup>14</sup>As soon as the king of Ai saw this, he and all his troops, the men of the city, hurried out early in the morning to meet Israel in battle. They moved out to the battleground on the slopes down toward the Jordan.<sup>1</sup> He didn't know that there was an ambush set against him behind the city. <sup>15</sup>Then Joshua and all Israel let themselves be beaten before them. They fled in the direction of the desert. <sup>16</sup>Next, all the troops who were still in the city were called out to chase them. They chased after Joshua and so let themselves be drawn away from the city. <sup>17</sup>No one who hadn't gone out after Israel was left in either Ai or Bethel. They left the city wide open and chased after Israel.

<sup>18</sup>The LORD said to Joshua, "Point the dagger in your hand toward Ai, because I will give it into your power." So Joshua pointed the dagger in his hand toward the city. <sup>19</sup>The ambush quickly rose from its place. As soon as he reached out his hand, it charged. They entered the city and captured it. They set the city on fire at once. <sup>20</sup>Then the men of Ai turned around. They caught sight of the smoke of the city rising toward the sky. They had no chance to flee one way or the other. The troops who were fleeing toward the desert turned against the pursuit. <sup>21</sup>Joshua and all Israel saw that the ambush had captured the city and that the smoke of the city was rising. So they turned and struck down the men of Ai. <sup>22</sup>When other Israelites came out of the city to confront them, the men of Ai were caught in the middle. Some Israelites were on one side of them and some on the other. The Israelites struck them down until there was no one left to escape. <sup>23</sup>But they seized the king of Ai alive and brought him to Joshua.

<sup>24</sup>Israel finished killing the entire population of Ai that had chased them out into the open wasteland. All of them were finished off without mercy. Then all Israel went back to Ai and struck it down without mercy. <sup>25</sup>Twelve thousand men and women died that day, all the people of Ai. <sup>26</sup>Joshua didn't pull back the hand that was stretched out holding a dagger until he had wiped out the whole population of Ai as something reserved for God. <sup>27</sup>However, Israel did take the cattle and other booty of that city as plunder for themselves, in agreement with the command that the LORD had given Joshua. <sup>28</sup>Then Joshua burned Ai. He made it a permanently deserted mound. That is still the case today. <sup>29</sup>He hanged the king of Ai on a tree until evening. At sundown, Joshua gave an order, and they took his body down from the tree. They threw it down at the opening of the city gate. Then they raised over it a great pile of stones that is still there today.

Joshua reads the Instruction

<sup>30</sup>Then Joshua built an altar on Mount Ebal to the LORD, the God of Israel. <sup>31</sup>This was exactly what Moses the LORD's servant had commanded the Israelites. It is what is written in the Instruction scroll from Moses: "an altar of crude stones against which no iron tool has

8:14-29 The ruse at Ai is successful, and Joshua captures the city. The order to take down the body of the king of Ai at sundown shows respect for those defeated in war. It follows the general belief that anyone who hangs on a tree after sundown is under God's curse. The act of leaving a body hanging after sundown also defiles the land (for both ideas, see Deut 21:22-23).

8:18 Point the dagger: The word for the object Joshua points isn't one of the common terms for sword or knife. It may refer to an implement known in ancient Near Eastern artwork as a symbol of royal authority. The gesture of pointing the dagger thus may have been equal to a proclamation of God's power over the city of Ai. Compare with Moses' stretching out his staff over the sea in Exodus 14:16 and lifting his hands in prayer in Exodus 17:11. Such a gesture could also be part of a proclamation and pronouncement of judgment (see Josh 8:26).

8:17 The reference to Bethel seems to imply that Bethel was also captured. This perhaps explains the reference in Joshua 12:16 to Joshua defeating Bethel's king (see note on Josh 12:7-24).

8:28 deserted mound: The name of the place, Ai, means "ruin" or "mound" (see Josh 7:2).

8:29 still there today: that is, from the perspective of the storyteller. The expression appears frequently in the OT in explanations of names and monuments (see Ezek 20:29).

8:30-35 Joshua fulfills Moses' instructions for a covenant renewal ceremony after entering the land (Deut 11:29-30; 27). The account emphasizes Joshua's faithfulness to Moses' commands (8:33, 35). It also highlights the authority of the Instruction scroll Moses left the Israelites (see Josh 1:8; see sidebar, "Instruction Scroll" at Josh 1). Joshua wrote a copy of the scroll on the stones of the altar (8:32), and he read the contents of the Instruction scroll as part of the ceremony. The ceremony took place in the space between two mountains. Mount Ebal and Mount Gerizim stood on opposite sides of Shechem, one of the most important sites for Israel's ancestors (Gen 12:6; 34). Consistent with Israelite assemblies in Deuteronomy, the group here includes women, children, and immigrants (see 8:33, 35). Thus all Israel came together to renew the covenant.

swung.<sup>31</sup> On it they offered entirely burned offerings to the LORD and sacrificed well-being offerings.<sup>32</sup> There, in the presence of the Israelites, Joshua wrote on the stones a copy of the Instruction from Moses, which Moses had written earlier.<sup>33</sup> All Israel—with its elders, officers, and judges—were standing on either side of the chest. They were facing the levitical priests who carry the LORD's chest containing the covenant. They included both immigrants and full citizens. Half stood facing Mount Gerizim and half stood facing Mount Ebal. This was exactly what Moses the LORD's servant had initially commanded for the blessing of the Israelite people.<sup>34</sup> Afterward, Joshua read aloud all the words of the Instruction, both blessing and curse, in agreement with everything written in the Instruction scroll.<sup>35</sup> There wasn't a single word of all that Moses had commanded that Joshua failed to read aloud in the presence of the entire assembly of Israel. This assembly included the women and small children, along with the immigrants who lived among them.

The Gibeonites' trick

9 All the kings on the west side of the Jordan heard about this, including those in the highlands, the lowlands, and along the entire coast of the Mediterranean Sea toward Lebanon. They were Hittites and Amorites, Canaanites, Perizzites, Hivites, and Jebusites.<sup>2</sup> They formed an alliance to fight Joshua and Israel.<sup>3</sup> In contrast, when the population of Gibeon heard what Joshua had done to Jericho and Ai,<sup>4</sup> they acted cleverly. They set out pretending to be messengers.<sup>5</sup> They took worn-out sacks for their donkeys and worn-out wineskins that were split and mended.<sup>6</sup> They had worn-out, patched sandals on their feet and were wearing worn-out clothes. All the bread in their supplies was dry and crumbly.

<sup>6</sup> They went to Joshua at the camp at Gilgal. They said to him and to Israel, "We have come from a distant country. So now, make a treaty with us."

<sup>7</sup> Israel said to the Hivites, "Perhaps you live among us. How then could we make a treaty with you?"

<sup>8</sup> Then they said to Joshua, "We are your servants."

Joshua said to them, "Who are you? Where have you come from?"

8:34 blessing and curse: words thought to bring about in their speaking the performance of that speech. Here the reference is to the specific blessings and curses in Deuteronomy 27–28, which Moses gave the Israelites as part of a ceremony to be performed after entering the land. The curses are promises of disaster and lack of fruitfulness for those who disobey the covenant, while the blessings proclaim the opposite for those who are obedient.

8:35 immigrants: The term refers to people from other tribes living among the Israelites. Without extensive family connections such persons were economically vulnerable. Thus Moses' instructions include special care for them, along with other vulnerable members of society, like widows and orphans (see Deut 24:14).

9:1-15 The Gibeonites are like Rahab (Josh 2) in that they recognize the power of Israel's God (9:10) and enter a covenant with the Israelites by outsmarting them. They seem to know the instruction in Deuteronomy 20:10-18, particularly what seems to be more openness to establish covenants with people far away. Thus, the Gibeonites pretend to be from a distant land (9:4-5, 11-13). See note on Joshua 9:7.

9:1-2 Like Joshua 5:1, these two verses report that the kings in the land of Canaan heard of the Israelites' entry into the land and of the victories God gave them. Instead of melting in fear, however, the kings in 9:1-2 gather for war against the Israelites. The implication is that they could have made peace with the Israelites and submitted to the power of Israel's God, but they chose to engage in battle instead (see Josh 11:19). The story that follows thus sets the Gibeonites apart from these other residents of Canaan.

9:1 heard about this: This expression likely refers to the Israelite victories at Jericho and Ai, not to the covenant ceremony that immediately precedes chapter 9.

9:3 population: The actions of the people of Gibeon stand in contrast with those of the surrounding towns, not only in their stance toward the Israelites but also in the identity of those making decisions. In Joshua 9:1-2 it is the kings who decide to go to war. In 9:3, however, the population of Gibeon hears what Joshua and the Israelites did to Jericho and Ai and seeks to establish a covenant with the Israelites. This difference is crucial for understanding the accounts about Israel taking portions of the land and conquering people in the land. The kings of Canaan are presented as oppressive masters who maintain control by brute force. They rely on military might to acquire and keep what they possess. The Israelites represent the rule of God. They don't depend on military provisions. In fact, the book of Joshua makes clear they don't have chariots and war horses, the primary instruments of royal power. One message of Joshua 1-12 seems to be that those who follow the Canaanite kings don't trust in God and don't recognize God's power. The Gibeonites, however, see clearly that they must align with the God of the Israelites. Like Rahab, they become part of the Israelite community, albeit of secondary status. See notes on Joshua 10:2; 11:4.

9:7 Hivites: the ethnic designation of the residents of Gibeon. The Hivites originated in the region of modern-day Turkey, so the Gibeonites' claim of being from a distant land is technically correct. They came from that distant land, however, several hundred years earlier!

<sup>9</sup>They said to him, "Your servants have come from a very distant country because of the reputation of the LORD your God. We have heard a report about him and everything he did in Egypt. <sup>10</sup>We heard about everything he did to the two kings of the Amorites on the east side of the Jordan, Heshbon's King Sihon and Bashan's King Og, who was in Ashtaroth. <sup>11</sup>Our elders and all the population of our land said to us, "Take along supplies for the journey. Go meet them and say to them, "We are your servants. So now make a treaty with us." <sup>12</sup>This is our bread. On the day we left to come to you we took it warm from our houses as supplies. But now here it is, dried up and crumbly. <sup>13</sup>These wineskins were new when we filled them. But here they are, split open. These clothes and sandals of ours are worn out from the very long journey." <sup>14</sup>The Israelites<sup>1</sup> took some of their supplies, but they didn't ask for any decision from the LORD. <sup>15</sup>Joshua made peace with them. He made a treaty with them to protect their lives. The leaders of the community made a solemn pledge to them.

Israel discovers the trick

<sup>16</sup>Three days after the Israelites made a treaty with the Gibeonites, the Israelites heard that they were actually their neighbors and were living among them. <sup>17</sup>So on the third day the Israelites marched out and came to their cities: Gibeon, Chephirah, Beeroth, and Kirath-jearim. <sup>18</sup>But the Israelites didn't strike at them. This was because the leaders of the community had made a solemn pledge to them by the LORD, the God of Israel. The entire community grumbled against the leaders. <sup>19</sup>Then all the leaders said to the whole community, "We have made a solemn pledge to them by the LORD, the God of Israel. So we can't touch them now. <sup>20</sup>This is what we'll do with them. We'll let them live so that wrath won't come down on us because of the solemn pledge that we made to them." <sup>21</sup>The leaders went on to say to them, "Let them live." So they became woodcutters and water haulers for the whole community, exactly as the leaders had intended for them.

<sup>22</sup>Joshua called for the Gibeonites and spoke to them: "Why have you deceived us by saying, 'We live very far away from you,' when actually you live among us? <sup>23</sup>So now you are cursed. Some of you will always serve as woodcutters and water haulers for my God's house."

<sup>24</sup>They answered Joshua, "Your servants had been told that the LORD your God had commanded his servant Moses to give you the entire land and to wipe out all its population on your account. So we feared for our very lives because of you and did this thing. <sup>25</sup>Now, here we are in your power. Do to us whatever seems good and proper to you." <sup>26</sup>So Joshua treated them in this way. He spared them from the power of the Israelites, and they didn't kill them. <sup>27</sup>That day Joshua assigned them as woodcutters and water haulers for the community and for the LORD's altar, located wherever God<sup>m</sup> would choose. That is still the case today.

Gibeonites under attack

10 Jerusalem's King Adoni-zedek heard that Joshua had captured Ai and had wiped it out as something reserved for God. Joshua did the same thing to Ai and its king that he had done to Jericho and its king. He also heard that the population of Gibeon had

9:10 The Gibeonites give essentially the same testimony as Rahab (Josh 2:9-11). They state that they heard how God defeated the Amorite kings, Sihon and Og. Therefore, they seek to make peace with the Israelites. This seeking of peace in view of the power of Israel's God sets the Gibeonites apart from the other residents of the land.

9:16-27 When the Israelites discover that the Gibeonites tricked their representatives, they are furious and curse the Gibeonites. The nature of the curse, however, doesn't seem severe. The Gibeonites are sentenced to do manual labor for the temple in the future. Since some OT writers forbid foreigners from entering the temple, much less serving there, the role assigned the Gibeonites could be understood as a sign of favor and acceptance instead of punishment (cf. Ezek 44:7-9).

9:27 woodcutters and water haulers: The description of the Gibeonites sounds as if they are relegated to menial labor and occupy secondary status in the community. According to Deuteronomy 29:11, however, "woodcutters and water haulers" are to be an integral part of the covenant community. Moreover, their role as servants in the temple indicates a privilege foreigners didn't typically have (see note on Josh 9:16-27), wherever God would choose. The idea that God would choose a single place for worship is firmly rooted in Deuteronomy's concern for religious purity. Deuteronomy speaks of the place as one God would choose for God's name (Deut 12:5). Originally the place was Shiloh (Jer 7:12-14). Later Shiloh was replaced by Jerusalem (2 Sam 6:17). That such a place would be the only location of an approved altar anticipates the controversy over the altar the tribes east of the Jordan River build for themselves (see notes on Josh 22).

10:1-7 As in Joshua 5:1 and Joshua 9:1-2, the kings of the land respond in fear when they hear of the Israelites' exploits in Canaan. Specifically, they heard how the Israelites won a great victory over Ai and how the Israelites made a covenant with the Gibeonites. In response, the king of Jerusalem led an attack on the Gibeonites. This report thus made peace with Israel and were living among them. <sup>2</sup>Adoni-zedek and his people<sup>a</sup> were very afraid, because Gibeon was a large city, like one of the royal cities. It was larger than Ai. All its men were soldiers. <sup>3</sup>So Jerusalem's King Adoni-zedek sent word to Hebron's King Hoham, Jarmuth's King Piram, Lachish's King Japhia, and Eglon's King Debir: <sup>4</sup>"Come up and help me. We will strike at Gibeon, because it has made peace with Joshua and with the Israelites." <sup>5</sup>Then the five kings of the Amorites gathered. These were the kings of Jerusalem, Hebron, Jarmuth, Lachish, and Eglon. They went up with all their armies, camped against Gibeon, and attacked it. <sup>6</sup>The people of Gibeon sent word to Joshua in the camp at Gilgal: "Don't desert your servants! Come to us quickly. Rescue us! Help us! All the Amorite kings from the highlands have assembled together against us." <sup>7</sup>So Joshua went up from Gilgal with the entire army and all the bravest soldiers.

The LORD fights for Israel

<sup>8</sup>Then the LORD said to Joshua, "Don't be afraid of them. I have given them into your power. Not a single one of them can stand up against you." <sup>9</sup>Joshua quickly attacked them, having come up overnight from Gilgal. <sup>10</sup>Then the LORD threw them into a panic before Israel. Joshua struck a mighty blow against them at Gibeon. He chased them on the way up to Beth-horon and struck them down as far as Azekah and Makkedah. <sup>11</sup>When they were fleeing from Israel and were on the slope of Beth-horon, the LORD threw down large stones from the sky all the way to Azekah. So they died. More died from the hailstones than the Israelites killed with the sword.

<sup>12</sup>On the day the LORD gave the Amorites into the power of Israel, Joshua spoke to the LORD in the presence of the Israelites:

"Sun, stand still at Gibeon!
and Moon, at the Aijalon Valley!"

<sup>13</sup>The sun stood still and the moon stood motionless until a nation took revenge on its enemies.

Isn't this written in the Jashar scroll? So the sun stood motionless in the middle of the sky. For a whole day, it was in no hurry to go down. <sup>14</sup>There hasn't been a day like it before or since, when the LORD responded to a human voice. The LORD fought for Israel. <sup>15</sup>Then Joshua along with all Israel came back to the camp at Gilgal.

Israel executes five kings

<sup>16</sup>Then those five kings fled and hid in the cave at Makkedah. <sup>17</sup>It was reported to Joshua, "The five kings have been found, hidden in the cave at Makkedah."

<sup>18</sup>Joshua said, "Roll large stones over the mouth of the cave. Station some men by it to guard them, <sup>19</sup>but don't you stay there. Chase after your enemies and attack them from the rear. Don't let them enter their cities, because the LORD your God has given them into your portrays the kings of Canaan as aggressive and violent. The Israelite action against these kings is presented as a defensive action. This is especially true since the Israelites are obligated by their covenant to defend the Gibeonites against the coalition of kings.

10:1 Jerusalem: a city founded by the Jebusites. David conquers Jerusalem and makes it his capital and the center of his kingdom (2 Sam 5:6-10). Here the city is the center of opposition to Joshua and the Israelites in the southern part of Canaan. Adoni-zedek: king of Jerusalem. According to Judges 1:5-7 he was a cruel king who tortured and humiliated his defeated enemies. This picture of Adoni-zedek is consistent with the idea that the kings of Canaan were oppressive rulers who didn't acknowledge the prerogative of God to govern the land.

10:2 royal cities: Joshua's author seems to assume royal power, such as that expressed by the Canaanite kings, is oppressive. It was supported by massive military resources, which were to be rejected by Israelite kings in favor of reliance on God (Deut 17:14-20).

10:8-15 The theme of the sun standing still to prolong the day of battle appears also in the Iliad (2.412). The point of the biblical story is that God fought for Israel by using elements of the nonhuman world at God's disposal.

10:13 Jashar scroll: an ancient source mentioned also in 2 Samuel 1:18. The origin and contents of the scroll are unknown, but apparently it contained at least these two poems and perhaps others. The Jashar scroll was available to the author of Joshua, and he drew information from it in writing his account. Other sources are sometimes mentioned in the OT, such as the scroll about the Lord's wars (Num 21:14) and official records of the kings of Judah (1 Kgs 22:45).

10:16-27 Joshua executes the five southern kings who attacked the Israelites. The note that Not a single person threatened the Israelites (10:21) describes the complete victory that results from God giving the people of Ai into Israel's power. After killing the five kings, Joshua ordered that they be taken down at sundown (see note on Josh 8:14-29) and be given proper burial. This is consistent with power.”<sup>20</sup> Joshua and the Israelites finished dealing them a stunning blow until they were finished off. Some survivors among them escaped into the fortified cities.<sup>21</sup> Then the whole people came back safely to Joshua in the camp at Makkedah. Not a single person threatened the Israelites.

<sup>22</sup> Joshua said, “Open up the mouth of the cave. Bring those five kings out of the cave to me.”<sup>23</sup> They did so. They brought the five kings out of the cave to him: the kings of Jerusalem, Hebron, Jarmuth, Lachish, and Eglon.<sup>24</sup> When they brought these kings out to Joshua, Joshua called for every Israelite. He said to the military commanders who had gone out with him, “Come forward. Put your feet on the necks of these kings.” So they went forward and put their feet on their necks.<sup>25</sup> Then Joshua said to them, “Don’t be afraid or terrified. Be brave and strong, because this is how the LORD will deal with all the enemies you fight.”<sup>26</sup> Next, Joshua struck them down. He put them to death and then hanged them on five trees. They were hanging on the trees until evening.<sup>27</sup> At sundown, Joshua gave an order, and they took them down from the trees. They threw them into the cave where they had hidden themselves, and they set large stones over the mouth of the cave. The stones are still there to this very day.

Victories in the south

<sup>28</sup> On that day, Joshua captured Makkedah. With a sword, he struck it and its king without mercy. He wiped them out, treating everyone in the city as something reserved for God. He left no survivors. He did to the king of Makkedah exactly as he had done to the king of Jericho.

<sup>29</sup> Then Joshua along with all Israel moved on from Makkedah to Libnah. They attacked Libnah.<sup>30</sup> The LORD also gave it and its king into the power of Israel. With a sword, he struck it and everyone in it without mercy. He left no survivors in it. He did to its king exactly as he had done to the king of Jericho.

<sup>31</sup> Joshua along with all Israel moved on from Libnah to Lachish. They camped near it and attacked it.<sup>32</sup> The LORD gave Lachish into the power of Israel. Joshua captured it on the second day. With a sword, he struck it and everyone in it without mercy, just exactly as he had done to Libnah.<sup>33</sup> Then Gezer’s King Horam came up to help Lachish. But Joshua struck him and his people down, until no survivors were left.

<sup>34</sup> Joshua along with all Israel moved on from Lachish to Eglon. They camped against it and attacked it.<sup>35</sup> They captured it on the same day and struck it down without mercy. On that day, he wiped out everyone in it as something reserved for God, just exactly as he had done to Lachish.

<sup>36</sup> Joshua along with all Israel went up from Eglon to Hebron and attacked it.<sup>37</sup> They captured it and struck it down without mercy, along with its king, all its towns, and everyone in it. He left no survivors, just exactly as he had done to Eglon. He wiped out the city and everyone in it as something reserved for God.

<sup>38</sup> Joshua along with all Israel turned back to Debir and attacked it.<sup>39</sup> He captured it along with its king and all its cities. They struck them down without mercy and wiped out everyone in it as something reserved for God. He left no survivors. Exactly as he had done to Hebron, so he did to Debir and its king—exactly as he had done to Libnah and its king.

<sup>40</sup> So Joshua struck at the whole land: the highlands, the arid southern plains, the lowlands, the slopes, and all their kings. He left no survivors. He wiped out everything that breathed as something reserved for God, exactly as the LORD, the God of Israel, had commanded.<sup>41</sup> Joshua struck them down from Kadesh-barnea to Gaza, and the whole land of Goshen as far as Gibeon.<sup>42</sup> Joshua captured all these kings and their land all at the same time. This was because the LORD, the God of Israel, fought for Israel.<sup>43</sup> Then Joshua along with all Israel came back to the camp at Gilgal.

Moses’ instructions concerning treatment of enemies (Deut 20–21).

10:28–42 Joshua captures southernmost territories in Canaan. Lachish was a prominent city well known as an economic and cultural center of the region. It was besieged and destroyed by Assyria’s King Sennacherib (2 Kgs 18:17), which is evidence of its prominence. Lachish is here paired with Libnah, a nearby city that is less well known.

Although the exact site of Libnah isn’t known, it may be identified with Tel-Zayit where excavations have uncovered the earliest known Hebrew alphabet. The discovery of scribal activity at the site may indicate that Libnah was also quite prominent in the region and deserved to be mentioned here. Indeed, Libnah may have been closely related to Lachish in strategic importance, as Joshua 10:28–42 indicates.

Victories in the north

11 King Jabin of Hazor heard about this. So he sent word to Madon's King Jobab, to the king of Shimron, and to the king of Achshaph. <sup>2</sup>He sent word to the kings from the north part of the highlands, in the desert plain south of Chinneroth, in the lowlands, and in Naphoth-dor on the west. <sup>3</sup>He sent word to the Canaanites from east and west, to the Amorites, Hittites, Perizzites, and Jebusites in the highlands, and to the Hivites at the foot of Hermon in the land of Mizpah. <sup>4</sup>They went out with all their battalions as a great army. They were as numerous as the grains of sand on the seashore. There were very many horses and chariots. <sup>5</sup>All these kings came together. They came and camped together at the waters of Merom to fight against Israel.

<sup>6</sup>The LORD said to Joshua, "Don't be afraid of them. By this time tomorrow, I will make them all dead bodies in Israel's presence. Cripple their horses! Burn their chariots!"

<sup>7</sup>Then Joshua along with the entire army launched a surprise attack against them at the waters of Merom. <sup>8</sup>The LORD gave them into Israel's power. They struck them down. They chased them as far as Great Sidon and Misrephoth-maim, then to the east as far as the Mizpeh Valley. They struck them down until no survivors were left. <sup>9</sup>Joshua dealt with them exactly as the LORD had told him. He crippled their horses and burned their chariots.

<sup>10</sup>Joshua turned back at that time. He captured Hazor and struck down its king with the sword. Hazor had been the head of all those kingdoms in the past. <sup>11</sup>They struck down everyone there without mercy, wiping them out as something reserved for God. Nothing that breathed was left. Hazor itself he burned. <sup>12</sup>Joshua captured all these kings and their cities. He struck them down without mercy. He wiped them out as something reserved for God. This was exactly as Moses the LORD's servant had commanded. <sup>13</sup>But Israel didn't burn any of the cities that still are standing on their mounds. Joshua burned only Hazor. <sup>14</sup>The Israelites took all the valuable things from those cities and the cattle as plunder for themselves. But they struck down every person without mercy until they had wiped them out. They didn't let anything that breathed survive. <sup>15</sup>What the LORD had commanded Moses his servant, Moses had commanded Joshua, and Joshua did exactly that. He didn't deviate a bit from any command that the LORD had given Moses.

Summary of Israel's victories

<sup>16</sup>So Joshua took this whole land: the highlands, the whole arid southern plain, the whole land of Goshen, the lowlands, the desert plain, and both the highlands and the lowlands of Israel. <sup>17</sup>He took land stretching from Mount Halak, which goes up toward Seir, as far as Baal-gad at the foot of Mount Hermon in the Lebanon Valley. He captured all their kings. He struck them down and killed them. <sup>18</sup>Joshua waged war against all these kings for a long time. <sup>19</sup>There wasn't one city that made peace with the Israelites, except the Hivites who

11:1-15 Kings in northern areas oppose the Israelites just as the southern kings had done (see Josh 10). The description of the northern kings enhances the idea that these kings control Canaan by violence and brute force (see note on 11:4). Thus the Israelites' actions described here are presented as acts that serve the larger purpose of establishing justice.

11:1-5 Northern kings react to the Israelites' presence in the same way as the southern kings. When they heard about this (Joshua's defeat of the kings in the south), the kings in the north gathered for war against Joshua. Their opposition to the Israelites, however, seems to intensify. They came out as a great army... as numerous as the grains of sand on the seashore (11:4). They also came to battle with very many horses and chariots.

11:1 Jabin: He is known also in Judges 4 as the king of the Canaanites. This identity perhaps comes from the fact that he is the king who organizes opposition to the Israelites in the northern areas, and he rules over Hazor, perhaps the most prominent city in those northern areas.

11:4 horses and chariots: instruments of war and primary signs of royal power. Horses and chariots symbolized military might. The OT presents two primary problems with these tools of war. First, horses and chariots tempted kings to rely on military might rather than on God. Deuteronomy 17:16 warns Israel's kings not to acquire many horses because reliance on such resources could give the impression that military success was gained by the king's own power. The king was to rely on God instead. Second, horses and chariots allowed kings to oppress their subjects as well as their enemies.

11:9 crippled their horses and burned their chariots: reflects the destruction of the main instruments of war that were used by kings to oppress their subjects (see note on Josh 11:4). Horses were the engines of war chariots and thus are treated like part of the machinery for war. Crippled refers to cutting the fetlock or the hamstring.

11:15 The summary of Joshua's defeat of the northern kings emphasizes that Joshua acted on divine authority as it was mediated through Moses. It also presents Joshua as completely obedient to the commands of Moses, which were, in turn, the commands of God (see note on Josh 1:1; see sidebar, "Moses" at Josh 1).

11:16-23 The idea that Joshua took this whole land brackets this section and presents Joshua as an ideal leader. The claim seems at odds with Joshua 13:1, which notes that "much of the land remains to be taken over."

11:19 This verse seems to assume all the Canaanites had lived in Gibeon. They captured every single one in battle. <sup>20</sup>Their stubborn resistance came from the LORD and led them to wage war against Israel. Israel was then able to wipe them out as something reserved for God, without showing them any mercy. This was exactly what the LORD had commanded Moses.

<sup>21</sup>At that time, Joshua went and wiped out the Anakim from the highlands. He wiped them out from Hebron, from Debir, and from Anab, from the whole highlands of Judah, and the whole highlands of Israel. Joshua wiped them out along with their cities as something reserved for God. <sup>22</sup>The Anakim no longer remained in the land of the Israelites. They survived only in Gaza, Gath, and Ashdod. <sup>23</sup>So Joshua took the whole land, exactly as the LORD had promised Moses. Joshua gave it as a legacy to Israel according to their tribal shares. Then the land had a rest from war.

Moses defeated two kings

12 The Israelites struck down these kings of the land and took over their land on the east side of the Jordan. This ran from the Arnon Valley as far as Mount Hermon and included the whole eastern part of the desert plain. <sup>2</sup>First there was the Amorites' King Sihon, who lived in Heshbon. He ruled from Aroer by the rim of Arnon Valley and then from the middle of the valley as far as the Jabbok Valley, the border of the Ammonites. This was half of Gilead. <sup>3</sup>He ruled the desert plain up to the east side of the Chinneroth Sea. This ran southward in the direction of Beth-jeshimoth at the foot of the Pisgah slopes as far as the east side of the desert plain (that is, the Dead Sea) and <sup>4</sup>the territory next to it.<sup>5</sup> Then there was Bashan's King Og. He was one of the last of the Rephaim. He lived in Ashtaroth and Edrei. <sup>5</sup>He ruled over Mount Hermon, Salecah, and all of Bashan as far as the border of the Geshurites and the Maacathites, and half of Gilead down to the border of Heshbon's King Sihon. <sup>6</sup>Moses the LORD's servant and the Israelites struck them down. Moses the LORD's servant gave their land as property to the Reubenites, Gadites, and half the tribe of Manasseh.

Kings west of the Jordan

<sup>7</sup>Joshua and the Israelites struck down these kings of the land and took over their land on the west side of the Jordan. This ran from Baal-gad in the Lebanon Valley as far as Mount Halak, which goes up toward Seir. Joshua gave it to the tribes of Israel as shares of property. <sup>8</sup>This was in the highlands, in the lowlands, in the desert plain, in the slopes, in the desert, and in the arid southern plain. The land belonged to Hittites, Amorites, Canaanites, Perizzites, Hivites, and Jebusites. They were:

opportunity to make peace. It seems to contradict the accounts of the conquest of Jericho and Ai. The statement perhaps intends to indicate that indeed all the residents of the land could have made peace. The descriptions of the Canaanite kings' reactions to the Israelites in Joshua 10:1-5 and Joshua 11:1-5 show they didn't take the opportunity for peace as did Rahab (Josh 2) and the Gibeonites (Josh 9). 11:20 their stubborn resistance came from the LORD: The words are identical to the statement in Exodus that God made Pharaoh's heart stubborn (Exod 14:4). The writer understands the Canaanite opposition as God's doing, at least indirectly. The purpose of the Canaanite resistance was to lead the Canaanites to destruction. This perspective isn't consistent with many other parts of the OT (Isa 19:24-25). Broadly speaking, however, it makes sense that anyone who opposes God will inevitably come up against God's power and destroy himself or herself.

11:21 Anakim: A race of giants who populated the land and caused the spies to fear entering Canaan (Num 13:32-33; Deut 1:28; 2:10-11; 9:2). The Anakim seem to represent forces opposed to the will of God. Thus Joshua's defeat of them proves his faithfulness to God and to the cause of right and truth.

12:1-6 The first major division of the book concludes in Joshua 12 with a summary of the careers of Moses and Joshua. Joshua 12:1-6 recalls the victories Moses won east of the Jordan River during the period of wilderness wandering (see Num 21-24; Deut 2:26-3:17). The two kings east of the Jordan are Sihon and Og, mentioned in speeches by Rahab (Josh 2:10) and the Gibeonites (Josh 9:10). Moses gave the territory Sihon and Og occupied to the Reubenites, Gadites, and half the tribe of Manasseh (12:6). The summary of territory goes from south (Amon) to north (Hermon) and includes wilderness areas around the Dead Sea (12:3) as well as lush pastureland in Bashan (12:4). 12:7-24 The second part of the summary of victories includes kings defeated after the Israelites crossed the Jordan River into Canaan. Some of the towns and their kings listed appear prominently in Joshua 2-11 (Jericho, Ai, Jerusalem, Hebron, Jarmuth, Lachish, Eglon, Hazor), while others, such as Aphek and Megiddo, don't appear at all. The list was probably borrowed from a source that listed prominent towns in Canaan and wasn't written originally to summarize the victories of Joshua. Note that Bethel is mentioned both in relation to Ai (12:9), as in Joshua 8:9, and independently (12:16). This indicates the importance of Bethel later in Israel's history and the importance Bethel held by the time Joshua was written.

12:7 shares of property: The description anticipates Joshua's division of the land beginning in Joshua 13:7. The divisions of land are made with God's direction, and each tribe receives a share allotted by divine direction.

Land still unconquered

13 Now Joshua had reached old age. The LORD said to him, "You have reached old age, but much of the land remains to be taken over. <sup>2</sup>This is the land that remains: All the districts of the Philistines and all those of the Geshurites. <sup>3</sup>(The land stretching from the Shihor near Egypt northward as far as the Ekron territory is considered to be Canaanite. There are five rulers of the Philistines, for Gaza, Ashdod, Ashkelon, Gath, and Ekron.) The land of the Avvites <sup>4</sup>in the south. The whole land of the Canaanites, along with Mearah, which belongs to the Sidonians, as far as Aphek and as far as the Amorite border. <sup>5</sup>The land of the Gebalites and the whole Lebanon eastward, stretching from Baal-gad at the foot of Mount Hermon to Lebo-hamath.

<sup>6</sup>"I myself will remove the entire population of the highlands from Lebanon to Misrephoth-maim before the Israelites, that is, all the Sidonians. You have only to allot it to Israel as a 13:1-7 The second major portion of the book begins with Joshua at the end of his life. His second primary task of dividing the land among the Israelite tribes remains to be done. Joshua 13-21 thus reports how Joshua and Eleazar the priest (Josh 14:1) allot territory to the tribes (see map 5). But the issue at the beginning of this section is that much land remains to be taken over (13:1). This comment seems to contradict statements in Joshua 11:23 ("so Joshua took the whole land") and the summary in Joshua 12. The picture of land partially conquered accords with Judges 1-3, however, in which the Israelites battle the people of the land for control of allotted territories. Nevertheless, Joshua 13-21 is like Joshua 1-12 in that God promises to take the land (I myself will remove the entire population, 13:6) and give it to the Israelites. God tells Joshua only to allot the unconquered territories, and God will give the land to them (13:6-7).

13:2-3 Philistines and all those of the Geshurites: peoples who occupied territory near the Mediterranean coast in the southern region of Canaan. Avvites: group that occupied coastal territory between Egypt and the Philistine areas (see Deut 2:23).

13:6 allot it to Israel: The divine origin of the land distribution is emphasized further by this language. When the Lord tells Joshua to "allot" the land, God uses a term meaning "to let fall" that often appears in the context of casting legacy exactly as I commanded you. <sup>7</sup>So now divide up this land as a legacy for the nine tribes and half the tribe of Manasseh. You will give it out from the Jordan to the Mediterranean Sea in the west. The Mediterranean Sea is the border.”<sup>P</sup>

13:8 Nu 32:33;
Josh 12:6

Land east of the Jordan

<sup>8</sup>As for the other half of the tribe of Manasseh, <sup>9</sup>the Reubenites and Gadites together with it had already taken their legacy that Moses had given them on the east side of the Jordan. It was exactly what Moses the LORD’s servant had given them. <sup>9</sup>It ran from Aroer by the rim of the Arnon Valley and the city in the middle of the valley through the whole Medeba plateau as far as Dibon. <sup>10</sup>It included all the cities of the Amorites’ King Sihon, who ruled in Heshbon, as far as the Ammonite border. <sup>11</sup>It also included Gilead and the territory of the Geshurites and Maacathites, all Mount Hermon, and all Bashan as far as Salecah—<sup>12</sup>the entire kingdom of Og in Bashan, who ruled in Ashtaroth and in Edrei. He survived as the last of the Rephaim. Moses had struck down and removed them. <sup>13</sup>But the Israelites didn’t remove the Geshurites or the Maacathites. So Geshur and Maacath still live among Israel today. <sup>14</sup>It was only to the tribe of Levi that he gave no legacy. Their legacy consists of the fire offerings for the LORD, the God of Israel, exactly as he had promised them.

For Reuben

<sup>15</sup>Moses provided for the clans of the Reubenite tribe. <sup>16</sup>Their territory ran from Aroer by the rim of the Arnon Valley and the city in the middle of the ravine, and the whole plateau as far as Medeba. <sup>17</sup>It included Heshbon and all its cities that are on the plateau: Dibon, Bamoth-baal, Beth-baal-meon, <sup>18</sup>Jahaz, Kedemoth, Mephaath, <sup>19</sup>Kiriathaim, Sibmah, the Zereth-shahar highlands, <sup>20</sup>Beth-peor, the slopes of Pisgah, and Beth-jeshimoth. <sup>21</sup>It included all the cities of the plateau and the whole kingdom of Sihon king of the Amorites, who ruled in Heshbon. Moses had struck him down, along with Evi, Rekem, Zur, Hur, and Reba, the leaders of Midian. They had lived in the land as princes of Sihon. <sup>22</sup>In addition to those others slain, the Israelites killed the fortune-teller Balaam, Beor’s son, with the sword. <sup>23</sup>The border of the people of Reuben was the Jordan and the territory next to it. This was the legacy of the people of Reuben—for their clans, their cities, and their settlements.

lots (Neh 10:34). The lot was an implement cast like dice, and then “read,” in order to receive directions from God (e.g., Josh 7:14; 1 Sam 10:16-26; see Josh 14:1).

13:7 legacy: or, “inheritance.” In ancient Near Eastern society a supreme concern was the property passed from the family’s patriarch to his children. Such property provided family identity as well as financial security. The designation here of territory as a “legacy” or inheritance has two important implications. First, it means the property isn’t gained through military conquest but bequeathed as part of an ancestral claim. Therefore, even the assignment of certain areas to particular tribal groups was due to the Lord’s action. Second, as part of a legacy given by God, the territory of each family, clan, and tribe gave those groups an enduring kinship with God. The land was a reminder that they belonged to and benefited from the love of God. 13:8-14 The land east of the Jordan River given to the Reubenites, Gadites, and half the tribe of Manasseh was previously allotted by Moses (Deut 3:8-17).

13:14 the tribe of Levi: the priestly tribe that descended from Jacob’s son Levi (Gen 29:34). Moses and Aaron were Levites (Exod 2:1; 4:14). The tribe of Levi didn’t receive land as an inheritance. Instead they received the fire offerings for the Lord, that is, both the privilege of overseeing the sacrificial system and a portion of the food offered as sacrifices (Num 3:5-4:49; 8:5-26). In order to keep the land divisions at the perfect number 12, to reflect the number of Jacob’s sons, Joseph’s territory was apportioned to his two sons Ephraim and Manasseh (see Josh 14:4).

13:15-31 Each section on the two and a half tribes that occupied territory east of the Jordan River begins and ends with the same formula (Moses provided; see Josh 13:15, 24, 29; for their clans/it belonged to the clans; Josh 13:23, 28, 31). The first of these sections describes the territory for the tribe of Reuben. Reuben was the oldest of Jacob’s sons and therefore rightly is treated first. However, the fact that Reuben occupies land east of the Jordan River indicates the tribe isn’t as important as those tribes west of the Jordan, particularly not as important as Judah (see note on Josh 15:1-12). The focus of these sections is on the clans of each tribe.

13:15 clans: extended families that might include several generations. The focus on clans reflects the fact that clans had responsibility to maintain land inheritance and to redeem land for families that possessed it originally as inheritance (see Lev 25:23-28, 41, 49; Num 36:6-12). The description of the land is repetitious and somewhat unclear at points. The main message seems to be that God gave it completely to the assigned tribe.

13:21 Sihon: Amorite king who opposed the Israelites as they came out of Egypt and traveled toward Canaan (see Josh 2:10; Deut 2:16-3:17).

13:22 Balaam: a diviner, or someone who perceives the future, at the center of the story and oracles in Numbers 22-24. Balaam was a hired mercenary who attempted to bring God’s wrath on the Israelites through a curse. As the agent of Moab’s King Balak, Balaam stands with those kings and peoples who opposed the Israelites on their way to the land of Canaan (see Deut 23:3-6).

For Gad

<sup>24</sup>Moses provided for the clans of the Gadite tribe. <sup>25</sup>Their territory was Jazer, all the cities of Gilead, and half the land of the Ammonites as far as Aroer near Rabbah. <sup>26</sup>It also ran from Heshbon as far as Ramath-mizpeh and Betonim, and from Mahanaim as far as the territory of Lidebir. <sup>27</sup>In the valley were Beth-haram, Beth-nimrah, Succoth, and Zaphon. This was the rest of the kingdom of Sihon king of Heshbon. It included the Jordan and the territory next to it up to the tip of the Chinnereth Sea on the east side of the Jordan. <sup>28</sup>This was the legacy of the Gadites—for their clans, their cities, and their settlements.

Dt 33:1

For half of Manasseh

<sup>29</sup>Moses provided for half the tribe of Manasseh. It was for the clans in half the tribe of the people of Manasseh. <sup>30</sup>Their territory ran from Mahanaim, all Bashan, the whole kingdom of Og king of Bashan, and all sixty of the tent villages of Jair that are in Bashan. <sup>31</sup>Half of Gilead along with Ashtaroth and Edrei, cities of the kingdom of Og in Bashan, belonged to the people of Machir son of Manasseh. It belonged to the clans for half of the people of Machir.

<sup>32</sup>Moses assigned these territories when he was in the Moab plains on the other side of the Jordan, east of Jericho. <sup>33</sup>But Moses gave no legacy to the tribe of Levi. The LORD God of Israel is their legacy, exactly as he promised them.

Dividing up Canaan

14 The Israelites received these inheritances in the land of Canaan. Eleazar the priest, Joshua son of Nun, and the heads of the families of the Israelite tribes assigned them. <sup>2</sup>Their legacy was assigned by lot, exactly as the LORD had commanded the nine and a half tribes through Moses. <sup>3</sup>In fact, Moses had given out the legacy of the two and a half tribes on the other side of the Jordan. But he gave no legacy among them to the Levites. <sup>4</sup>The people of Joseph consisted of two tribes, Manasseh and Ephraim. The Levites weren't given any portion of the land, except cities to live in and pastureland for their cattle and flocks. <sup>5</sup>The Israelites divided up the land exactly as the LORD had commanded Moses.

Caleb receives Hebron

<sup>6</sup>In Gilgal, the people of Judah approached Joshua. Caleb son of Jephunneh the Kenizzite said to him, "You know what the LORD said to Moses, man of God, about you and me when we were in Kadesh-barnea. <sup>7</sup>I was 40 years old when Moses the LORD's servant sent me from Kadesh-barnea to scout out the land. I brought back a report to him of what I really thought.

13:24-28 This section describes the territory reserved for Gad. It includes territory once controlled by King Sihon, the Amorite king who opposed the Israelites when they came out of Egypt (see Josh 2:10). The inheritance begins just north of the Dead Sea in the south. The note that it extended to the tip of the Chinnereth Sea (later called the Galilee Sea), however, is unclear since half the tribe of Manasseh occupies Gilead, which would have included the area around the Chinnereth Sea (see Josh 13:29-33).

13:29-33 The territory of half the tribe of Manasseh is described here. This section concludes with a summary that recalls how Moses divided the territory east of the Jordan River before his death. He gave half the tribe of Manasseh what was once the kingdom of Og (see Num 21:33-35). The final note repeats the status of the Levites: Moses gave them no legacy or inheritance; the Lord God was their inheritance (see Josh 13:14).

14:1-5 The allotment of land to the tribes west of the Jordan River begins with two statements about the process. First, it names those involved in the allotment: Eleazar the priest, Joshua, and the heads of each tribe. In Joshua 13:7 only Joshua is identified as the agent who divides the land. Now more are involved. Particularly important is the presence of Eleazar, who shares power here with Joshua. He also appears alongside Moses in Numbers 31. To people in exile, who had experienced the failure of royal power to maintain the land, such a juxtaposition of Joshua and priestly figures may have addressed their doubts about the use, abuse, and limitations of the king. Second, the land is divided by lot. This description relates to the fact that God told Joshua to "allot" the land (Josh 13:7). The word for allot can also mean "to let fall." The same word often appears in the context of casting lots (Neh 10:34). Joshua 14:1 then says this is exactly how the land was divided. The lot was an implement cast, and then interpreted, in order to receive directions from God (e.g. Josh 7:14; 1 Sam 10:16-26). Two points are important about the division of land by lots. First, casting lots was a priestly duty. Thus it makes sense that Eleazar the priest was part of the process of dividing territory. Second, each portion of land was given as an inheritance. It isn't property gained through military conquest but bequeathed as part of an ancestral claim. Therefore, even the assignment of certain areas to particular tribal groups was due to the Lord's action.

14:3-5 The account of allotment of land to the tribes west of the Jordan River reiterates the point that Moses assigned land to the groups east of the Jordan, and that the present act of land division showed obedience to Moses (see Josh 13:29-33).

14:4 people of Joseph: See note on Joshua 13:14.

14:6-15 Caleb served as one of the twelve spies who viewed the land of Canaan while the Israelites were in the wilderness (Num 13). He and Joshua were the only ones to

<sup>8</sup>My companions who had gone up with me made the people's heart melt. But I remained loyal to the LORD my God. <sup>9</sup>So Moses pledged on that day, "The land on which you have walked will forever be a legacy for you and your children. This is because you remained loyal to the LORD my God." <sup>10</sup>Now look. The LORD has kept me alive, exactly as he promised. It is forty-five years since the LORD spoke about this to Moses. It was while Israel was journeying in the desert. Now look. Today I'm 85 years old. <sup>11</sup>I'm just as strong today as I was the day Moses sent me out. My strength then was as my strength is now, whether for war or for everyday activities. <sup>12</sup>So now, give me this highland that the LORD promised me that day. True, the Anakim are there with large fortified cities, as you yourself heard that day. But if the LORD is with me, I should be able to remove them, exactly as the LORD promised."

<sup>13</sup>So Joshua blessed him. He gave Hebron to Caleb, Jephunneh's son, as a legacy. <sup>14</sup>So Hebron still belongs to Caleb son of Jephunneh the Kenizzite as a legacy today. This was because he remained loyal to the LORD God of Israel. <sup>15</sup>(Hebron used to be called Kiriath-arba. Arba had been the greatest of the Anakim.) Then the land rested from war.

Border of Judah

15 The land determined by lot for the clans of the Judahite tribe ran southward to the border of Edom. The Zin wasteland was the southern limit. <sup>2</sup>Their south border ran from the end of the Dead Sea, from the bay that faces south. <sup>3</sup>It went south from the ascent of Akkrabbim, passed on to Zin, and went up south of Kadesh-barnea. It passed on to Hezron, went up to Addar, and turned toward Karka. <sup>4</sup>It passed on to Azmon and went by the border<sup>a</sup> of Egypt. The border ended at the sea. This will be their south border.

The border on the north side ran from the bay of the sea at the mouth of the Jordan. <sup>6</sup>The border went up to Beth-hoglah and passed north of Beth-arabah. The border went up to the Stone of Bohan (Reuben's son). <sup>7</sup>The border went up to Debir from the Achor Valley, turning north to Gilgal. Gilgal was opposite the ascent of Adummim, which was south of the ravine. The border passed on to the waters of En-shemesh and ended at En-rogel. <sup>8</sup>The border went up by the valley of Ben-Hinnom to the slope of the Jebusite city, Jerusalem, on the south. The border went up to the top of the mountain that is opposite the Hinnom Valley on the west, which is at the north end of the Rephaim Valley. <sup>9</sup>The border turned from the top of the mountain to the waters of Nephtoah Spring and went to the cities of Mount Ephron. The border turned toward Baalah (that is, Kiriath-jearim). <sup>10</sup>The border turned westward from Baalah to Mount Seir. It passed on to the slope of Mount Jearim on the north (that is, Chesalon), went down to Beth-shemesh, and passed by Timnah. <sup>11</sup>The border went to the slope of Ekron on the north. The border turned toward Shikkeron, passed on to Mount Baalah, and went to Jabneel. The border ended at the sea.

believe they could possess it (Num 14:38). Thus Caleb asks for a special parcel of land and the opportunity to possess the land as a show of his faith in God's promise to give Canaan to the Israelites. Joshua gives Caleb the town of Hebron, which was important in the tribal territory of Judah. The fact that Caleb is from the tribe of Judah highlights Judah's central role later during the Davidic monarchy.

14:12 Anakim: The Anakim (Num 13:33) were a race of giants who descended from semidivine beings called the Nephilim (Gen 6:4). The spies sent into Canaan reported the Anakim were there, and the Israelites were like grasshoppers compared to them (Num 13:33). Therefore, these giants prevented the spies from supporting the faith of Israel to enter and possess the land. The Anakim, as a result, came to symbolize those forces that oppose faith and dependence on God. Caleb's desire to remove the Anakim from the land is a subtle indication of his faith and commitment to God's promises.

14:15 the land rested from war: the ultimate sign of God's blessing. The land's rest from war accompanies faithful human leadership. Thus the land enjoyed rest when the ideal judges were in power (Judg 3:11). Here the land rested when Caleb, who was trusting and faithful, occupied the land.

15:1-12 The first tribal allotment of land in Canaan is to the tribe of Judah. The prominence of this tribe in the account of territorial division is probably due to the importance Judah had later, during the period of monarchy. Judah would become the most important tribe and had at its center the city of Jerusalem, which was David's capital. The border details emphasize the city of Jerusalem so as to demarcate the borders of Judah to exclude it. Jerusalem is referred to as the Jebusite city (15:8), and later it will be noted that the Jebusites remained in the city (Josh 15:63). This focus on Jerusalem anticipates the time when David captures the elevated fortress and makes it his capital. Joshua 15:1-12, however, seems concerned to show that Jerusalem wasn't a city in Judah until the time of David.

Caleb and Achsah

<sup>13</sup>In agreement with the LORD's command to him, Joshua gave a portion among the Judahites to Caleb, Jephunneh's son. It was Kiriath-arba, that is, Hebron (Arba was the father of Anak). <sup>14</sup>Caleb removed the three sons of Anak from there: Sheshai, Ahiman, and Talmi. They were the offspring of Anak. <sup>15</sup>Then he went up from there against the population of Debir. Debir were to be called Kiriath-sepher. <sup>16</sup>Caleb said, "I will give Achsah my daughter in marriage to whoever strikes Kiriath-sepher and captures it." <sup>17</sup>So Othniel son of Kenaz, Caleb's brother, captured it, and Caleb gave him Achsah his daughter in marriage.

<sup>18</sup>Now when she arrived, she prodded Othniel into asking for a field from her father. After she got down off her donkey, Caleb asked her, "What do you want?"

<sup>19</sup>She said, "Give me a blessing. Since the land you've given me is in the arid southern plain, you should also give me springs of water." So he gave her the upper springs and the lower springs.

Cities of Judah

<sup>20</sup>This is the legacy for the clans of the tribe of the people of Judah. <sup>21</sup>The outlying cities of the tribe of the people of Judah ran down to the border of Edom.

15:13-19 This passage repeats part of what was said in Joshua 14:6-15 concerning Caleb. Caleb, a member of the tribe of Judah, requests and is granted possession of Hebron in Joshua 14:6-15, and occupies it in 15:13-19. His daughter Achsah now asks Caleb for a piece of land with springs of water (15:18-19). The expression "springs of water" could be a place name, Gulloth-mayim, which means "basins of water," but the presence of water is obviously the identifying mark of the place. In a land where water was at a premium, and survival of towns often depended on capturing and storing water in cisterns, owning land with a water source would have been a sign of power and influence. The land Achsah receives isn't inheritance; it's simply a gift from her father. The present Caleb gives Achsah thus suggests Caleb values his daughter. She isn't just a commodity he used to motivate a potential son-in-law to capture territory for him (see 15:16-17). The importance of the brief story of Achsah appears again in Judges 1:11-15 and provides an important link between Joshua and Judges. Specifically, the gift of watered land to Achsah in this story sets the stage for the treatment of women in Judges. After the gift to Achsah in Judges 1:11-15 and stories of women's leadership in Judges 4-5, the status of women declines dramatically. This decline becomes a symbol for the decline of Israel as a whole (see especially Judg 19-20).

15:20-63 This section gives the legacy for Judah in an extensive list of towns and territories. The list of towns belonging to Judah subtly indicates an important theological statement about Judah's relationship with Assyria, the dominant Mesopotamian kingdom that destroyed Israel in 722 BCE and who dominated Judah through the end of the 8th century BCE. The list includes towns that served as Assyrian administrative centers and towns that Assyria clearly controlled. The message behind the details of the list, therefore, is that Assyria was no match for the power of Israel's God.

15:33-44 The description of towns and areas is arranged by major valleys that provided access to the territory. Joshua 15:33-44 contains three units that list towns in three valleys of the lowlands, but the valleys seem out of logical order. The list begins with the northern Serek-Elay Valleys, but then moves to the southernmost area, the Lachish Valley, before going back to the central portion of the lowlands, the Shephelah. The best explanation for this order seems to be that it reflects movements of Assyria's King Sennacherib through the Shephelah lowlands in his military campaign in 701 BCE. The northern and southern valleys of the lowlands had come under the control of Judah before the campaign while the central valley maintained closer ties with coastal areas. Thus Sennacherib established control of these pro-Judah areas first before engaging the towns of the central valleys. Second Kings 19:8 confirms this movement by noting that Sennacherib attacked Libnah (in the central valley) after Lachish (in the southern valley). Thus the town lists in Joshua 15 draw upon the movement of Sennacherib.

15:33 lowlands: sometimes referred to as the Shephelah, areas north of the arid southern plan (called Negeb) but south of Jerusalem.

Ephraim

16 The land determined by lot for the people of Joseph went out from the Jordan near Jericho eastward to the waters of Jericho. It went up by the desert from Jericho to the Bethel highlands. <sup>2</sup>It goes from Bethel to Luz and passes on to the border of the Archites at Ataroth. <sup>3</sup>It goes down westward to the border of the Japhletites as far as the border of Lower Beth-horon and as far as Gezer. It ends at the sea. <sup>4</sup>The people of Joseph, Manasseh and Ephraim, received their legacy.

<sup>5</sup>This was the territory for the clans of the people of Ephraim. The border of their legacy ran from Ataroth-adar on the east as far as Upper Beth-horon. <sup>6</sup>The border goes to the sea. Michmethath is on the north. The border turns east of Taanath-shiloh and passes along beyond it east of Janoah. <sup>7</sup>It goes down from Janoah to Ataroth and to Naarah, touches Jericho, and goes to the Jordan. <sup>8</sup>From Tappuah the border goes westward by the Kanah Valley. It ends at the sea. This is the legacy for the clans of the Ephraimite tribe. <sup>9</sup>It included cities set apart for the people of Ephraim within the legacy of the people of Manasseh, all the cities

15:45-47 These verses give a particularly interesting list of towns that indicates something of Judah's attitude toward Assyria. These verses highlight three towns along the Mediterranean coast: Ekron, Ashdod, and Gaza. Each town is mentioned singularly so that it stands out from the rest of the larger town list. In addition to this break in form, it is striking that Ashkelon isn't mentioned here, since it was perhaps the most prominent city in this region. The answer seems to lie in the message Joshua's authors were trying to make about Israel's relationship to the other nations. Ekron, Ashdod, and Gaza were Assyrian administrative centers, towns populated and controlled by Assyrian officials during their dominance of Israel's land in the 8th and 7th centuries BCE. By listing these three towns as belonging to Judah, as they appear in Assyrian administrative documents, Joshua's authors seem to be saying what they have said already in the book, that Israel isn't the property or under the control of any foreign power (Josh 1:4). Also, no Israelite ruler defends the land against foreign enemies. The Lord controls and guards the land and gives it to Israel as its inheritance.

15:48 highlands: less desirable territory for agricultural purposes, the highlands feature many rocky hills and crags. Jerusalem is located in the highlands.

15:63 The concluding note that the tribe of Judah couldn't drive out the Jebusites is similar to other references to the people of the land remaining (Josh 16:10). According to Judges 3:1-6 the people of the land remained to test the Israelites to see if they would be faithful to the Instruction of Moses or not.

16:1-10 The Joseph group is divided into two tribes named after Joseph's sons Ephraim and Manasseh (Gen 34:50-52). Since the Levites didn't inherit territory, this division kept the total number of allotments at twelve. The Joseph tribes occupied the region north of Jerusalem in the central highlands.

16:5-10 Ephraim occupied the southern portion of the Joseph tribes. Its southern boundary ran from Jericho to and their surrounding areas. <sup>10</sup>But they didn't remove the Canaanites who lived in Gezer. So today the Canaanites, who were used for forced labor, still live within Ephraim.

<sup>17:8</sup> Josh 12:17,

Manasseh

17 Land was determined by lot for the tribe of Manasseh, who was actually Joseph's oldest son. Gilead and Bashan belonged to Machir, who was Manasseh's oldest son and Gilead's father. This was because he was a warrior. <sup>2</sup>So an allotment took place for the rest of the clans of the people of Manasseh—for the people of Abiezer, Helek, Asriel, Shechem, Hephher, and Shemida. These were the sons of Manasseh the son of Joseph, the male descendants by their clans.

<sup>3</sup>Zelophehad was Hephher's son, Gilead's grandson, Machir's great-grandson and Manasseh's great-great-grandson. Zelophehad had no sons, only daughters, who were named Mahlah, Noah, Hoglah, Milcah, and Tirzah. <sup>4</sup>The daughters approached Eleazar the priest, Joshua, Nun's son, and the leaders. They said, "The LORD commanded Moses to give us a legacy along with our male relatives." So in agreement with the LORD's command, they were given a legacy along with their uncles. <sup>5</sup>Manasseh had ten parcels in addition to the land of Gilead and Bashan on the other side of the Jordan. <sup>6</sup>This was because the daughters of Manasseh received a legacy along with his sons. The land of Gilead belonged to the rest of the people of Manasseh.

<sup>7</sup>The border of Manasseh ran from Asher to Michmethath, which is opposite Shechem. The border went south to the population of En-tappuah. <sup>8</sup>The land of Tappuah belonged to Manasseh. But Tappuah itself belonged to the people of Ephraim, even though it was on the border of Manasseh. <sup>9</sup>The border went down by the Kanah Valley. South of the ravine are those cities that belong to Ephraim, even though they are located among the cities of Manasseh. The border of Manasseh lay on the north side of the ravine and ended at the sea. <sup>10</sup>What lay south of the border belonged to Ephraim, and what lay north of it belonged to

Women and Property Since the daughters of Zelophehad had no brothers, their family heritage couldn't be carried on in the land unless they were granted an inheritance on their father's behalf to pass on to their children. This account records the fulfillment of what was already promised in Numbers 27:1-11. There the daughters of Zelophehad came to Moses to argue that their father had been faithful to the Lord in the wilderness. They proclaimed that he didn't enter into the rebellion led by Korah (Num 16) but remained faithful to God and the leadership of Moses. Then the daughters made the case that their father shouldn't lose his inheritance simply because he had no sons. Instead, Zelophehad's allotment should be given to them. The story casts important light on gender roles in ancient Israel. Ancient Israelite society is rightly called "patriarchal" insofar as property was normally passed on from father to son, and family structures were typically determined by a male line of descent. But women and men were interdependent, and women often had significant influence even if it wasn't formalized. The story of the daughters of Zelophehad shows flexibility in the tradition that could bend in order to ensure that all Israelites had access to the blessings and resources of the land. In this case, the tradition of male inheritance gives way to the higher ideal of access to the land.

The focus on the daughters of Zelophehad here is significant also because of the attention given to the female children of this man. The account here includes two striking features from the story in Numbers 27. First, the daughters aren't only mentioned but are named: Mahlah, Noah, Hoglah, Milcah, and Tirzah (Num 27:1; Josh 17:3). In a society that passed property from father to sons and traced lineage through male heirs, the naming of daughters is unusual (see Job 42:13-15). But it does testify strongly to the concern for all Israelites to have a share in the promises God made to Abraham. Second, the fact that the daughters spoke on behalf of their father and were rewarded with the allotment of land indicates the potential for women like them to occupy significant roles of leadership.

the Mediterranean Sea. The final note that the Canaanites remained in Gezer explains why the population remained mixed even after the Israelites received their land.

17:1-13 The territory of Manasseh west of the Jordan River is outlined here. Manasseh's portion is north of the territory occupied by Ephraim. Earlier a portion of territory was given to half the tribe of Manasseh east of the Jordan River (Josh 13:8-13). In that allotment Manasseh's son Machir possessed the areas of Gilead and Bashan (Josh 13:29-31). The rest of the tribe of Manasseh will now occupy the areas directly across the Jordan River to the west (17:7-10).

17:3-6 This portion of the account of land allotment introduces a problem; namely Zelophehad had no sons, only daughters. Normally property was passed from father to sons, and daughters didn't receive an inheritance. But

18:1 Josh 19:51,
Josh 21:2;
Jgs 18:31;
1Sa 1:3, 1Sa 4:3

Manasseh. The sea was its border. The territory bordered Asher on the north and Issachar on the east.

<sup>11</sup>Belonging to Manasseh in Issachar and in Asher were Beth-shean and its dependent cities, Ibleam and its dependent cities, the population of Dor and its dependent cities, the population of En-dor and its dependent cities, the population of Taanach and its dependent cities, and the population of Megiddo and its dependent cities. (The third one is Naphath.)<sup>a</sup>
<sup>12</sup>The people of Manasseh couldn't take over these cities, and the Canaanites were determined to live in this land. <sup>13</sup>When the Israelites grew strong, they subjected the Canaanites to hard labor but didn't remove them.

Future expansion for Joseph

<sup>14</sup>The tribe of Joseph spoke to Joshua: "Why have you only given us a single lot and a solitary parcel for a legacy? We are a numerous people whom the LORD has blessed so richly."

<sup>15</sup>Then Joshua said, "Yes, you are a numerous people. So go up to the forest and clear ground for yourselves there in the land of the Perizzites and Rephaim, because the Ephraimite highland is too small for you."

<sup>16</sup>The people of Joseph said, "The highland isn't enough for us. But all the Canaanites who live in the valley region have iron chariots, both those in Beth-shean and its dependent cities and those in the Jezreel Valley."

<sup>17</sup>Joshua then said to the house of Joseph, to Ephraim and to Manasseh, "You are a numerous people and possess great strength. You will have more than a single lot. <sup>18</sup>The highland will belong to you. Because it is a forest, you can clear it. Its farthest limits will be yours. You will definitely remove the Canaanites, even though they have iron chariots and are strong."

Remainder of the land

18The whole community of the Israelites assembled at Shiloh and set up the meeting tent there. The conquered land lay before them. <sup>2</sup>Among the Israelites, seven tribes were left that had not yet received their legacy. <sup>3</sup>Joshua said to the Israelites, "How long will you avoid going to take over the land that the LORD, the God of your ancestors, has given you? <sup>4</sup>Pick out three men for each tribe. I will send them out, and they will go up and travel throughout the land. They will write a description of it as the basis for determining their legacy. Then they will come back to me. <sup>5</sup>They will divide up the land among themselves into seven portions. Judah will stay on its territory to the south. The house of Joseph will stay on their territory to the north. <sup>6</sup>But you will write a report in seven parts and bring the report back here to me. Then I will cast the lot for you here, before the LORD our God. <sup>7</sup>However, there won't be a portion among you for the Levites because their legacy is the priesthood of the LORD. Gad, Reuben, and half the tribe of Manasseh have already received their legacy on the east side of the Jordan. Moses the LORD's servant gave it to them."

<sup>8</sup>When the men had prepared to go, Joshua gave orders to those going to write a description of the land. "Go and travel around the land, write about it, and return to me. I will cast here the daughters of Zelophehad sought an inheritance alongside their male relatives in the tribe of Manasseh. See sidebar, "Women and Property."

18:1-10 The possession of the remainder of the land is presented with a question about the Israelites' faith, How long will you avoid going to take over the land that the Lord... has given you? (18:3). The land is already conquered (18:1) and lies before the Israelites to claim as their inheritance from God. Thus possession of the land is essentially a sign of trust in God's promises. Joshua's allotment of the land did include practical matters of surveying the land to determine sizes of allotments and cities to be included in each allotment. But the focus is on trust in God.

18:1 whole community of the Israelites: Once again the emphasis is on the unity of the Israelite tribes. They appear together as one body, not as divided tribes (see Josh 3:1; 4:1; 23:2; 24:1). Shiloh: As a town 20 miles north of Jerusalem, it was the first location of a permanent central sanctuary

(see Jer 7:12-14). The prophet Samuel was raised in the sanctuary at Shiloh and there received God's call to lead Israel (1 Sam 1-3). Later Shiloh would be replaced by Jerusalem as the central worship site. meeting tent: This tent was a portable shrine the Israelites made during their wilderness wandering (Exod 33:7; Num 11:16; Deut 31:14). God would descend to this tent and meet Moses and the leaders of Israel. Now the tent is set up at Shiloh, thus linking that site for the first time with the presence and indwelling of God.

18:5 seven portions: The description of the land again focuses on God's ownership of the land and God's gift of the land to the Israelites. Seven is a complete number, as is the number 12, which will be the full number of allotments. To clarify how the count of allotments for the remainder of the territory is seven, the writer again states that the Levites didn't receive a portion of land as inheritance.

the lot for you before the LORD here in Shiloh.”<sup>9</sup> So the men went and passed through the land and wrote about it in a document, city by city, in seven sections. They came back to Joshua in the camp at Shiloh.<sup>10</sup> Then Joshua cast lots for them in Shiloh before the LORD. There Joshua divided up the shares of the land for the Israelites.

Border of Benjamin

<sup>15</sup>The south side ran from the limits of Kiriath-jearim. The border went out westward. It then proceeded to the waters of Nephtoa Spring.<sup>16</sup> The border went down to the foot of the mountain that is opposite the valley of the son of Hinnom, which is in the north part of the Rephaim Valley. It went down through the Hinnom Valley to the slope of the Jebusite city on the south. It then went down to En-rogel.<sup>17</sup> It turned northward. Then it went to En-shemesh and then to Geliath, which is opposite the ascent of Adummim. It went down to the Stone of Bohan (Reuben's son).<sup>18</sup> It passed on to the slope of Beth-arabah<sup>7</sup> on the north and went down into the desert plain.<sup>19</sup> The border passed on to the slope of Beth-hoglah on the north. The border ended at the north bay of the Dead Sea, at the southern mouth of the Jordan. This was the southern border.<sup>20</sup> The Jordan bordered it on the east side. This is the legacy of the Benjaminite clans according to its borders.

Cities of Benjamin

Simeon

19 The second lot fell to Simeon. The legacy of the clans of the Simeonite tribe lay inside the legacy of the people of Judah.<sup>2</sup> They had in their legacy: Beer-sheba, Sheba, Moladah,<sup>3</sup> Hazar-shual, Balah, Ezem,<sup>4</sup> Eltolad, Bethul, Hormah,<sup>5</sup> Ziklag, Beth-marcaboth, Hazar-susah,<sup>6</sup> Beth-lebaoth, and Sharuh. In total: thirteen cities and their surrounding areas.<sup>7</sup> Ain, Rimmon, Ether, and Ashan. In total: four cities and their surrounding areas.<sup>8</sup> In addition were all the areas that surround these cities as far as Baalath-beer and Ramah of the arid southern plain. This is the legacy of the clans of the Simeonite tribe.<sup>9</sup> Some of the portion of the people of Judah belonged to the legacy of the people of Simeon. This was because the portion of the people of Judah was too large for them. So the people of Simeon received a legacy inside Judah's legacy.

18:10 Joshua cast lots: Joshua alone cast lots to divide the remainder of the territory (cf. Josh 14:1). Casting lots was a priestly function, and prior to this Joshua has been accompanied by Eleazar the priest (see note on Josh 14:1).

18:11-20 The territories of Benjamin are carefully delineated in relation to the allotments of the tribe of Judah that lie immediately to their south (see 18:14). The divisions along the Hinnom Valley (18:16) run around the city of Jerusalem, here referred to as the Jebusite city as in Joshua 15:8.

18:21-28 Jerusalem is listed as one of the cities that belonged to Benjamin (18:28), though it is listed earlier in association with the tribe of Judah (Josh 15:63).

19:1-9 Simeon, one of the smaller tribes, has its legacy within the confines of the territory of Judah. Therefore, Simeon's legacy is described not by borders but by a list of towns. This circumstance is explained by Judah's generosity to his brother (19:9). According to some accounts, however, Simeon was once located much farther north (see Gen 34; 49:5-6).

Zebulun

Issachar

Asher

<sup>24</sup>The lot went out fifth for the clans of the tribe of Asher. <sup>25</sup>Their border included Helkath, Hali, Beten, Achshaph, <sup>26</sup>Allammelech, Amad, and Mishal. It touched Carmel on the west and Shihor-libnath. <sup>27</sup>The border reversed eastward to Beth-dagon. It touched Zebulun and the Iphtah-el Valley on the north, also Beth-emek and Neiel. It went to Cabul on the north, <sup>28</sup>as far as Great Sidon. They also owned Ebron, Rehob, Hammon, and Kanah. <sup>29</sup>The border turned around to Ramah as far as the fortified city of Tyre. The border turned around to Hosah and ended at the sea. They also owned Mahalab,<sup>w</sup> Achzib, <sup>30</sup>Ummah, Aphek, and Rehob; in total: twenty-two cities and their surrounding areas. <sup>31</sup>These cities and their surrounding areas are the legacy for the clans of the Asher tribe.

Naphtali

Dan

<sup>40</sup>The lot went out seventh for the clans of the Danite tribe. <sup>41</sup>The territory of their legacy was Zorah, Eshtaol, Ir-shemesh, <sup>42</sup>Shaalabbin, Aijalon, Ithlah, <sup>43</sup>Elon, Timnah, Ekron, <sup>44</sup>Eltekeh, Gibbethon, Baalath, <sup>45</sup>Jehud, Bene-berak, Gath-rimmon, <sup>46</sup>Me-jarkon, and Rakkon, along with the territory opposite Joppa. <sup>47</sup>But the territory of the people of Dan was lost to them. So the people of Dan went up and attacked Leshem and captured it. They struck it down without mercy. They took it over and settled it. Then they named Leshem as Dan, after the name of Dan their ancestor. <sup>48</sup>These cities and their surrounding areas are the legacy for the clans of the Danite tribe.

19:17-23 The description of Issachar's territory doesn't include an exact set of borders. Rather, it refers mainly to cities and valleys. Most notable is Jezreel, a fertile valley that later becomes the site of major disputes (see 2 Kgs 9:30-37; Hos 1:4-5).

19:24-31 The tribe of Asher is said to possess the prominent Phoenician cities of Tyre and Sidon. This association is idealistic since these cities remained independent and weren't under Israelite control. The listing of Tyre and Sidon is probably due to the same theological convictions that led to the inclusion of Ekron, Ashdod, and Gaza in the territory of Judah, such as the belief that God controlled the whole land, and no nation or city could defy God's will (see note on Josh 15:45-47). Thus all peoples came under the governance of God, who gave Israel the land.

19:32-39 The legacy of Naphtali is outlined in relation to the legacies of Zebulun, Asher, and Judah.

19:40-48 The tribe of Dan was the northernmost tribe according to this information. Some traditions, however, had Dan much farther south and then migrating north (Judg 18).

Legacy for Joshua

<sup>49</sup>So when they finished assigning the borders of the land, the Israelites gave to Joshua, Nun's son, a legacy among them. <sup>50</sup>By the LORD's command, they gave him the city that he asked for. This was Timnath-serah in the highlands of Ephraim. He built a city and lived in it. <sup>51</sup>These are the legacies that Eleazar the priest, Joshua, Nun's son, and the heads of the families of the Israelite tribes assigned by lot at Shiloh. They did this before the LORD at the entrance of the meeting tent and finished dividing up the land.

Refuge cities

20 The LORD spoke to Joshua: <sup>2</sup>"Say to the Israelites, 'Set up refuge cities for yourselves. I spoke to you about these through Moses. <sup>3</sup>Anyone who kills by striking down someone unintentionally or by mistake may flee there. These places will be a refuge for you from any member of the victim's family seeking revenge. <sup>4</sup>The killer will flee to one of these cities, stand at the entrance of the city gate, and explain their situation to the elders of that city. The elders are to let the killer into the city and provide a place of refuge for the killer to live with them. <sup>5</sup>If a member of the victim's family follows, seeking revenge, they won't hand the killer over. This is because the killer struck down the neighbor by accident and hadn't been an enemy in the past. <sup>6</sup>The killer will live in that city until there can be a trial before the community or <sup>7</sup>until the death of the one who is high priest at that time. Then the killer may return home, back to the city from which the flight began.'"

<sup>7</sup>So they set apart Kedesh in Galilee in the highlands of Naphtali, Shechem in the highlands of Ephraim, and Kiriath-arba (that is, Hebron) in the highlands of Judah. <sup>8</sup>On the other side of the Jordan east of Jericho, they set up Bezer in the wasteland on the plateau from the tribe of Reuben, Ramoth in Gilead from the tribe of Gad, and Golan in Bashan from the tribe of Manasseh. <sup>9</sup>These cities were the ones designated for all the Israelites and for immigrants residing among them. Anyone who struck down a person by mistake could flee there and escape death at the hand of some member of the victim's family seeking revenge, until there could be a trial before the community.

Cities for the Levites

21 The heads of the levitical families approached Eleazar the priest, Joshua, Nun's son, and the heads of the families of the Israelite tribes. <sup>2</sup>They spoke to them at Shiloh in the land of Canaan: "The LORD gave a command through Moses to give us cities to live in and their pasturelands for our cattle." <sup>3</sup>So the Israelites gave the Levites the following cities and their pasturelands out of their own legacy. This was in agreement with the LORD's command.
